Integrates the best in Law Enforcement and Military techniques

JD Russell Enterprises delivers the best in law enforcement and military techniques for crime scene analysis. Backed by over 60 years of law enforcement and US Army CID experience in Pakistan, South America, Mexico, and within the U.S. identifying and dismantling national and international criminal organizations.

All investigations start with the initial investigation of a crime scene. The crime scene could be a homicide, robbery, or a terrorist strike. The initial responders need to be able to identify the physical evidence at the scene which will be valuable for future investigations.

At JDRE we will train your personnel to be able to establish scene safety, process the scene quickly, and retrieve the evidence necessary to build a successful case against the perpetrators of the crime.

In most major crimes important information is obtained from witnesses in the first 48 hours. Processing the witnesses at the scene needs to be accomplished quickly and often followed up discretely. The communication effort is a valuable resource to be taught by JDRE members. Each instructor has hands on experience with hundreds of interviews. We are a learning organization determined to pass along the best interview techniques to our clients.

The Confidential Source

It is the confidential source who fills in the missing gaps and provides valuable information as to the criminal elements identity and motivations. It is the confidential source who can be the eyes and the ears on the other side of the walls. The methods of recruiting, deploying, and retaining confidential sources were accomplished by using the experience gained through years of interviewing various subjects in the law enforcement and military fields. JDRE members will offer their clients their successful experiences and practices to help recruit and retain effective confidential sources.

The Interrogation

Once a suspect, or suspects, have been identified the work is only beginning for the criminal investigator. Criminal organizations are often organized into cells, which can operate autonomously. A good interrogation tactics coupled with the other components of a criminal organization will uncover the rest of the criminal network. At JDRE we know a cooperating defendant can do serious damage to the rest of the organization with both intelligence and identification of key members of the criminal organization.

The Criminal Network

JD Russell Enterprise team members have both training and experience in tracing resources back to the core members of the criminal network through:

- Financial Investigations and Money Laundering
- Telephone Exploitation
- Internet Telecommunications Exploitation
- Undercover Operations
- Electronic Surveillance
- Physical Surveillance

JDRE team members will give you the tools to effectively dismantle and disrupt the criminal organizations anywhere on the globe well into the 21st century. "Just Do It." Come to us. We'll get you there.
