Ivy League Professor Kills Wife

A Tenured Israeli

His salary was $150,000 plus benefits

He Was A Full Professor At The University Of Pennsylvania

He Took A Crowbar To His Wife

Rafael Robb Is An Israeli

An Ivy League professor pleaded guilty Monday to voluntary manslaughter for killing his wife as she wrapped Christmas presents last year, telling a judge he "just lost it" during an argument.

Rafael Robb, a tenured economics professor at the University of Pennsylvania who is originally from Israel, faces a likely prison sentence of 4 1/2 to seven years for bludgeoning his wife, Ellen, on Dec. 22, 2007. 4

The Wife

Raphael beat her to death with a crowbar. He claimed they argued and she pushed him.

Extremely Bloody

The prosecutors estimate there were at least nine blows, and she died a painful death. She hardly had a face left.

Judge Paul Tressler

A fellow Zionist will sentence him. The judge gave him five years, and he could be out in two years. Z

Prosecutor Sees A Good Man

"It's a classic heat-of-passion killing," said Montgomery County District Attorney Bruce Castor.

Israelis' Attorney Seeks Probation

Robb's attorney and prosecutors say Robb feared his wife was leaving him and would keep him away from their daughter. Sentencing will likely take place in a few months. Guidelines call for a term of 4 1/2 to seven years, but Castor said state law allows anything from probation to 10 to 20 years.

Fellow Professors

Did Izzie Fall Prey To Young Co-eds?

I can see his dilemma of standing in front of a room of young enticing coeds, staring at a sea of legs. His hand picked assistants, the long hours, the preferential treatment, and blond haired Shiksas. Then he comes home to a nagging frumpy wife, reminding him he is a Shlemiel, one step out of the ghetto.

The All Powerful System Of Sayanim

You need to understand the system of the Sayanim, which says a Jew must always protect, and help another Jew. This particular monster bludgeoned his wife, to the point she had no face left. At best you have the lower echelons of the police that are non Zionists, but they are told 'Think of your careers'. Because the Zionists have infested the Judicial, you see the Phil Spectors and others walk.

At most he gets a nominal sentence, early probation, and his tenure reinstated.

I have to imagine that most girls dream of a family, and a comfortable life. I really doubt than today's college girl dreams of French kissing the girl next door, much less a 50 yr old Madonna. Today's Zio-Propaganda says college girls love watching porn on the internet.

University Studies Or Just Feminist Propaganda

A new study shows that female college students are more accepting of porn. The findings by researchers at Brigham Young University suggest there may be a generational shift taking place among those who think it's OK to have a peek.

Who Funds The Research Grants?

"These women are part of a rising generation that is deeming pornography as more acceptable and more mainstream," said Jason Carroll, an associate professor at BYU and lead researcher of the study, titled "Generation XXX: Pornography Acceptance and Use Among Emerging Adults," which will be published in the January issue of the Journal of Adolescent Research.

"You Go Girl"

It's widely accepted that pornography use has skyrocketed, thanks to the "three A's," according to Laura Walker, a professor in the School of Family Life at BYU and co-author of the study. The Internet has made it anonymous, accessible and affordable. "It's something you can do by yourself, right at the touch of your fingers, and it can be very fulfilling"

Early Feminists

Early feminists were opposed to pornography, which was seen as demeaning to women.

Today's Feminist

But today's feminists are more likely to see it "as a mode of self-expression." They "are much more open about ways that identity can be manipulated. They don't feel locked into any identity. [They may feel] 'I can do this one day and do something totally different another,' " she said.

Kevin Rudd Is Australia's Prime Minister

Kevin Rudd With His Yenta Therese Rein

"Oh Joy, Oh Joy!"

When I think of Australia, I picture Crocodile Dundee, and a nation of frontiersmen. Today they threw out John Howard, a Zionist stooge el supremo, and elected Kevin Rudd. Guess what, this new tiger is a clone of France's Zarkosy.

Now Australia has a bank crisis, and will hand out billions to banks sitting on bad loans.

The government will also guarantee all term wholesale funding by Australian banks operating in international markets and it will inject $4 billion (U.S. $2.6 billion) into residential-backed securities to help shore up the Australian mortgage market.

Rudd Replaced John Howard

Howard was a stain on Australia landscape. He was a Zionist's Zionist, who backed Israel despite their open execution of women and children. He took away Australian's guns.

Howard's Love Of Israel

Kevin Rudd Is Another Zionist

"Modern Labor supports the State of Israel for three basic reasons: the legacy of the Holocaust, the central role of the UN in the creation of the State of Israel as a construct of international law and the fact that Israel is a vibrant, democratic state in a region where democracy remains far from the norm," Rudd wrote.

Do Jews Control The World?

by Henry Makow Ph.D. – October 9, 2007

This question is the proverbial elephant in the room, the dysfunction that members of the human family dare not mention.

So when Richard Dawkins remarked in "The Guardian" that the Israel Lobby controls American foreign policy, Daniel Finkelstein, the Jewish editor of the "London Times" "Comments" heard Nazi storm troopers banging on his door.

Dawkins

Finkelstein Reacts In Horror

"So Dawkins, a liberal hero, believes, er, that Jews control world power." Finkelstein sighed. "And, judging from /the Guardian/, it is now a part of mainstream debate to say so. Perhaps you think I am over-reacting, but I am a little bit frightened. All I can manage is, Oh My God."

Finkelstein's readers soon set him straight. Dawkins didn't say Jews control the world, just US foreign policy. And obviously, the Israel lobby and neo-cons do control US foreign policy (as pawns of the banking cartel in my opinion.)

These Are Powerful Newspapers

Finkelstein's outburst is ironic. Here is a Jewish media gatekeeper, employed by a Jewish press magnate (Rupert Murdoch), shocked at the mention of Jewish power, persuading the public that the very suggestion is in bad taste.

"The Times" is not just any newspaper. It has been the voice of the British establishment for more than 100 years. Along with Chatham House (the RIIA) and Tavistock, it is a principal instruments of the cabal that governs England and most of the world. That cabal consists of Jewish central bankers and British (European and American) aristocracy united by money, marriage and a belief in the occult (Freemasonry.)

Anti-Semitism Springs From Jews Like Churchill's Mother

My objection is to the term "the Jews" when obviously we are talking about very rich and powerful Jews who have intermarried with rich and powerful Gentiles. Sid the tailor does not control the world. I do not control the world.

We are talking about rich Jews who most other Jews wouldn't even recognize: they are Freemasons. They worship Lucifer and think God is evil.

I represent that silent majority of average Jews, who have assimilated, and support the national interest. Rich Jews want ordinary Jews like me, take the fall when opposition grows to their predatory agenda.

Anti-Semitism never made any headway in Europe in the Nineteenth and early Twentieth Century until rich Jews decided to sponsor it. There is no way Hitler would have come to power without the backing of world finance. Hitler was Time Magazine "Man of the Year" in 1938. Stalin, another Freemason created by the Money Power, took the honor in 1939. Hey let's have a war between the two!

The central bankers owned I.G. Farben, the backbone of the Nazi war machine. Max Warburg was a Director until 1938. In March 1941 the Warburg family and employees were spirited out of Nazi Europe by the SS. Hitler so hated the Jewish bankers that he had them escorted to safety in a private train.

Assimilated and religious Jews who did not serve the bankers' interests were the main victims of Nazi persecution. Zionists, on the other hand, were spared. These same Zionists put ordinary Jews on trains to Auschwitz telling them they were being "resettled."

If the past is a guide, in an economic or social breakdown, the bankers will focus blame on their pawns, Zionists or neons, or preferably Jews in general. This is why patriotic Jews must disassociate from the bankers and their minions now.

WHAT IS ANTI-SEMITISM?

Anti-Semitism might be called anti-imperialism. At heart, it is opposition to the plan of the central bankers, based in the City of London, to "gradually absorb the wealth of the world" and establish a dictatorship masked as "world government." This involves stupefying and degrading society through faux education, porn and violence; and bankrupting and brutalizing us through war, pandemics and domestic repression.

It involves destroying "all collective forces except our own" which means destroying all race, religion, (God), nation and family. They use social engineering like diversity, feminism, multiculturalism and homosexuality to accomplish these aims. (I like homosexuals & different races; I just don't think they should be used as a weapon.)

The bankers have made anti-Semitism a no-no because they place cooperative Jews in positions of control. The stigma attached to anti-Semitism is a form of mind control. The banker media uses guilt and victimhood to place a cone of immunity over their agents and their agenda. The Holocaust is used callously to establish guilt.

If we think of anti-Semitism in terms of opposition to the bankers' political and cultural policy rather than to a race, it can be justified. The key is to distinguish between Jews who advance the New World Order and those who do not.

JEWS ARE THE BIGGEST DUPES

Socialism and Communism are Jewish in origin, membership and character. Throughout the past century, naïve Jews flocked to the Red banner. The clarion call: "Capitalists have all the wealth. Communism will result in equality."

This clarion call was just bait. The richest people in the world created & financed Communism; their agenda was to further concentrate wealth. Socialism is the same thing on a smaller scale, a way of electing world banker lackeys and increasing government power. (Socialism may have some intrinsic merit but this is not why they back it.)

The false conflict between "public" and "private"; Left and Right; government and free enterprise; keeps the public in a political headlock.

Jews like Noam Chomsky and Naomi Klein uphold this false dichotomy. They blame everything on the private sector, on corporations, on US imperialism. Left versus Right. Government vs Free Enterprise.

The truth is the corporations she vilifies own both her publisher and the politicians Right and Left. Public vs Private is meaningless today because Private controls Public (though debt.)

A recent profile of Klein in The Globe and Mail says: "Ms. Klein's left-wing certainties, her refusal to ...accept the fact that the business mentality has triumphed, are rooted in her family history: "I don't question being a leftist any more than I would question being a Jew - it's the culture I got taught as a kid." Her upbringing, she believes, is responsible for The Shock Doctrine's theme of resistance against the privatized world."

The day when Naomi Klein advocates government take control of its credit, or traces the Mossad role in 9-11, will be the day she disappears from the mass media. She is an example of what many socialist Jewish dupes do best; control the debate, enrich themselves and wax self-righteous as benefactors. They are the company union.

CONCLUSION

In 2004, I wrote: "Anti-Semitism is not an irrational hatred or sickness in the Gentile soul, as Jews imagine. It is a healthy defense mechanism of mainly Christian and Moslem nations, cultures, races and religions that are threatened by a gradual and insidious process of extinction (i.e. world government.)"

If anti-Semitism is opposition to the world banker agenda, rather than to all Jews heedless of their role, then I see anti-Semitism as a healthy sign.

We cannot let them use this disingenuous ploy to outlaw Resistance to Tyranny. Jews...everyone... must not be manipulated. Its not Jews nor Gentiles but Satanists who "control the world."

Zionists Say That Eva Herman Is The Fräulein From Hell

They Say She Is The Resurrection Of Irma Griese

Evil To Her Very Core

We Must Never Questions The Zionist

The Zionist news media has told me 4,000,000 Jews were gassed in a two car garage at Auschwitz, 38,000 were shot at Babi Yar, 2,000,000 were gassed by a submarine engine at Treblinka, 240,000 eaten by chickens at Belzec, and countless cremated at Sobibor. At the Nuremberg trials they presented eyewitnesses that saw two bears eats a Jew every morning.

So if they tell us Eva Herman is evil, than who are we to doubt?

Germany's Premier Network

Eva Herman, who worked for 18 yrs as a news commentator at Germany's flagship `Tagesschau` news programme, will no longer be there.

Jonah B. Kerner's Talk Show

Eva, who was a German television host who was sacked last month for praising Hitler's family values. Last night she was kicked off a late night talk show when she refused to apologize. Her flimsy excuse that she was the victim of a Zionist media witch-hunt, fell on Jonah's deaf ears.

The Look Of Today's Nazi

Eva Herman, 48, a guest on German public broadcaster ZDF's "Johannes B. Kerner" talk show, was asked by the host whether she regretted comments in which she lauded family planning policy under the Nazis.

Heman's Attitude

"If we are not allowed to speak about Nazi family values, we also can't talk about highways that were built then and on which we're still driving," she replied.

Other Guests Were Aghast!

Two Jewish guests on the show were visibly aghast at the remark, and protested. Host Kerner then signalled to Herman that she should leave, prompting her to walk out.

"I had hoped that Mrs Herman would apologize to the Jewish people" Kerner said. "She was unrepentant, so I signaled her to leave."

Eva Herman Kicked Off Show

After refusing to apologize to world Jewry, Ms Herman was shown the door.

Unholy Books About German Families

NDR took action after Herman, during a presentation of her new book on child-rearing, expressed regret that Nazi family values had been swept away.

Herman has taken legal action in protest at her firing.

Eva Herman Is Just Another Irma Grese

Irma was a 19 yr old postal clerk at Auschwitz, who Zionist prosecutors accused of skinning camp Jews alive. Irma would strut around in full Nazi regalia, a form fitting SS outfit, a Luger pistol, an attack dog, tall shiny black boots, and a whip, said two Polish Jewesses.

Irma was unrepentant to the end, demanding the MPs put the death hood on, not the Zionist hangman. Despite a few slaps by Solomon Lutzheim, she still refused to be touched. She was hung at the age of twenty, and today's Germans should say a prayer for her!!

We Must Always Trust In A Superior Power

I, myself, see Eva Herman is the face of a new Germany, a people trying to free themselves from the treacherous and greedy Bolsheviks. The old wife's tales like the holocaust, Mengele boiling midgets, injecting blue dye into children's eyes, or the teenage postal clerk (Irma Grese) skinning Jews, is just more nonsense.

I would compare Ms Herman to her Jewish counterpart, Tzofit Grant, and then decide.

Chrysler Workers Call End To Strike

Looks Like A TSA Airport Security Job For Bernice

As the workers at Chrysler's Sterling Heights went back to work, some workers were skeptical about job security promises, one worker said.

Here Is The Bottom Line

Now here Is A Swindle

Under Chrysler's tentative agreement, the company would pay $10 billion to $11 billion into a union-run trust that will pick up Chrysler's $19 billion in future retiree health care expenses, according to two people who have been briefed on the agreement.

What Did Workers Get?

Basically they got 5.2% increase, to $39 an hour, approximately $75k a year. New employees will get $14 an hour, or $29k a year.

Management gave them a $3000 signing bonus.

Clerical Transferring Offshore

People would be offered buyout and early retirement packages.

Zionist Can't Promise Job Security

Union leaders assure employees that Chrysler's new owners, Cerberus Capital Management LP, didn't buy the company just to sell it off. "It very well could be true that they're in it for the long haul and they're not going to strip and flip us," he said.

It would be difficult for Chrysler to promise job security by guaranteeing that new vehicles will be built at U.S. plants like GM did because Chrysler's new executives aren't yet sure what vehicles will be built in the U.S..

No More Rice Paddies For These Boys

Bin Chow, and Chin Li, will be in the Chrysler Canton plants making big bucks. No more shitting in rice paddies for these slopes.

It's big cities lights, saki, and plenty of 'Boom Boom' girls.

I Wonder Who Will Own the Bars?

"Love you long time!"

So What Really Happened?

The new owners threw some chump change at current employees, and the union is worthless. Chrysler is transferring $10 billion of health funds to union control, and that needs to be invested. Jimmy O'Hare, the fund manager, buys Feldman Software and sadly the stock goes from $50 to $30, as do countless other investments. Watch that $10 bill go south over the next five years.

The pattern will be relocate clerical offshore, and move plants down south. Look at the meat packing plants to see Chrysler's future.

"A Journey to Jewish Joy"; "Trembling Before G-d"

Now available in home video, the 2001 "Trembling Before G-d" The 2001 documentary by Sandi Simcha Dubowski dealt with gay and lesbian members of the Orthodox and Chasidic communities struggling against all odds to be accepted.

Mazursky's documentary, which premieres tomorrow at Lincoln Center as part of a May 4 - 10 film festival honoring the 77 year old actor and director, follows him on a visit to the village of Uman in the Ukraine, where thousands of Chasidic Jews make a pilgrimage each year during the week of Rosh Hashanah in order to pray at the grave of Rabbi Nachman, one of their most revered leaders who died at the age of 38 in 1810. For the Chasidic sects, this is like Moslems going to Mecca. As became more and more obvious to me when watching Mazursky's amusing documentary, this is not the only similarity between Jewish and Islamic fundamentalism.

Paul Mazursky trying on Chasidic haberdashery

For fans of Larry David's "Curb Your Enthusiasm," Paul Mazursky will be instantly recognizable as Mel Brooks's partner in the episodes when David becomes cast in the role of Max Bialystock. As a running gag, the always frowning Mazursky keeps arguing unsuccessfully to Brooks that Larry David would a disastrous choice. He doesn't know at the time that Brooks chose David because he was tired of being involved with the show and expected David to ruin it, a reference of course to the plot of "The Producers".

"Be There Or Be Square"

Mazursky's film is little more than a home movie, costing only $50,000 to make. However, it is extremely funny and engaging. Since I am not sure it will ever make it into the theaters, I urge New Yorkers to consider seeing it tomorrow especially if the "Jewish Question" intrigues you, just as it did Karl Marx, Karl Kautsky and Abram Leon.

"It's A Thumbs Up"

Mazursky was persuaded to make the trip to Uman by his observant Beverly Hills optometrist, who accompanies him there. Mazursky makes it clear at the beginning and at the end of the film that he is totally secular and unreligious. This does not prevent him from enjoying the experience. He obviously feels little identification with the religious Jews but tries to make the viewer and implicitly himself, understand their beliefs. I once went through a similar experience about ten years ago when I went to Bahai services in New York. I never took the whole idea of worshipping God seriously, but I found the Bahais engaging in their own way. I never got used to the idea, however, of their belief that homosexuals were beyond redemption—shared by the clergy in "Trembling Before G-d."

The Great Yiddish Comedians Are Dying Off

Mazursky's generation is dying out now. These are the men and women who came up in the Catskill resorts, Hollywood and Broadway musicals and 1950s television variety shows. Virtually none of them were religious, but their sensibility was quintessentially Jewish. This was expressed most of all by their sense of humor. In one scene after another, we see Mazursky cracking up a bunch of Chasidim with a vintage joke.

Some Of The Greatest Jokes

Cohen meets Schwartz in New York's old garment district and Cohen says, "I heard about the fire." Schwartz puts his fingers to his lips and whispers, "Shhhh, tomorrow."

For the benefit of non-Jews, the joke goes back to the Depression days when businessmen facing bankruptcy set fire to their shops to collect the insurance.

What Would Momma Say

By contrast, "Trembling Before G-d" is no laughing matter. It profiles a number of deeply religious Jews who have been ostracized by their community for the "sin" of homosexuality.

A number of the interviewees have their faces hidden since they have not come out yet. Those with the courage to show themselves come across as much more ethical than those who hold them in judgment. Two women who live together are shown preparing a Friday night dinner, which is a kind of ceremony in Jewish households. Neither woman's parents will have anything to do with them.

Will His Synagogue Forgive him?

A gay man from Los Angeles is seen in a discussion with a rabbi that he holds in very high regard. He tries to explain to the rabbi that his desire for other men is just as natural as his desire for his wife. The rabbi can only respond that the only way that the man can remain a Jew is if he represses his desires.

As director Dubrowski put it in an interview with indieWire, the rabbis tended to be Jewish versions of Jerry Falwell on such questions:

When you actually went to the Rabbis, how did you find the ones who would talk on camera?

Dubowski: At one point, I took a trip to Israel specifically to talk with Rabbis. It was a very difficult trip with about six weeks spent making as many phone calls as possible and following up on as many contacts as possible. I went to see the former chief Sephardic Rabbi of Israel. You wake up at 4 AM and sign your name on a list and wait for seven hours until finally you are in the doorway. There are all these people pushing behind you. You get inside the chamber and you have two people on either side of you and he is sitting above you with a crown on his head. I went up to the Rabbi and said, "You know there are so many people I have met over the past 7 years who are in pain." I told him stories briefly of the people in my movie and asked him, "Is there anything you can say to help them?" He said to tell them two words: "animalistic and abomination." I pushed my way back and said to him: "You know these are Torah Jews. They know the prohibition. What can you say to them to ease their pain?" And he answered: "Say the first ten chapters of the Kabbal, aloud. It will be eradicated."

It should not come as any great surprise that gay and lesbian orthodox Jews are using the anonymity of the Internet to make connections with each other, just as dissidents in a dictatorship would. Websites such as GayJews.org and The World Congress of Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual, and Transgender Jews are challenging homophobia in organized Jewry all over the world, often using a deep understanding of scripture to buttress their arguments. As is typical in a world steeped in Talmudic disputation, there are often genuinely inspired interpretations. For example, at GayJews.org, Kevin J. Saunders explains that gay sex might be acceptable if it is seen in the same terms as the Hilchot Shabbat, where "Rav Noivert and the Tzitz Eliezer specifically permit someone who is diabetic and insulin dependent to regularly violate the Sabbath in order to puncture the skin and a vein to inject the insulin." So, if penetration can be life-saving, why can't it be fun as well?

When I watch ultra-orthodox Jews in such documentaries, I am reminded of why difficult it is for me to romanticize political Islamic. Religions that are so obsessed with sin and guilt are really not my cup of tea. When I was a religion major at Bard College in the early 1960s, I found myself much more interested in Bacchic rites than in the self-abnegating "sky religions" with their stern father figures.

Of course, I never really felt right about such things until I put religion behind me entirely.

The World's Most Powerful

It's a list of "the world's most powerful people," 100 of the bankers and media moguls, publishers and image makers who shape the lives of billions. It's an exclusive, insular club, one whose influence stretches around the globe but is concentrated strategically in the highest corridors of power.

And by at least by one count, ninety percent are Jewish.

Normally Jews Would Be Nervous

It's a list, in other words, that would have made earlier generations of Jews jump out of their skins, calling attention, as it does, to their disproportionate influence in finance and the media.

Jews Feel Good About Themselves

Joseph Aaron, the editor of The Chicago Jewish News, thinks it's a list his readers should "feel very, very good about."

"Talk about us being accepted into this society, talk about us having power in this society," Aaron wrote this week, in apparent reference to Jewish life in the United States. "Talk about anti-Semitism being a thing of the past, talk about Jews no longer needing to be afraid to be visible and influential."

The World Was Cheated By Hitler

For Aaron, the list shows how "vital" Jews have become in American life. The Vanity Fair rankings, he writes, "[tell] you so much about the place of Jews in this country, about the amazing people Jews are."

Jews excelled disproportionately in areas such as business and medicine.

Summer Camp Teaches U.S. Teens To Fight Israeli Style

By Chris Hedges

Jewish-American teenagers can sign up for an eight-week training course run by the Israel Defense Forces where they fire weapons, live in military barracks and saunter around in an Israeli military uniform. Tools

If you are a young Muslim American and head off to the Middle East for a spell in a fundamentalist "madrasa," or religious school, Homeland Security will probably greet you at the airport when you return. But if you are an American Jew and you join hundreds of teenagers from Europe and Mexico for an eight-week training course run by the Israel Defense Forces, you can post your picture wearing an Israeli army uniform and holding an automatic weapon on MySpace.

Learn To Shoot The M-16

The Marva program, part summer camp part indoctrination, was launched in Israel in 1981. It allows participants, who must be Jewish and between the ages of 18 and 28, to fire weapons, live in military barracks in the Negev desert and saunter around in an Israeli military uniform saluting and taking long hikes with military packs. The Youth and Education Corps of the Israel Defense Forces run four 120-strong training sessions a year.

Be With 'Real Men'

"Upon arrival, the participants experience an abrupt change into army life: wearing uniforms, accepting army discipline, and learning the programs and lessons integral to the program," the Let Israelis Show You Israel Web site reads. "The program includes military content such as: navigation, field training, weapons training, shooting ranges, marches and more, as well as educational content such as: Zionism, Jewish Identity, history and knowledge of the land of Israel. All of this is taught in Hebrew in an intensive eight weeks."

Get To Know Israel

"The participants finish the program after completing a short, intensive, exhilarating military experience that allows them to taste Israel in a way that they never could before -- as part of the Israel Defense Forces," the site reads. "They leave the program with a feeling of belonging and a strong connection to Israel, and many return to Israel to continue the connection that was created in the framework of the Marva course."

Will I Measure Up?

There are, of course, gushing testimonials about the program.

"I spent the first few days of Marva doubting my decision, wondering why I had come, wondering if there was any way out. With all of the running, yelling orders, discipline and Hebrew, I felt horribly out of place, writes Canadian David Roth of his summer. It was a completely different world from the one I was used to. All that changed, though, by the end of the first week. We had our first 'Masa' (Hike). It was very hard, but at the end, we all knew, our M16s were waiting for us at the 'tekes' (Ceremony). We got through the 8 kilometers and had our 'tekes' and got our guns. It felt amazing, and from that point on Marva was incredible.

Will I Find A Special Guy

It can be awfully lonely in the Negev, and no doubt Lt Dan will council young Irving. Long walks in the still night air, a little Ecstasy, and it's 'Love Time'.

A Real Live Training Center

Young Jews can learn to handle explosives. Then they can blow up American trains, just like they did in Madrid.

A Chance To Participate

Go to a checkpoint and strap some 70 yr old Arab to a jeep.

The Camaraderie - 'Guns And Guys'

You can bet that Sgt Penski, and Corporal Heimel, will take some confused young 17 yr old under their wing.

Will These Little Psychos Turn On Americans

The argument in favor of camps in Israel, as opposed to camps in Pakistan, is that these young men and women are not going to come back and use what they have learned to harm Americans. They are not terrorists. Muslims, however, have not cornered the market on terrorism and violence. Radical Jews have also been involved in terrorist attacks in Israel and the United States.

Ex-American Criminals Love Israel

I discovered an American in Israel in 1989 named Robert Manning. A huge, burly man, Manning was living in the West Bank Jewish settlement of Kiyrat Arba. When I found him he was carrying a pistol, a large knife strapped to his leg and an M-16 assault rifle. He was part of a Jewish terrorist group called Committee for Protection and Safety of the Highways that set up ad hoc roadblocks and pulled Palestinians from cars to beat and often shoot them. He was a follower of Meir Kahane, the leader of the Jewish Defense League, who was implicated in terrorist attacks in the United States and Israel. Manning served as a reservist in the Israel Defense Forces in the West Bank.

Manning was wanted in California for murder. He had been charged in a 1980 mail-bomb killing as part of his involvement in the Jewish Defense League. The bomb was intended for the owner of a local computer firm, but the package holding the device was opened by the firm's secretary, Patricia Wilkerson, who was killed instantly by the blast.

Manning, full of bluster and a bitter racism toward Arabs, used as his pseudonym the name of the FBI agent in charge of his case, a bit of humor that backfired on him by confirming my suspicion of his identity. I obtained the picture from his California driver's license and showed it to his neighbors at Kiyrat Arba. They identified him from the photo. I wrote an article affirming that Manning, heavily armed and an active member of the Israeli army, was living in a Jewish settlement. The Israeli government, until that moment, said it had no information about his location. He was extradited in 1993 and sentenced the next year to life imprisonment without the possibility of parole for 30 years. He is in a maximum-security prison in Florence, Colo.

If Muslims Did This We Would Bomb Their Camps

Those who go through the Marva summer program are indoctrinated as thoroughly as Muslims who go overseas and are told they are part of a greater jihad for Islam. The results, given Israel's close alliance with the United States, may not be negative for those in power in the United States, but it may be very negative for those Americans defined as the enemy, especially Muslims, should we suffer another 9/11. The program inculcates hatred and a belief in the efficacy of violence to solve the problems in the Middle East. It identifies Israel with militarism. It feeds the idea that a Jew born in Brooklyn has a birthright to settle in Israel that is denied to an American of Palestinian descent.

Jerusalem, The Stolen City, Is Gorgeous

Jerusalem, aside from being one of the most beautiful cities in the world, is one of the most literate, creative and intellectual. Do these young men and women really know the best of Israel by spending eight weeks playing soldier and glorifying the military? Is the cause of Israel advanced by mirroring the twisted militarism of Islamic fundamentalists?

A Yiddish Blackwater

Terrorists arise in all cultures, all nations and all religions. We have produced more than our share. Ask the people of Vietnam or Iraq. The danger of a military program such as these is that it solidifies a mind-set of us and them. It romanticizes violence. It widens the divide that leads to conflict. It makes dialogue impossible. There are great Israeli institutions, from the newspaper Haaretz to the courageous Israeli human rights organization B'Tselem to Peace Now. A summer working for them, rather than wearing an army uniform, unleashing bursts of automatic fire in the desert and singing Israeli patriotic songs, might actually help.

The Forgotten Assassination

James Forrestal was the Secretary of the Navy in World War Two. He opposed the wrecking of Europe so the Communists could walk in and take over. When Zionists assaulted Palestine in a grab for the world's oil, he predicted endless wars. He so infuriated Zionists that they murdered him by throwing him off the 16th floor of Bethesda Hospital.

Born To Irish Immigrants

Forrestal was born in New York in 1892, the son of an Irish immigrant. After high school, he spent the next three years working for a trio of newspapers: the Matteawan Evening Journal, the Mount Vernon Argus and the Poughkeepsie News-Press.

Attends Princeton

Forrestal entered Dartmouth College in 1911, but transferred to Princeton University and was voted by the senior class as "Most Likely to Succeed".

WW-1 Aviator

When World War I broke out, he enlisted and became a Naval Aviator, reaching the rank of Lieutenant Junior Grade.. During the final year of the war, Forrestal spent much of his time in Washington, D.C., at the Office of Naval Operations.

Politics And A Career

Following the war, Forrestal served as a publicist for the Democratic Party committee in Dutchess County, New York, helping politicians from the area win elections at both the state and national level. One of those individuals aided by his work was a neighbor, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Forrestal then returned to William A. Read and Company, earning a partnership, in 1923, before eventually becoming president of the company in 1937.

Appointed Under-Secretary Of The Navy

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt appointed Forrestal as an administrative assistant on June 22, 1940, then nominated him as Under-Secretary, whose job was mobilizing industrial production for the war effort.

He Opposes Stalin And Morgenthau

He became Secretary of the Navy on May 19, 1944, and Forrestal then led the Navy through the closing year of the war. In 1945, his distaste for Stalin and his Zionist inner circle became palpable. He referred to the "the menace of Soviet Communism and its attraction for decimated, destabilized societies in Europe and Asia for their future occupation."

He wanted a negotiated peace for Japan, and a reconstruction of Germany.

Morgenthau And His Zionists

Morgenthau wanted the execution of all Nazi leaders, the sterilization of German men, and the industrial infrastructure given to Stalin and his Bolsheviks.

The Berlin Airlift

Forrestal was infuriated at the communist Berlin Blockade. He is seen here with General Clay at the Rhein-Main in Frankfurt, Germany in 1948.

The Coming Middle East Cancer

James V. Forrestal was America's first Secretary of Defense. He was also the leading official in the Truman administration opposing the creation and U.S. recognition of the state of Israel.

His Meeting With Truman

He violently opposed an Israeli state, realizing it was a merely going to be a foothold for control of the the world's oil supplies by the Bolsheviks. He told Truman we can look forward to endless bloodshed.

Forrestal Meets With Baruch

Forrestal told this influential Zionist that he must intervene, and Baruch replies, "You are putting yourself in real danger."

Zionist Press Go On Full Attack

Pearson's protégé, Jack Anderson, later asserted that Pearson "hectorred Forrestal with innuendos and false accusations."

Menachen Begin Had His Fill

In 1946, Menachem Begin's Irgun Gang tried to assassinate Britain's anti-Zionist counterpart to Forrestal, Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin was marked for assassination by the Irgun Gang, but British intelligence stopped it. Forrestal, who was the most conspicuous and forceful anti-Zionist in the Truman administration was next.

Irgun Given The Green Light To Assassinate Forrestal

Beginning in 1947, the Zionist extremists actually followed, and harassed, the Secretary of Defense. A close associate of his at the time recalls that at the height of the Palestine controversy, his (the associate's) official limousine was followed to and from his office by a blue sedan containing two men who he thought were Zionist assassins. The police were notified and the men in the sedan were apprehended.

They claimed to be photographers, and under intense pressure from the Federal government, the police let them go.

Truman Fires Forrestal

Truman dismissed Forrestal on March 28, 1949. He suddenly became ill and was flown on a Navy airplane to the Bethesda Naval Hospital five days later.

Forrestal Is Thrown Out A Window

In the early morning hours of May 22, his body was found on a third-floor roof below the 16th-floor kitchen across the hall from his room. The Montgomery County, Maryland, county coroner called it a suicide within hours of the death.

His room showed signs of a struggle, and his body was found with a lash around his neck.

Ruled A Suicide

Rather, the first person to get a good look at Forrestal's vacated hospital room found broken glass on his bed, but "crime scene" photographs taken many hours later, show a bed with a bare mattress, an obvious sign of a cover-up.

Communist Broadcaster Walter Winchell

Winchell \(nee Weitzel\) was a second generation Polish Jew, a rabid Zionist, and he hated Forrestal. He painted Forrestal as a suicidal Wall Street crook, a Nazi sympathizer, and a Jew-Hater.

Secret Diaries Confiscated By Truman

Forrestal kept diaries on Stalin, Roosevelt, and Truman. He even showed Truman's connections to Albert Anastasia, Dutch Schultz, Louis Lepke, Lucky Luciano, Longy Zwillner, Moe Dalitz, and Ben "Bugsy" Siegel. He threatened to expose the Roosevelt-Truman administration secrets, especially related to the machinations that brought the United States into World War II and the wartime policies that advanced the interests of the Soviet Union.

Air Tragedy Stuns United Airlines

You Can't Make This Stuff Up

This is a true story, and it's a real heartbreaker.

Jewish Family Savaged

The Blums were eating a kosher meal they purchased at a restaurant before boarding the United Airlines flight from Denver to Columbus, when a flight attendant asked the family to quit eating.

Vicious Stewardess

The stewardess told Blum, 'I don't want you eating that food on the plane,'" She told him passengers were complaining about the smell of the fish.

Blum quotes the stewardess "I don't want the food on the plane. If you don't trash the food, I'll trash you." You, your wife and your kids, will be off this plane!"

The Pilot Storms Down The Aisle

Blum says the pilot told him, 'Are you going to give us any more trouble because I have to worry about 220 passengers smelling your stinking food?'"

The confrontation created a scene on the plane, forcing Blum to throw the food away when the pilot threatened to throw the family off the plane.

The Frightened Child Cried

Blum humbly put the food in the trash, and begged to stay on board. Suddenly his frightened teenage son starting crying. The other passengers 'coldly' looked on.

Other Passengers Wanted Jewish Blood

They said the Kosher food stunk.

Blum Talks To Reporters

Robert Blum told reporters at WBNS-10, "As you can see, I wear these holy fringes. I wear a kepa. My son wears a kepa. Maybe that's what the steward saw. And I am sure it was. Because why did she single us out?"

He Might AS Well Wear A Star

"I was about to cry simply because of seeing my kids like that. It was terrible." Blum calls the incident a classic case of discrimination.

United Airlines offered its apology to a Columbus, OH family who said they were humiliated for eating fish onboard a flight Friday.

"What can they do? They going to give me a free ticket to Hawaii? That won't take away the humiliation and pain of watching my children suffer and the embarrassment we all felt."

United Airlines apologized to the family, admitting flight crew acted inappropriately.

Another Investigation Into Diane's Assassination

The Dazed Bodyguard And Henri Paul Leave The Hotel

More Silly Theories On Diana's Death

Today's theory is that Diana was pregnant, the Queen hated her, and MI-5 assassinated her. The assassin drove a 2000 lb mini Uno, it chased the 5000 lb Mercedes, and pushed it into a pillar.

Did The Queen Do It

What on earth does anyone think will come of this inquiry? Do they think that it will find that the Queen ordered the killings? Do they think that it will find MI6 guilty? It is all an establishment sham to pacify the public.

Diana Was Pregnant

Little quirks will show up, questioning certain things, e.g. the fact that it took them two hours to get Dianna to the hospital, her only chance.

Yet it could show up many more little oddities, e.g. that she was embalmed in France, which is against French law, but useful in stopping blood tests to determine whether or not she was pregnant.

The Mystery Uno

Or the Fiat Punto, which turned up, burned out complete with driver with bullet hole in the head. Or the fact the Henri Paul was on MI6's payroll, as was apparently the driver of the Punto.

As always, the media will sensationalize every little twist and turn of this event, even eliciting public response to its progress. But whether it will publicise what really happened is another matter entirely

I Am Waiting For 'Iran did it'

The Mossad did it, because Israel didn't want Diana marrying the Arab. Israel massacred Lebanon, and then planted 3,000,000 cluster mines. No one really cared, but if Diana went on a campaign, then the world would notice. Dodi may used his influence to have her to discuss Anna Lindh, Moellmann, Hariri, Zimbabwe, Darfur, and countless Zionist plots.

How did the Mossad do it? The only possible explanation is that Henry Paul was the assassin. Notice that the first one on the scene was an Zionist, and how the bodyguard has become wealthy with book deals. The fact that the Mossad hasn't got the slightest mention is also odd.

Diana was an intelligent, and passionate, but a loose cannon. As the Zionists collapse the world economy on their way to world domination, this is one wildcard they don't need stirring up the masses.

The first husband is late on child support so husband and wife team take an axe to him.

The First Husband

Jeffrey Swayman and Randye Kimmel were married in June 1973. He was verbally and physically abusive, she says. She filed for divorce in March 1979.

Randy Kimmel Remarries

Six months after divorcing Swayman, Randy married Mickey Keitz.

The Couple Was Sick Of The First Husband

Swayman was a lawyer who constantly pushed Mickey Keitz about visitation and child support, irking them by continuously going to court to enforce his parental rights.

"Jeffrey had a very volatile temper, and that made me nervous," Mitchell Keitz says. Swayman claimed the couple was responsible for sugar in his gas tank, late-night obscene calls and tapping on his bedroom window at all hours.

Swayman Visits His Daughter

Father's Day, 1981. Jeffrey Swayman did what many divorced dads do - picked up his 3-year-old daughter, Kari, from his ex-wife and spent the afternoon with her.

The Husband And Wife Have A Surprise

Keitz had a bar bouncer there when the first husband brought the 3 yr old home. In his opening argument, prosecutor Paul Moyle told jurors that Keitz had bludgeoned Swayman while McLemore held him down, biting his hands to help her do so.

Swayman Ands His Wife Did This

Jurors were told how Keitz had bludgeoned Swayman while Randye held him down, biting his hands to help her do so. The jury heard him say in his taped confession that Keitz delivered the fatal blows to Swayman with the blunt end of a hatchet.

Jewish Mob Lawyer

Zionists didn't want another one of their psychos making headlines, so they bought in Meyer Lansky's lawyer.

The Body Was Pulverized

The prosecutor told the jurors that the blood and broken furniture inside the Keitz house spoke volumes. "The whole house cries out as a witness," he said. Keitz and his accomplices had beat Swayman so bad they decided to "Finish off Swayman and dump his body" detectives said. The jury heard him say in his taped confession that Keitz delivered the fatal blows to Swayman with the blunt end of a hatchet.

Swayman, the judge noted, "was pulverized." He gave Keitz 99 years.

The Wife Took A Plea deal

Five days before her scheduled trial in June 1983, Randye divorced Keitz, took a guilty plea of manslaughter, and served 16 months.

Up For Parole

Mickey Keitz has spent 25 yrs in a minimum security prison, and now the Jewish community is clamoring for his parole. But over the years, the judge, the prosecutor and the lead detective on the case said the savagery of Swayman's murder was as bad as they had seen. Z

The 'Unbreakable Bond' with Israel of the Zionist Judges Controlling the 9-11 Litigation

President Bush with the nominee Michael B. Mukasey

As expected, the nominee to be next Attorney General of the United States has a long history of obstructing justice, preventing discovery, and covering up the evidence of Israeli involvement in the terror attacks of 9-11.

Israeli Agents

If Israeli agents were not prime suspects in the "false flag" terror attacks on the World Trade Center, and if a passenger screening company owned by Israeli intelligence agents were not a defendant in the 9-11 litigation, the fact that the crucial 9-11 lawsuits have been handled by two Zionist judges from the same synagogue might be considered a coincidence.

Hellerstein And Makasey

But with so much evidence of Israeli involvement in 9-11 in plain view, the intimate connection with the State of Israel of these judges can not be discarded as mere coincidence. It should rather be viewed as evidence of the on-going, high-level, and well-planned cover-up.

The Zionist judges controlling the 9-11 litigation have acted like the Israeli bulldozers after the massacres in the Palestinian refugee camps of Sabra, Shatila, and Jenin. Like judicial bulldozers, the mission of these orthodox Jewish judges is to bury the evidence of Israeli involvement in the "false flag" terror attacks of 9-11.

The Mysterious Synagogues

In what might otherwise be seen as coincidence, the two presidentially-appointed federal judges who have presided over the most crucial 9-11 cases are both orthodox Zionist Jews who attend the same Manhattan synagogue and support its Talmudic yeshiva.

The federal judges Alvin K. Hellerstein and Michael B. Mukasey, the nominee to be the next U.S. attorney general, are both members of a Zionist congregation, the orthodox Kehilath Jeshrun synagogue of Manhattan, and are active supporters of its yeshiva, the Ramaz School.

The Jewish Have Special Rules

A yeshiva is an orthodox Jewish school affiliated with a synagogue where Talmudic interpretation of Mosaic law is taught. In an orthodox yeshiva, the Talmudic interpretation of the Torah is based on rabbinical teaching that completely changes the meaning of Mosaic law.

Talmudic interpretation effectively negates the meaning of the Ten Commandments as the late Israeli scholar Israel Shahak pointed out in his book on Jewish supremicisim, Jewish History, Jewish Religion: The Weight of Three Thousand Years.

To an orthodox Jew, Shahak wrote, Talmudic scholars interpret the commandment "Thou shall not kill," to mean that a Jew is proscribed only from killing another Jew. Non-jews, on the other hand, are fair game and can be killed like animals. The rest of the Mosaic law is interpreted likewise concerning treatment of non-Jews, according the Shahak's book.

Who Controlled The 9/11 Investigation

Unbeknownst to most Americans, the key judges who have overseen the most important 9-11 lawsuits and Michael Chertoff, the Asst. Attorney General who directed the non-investigation of 9-11, are all members of this extremely racist and un-American religious sect. They, like the other key officials involved in the 9-11 conspiracy, were all raised and educated in this tradition.

The judges, officials, and advisors involved at every critical point of the 9-11 conspiracy and cover-up are all Jewish Zionists dedicated to the State of Israel. This is how Zionist agents have been able to cover up the truth of what really happened on 9-11.

Attorney General Alberto Gonzales and Michael Chertoff, the former assistant attorney general responsible for the criminal division of the Dept. of Justice. Chertoff was the key Zionist gate-keeper and controller of the "non-investigation" of 9-11.

The Synagogue

The Congregation Kehilath Jeshurun is a Zionist synagogue, according to its mission statement. It defines itself as a "modern Orthodox" synagogue, which is "deeply committed" to "an unbreakable bond with the State of Israel and its citizens."

The orthodox branch of Judaism is a minority sect making up about 10 percent of American Jews. This minority sect, however, wields immense power in the government and courts of the United States.

The Kehilath Jeshurun congregation has a long history of shaping the Zionist agenda. In the 1920s, for example, it hosted orthodox Zionist conferences where plans were discussed to bring all the Jews of Russia to the southwestern United States.

"Our identification with the State of Israel and our fellow Jews extends well beyond the more conventional UJA/Federation, Israel Bonds and tree-planting campaigns," the congregation's mission statement says – and indeed it does.

The Kehilath Jeshurun congregation acts as an agency of Israel on the Upper East Side of Manhattan and some of its members occupy positions of power within the government of the United States.

The "modern" orthodox congregation also has a long history of calling for segregation and separation of Jews from Christians and Christian influences in the community. Like other orthodox Jews, the congregation is opposed to Reform Judaism, the largest branch of Judaism. Orthodox religious expression is the only form of Judaism that is recognized by the State of Israel.

As a religious sect that is based on race, intermarriage between Jews and Christians is anathema to orthodox Jews like Chertoff, Hellerstein, and Mukasey.

The Pale Of The Settlement

Like most Zionists, the parents or grandparents of Chertoff, Hellerstein, and Mukasey are from the largely uncivilized frontier region between the Russian and German spheres of influence known as the Pale of Settlement.

The Pale of Settlement refers to the expanse that reaches from Lithuania to the Black Sea, a region between Prussia and the Russian Empire of Catherine the Great, who created the Pale in 1791. The Pale existed until 1917 and is occupied today by Ukraine, Poland, Belarus, and Lithuania.

The areas around Brest-Litovsk, Grodno, and Byalistok had the largest concentrations of Jews and were hotbeds of Zionist activity in the late 1800s. Jews outnumbered Christians in some of the towns, such as Grodno, an old Lithuanian city.

Mukasey And His Yeshiva

Michael Bernard Mukasey and his wife are members of Kehilath Jeshurun, the orthodox synagogue that is connected to the Ramaz yeshiva. The Ramaz School was started in 1937 by Rabbi Joseph H. Lookstein.

First class in the Ramaz School, 1937

Lookstein served concurrently as principal of the Ramaz School in New York and as president and chancellor of Bar-Ilan University in Israel, where he was chancellor from 1958 to 1979. This illustrates the intense Zionist character of the Ramaz school and synagogue.

Mukasey attended the Ramaz School and graduated in 1959. His wife, the former Susan Bernstock Saroff, was a teacher and headmistress of the Ramaz Lower School. Both of Susan's children, who were adopted by Mukasey, attended the Ramaz yeshiva.

Mukasey, the nominee for attorney general, attended the Ramaz yeshiva and reportedly "remains heavily involved in that community." That "community" would be the orthodox, Zionist, and Israeli community of Manhattan.

In 1948, according to the Ramaz school's website, children of Israeli diplomats on "special missions" began enrolling in the Ramaz School. These Israeli students attended Ramaz with Mukasey, who speaks Hebrew.

Isaac Herzog, the son of Chaim Herzog, the former president of Israel and head of the Israeli military intelligence, attended the Ramaz school in the 1970s. Isaac Herzog was government secretary under Ehud Barak and is currently a minister in the Israeli government. Mukasey will be the second Jewish attorney general, if confirmed. Ed Levi, who served under President Gerald Ford was the first.

Mukasey was nominated as a federal judge in New York in 1987 by President Ronald Reagan and became the chief judge in 2000.

Mukasey was elevated to Chief Judge of the U.S. District Court for the Southern District of New York, succeeding Judge Thomas P. Griesa, on March 12, 2000. Mukasey remained in this position until August 1, 2006. As chief judge for New York City, Mukasey was well placed to control the entire legal process concerning 9-11.

"From 1967 to 1972, Mukasey was in private practice, where his clients ranged from right-wing lawyer Roy Cohn to the Daily News," the newspaper reported. "He then switched sides and joined the Manhattan prosecutor's office, where he forged a life-long friendship with future Mayor Rudy Giuliani."

The Rabbi Approves Judge Mukasey

In an article entitled "Local Rabbi Thinks Michael Mukasey Perfect for AG Job," the New York Daily News reported that after President Bush announced his intention to nominate Mukasey, the FBI called on his rabbi in Manhattan.

"Rabbi Haskel Lookstein said the G-men wanted to know if there was anything in the 66-year-old judge's background that could scuttle his nomination," the Daily News reported. Lookstein reportedly told the agents that Mukasey was "a mensch."

"There's nothing wrong with him," the rabbi said. "He's as close to perfect as you can be. And that's the way he was at 15."

Very little is known about Mukasey's family background. There are very few articles that mention the name Mukasey prior to 1960. The Mukasey name is a Jewish surname from a place named Lachowicze, in the region of Brest.

Judge Mukasey's wife was the headmistress of the Ramaz Lower School in the 1990s when he was handling the case of the first "false flag" terror bombing of the World Trade Center. This case was primarily meant to prepare public opinion for what was planned for 9-11.

A Strongly Based Zionist Judge

At the beginning of the trial of Sheik Omar Abdel Rahman, the sheik's lawyers filed a motion requesting Mukasey recuse himself from the trial.

The motion argued that Mukasey's allegiance to Israel created a bias against the Muslim defendants. Mukasey dismissed the motion as "utterly irrelevant."

Michael Bernard Mukasey

"A strongly-biased Zionist judge," is how Dr. Edward W. Miller described Mukasey in his 1997 article about the trial of the blind sheik.

"Mukasey is a committed Zionist, a long-time supporter of Israel," Miller wrote. "His wife is also a Zionist."

"Sheik Rahman was denied the lawyer of his choice by Judge Mukasey, and when he asked the court to permit an expert to explain the practices of Islam to an ignorant American jury, he was refused this due process. Eventually, on January 17, 1996, Sheik Omar Abdul Rahman was sentenced by a Jewish judge of strong Zionist leanings to imprisonment for life plus 65 years." "After receiving his lifetime sentence," Miller wrote, "this elderly, sick and blind sheik, standing before the Jewish judge, spoke quietly and at length in Arabic.

"He pointed out the on-going 'historical junction' at which 'the spiritual power of Islam was confronting the military/material juggernaut of a Zionist White House.'

"Sheik Rahman continued, debunking the prosecution's theory that he heads an international terrorist organization. He emphasized that he was sequestered in a jail in Cairo in the early 1980s at the time the so-called 'international terrorist group' was allegedly being formed.

"Judge Michael Mukasey was visibly irritated by the Sheik's remarks, and interrupted the scholarly cleric repeatedly and rudely, finally remarking that 'religion has nothing to do with the case.'

Source: Miller, Edward W., "A Political Prisoner In the U.S.: Sheik Omar Abdel Rahman," The Coastal Post, March, 1997

A lawyer who tried a case before Mukasey described him as "Dour and condescending; imperious and egotistic."

"I seriously doubt whether he has the 'people skills' that the DOJ needs in a new AG," the attorney said.

Hellerstein And The Ramaz School

Alvin K. Hellerstein, who has presided over all the 9-11 cases brought by victims and relatives of victims, is also a trustee and sponsor of the Ramaz School on the Upper East Side, where his children also studied.

Hellerstein has been president of the Board of Jewish Education of Greater New York and serves on a taskforce for the Jewish Orthodox Feminist Alliance, which addresses the needs of Orthodox Jewish women who want a divorce.

Hellerstein's wife, Mildred, and Audrey Lookstein, the wife of the rabbi of Kehilath Jeshrun, are Zionist colleagues and senior officers of an Israeli organization named AMIT.

Mildred Hellerstein is listed as being a National Treasurer of AMIT, an organization dedicated to fostering "religious values and Zionist ideals" in the Israeli children in its schools and programs in Israel. Lookstein has been vice president of AMIT several times and was chair of AMIT's national board of directors in 2006.

Tevi David Troy, former policy director for Sen. John Ashcroft
Tevi Troy (formerly Troyansky), Deputy Secretary of the United States Department of Health and Human Service, is another graduate of the Ramaz School.

Troy was the policy director for Sen. John Ashcroft (R-MO) in the late 1990s before he was appointed to be Bush's first Attorney General, an appointment Troy enthusiastically supported in his article "My Boss the Fanatic" published in The New Republic.

Ashcroft now has a consulting business and earns much of his money by representing Israeli military companies. In 2006, Israel Aircraft Industries (IAI) was reported to be a major client of the Ashcroft Group, LLC.

Prior to his May 2007 appointment as Deputy Secretary of the DHHS, Troy was Deputy Assistant to the President George W. Bush for Domestic Policy. In August 2003, Troy was appointed to serve at the White House as Deputy Cabinet Secretary and Liaison to the Jewish community.

An orthodox Jew, Troy is the son of Elaine Gerson Troy and Bernard Dov Troy, the former "Executive Director of the Jewish Educators' Assembly in Manhattan."

Troy is the grandson of Thomas and Pauline Troyansky, Russian Jewish immigrants who came to the United States in the early 1900s.

Attorney General John Ashcroft listening to his assistant, Michael Chertoff
He is married to Kami J. Pliskow, the daughter of Dr. Raymond and Vita Pliskow of Tacoma, Washington. Raymond studied medicine at the University of Michigan.

The Pliskow family, a Russian Jewish family that immigrated to the U.S. in the early 1900s has its own interesting history of terrorism.

Roots In Terror

Barbara Pliskow, a former instructor in psychology at Wayne State University in Detroit, attempted to hijack an American Airlines Boeing 727 on September 24, 1971 armed with a gun, dynamite, and other explosives. She was reportedly attempting to hijack the flight on behalf of the "Black Liberation Army" to free imprisoned members of the Black Panther Party.

Pliskow was charged with the capital offense of attempted piracy of an airliner.

Because the engines of the plane had not been started, however, Pliskow was not prosecuted under the federal skyjacking statute.

"Borat" Dinner Party Lawsuit

Alabamans claim foul over "racially intolerant" depiction in movie

OCTOBER 23--Five more unwitting stars of "Borat" have filed a federal lawsuit against the hit comedy's creators, claiming that they were duped into appearing in what they thought was an "educational documentary for Belarus Television." In the movie, the quintet is seen dining with comedian Sacha Baron Cohen in an Alabama home in October 2005. During the meal, Cohen, in his guise as the clueless Borat, refers to one man as a "retard," wonders whether his hosts own slaves, and, following a bathroom trip, returns to the dinner table with a plastic bag containing what appears to be feces. One of Cohen's fellow Jews actually sh*t in a plastic bag for the prop.

According to a complaint filed Friday in U.S. District Court in Birmingham, Cohen and his codefendants sought to portray the Alabamans as "racially intolerant" and distributed a film "memorializing the mockery, humiliation, and degradation of unsuspecting participants." The plaintiffs charge that Cohen's film, which has grossed hundreds of million of dollars, caused them emotional distress, placed them in a false light, and resulted in an invasion of privacy. The lawsuit, which does not specify monetary damages, seeks an injunction barring further use of the embarrassing "dinner scene" from "Borat." 10 pages

The hosts have now filed a lawsuit complaining that they were duped into appearing in what they thought was an educational documentary for Belarus television, but which turned out to be a film which they say 'celebrated racism, child pornography, sexism, nudity, anti-semitism and vulgarity'.

DADDY'S $10M 'BAD' MITZVAH

PLUNDER RAP FOR GI-ARMOR BOSS

By SELIM ALGAR and ANDY GELLER

October 26, 2007 -- The former CEO of the leading supplier of body armor to U.S. soldiers in Iraq was charged yesterday with looting the company to bankroll a lavish lifestyle that included a $10 million bat mitzvah for his daughter.

In addition to the bat mitzvah - which included performances by Aerosmith, 50 Cent, Tom Petty, Kenny G and the Eagles - prosecutors said David Brooks got the firm, DHB Industries, to pay for other goodies.

Among them were a face lift for his ex-wife; vitamins for his stable of 100 horses; pricey vacations; fancy jewels; an armored car; a $194,000 Bentley; and a $100,000 diamond-studded belt buckle.

The elaborate scheme exploded yesterday when federal prosecutors unsealed a 21-count indictment accusing Brooks, 53, of securities fraud, insider trading, tax evasion and obstruction of justice. If convicted, he could spend the rest of his life behind bars.

Sandra Hatfield, 54, the company's former chief operating officer, was hit with similar charges.

Brooks founded DHB, which moved from Westbury, L.I., to Pompano Beach, Fla., last year, and served as its chairman and chief executive officer. He resigned last year as the scandal erupted.

According to the indictment, Brooks lined his pockets by having DHB underwrite his lifestyle and by artificially inflating the value of company stock.

He allegedly reaped $185 million by selling DHB stock when he learned that 6,000 bullet-proof vests the company made were about to be recalled for being faulty and not able to block bullets.

Hatfield, who left the firm in 2005, allegedly made $5 million in the scheme.

Brooks also was accused of evading taxes by giving money to charities he ran.

Brooks made headlines in November 2005, when he rented two floors of the Rainbow Room for the bat mitzvah of his daughter, Elizabeth.

He reportedly sent the company jet to fly Aerosmith in from Pittsburgh, paying them a cool $1 million. In return, they let his nephew play drums.

In honor of the band's appearance, Brooks changed from a black leather suit into a magenta suede biker outfit covered with chains.

The indictment said the body-armor tycoon spent $122,000 of company cash on iPods and digital cameras for his guests. It also revealed he shelled out $20,000 for leather-bound invitations to his son's bar mitzvah in 2000.

Brooks pleaded not guilty at his arraignment in federal court in Central Islip, L.I., and was held without bail pending a hearing Monday.

His lawyer, Paul Shechtman, said Brooks "grew up in Brooklyn and that means he doesn't run away from a fight."

Shechtman asked for bail of a mere $50 million. Prosecutor John Martin asked that no bail be granted, calling Brooks a serious flight risk.

"In my opinion, he will spend the rest of his life in jail," the prosecutor said. "Every couple of months, we uncover new crimes and new frauds he has committed."

Hatfield is expected to be arraigned next week.

The indictment accuses Brooks and Hatfield of falsely inflating the value of the inventory of DHB's top product, the Interceptor vest, to help meet earnings projections.

The scheme boosted the company's stock from $2 a share in early 2003 to nearly $20 a share in late 2004.

Do you have the right to own a gun?

It seems like a fairly easy question. We all know about the second amendment; however the first four words in the sentence, "a well-regulated militia", is what has been keeping everyone confused for two-hundred and twenty years.

Big Decision Coming Soon

The whole argument may finally reach a conclusion this year with the case District of Columbia v. Heller, which has been working its way through the Federal court system. As early as Tuesday of this week, the Supreme Court could grant certiorari, answering a question it has never directly answered in the history of the United States, and one that hasn't even been considered by the Court in seventy years.

DC Has America's Strictest Gun Laws

The District of Columbia has one of the strictest gun control laws in the nation. Since 1976, it has been illegal to own a handgun for personal use. The law also requires residents to keep shotguns and rifles unloaded and disassembled or fitted with trigger locks. Firearm advocates, in an effort to challenge the constitutionality of the ban, gathered six individuals to directly challenge the law as a violation of the second amendment, however when all was said and done, only one party was determined to have standing in the case, a security guard who was denied a permit to own a handgun for personal protection in his home, Dick Anthony Heller.

Irving Heller Pushes The Case

He won. The Federal appeals court for the District of Columbia said the ban was unconstitutional and that Heller had an individual right to bear arms under the second amendment. This is a far cry from the infamous Miller case of 1939, in which the Supreme Court ruled that citizens are not protected under the second amendment of owning sawed-off shotguns because the amendment, in their minds, was intended for a collective and not an individual.

Who Collects The Guns

Think of the ramifications of this case. Can you imagine the ire of the card-carrying members of the NRA if the Court rules that individuals do not have a right to own firearms? Think of the upcoming presidential election. I couldn't imagine a more inspiring call to vote from the conservative base. They would come out in droves and completely wipe away any Democrat nominee that, in their mind, was going to take away their guns. Likewise, it would severely affect almost all handgun restrictions in cities throughout the country.

These Zionists Won't Blink

Now keep in mind, and you'd be surprised how hard this is for some people, the Court isn't going to look at this debate and consider how safe the District's ban is, or how it would affect homicide rates, or how it would affect the '08 election, (although I wouldn't put it past a couple of justices) in a perfect world, the Court is simply going to look at the constitutionality of the ban. The Court should say what the law is, and not what the law should be. The Roberts court has done a considerably greater job of this than of previous courts.

A Court Order Could Be Passed

This does seem like a perfect case for the Court to grant cert. The differences in the rulings of the Federal districts are just too much, I believe, for the Court to sit back and not address the issue. What is so peculiar about this case is the unpredictability of the outcome. No side can truly be confident; there is no favorite. If the Court grants cert, the only certainties I can predict is that Justices Ginsburg and Stevens will side with the District of Columbia and Justices Alito, Thomas, Scalia, and the Chief Justice will side with Heller. Even that is a bold prediction; you could almost more accurately call it a guess. This case, like so many others, may call upon Justice Kennedy to be the swing justice, a role in which he revels. In any case, the outcome will most likely be 5-4 or 6-3 as well as a case you will be sure to hear about in the future. If granted cert, this is one of those cases you'll be taking notes on in your American constitutional law class - it's that important

It Won't Happen This Year

When the Zionists drop the economy they don't want 20 million people organizing, and having guns. For years they have been regulating, and registering guns. At the appropriate time they will go for confiscation. Right now they know who owns the guns, and who will be trouble. They will cut off the ammo.

Trying to frame this argument from a legal standpoint is stupid. When the time is right they will declare martial law, and you will see SWAT at your front door.

Too Smart And too Rich To Be Convicted

Those close to Phil Spector strongly believe he will be exonerated for the brutal murder of Lana Clarkson.

Mark Ribowsky

"I believe he's guilty, but I believe he will walk," the author of He's a Rebel: Phil Spector: Rock Roll's Legendary Producer was quoted as saying by the New York Daily News.

"[He's] too smart and too rich for the LAPD and DA to put away," he added.

Just A Shiksas

The police had found Clarkson on a chair in an "unnatural death pose" with "a single entry wound to the mouth" at Spector's home on February 3, 2003.

At that time, the famed music producer had told the cops that "I didn't mean to shoot her. It was an accident," but later he and his lawyers changed the whole story, painting Clarkson as a depressed, desperate House of Blues hostess who set out to kill herself in a superstar's home.

Though "Rebel" reveals that an autopsy report released on Sept. 15, 2003, determined Clarkson had been "shot by another" and mounds of other evidence all point to Spector as the perp (a blood-soaked diaper, "of all things," on the floor of a bathroom in the foyer, the gun hastily wiped clean, Spector's history of violence), two key elements could sway a jury into believing Clarkson was not an innocent victim: her rolled-up skirt found inside her purse, and semen found on one of her breasts.

One Version Of Events

Clarkson tried to leave, Spector grabbed his gun, forced her into a chair, and had her strip to her underwear. He stood there masturbating. She tried to leave. He then stuck the gun in her mouth and blew the back of her head off.

Spector's Version

She played oral Russian Roulette as a sex thing.

Bruce Cutler

"This is strong evidence that there was some sort of sexual by-play between them when the gun - which was possibly being used as a phallic tool either by consent or otherwise - went off," he said.

A handful of other inconsistencies will play in Spector's favor, creating a case "far stronger than O.J.'s ever was. [Bruce] Cutler will 'brucify' witnesses to death and play up the inconsistencies, weaving a quilt of reasonable doubt," says Ribowsky.

Another Defense Being Considered

Spector's parents were first cousins, and he is a genetic misfit.

The Book Zionists Hate

A Vietnam veteran wrote a book about people buying medals, and parading as heroes. Needless to say the largest segment was Zionists.

A Book About Vietnam Wannabes

Stolen Valor, a book written by Bob Burkett, is a detailed study of phonies and "wannabe" veterans of the Vietnam War.

Our Worst Suspicions

Incidentally, recently published statistics from the Vietnam war provide powerful support for the suspicion which always has existed that, though Jews may manipulate the patriotic feelings of the rest of us, they themselves retain their own Jewish patriotism and do not share our patriotism. If one counts Stars of David in military cemeteries from the Second World War, one finds them conspicuously underrepresented in the fields of crosses.

Book Is Very Critical Of Zionists Patriotism

Stolen Valor, a study of the Vietnam war and its veterans, B.G. Burkett and Glenna Whitley cite a 1992 study of Department of Defense records which provided much more precise data on the matter of Jewish patriotism, or lack thereof.

Zionists Choose Not To Serve

Draft-age Jews in America, it turns out, suffered losses in Vietnam at a rate less than one fifth their proportion of the population. This was not simply a matter of rich boys avoiding service while poor boys got killed: young White men -- that is, White Gentiles -- from high-income families suffered approximately the same overall casualty rate as low-income Whites. Although some high-income Whites avoided the draft as university students, Whites from high-income families made up most of the officer corps, which suffered a disproportionately high casualty rate, and the average death rate for high-income Whites was nearly the same as for low-income Whites.

Buying Draft Deferments

For Jews, however, the difference is striking: making up slightly over 2.5 per cent of the population, Jews accounted for only 0.46 per cent of the GIs killed in Vietnam. This remarkable difference reflects a remarkable difference in attitudes between Jews and Whites.

The War Was A Joke To This Garbage

The authors show killers who have fooled the most astute prosecutors and gotten away with murder, phony heroes who have become the object of award-winning documentaries on national network television, and liars and fabricators who have flooded major publishing houses with false tales of heroism which have become best-selling biographies.

Jokela Is A Small Town

There are only 400 pupils at Jokela High School. Jokela, which has a population of 5,300 inhabitants.

He Wandered The School

Kim Kiuru, a teacher at the school, said: "He (the gunman) was moving systematically through the school hallways, knocking on the doors and shooting through the doors".

"It felt unreal, a pupil I have taught myself was running towards me, screaming, a pistol in his hand."

SWAT Surrounded The School

Police said they had the situation 'under control' after they surrounded the school. 'There is no danger to outsiders now,' police spokesman Tero Haapala said. 'We have the situation under control.'

He Was Found Dead

Officers found Auvinen wounded in the head from an apparent self-inflicted gunshot. The assailant and most of the victims were in the lower lobby of the school, police said.

Finnish Prime Minister Calls Emergency Meeting

Prime Minister Matti Vanhanen described the situation as "extremely tragic" and said the government would hold an emergency meeting.

Guns Are Common

There are plenty of gun enthusiasts in Finland, in fact there are 56 privately owned weapons for every one hundred Finns. In the coming weeks expect calls for a revision of the country's gun laws that allows such widespread gun ownership.

Jewish Reaction

Finland claims a small Jewish population of 5,000. As in other countries they control the newspapers, and TV, and heavily influence elections, and the political system.

What Is Driving Gold?

Gold Is The Only Real Money

Gold has always been the only real true currency, mainly because it is one of the few commodities that can really function as a universal exchange. Right now gold is getting a boost from inflation, but it's real impact comes from chaos.

Today's Currencies Are All Fiat

That is just a paper IOU, with no collateral.

Status Of An IOU

It might be ok to lend Donald Trump $10,000, but your out of work cousin is a mistake.

Russian Ruble

A country can be worthless. When Russia collapsed the Ruble fell 100,000%. You went to bed with a million dollars in the bank and woke up with ten dollars.

Commodity Currency

That says you currency is backed by a hard commodity. That can be lumber, oil, cattle, flour, or whatever.

The Barter System Can't Work

It's just too complicated finding the source of two people having the exact items each other wants.

You Need A Commodity Based Currency

That means it government controlled, and stored in a vault. Picture storing lumber, oil, chickens, cows, etc at Fort Knox, and you quickly see why it has to be gold.

How Do You Determine The Value

That's just all the currency and debt divided by the gold supply. It roughly works out to $40,000 an ounce.

When Does This Happen

Just like Russia, the US and the world, will have an economic collapse.

Who Owns The Gold?

The world's gold supply is supposedly 1/3 Central Banks, 1/3 individuals, and 1/3 dealers. In reality the Zionists have bought or leased most of the central bank's gold, own 99% of the gold mines, and have bought most of the other stocks.

The Timing

After the Iran-Persian Gulf war. Israel false flags a nuke on a US city, Bush nukes Iran, the Zionists gain control of the mideast's oil supplies, and the international bankers tank the world's economies.

Our Elite Rulers

You will have 1% of the population controlling 95% of the wealth. If it seems fantastic, than look at Iraq, a war for Israel, and their control of the Mideast. Just look at who controls the Congress, the Universities, the American Judicial system, etc.

A Play About Irma Grese

Just When You Thought You Heard It All

Irma Grese was a 19 yr old postal clerk at Auschwitz in 1943. In late 1944 she was transferred to Bergen Belen where she was the commandant's secretary, and took roll call of the women. In 1945 when Belsen was liberated, she was arrested, and was put on trial. Six Jewish Communist said she beat them, raped them, and had a dog that ate Jews, and Irma was convicted and hung.

In 2006 some clown does a play and even fabricates more nonsense, saying she seduced the Jewish prosecutor, and her ghost walks the grounds at Auschwitz.

Angel: A Nightmare in Two Acts ...

About the Play ...

Angel: A Nightmare in Two Acts uses the setting of the Holocaust to explore contemporary values, the question of personal responsibility versus universal guilt, and the seductive appeal of evil. Controversial and thought-provoking, Angel offers strong roles for women and strong subject matter for theaters seeking to challenge themselves and their audiences.

Irma Is Hung

Angel is a drama based on the trial and execution of real-life Nazi war criminal Irma Grese. Grese became a concentration camp guard at the age of sixteen, was prosecuted by the British in the Belsen trials, and was executed at the age of 21 for her crimes against humanity. A strikingly beautiful woman, she was dubbed by the international press as "The Blonde Angel of Auschwitz."

Jewish Prosecutor Falls In Love

During the play, Irma's prosecutor falls under her fatal charms. He is drawn, along with the audience, down into a private nightmare where the tables are turned and he becomes the accused.

Jewess Is Aghast

Also dragged into the nightmare is Olga Lengyel, a survivor of Auschwitz, who teaches the prosecutor a lesson about dignity and survival.

Right To The Gas Chambers

Auschwitz, was the largest of the Nazi German extermination camps, along with a number of concentration camps, comprising three main camps and 40 to 50 sub-camps. The name Auschwitz is the German name for the nearby town of Oświęcim, situated west of Kraków in southern Poland. Beginning in 1940, Nazi Germany built several concentration camps and an extermination camp in the area, which at the time was under German occupation. The Auschwitz camps were a major element in the perpetration of the Holocaust; at least 1.1 million people were killed there, of whom over 90% were Jews. The exact number of people killed in the camps is not known, but most modern estimates are around 1.1-1.6 million. About 700 prisoners attempted to escape from the Auschwitz camps during the years of their operation, with about 300 attempts successful.

Josef Mengele was a Nazi German military officer and physician who performed experiments that were condemned as murderously sadistic on prisoners in Auschwitz. He personally selected over 400,000 prisoners to die in gas chambers in Auschwitz.

On May 24, 1943 he became medical officer of Auschwitz-Birkenau. It was during his 21-month stay at Auschwitz that Mengele achieved infamy, and it is for this period that he was later referred to as the "Angel of Death". Mengele was usually part of the medical delegation which met incoming prisoners, determining which would be retained for work and experimentation, and which would be sent immediately to the gas chambers. Almost all of Mengele's experiments were of dubious scientific value, ignoring the lack of ethics involved, including various amputations and other brutal surgeries.

The Auschwitz Dwarfs

Subjects of Mengele's experiments were almost always killed afterward for dissection, if they survived the experiment itself. Mengele also had an interest in dwarfs, founding the Lilliput Troupe, seven of whose ten members were dwarfs. He often called them "his dwarf family" and experimented on them frequently. They seemed vital to his research and he had them treated specially — they were allowed to keep their clothes, scarves and accessories they had from their home. After the war Mengele escaped Germany and lived covertly abroad until his eventual accidental death in Brazil, which was later confirmed using DNA testing on his remains.

Irma Was A Killer And A Nymphomaniac

Irma Grese was the most notorious of the female Nazi war criminals. She rose to the rank of Senior SS-Supervisor in the autumn of 1943, in charge of around 30,000 women prisoners, mainly Polish and Hungarian Jews. This was the second highest rank that SS female concentration camp personnel could attain. After the war survivors provided extensive details of murders, tortures, cruelties and sexual excesses engaged in by Irma Grese during her years at Auschwitz and Bergen-Belsen. She habitually wore heavy boots and carried a whip and a pistol. She used both physical and emotional methods to torture the camp's inmates and enjoyed shooting prisoners in cold blood. She beat some of the women to death and whipped others mercilessly using a plaited whip. The inmates dubbed the blue-eyed blonde the "Beautiful Beast," while Grese herself became obsessed with the idea of becoming a film star after the war. She also had a reputation as a nymphomaniac, sexually abusing male and female prisoners alike and taking many lovers, including the camp physician Josef Mengele and camp commandant Josef Kramer.

She was among the 44 accused of war crimes at the Belsen Trial. After the Kommandant Josef Kramer, Irma Grese was the most notorious defendant in the Belsen Trial, held between September 17 and November 17, 1945. The trials were conducted under British military law in Lüneburg, and the charges derived from the Geneva Convention of 1929 regarding the treatment of prisoners. After a fifty three day trial she was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. She was executed on December 13, 1945.

She Now Haunts Auschwitz

Grese was so steeped in blood that a legend persists of her ghost haunting a building on the site of Belsen in the former west Germany. On Jan 12th 1948 Harak Visen a night watchman claimed he saw the ghost of Irma Grese in the Krema Three gas chamber. Krema Three was later sealed off and eventually destroyed altogether.

Olga Lengyel and her family were transported from their home in Transylvania to Auschwitz in 1944. Olga worked in the camp infirmary. She aided in the camp rebellion that destroyed one of the crematoria. She was the only member of her family to survive Auschwitz. She chronicled her experiences in her autobiography The Five Chimneys, the first book to give a survivor's view of a concentration camp. Olga lived in New York City until her death in the summer of 2001, where she was a manager of a foundation to educate people about the Holocaust. The foundation has as its name the number tattooed on Olga's forearm by the Auschwitz guards.

The sex scandal swirling around illusionist David Copperfield has taken a new twist - a Las Vegas performer has come forward with claims the magic man tried to force her to have sex.

Copperfield is currently under investigation for allegedly raping a Seattle, Washington woman in the Bahamas.

Show Girl Claims Violent Attack

Showgirl-turned-escape artist Shedini has gone public saying she was "attacked" by Copperfield 16 years ago at a job interview. I was young, I was naive, and Copperfield was a famous Jewish celebrity. Copperfield lured her to his hotel suite with a job offer. Shedini recalls being "grossed out" when the magician tried to force her to have sex with him.

She adds, "I felt his powerful hands grab my arms from behind. He turned me around, pushed me to the wall and held me there, kissing me and sticking his tongue down my throat."

Shedini eventually fought him off and fled.

A Celebration Of Jewish Superiority

Celebrities Gather At The AEI Institute Book Signing

A Jewish Author Is Honored

A Jonathan Entine writes a book that says "Jews are genetically superior". He attends a luncheon of the AEI in Washington, and fellow Zionists have an intellectual orgy celebrating their greatness.

Jonathan Entine's New Book

At the American Enterprise Institute luncheon yesterday Jon Entine had the crowd in stitches with his Borchbelt humor. He displayed a cartoon of a tablet-carrying Moses looking incredulously toward the heavens.

"Now, let me get this straight," the bearded figure says. "The Arabs get the oil, and we have to cut off the ends of our what?"

For You Goys That Don't Get It

Arabs got the oil, and Jews are obsessed with their penises. But the two AEI scholars soon moved on kibitzing about a pressing cause: - Why Jews are so doggone smart.

Another Book Verifies Jewish Genius

Entine, author of the new book "Abraham's Children: Race, Identity and the DNA of the Chosen People," argued that genetic mutations gave Jews very high IQs. "If you had one of these mutations" -- such as those that cause Tay-Sachs disease -- "it probably could cause high intelligence," he asserted.

Academic Giant Charles Murray Of The Bell Curve Fame

Fellow AEI fellow Charles Murray said "Rigors of Talmudic study drove out the dumb Jews centuries ago, and they became Christians" Murray, best known for his incendiary book about race and intelligence, "The Bell Curve," explored Jewish smarts in an April article in Commentary titled "Jewish Genius."

Laurie Zoloth

Brought in to rebut the two scholars, Laurie Zoloth of Northwestern University floated an alternative notion: that "Jews are smart because we value learning."

Paul Wolfowitz Is Another Giant

One only needs to spend a moment with AEI visiting fellow Paul Wolfowitz, whose leadership on the Iraq war and conflicts of interest as head of the World Bank demonstrate that Jews are capable.

Should Jews Speak Of Their Enlarged Brains

Of more concern: whether Jews should brag about their big brains, even if studies show them to have high intelligence. "You've got to talk about these things carefully," said Murray, who learned the hard way. "Only an Iowan raised as a Presbyterian could get away with talking about Jewish IQ the way I can because Jews get so embarrassed about Jewish IQ: 'We know we're smart but don't tell anyone else.' "

Abe Winger is sick of his wife so he hatches an elaborate plan, using a simple minded airport limo driver as the fall guy. On the afternoon June 17,1995 he comes up behind his wife with a claw hammer, and hits her twelve times. A half hr later a driver shows up for a job interview, he shoots him twice, and calls 9/11.

The police show up and Abe tells of a dramatic struggle where the driver is killing his wife, and he comes to the rescue, shooting the murderer.

Blood-spatter expert testifies

Claims evidence does not coincide with Winger's story

By SARAH ANTONACCI
STAFF WRITER

A blood-spatter expert testified Tuesday the evidence on clothing, walls, the ceiling and furniture in the dining room area of the Mark Winger household does not coincide with what he told police happened there on Aug. 29, 1995.

The sometimes-graphic evidence, with a heavy concentration on blood, caused a male juror to pass out. He was replaced by a female alternate, changing the jury's composition to eight women and four men who will ultimately decide Winger's fate.

Thom Bevel, a blood-stain-pattern analyst and crime-scene reconstructionist from Oklahoma, testified that he was first contacted by Springfield police in 1999. That was after DeAnn Schultz had come forward to say that she was having an affair with Winger at the time his wife, Donnah, 31, and shuttle bus driver Roger Harrington, 27, were killed in the Wingers' home on Westview Drive. Schultz has testified that Winger implicated himself in both deaths.

Police wanted to know if an expert's analysis of the evidence might support Schultz's claims. Bevel was hired through the Molly Sullivan Foundation, which raises money in memory of a woman killed in the 1990s to aid police in investigations and training.

Based in part on Bevel's findings, Winger, 39, is charged with beating his wife to death with a hammer and then fatally shooting the mentally unstable Harrington, whom authorities claim was lured to the Wingers to look as though he murdered Donnah.

Winger told police that Harrington became obsessed with his wife during a ride home from the St. Louis airport to Springfield and had been harassing her.

On the afternoon of Aug. 29, Winger said he'd been working out in the basement and heard a strange sound, came upstairs to check it out, grabbed his gun and headed toward the dining room. There he saw Harrington kneeling parallel to Donnah, who was face down, and beating her with a hammer in an east-west motion.

He said he came down the hallway and shot Harrington once in the head. As Harrington fell onto his back, Winger said he continued his momentum, saw Harrington start to raise his head and shoulders and shot him again, in the forehead.

But Bevel said the person who beat Donnah had to be kneeling perpendicular to her and moving his arm north-south, accounting for a large amount of blood spattered up the wall directly to the south of Donnah's head and onto the ceiling.

Also, Harrington had no blood on his socks or his shoes, an indication he was not near Donnah when she was beaten a minimum of three times with the hammer, Bevel said.

Bevel testified that Winger had some of his wife's spattered blood on his shirt that was not consistent with his saying that he cradled her head in his arms waiting for authorities to arrive.

In addition, Bevel said Harrington had to have been shot while he was near the refrigerator rather than the foyer, fell forward and was rolled over onto his back before being shot again.

"His head is toward Mrs. Winger, and his feet are toward the kitchen," Bevel said.

"You rotate him back up toward his feet. He would have been standing in this area," he told the jury, pointing to the refrigerator on a diagram.

Defense attorney Todd Pugh, on cross-examination, asked Bevel how exact the science of blood-spatter analysis is, saying, "There are few absolutes in blood stain pattern analysis."

Bevel agreed: "There are few absolutes in blood stain analysis, or any other discipline."

Pugh asked Bevel about the blood of Donnah that was found on Harrington's shirt. Bevel, in his initial report to police, said Harrington had none of her blood on his clothing, making it difficult to believe he'd bludgeoned her.

But DNA analysis concluded since the start of the trial shows there was in fact some of Donnah's blood on Harrington's shirt. Bevel said Donnah's blood and tissue was on Harrington's shirt because Mark has admitted hitting Harrington in the chest with the hammer. Harrington was still moaning after he'd been shot, Winger told police.

The defense has two blood-spatter experts it intends to call during its case.

During morning testimony, the prosecution was showing autopsy photos of Harrington to the jury, and Bevel was explaining blood patterns on his head, when one juror apparently fainted.

An ambulance was called, the court took a long break, and an alternate juror filled his spot.

Family members of both Donnah and Harrington were warned that the photos would be graphic. Harrington's mother opted to leave the courtroom. Donnah's relatives, including her two sisters, rested their heads on their spouses' shoulders, or refused to look.

Two of Mark Winger's co-workers from the state Department of Nuclear Safety also testified Tuesday.

Andrew Skaar said he and Mark's offices were next to each other in 1995 and that he once caught Mark in an after-hours embrace with a woman other than Donnah in Mark's office. Mark told him the woman was a friend of his and Donnah's who was having marital problems.

Candace Boldin, who works for Mark, said she was in Chattanooga, Tenn., with him the week before the slayings and that, although he seemed concerned about Donnah's safety, he opted to wait until Saturday to drive home, even though they were finished with work-related classes Friday.

She said that in the car on the way home, Mark related the story of Donnah's strange ride home from St. Louis with Harrington. Boldin said she suggested Donnah keep the couple's Mastiff, a large-breed dog, inside the home because the dog wouldn't let anyone harm Donnah. (The dog was in the garage the day Donnah and Harrington were killed.)

Boldin said Mark also asked her on the ride home what she thought would happen to Bailey, the 3-month-old child the Wingers were in the process of adopting, if Donnah died.

"I thought it was unusual for Mark to ask me," she said. "But he'd asked me other unusual questions before. I said I didn't think the adoption agency would take her away because there's lots of widowed and divorced parents of adopted children out there."

It seemed like an open-and-shut case. A violent intruder beats a woman to death. He's caught in the act by the woman's husband, who shoots the man in the head.

But over the years, two dramatically different versions have emerged of how Donnah Winger died -- and only one can be the truth.

There's the story told by her husband, Mark Winger. It's the account that police have, for the most part, accepted from the start -- that Winger killed an intruder who was attacking his wife.

And then there's the other version that seems much harder to believe -- that Winger had devised a complicated plot to murder his wife and frame another officer. Critical to this case is one police officer who had a hunch he couldn't let go.

Correspondent Richard Schlesinger updates this report that aired last summer.

Almost everyone who knew Mark and Donnah Winger thought they were perfect together.

"They were absolutely an adorable, model couple," says Sarah Jane Drescher, Donnah's mother.

Both were respected and successful members of their community. Mark was a nuclear engineer for the state of Illinois. Donnah was an operating room technician.

The Wingers wanted to start a family. But there was a problem. They learned Donnah could not bear children.

So when Donnah and Mark adopted a baby girl, Bailey, in June 1995, they were elated. "My heart was just pounding, I just couldn't believe it," says Winger.

But three months later, the good times ended abruptly. It all began when Donnah returned from a visit to her mother and stepfather in Florida.

Donnah and her baby arrived at the St. Louis airport and boarded an airport van for the 90-minute ride home to Springfield.

It was an unusual drive, with an unusual driver - a man named Roger Harrington, who had been working for the van company for six months.

Harrington was also speeding. "He was telling Donnah that sometimes when he drives, this God-like character would come to him and pull him out of his body and he would be flying above the trees," Winger remembers.

She and Bailey made it home, but Donnah was rattled. Mark Winger complained to Harrington's boss.

Less than a week later, Winger says, he was on his treadmill in the basement when he heard a thump. He says he went upstairs to investigate. Bailey, he says, was alone on his bed. And there were strange sounds coming from the dining room. "I just grabbed my gun and started going down the hall," says Winger.

When he came down the hallway, he said he saw his wife on the floor in the dining room. There was a stranger over her, bludgeoning her with a hammer. Winger shot the man in the head.

When police officers got there, they found two people bleeding on the floor. There was blood on the furniture, on the walls, even on the ceiling.

As paramedics went to work, Officer Dave Barringer took three quick pictures with his Polaroid camera. It was the last three pictures in his camera.

"I've been in crime scene work a long time and there's been very few that I've had that was as severe and bloody as this one was," says Det. Charlie Cox, who got right to work and questioned Winger in the bedroom.

Winger told the detectives the hammer was his, left out by Donnah as a reminder to hang a hat rack. He asked Cox a question: Who was the man he had shot? Cox told him it was Roger Harrington.

"He says, 'Oh my God, that's the guy that's been harassing my wife and me,'" recalls Cox.

"I think I fell over on my side and just cried," says Winger, believing that he would be taken in for killing another person.

But Winger couldn't have been more wrong. The police had all but cleared him. In fact, they didn't consider him a killer, they considered him a victim.

"I said, 'You've killed the person who was killing your wife,'" says Cox, who considered Winger a hero.

According to police reports, Winger said that Donnah was on her knees with Harrington leaning over her, attacking her with a hammer. Harrington looked up at him, and Winger shot him, because he was about to hit her again. He told police that at that point, Harrington fell off of Donnah and rolled back.

Cox's investigation of the crime scene backed up Winger's story. What's more, Harrington had been a psychiatric patient, with a history of delusions. Plus, Cox already knew him -- he once broke up a fight between Harrington and his wife.

Harrington died shortly after arriving at the hospital. Donnah died minutes later. She never regained consciousness.

Donnah's mother and stepfather, Sarah Jane and Ira Drescher, were inconsolable when they heard about the murder. They were shocked to hear that Donnah's ride from the airport had escalated into murder.

Donnah's family rushed to their son-in-law's side.

"We felt terrible for him. Look what he's lost. He's lost his wife also. And then he had to turn around and shoot a man," says Ira Drescher, Donnah's stepfather.

A day after the crime, the prosecutor announced that Mark had acted in self-defense, and that no charges would be filed against him.

The case was closed.

There was an outpouring of support for Mark in Springfield. Almost everyone believed he was a good family man whose life had been shattered by a madman.

But Roger Harrington's family wasn't buying the story. Harrington's sister, Barbara Howell, pleaded with Det. Cox to no avail. Harrington's mother, Helen, also felt the shame of a city that believed she had raised a psychotic killer.

The Harringtons grieved quietly, believing they were alone. But they didn't realize that Detective Doug Williamson was also not convinced of Harrington's guilt.

"Roger Harrington was allowed into the house. There was no forced entry. Somebody let him in," says Williamson. "Why would Donnah leave her baby alone on her bed and open the door to Harrington, a man she supposedly feared?"

Also, Harrington's car was parked right in front of the Winger home, with a piece of paper on the front seat: It had Mark Wingers name, his address and 4:30 p.m. written on it.

"[Mark] says he doesn't know Roger Harrington, has never met him, and does not indicate an appointment, when I have already seen the note which indicates an appointment," says Williamson.

Cox saw no reason to doubt Winger's story. But Williamson wanted to investigate further. His bosses turned him down.

The case stayed closed, until a shocking revelation years later.
CBS) Everyone in Springfield, Ill., knew Mark Winger's story. An intruder named Roger Harrington bludgeoned his wife, Donnah, to death. Mark had interrupted the attack and killed Harrington.

Winger's story was heroic and heartbreaking, but Det. Doug Williamson didn't believe it.

At first, Williamson couldn't even persuade his own partner, Det. Charlie Cox, that Winger was a killer.

But Cox says he became suspicious when Winger kept showing up at the police station. Correspondent Richard Schlesinger reports on this unlikely turn.

It started a few months after the murder when Winger came by to ask for his gun back.

"I released the gun back to Mark and we sat and talked for about a half hour," Cox says. "He was wanting to know how the case was going. As far as I was concerned, he should have just accepted it was closed."

Winger denies it, but Cox remembers him dropping by a second time, to say he was getting remarried to his daughter's new nanny, whom he had hired just five months after Donnah died.

"He kept coming in. I kept feeling like he was trying to find out if we were checking into anything," says Cox. "I went back to Doug and said, 'Something's wrong here. Big time.'"

Cox was beginning to believe that his partner was right all along. And now, he wanted the case reopened.

For three years, their bosses prevented them from reopening the case. And during that time, Winger and his new wife, Rebecca, adopted Bailey and had two other children.

Then DeAnn Schultz, Donnah's best friend, came forward with new information.

For four years, Schultz had been keeping a secret that was making her sick.
What she was finally ready to say would change everything.

She told police she and Winger had been having an affair that began a month before Donnah's death and continued for several months after it. She also said Winger wanted out of his marriage so badly he even had talked about killing Donnah.

"He mentioned that it would be - easier if - if Donnah died," says Schultz.

She said that Winger suggested that she play a role in the murder, and that he talked about the van driver, Roger Harrington.

Winger admits having the affair but calls Schultz's other allegations "a horrible, horrible lie."

"I was a good husband to Donnah," says Winger. "I made a mistake, I'm human, it was stupid and it was wrong."

The case was finally reopened and detectives, going through the files, found yet another surprise - three Polaroids taken by Officer Barringer on the night of the murders, before Donnah Winger and Roger Harrington were moved to the hospital.

The photos showed the placement of the bodies, something that police say blew Winger's version of events out of the water.

"It was over," says Williamson. "Roger Harrington's head and feet were in the opposite way of what Mark told us had happened."

The three snapshots, which the detectives didn't see during the original investigation, were now the centerpiece of the case.

How did that happen?

"Got overlooked," says Cox. "And in a case that was closed as fast as this one was, it was never thought of again. This thing was closed by the 10:30 news that night, for all practical purposes."

After making the painful admission that they had botched the investigation in 1995, police set out to prove who the real killer was.

Police believe Mark Winger began methodically plotting the double murder immediately after Donnah's bizarre ride with Harrington on the way home from St. Louis.

"He's the perfect guy to seize on, to make it look like an intruder had come in and killed his wife," says Williamson.

In 2001, Winger was arrested and put in jail awaiting trial. And the detective who once called Mark Winger a hero was now intent on proving him a cold-blooded murderer - and vindicating Roger Harrington.

"I hurt the Harrington family a lot," says Cox. "They buried him as a murderer."

For years, Sarah Jane and Ira Drescher, Donnah's parents, had accepted the awful fact that Donnah Winger was stalked and killed by a madman named Roger Harrington.

Now, nearly seven years after Donnah's death, they've come to Winger's trial, knowing that the evidence against him is strong - but still clinging to the hope that something would exonerate him.

The prosecution team, led by John Schmidt, said Winger lied from the beginning, even during his 911 call in which he denied knowing who Harrington was.

Ray Duffy, owner of the airport van company, testified that Winger called to complain about Harrington's behavior during the ride and afterwards and "wanted to talk with the driver direct." This was a crucial link for the prosecution.

Duffy said that was unusual: "Usually, when people have a complaint, they just call the office," he said. He also testified that Harrington was eager to work things out and told Duffy to give Winger his phone number.

Police believe Winger planned for everything but couldn't anticipate that Harrington would have in his car a note with Mark Winger's name, his address, and 4:30 p.m. marked on it.

Williamson points out that Harrington also had in his car a tire iron fashioned as a weapon. "If he was going to bludgeon someone, he had a weapon in his car," the detective says. "Yet he chose a weapon from inside the house that he would have no idea was there?"

Untangling the evidence in the seven-year-old case was a huge job for jurors, three of whom sat down to talk to 48 Hours Mystery.

The defense told them that, unlike Winger, who was a successful and respected member of the community, Harrington had a troubled, violent past.

The defense also pointed out that at the time of the murder in 1995, detectives had the Polaroids, the note in the car -- in fact, they had all the same evidence that they now found so incriminating against Winger.

Schultz, who was given immunity, provided the only new evidence - testimony that Winger had talked about killing his wife. But she had attempted suicide four times and had undergone electroshock therapy - so the defense called her unreliable.

But the jurors, who heard nearly two weeks of testimony, knew what was at stake.

By now, Winger and his new wife had four children, including Bailey.
But Harrington's family wanted justice.

Next, did the murder happen the way Mark Winger said it did?

After nearly two weeks of testimony, three families anxiously wait for jurors to decide Mark Winger's fate.

Did he kill Roger Harrington in self defense, as he has said for seven years, or was Harrington an unlucky pawn in Winger's plot to murder his wife, Donnah?

Donnah's mother and stepfather are now convinced that Winger is a murderer.

However, Winger's mother, Sallie, and his family are still convinced that he is innocent. "What reason would he have for hurting Donnah?" says Sallie Winger.

After deliberating for 13 hours, the jury reaches its verdict. Winger's parents, who had spent a small fortune defending their son, were stunned by the verdict. Mark Winger was guilty.

Ultimately, the jurors say the case against Winger was clear. They were convinced that Harrington did not just show up at the Winger's house with murder on his mind.

"If you're going to go over to kill somebody," says Karen, a juror, "you don't bring a pack of cigarettes and something to drink. And just hope that the murder weapons going to be there."

And while the defense tried to play up Schultz's past psychological problems, the jurors thought her troubles made her more credible. "I think she was sincerely telling us the truth," says Karen, another juror.

But jurors say the state's best evidence was the first evidence police ever collected – the three Polaroids.

Mark Winger, who never took the stand at his trial, was sentenced to life in prison. He now says the paramedics had moved the bodies before the Polaroids were taken, something the paramedics had denied at the trial.

Yet Winger still can't explain the note: "I can't offer you any answers to why Roger Harrington had 4:30 written on a note."

When Winger was convicted, another man - Roger Harrington – was exonerated, and this has given his family a measure of comfort.

But knowing the truth is little comfort for Donnah's parents, Sarah Jane and Ira Drescher. They are left with only their memories of a happy daughter and happier times that ended violently.

"I have no idea why he did it," says Donnah's mother, Sarah Jane. "I will never understand why he did it. And I think it's a question that will never be answered in my mind."

Since 48 Hours last reported this story, an Illinois court rejected Mark Winger's appeal of his murder conviction. He's serving his life sentence at the state penitentiary in Pontiac, Ill.

Mark and Donnah's daughter, Bailey, now 9, is being raised by Mark's second wife, Rebecca, who has now filed for divorce.

Gaza is divided between two governing forces, the Fatah and Hamas. Bush and Israel support Fatah, and the Palestinians support Hamas. Since 5/12/07 there has been 47 Palestinians have died in infighting and another 17 were killed by Israeli strikes.

The Real Story

Bush is financing, training, and supplying Fatah, who are just Gaza war lords. Hamas is the Palestinian side, but all they have is AK-47s. Now Israel steps in and ambushes Fatah, who thinks it's Hamas, and they retaliate.

This is the same technique they use with the Sunnis and Shiites in Iraq. Suddenly the militants are using mortars, RPGs, and snipers, which they never used on Israelis. Rest assured this is Shin Beth.

Why All The Panic?

The real reason that no one wants to discuss this is because, the Armenian Genocide was the most brutal slaughter in history. In the period from 1917-1939, the Bolsheviks killed a large majority of Russian white Christians, but they did it over many years, and used the cover of famine and world wars, to hide their crimes. Russia was their country, and they controlled the press.

But in Armenia, they attacked like werewolves, and the massacres were horrifying, and some documentation leaked out.

What Was The Armenian Genocide?

Backnang, Baden-Württemberg Is Turned Into A Zionist Cauldron Of Hate

A Fire And A Message

The Usual Suspects

"Lets start a race war and blame the Neo Nazis!!"

Two Mysterious Fires This Year

In the second serious incident of its kind this year, a large multiple apartment house accommodating mostly Turkish families (in addition to Norwegians, Albanians, Serbians, Iraqis and a German) was targeted by mystery arsonists, exciting the mainstream media to point the finger at "neo-Nazis".

The Last Fire Killed Nine People

It happened in the town of Backnang, Baden-Württemberg, at 4.30 a.m. on Saturday, March 29. The arsonist, who may have been accompanied, made his way into the house through the open backdoor and set fire to a child's pushchair in the corridor after having doused it with petrol.

The modus operandi is identical to that of an earlier attack on February 3 this year, which killed nine Turks and injured 20 others in Ludwigshafen.

German Jewish Groups Yell "Nazis did it"

Even before the flames were quenched, the Zionist-owned media had whipped up a storm of anti-German hysteria that reverberated around the world.

Turkey Wants More Immigration Rights

Turkey's prime minister, Recep Erdogan, made a dramatic and unprecedented visit to the site of the tragedy, where he grandstanded his demands that Germany drop all objections to Turkey's application for membership of the European Union, reiterating line-by-line Israel's Trojan horse strategy. (More about that in Part II.)

This time, however, there were no fatalities. A 17-year-old girl on the ground floor raised the alarm and her brother was able to extinguish the fire. Together with five other children, the girl suffered carbon monoxide poisoning and was hospitalised.

It Was An Obvious Kosher Hoax

On the walls of the house, the arsonists had sprayed two reverse swastikas and the message, "Jetst alle sterben" -- a linguistically poor attempt to spell out in German, "Now everyone dies".

Not only is the handwriting itself untypical of anyone who has lived in Germany for more than a few months -- the hapless wordsmith had obviously struggled to render a 'J' instead of a 'Y', which is a problem common to many people of middle east origin -- but the correct spelling of the adverb 'now' is 'jetzt'.

The Work Of Zionists

Spelt with a 'J', the word was also once identified with Alsace-Yiddish, as rendered in the line of an old Jewish-Alsatian poem:

"Baue jetst güt un trinke am Peysakh ka majim."

Should you wish to see the word in context, visit the Project Babel Forum and read the topic headed "Yiddish alsacien et la transcription YIVO":

Now take a look at the 'swastikas'. In fact, they're not swastikas at all. They are left-facing, reverse swastikas, commonly known as 'Sauvastikas', which adorn not only monuments dedicated to the Buddha, but also numerous ancient Jewish synagogues where it is often juxtaposed with the Star of David:

Jewish Kids

These kids come from nearby universities and instigate Germans against immigrants.

Local German Politicians

These Zionists and their puppets flood Germany with dissimilar people, and then pit them against each other.

Today's German Nationals Are Articulate

No "neo-Nazi" in his right mind would ever render the swastika in the form of the anti-clockwise, oriental-Judaic Sauvastika. Quite clearly, Mossad is finding it very hard to recruit calm-headed and coherent Sayan terrorists these days.

Many of us in Germany are only too aware of Israel's frantic attempts to foment a race war between Germans and Muslims, completely in line with Albert Pike's scripted "Clash of Civilisations"; and yet the police, hamstrung by political correctness, are ordered not to investigate clues that point to the hidden hand of Zionist evil.

Previous Zionist False Flag Attacks

From the La Belle Disco bombing to Solingen, Ludwigshafen to Backnang, the Enemy of Humanity will not and cannot rest until the German nation has been destroyed as a flesh and blood living culture. A civil war that pits Muslims against Germans in a vicious fight to the death will all but deliver the heart of Europe to Zionist Israel on a plate and fulfil the best hopes of parasitic Pharisees in London, Tel Aviv, Berlin, Washington, Paris and Brussels.

The German People Need The World's Support

Germans, who are already on their knees, will no longer fight if they think they are on their own. They watch their mouths in perpetual fear of the Jews and a legal system that punishes anyone who dares to tell the truth; afraid even that their own shadows might say a word out of place.

Without outside pressure from wide-awake fellow Goyim who will not go gently into the night of the Jewish world order, the German people are finished. Instead of raging helplessly behind a computer screen at Zionist psyops, this is where you can make a difference.

How You Can Help

If you wish to support the police in defying the traitors in Berlin and encourage them to look in the right place, simply phone the chief investigators Ralf Michelfelder, Andreas Lindauer or Thomas Schöllhammer in Waibling/Backnang on +49 7191 909 0 or fax them on +49 7151 950 820 and tell them what you think. Don't worry if you can't speak or write German. Senior investigators at that level have a good grasp of the English language.

They know that the attack is a Zionist psyop. Give them the courage they need to do the job we expect of them.

If you're a journalist or a blogger, you may wish to talk directly to the investigative team's press officer, Klaus Hinderer, on +49 07151 950 203 or e-mail him at pressestelle@pdwn.bwl.de with 'Zionistischer Brandanschlag in Backnang' in the subject line.

Out Of Control Immigration

Yes, we have a serious immigration problem in Germany, thanks to decades of Zionist legislation written at the behest of the German Council of Jews. This is by design -- all part of their plan to reduce once proud Europeans and European-Americans to nothing more than slaves and grunts living at the whim of their Jewish masters.

We Must Do The Lord's Work

But soon we shall destroy the satanic European Union and win back our independence, dealing with our problems in a rational and compassionate manner. And then we shall pack our hampers with sandwiches and take our children to the park to watch the likes of Brown, Sarkozy, Blair, Miliband and Barroso swing gently in the breeze, their feet twisting and turning just inches from the ground. That I promise you.

Our Leaders Are A Disgrace

In the meantime, we have a war to fight, and that war must be directed against those very same traitors who 'govern' us from the capitals of Europe and against their puppet masters in Tel Aviv and Brussels. Against the same lying bunch of crooks and psychopaths who are working assiduously to bring you World War III, global starvation, and a one-world police state.

Make that call.

After extensive and exhaustive research, 20 veterans of the 100th Infantry Battalion/442nd Regimental Combat Team were awarded the Medal of Honor by President William Clinton.

"Because of the highly classified nature of their work, their full contribution to America's victory would not be recognized until decades later. When their full story was finally told, it played a major role in securing passage of the Civil Liberties Act of 1988, which Congress enacted in an attempt to redress the injustice of the internment."

This Is A Two Hundred Times The Average

The normal ratio for the Medal of Honor is one for every 50,000 men, but the Japanese/Americans was one medal for every 300. Nothing makes sense. It just paves the way for the 168 medals of honor for the Jewish soldiers.

General Pace Being Sacked Brings Us Closer To Iran War

"It is the absolute responsibility of everybody in uniform to disobey an order that is either illegal or immoral."—General Peter Pace, Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, National Press Club, February 17, 2006.

"They will be held accountable for the decisions they make. So they should in fact not obey the illegal and immoral orders to use weapons of mass destruction."
—General Peter Pace, CNN With Wolf Blitzer, April 6, 2003

Pace's Removal Was A Fast Decision

The surprise decision by the Bush regime to replace General Peter Pace as Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been explained as a necessary step to avoid contentious confirmation hearings in the US Senate. Gen. Pace's reappointment would have to be confirmed, and as the general has served as vice chairman and chairman of the Joint Chiefs for the past 6 years, the Republicans feared that hearings would give war critics an opportunity to focus, in Defense Secretary Gates words, "on the past, rather than the future."

Protocol Is 'To Resign'

This is a plausible explanation. Whether one takes it on face value depends on how much trust one still has in a regime that has consistently lied about everything for six years.

General Pace himself says he was forced out when he refused to "take the issue off the table" by voluntarily retiring. Pace himself was sufficiently disturbed by his removal to strain his relations with the powers that be by not going quietly.

Who Really Runs The Pentagon

The Wall Street Journal editorial page interpreted Pace's removal as indication that "the man running the Pentagon is Democratic Senator Carl Levin of Michigan. For that matter, is George W. Bush still President?" [ General Retreat, June 11, 2007]

The Wall Street Journal editorial writers' attempt to portray Pace's departure as evidence of a weak and appeasing administration does not ring true. An administration that escalates the war in Iraq in the face of public opposition and pushes ahead with its plan to attack Iran is not an appeasing administration. Whether it is the war or Attorney General Gonzales or the immigration bill or anything else, President Bush and his Republican stalwarts have told Congress and the American people that they don't care what Congress and the public think. Bush's signing statements make it clear that he doesn't even care about the laws that Congress writes.

Bush Cares Less About Public Opinion

A president audacious enough to continue an unpopular and pointless war in the face of public opinion and a lost election is a president who is not too frightened to reappoint a general. Why does Bush run from General Pace when he fervently supports embattled Attorney General Gonzales? What troops does Bush support? He supports his toadies.

Gen Pace Opposed Nuclear Weapons

There are, of course, other explanations for General Pace's departure. The most disturbing of these explanations can be found in General Pace's two statements at the beginning of this article.

In the first statement General Pace says that every member of the US military has the absolute responsibility to disobey illegal and immoral orders. In the second statement, General Pace says that an order to use weapons of mass destruction is an illegal and immoral order.

The context of General Pace's second statement above (actually, the first statement in historical time) is his response to Blitzer's question whether the invading US troops could be attacked with Iraqi weapons of mass destruction. But Pace's answer does not restrict illegal and immoral only to Iraqi use of WMD. It is a general statement. It applies to their use period.

On March 10, 2006, Jorge Hirsch made a case that use of nuclear weapons is both illegal and immoral. [Gen. Pace to Troops: Don't Nuke Iran, Antiwar.com] Despite the illegality and immorality of first-use of nuclear weapons, the Bush Pentagon rewrote US war doctrine to permit their use regardless of their illegality and immorality. For a regime that not only believes that might is right but also that they have the might, law is what the regime says.

New US Doctrine Of First Strike

The revised war doctrine permits US first strike use of nuclear weapons against non-nuclear countries. We need to ask ourselves why the Bush administration would blacken America's reputation and rekindle the nuclear arms race unless the administration had plans to apply its new war doctrine.

Neoconservatives Want Iran Attacked

Senator Joseph Lieberman, a number of neoconservatives, prominent Jewish leaders such as Norman Podhoretz, and members of the Israeli government have called for a US attack on Iran. Most Republican presidential candidates have said that they would not rule out the use of nuclear weapons against Iran.

Accusing Iran Of Being in Iraq

Allegedly, the US Department of State is pursuing diplomacy with Iran, not war, but Undersecretary of State Nicholas Burns gives the lie to that claim. On June 12 Burns claimed that Iran was not only arming insurgents in Iraq but also the Taliban in Afghanistan. Burns' claims are, to put it mildly, controversial in the US intelligence community, and they are denied not only by Iran but also by our puppet government in Afghanistan. On June 14, Afghan Defense Minister Abdul Rahim Wardak told the Associated Press that Burns' claim has no credibility.

But, of course, none of the administration's propagandistic claims that set the stage for the invasion of Iraq had any credibility either, and the lack of credibility did not prevent the claims from deceiving the Congress and the American people. As the US media now functions as the administration's Ministry of Propaganda, the Bush regime believes that it can stampede Americans with lies into another war.

Bush Says 'Only Nukes Can Control Iran'

The Bush regime has concluded that a conventional attack on Iran would do no more than stir up a hornet's nest and release retaliatory actions that the US could not manage. The Bush regime is convinced that only nuclear weapons can bring the mullahs to heel.

The Bush regime's plan to attack Iran with nuclear weapons puts General Pace's departure in a different light. How can President Bush succeed with an order to attack with nuclear weapons when America's highest ranking military officer says that such an order is "illegal and immoral" and that everyone in the military has an "absolute responsibility" to disobey it?

An alternative explanation for Pace's departure is that Pace had to go so that malleable toadies can be installed in his place.

General Pace May Have Opposed A Nuclear Attack

Pace's departure removes a known obstacle to a nuclear attack on Iran, thus advancing that possible course of action. A plan to attack Iran with nuclear weapons might also explain the otherwise inexplicable "National Security and Homeland Security Presidential Directive" (NSPD-51 AND HSPD-20) that Bush issued on May 9. Bush's directive allows him to declare a "national emergency" on his authority alone without ratification by Congress. Once Bush declares a national emergency, he can take over all functions of government at every level, as well as private organizations and businesses, and remain in total control until he declares the emergency to be over.

Who among us would trust Bush, or any president, with this power?

What is the necessity of such a sweeping directive subject to no check or ratification?

What catastrophic emergency short of a massive attack on the US with nuclear ICBMs can possibly justify such a directive?

There is no obvious answer to the question. The federal government's inability to respond to Hurricane Katrina is hard evidence that centralizing power in one office is not the way to deal with catastrophes.

A speculative answer is that, with appropriate propaganda, the directive could be triggered by a US nuclear attack on Iran. The use of nuclear weapons arouses the ultimate fear. A US nuclear attack would send Russian and Chinese ICBMs into high alert. False flag operations could be staged in the US. The propagandistic US media would hype such developments to the hilt, portraying danger everywhere. Fear of the regime's new detention centers would silence most voices of protest as the regime declares its "national emergency."

This might sound like a far-out fiction novel, but it is a scenario that would explain the Bush regime's disinterest in the shrinking Republican vote that foretells a massive Republican wipeout in the 2008 election. In a declared national emergency, there would be no election.

As implausible as this might sound to people who trust the government, be aware that despite his rhetoric, Bush has no respect for democracy. His neoconservative advisors have all been taught that it is their duty to circumvent democracy, as democracy does not produce the right decisions. Neoconservatives believe in rule by elites, and they regard themselves as the elite. The Bush regime decided that Americans would not agree to an invasion of Iraq unless they were deceived and tricked into it, and so we were.

Indeed, democracy is out of favor throughout the Western world. In the UK and Europe, peoples are being forced, despite their expressed opposition, into an EU identity that they reject. British PM Tony Blair and his European counterparts have decided on their own that the people do not know best and that the people will be ignored.

As former French PM Valery Giscard d'Estaing told the French newspaper, Le Monde, "Public opinion will be led to adopt, without knowing it, the proposals that we dare not present to them directly." Giscard d'Estaing is referring to the resurrection of the rejected EU constitution camouflaged as a treaty.

Giscard d'Estaing acknowledges that 450 million Europeans are being hoodwinked. Why should Americans be surprised that they have been and are being hoodwinked?

Americans might have more awareness of their peril if they realized that their leaders no longer believe in democratic outcomes.

Only An Idiot Would Believe These Stories

Shiite death squads kidnap 125 people from a factory, take them to a farmhouse, and release the Sunnis, and shoot the Shiites. The next day the Shiite police find the hostages, and rescue them.

Death squads staged the whole thing to pit Shiites against Sunnis, and create a civil war. The only beneficiary is Israel.

BAGHDAD, Iraq -- Iraqi police stormed a farm north of Baghdad early today and freed at least 17 people who were snatched a day earlier in a mass kidnapping of about 85 workers and family members at the end of a factory shift.

The U.S. military, meanwhile, reported that four Marines and a soldier were killed in operations south and west of Baghdad, and an explosion of sectarian and revenge killings in Mosul — Iraq's third-largest city — over the past three days claimed 19 lives.

The freed kidnap victims brought to nearly 50 the number of captives who have been either released by their captors or extricated by police. About 30 of the hostages, mainly women and children, were released shortly after they were taken captive Wednesday. It is routine in Iraq for women to take their children to work.

One kidnap victim, a Shiite Muslim, said he was set free Wednesday night after showing the kidnappers a forged ID card listing him as a Sunni. He said two hostages had been killed trying to escape. The man refused to give his name fearing retribution.

"As we were leaving the factory we were stopped by gunmen. They got on our buses and told us to put our heads down. Then they took us to a poultry farm," the man said.

"One of the gunmen told us to stand in one line and then asked the Sunnis to get out of the line. That's what I did. They asked me to prove that I am a Sunni, so I showed the forged ID and three others did the same. They released us," the man said.

A National Security Ministry official, who spoke on condition of anonymity because he was not authorized to speak to reporters, told The Associated Press that several insurgents holding the kidnap victims were captured during the Thursday morning raid on the farm in the Mishada area, about 20 miles north of the capital.

Police operations were continuing in the area, the official said, in a bid to locate the rest of the victims who were taken at the end of the day shift at al-Nasr General Complex, a former military plant that now makes metal doors, windows and pipes.

Sectarian violence has raged in the region and tit-for-tat kidnappings and revenge killings are common, but nothing had been reported on the scale of Wednesday's mass abduction. The al-Nasr plant is between Baghdad and Taji, a predominantly Sunni Arab area.

The military said the four Marines were killed Tuesday in insurgency-ridden Anbar province, three of them in a roadside bombing and a fourth in a separate operation. A U.S. soldier also died Wednesday south of the capital, the military said, giving no further details.

The original Indianapolis plant dates to the September 14, 1915 founding of the Indianapolis Speedway Team Company by James A. Allison. Changing its name in 1918 to the Allison Experimental Company, the company contributed to the United States' buildup to fight World War I. In 1909, James Allison started the Indianapolis 500 race to prove the automobile components they manufactured. Now known as the Allison Engineering Company, Allison produced bearings for the Liberty engine.

US Army Reports 17 Dead Over Last Three Days

Seventeen dead in Iraq between June 1st to 4th. A group of insurgents attacked a large US base in Baquaba using a car gas/bomb that left dozens of people Sunday, punctuating a flurry of violence that left 16 American soldiers dead during the first three days of June.

The noxious gas cloud emanated from a bomb that exploded Sunday near the main gate of Forward Operating Base Warhorse, the largest U.S. military facility in Diyala province.

On Sunday, the U.S. military announced that a series of other bombings and shootings, most of them in and around Baghdad, took the lives of 15 soldiers and wounded at least 22 since Friday. The independent website icasualties.org, which tracks U.S. military deaths, said another soldier also had been killed during the that time frame.

Petraeus' New Strategy

The counterinsurgency strategy launched by Army Gen. David H. Petraeus, the top U.S. commander in Iraq, has moved soldiers off the sprawling, fortified American bases into smaller, more vulnerable outposts in violent neighborhoods to bring them into more sustained contact with the people they want to protect. But their presence creates more potential targets, as combat operations have expanded with the addition of five brigades of soldiers in Iraq, part of President Bush's troop buildup.

Israel Finally Chimes In On Bhutto

Israel has been errily quiet on this Pakistan assassination, but now breaks it's silence. Zionists claim that Bhutto was a heroine, loved Israel, and now the bad guys (Muslims) will get nukes.

Bhutto Assassination Sets Off Alarms Over Pakistan's Nukes

Ron Kampeas ◆ San Francisco Sentinel December 28, 2007

For Israelis, the assassin that killed Benazir Bhutto removed another barrier shielding the Jewish state from the Islamic bomb.

Israel's media and leadership portrayed the sniper-suicide bombing attack Thursday that ended the onetime Pakistani prime minister's life as a blow to hopes for a bridge to the Islamic world. They also suggested it raised the risk of Pakistan's nuclear bomb falling into militant Islamist hands.

Israel Is Very Sad

Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Olmert called Bhutto's death a ◆great tragedy,◆ according to the Jerusalem Post. ◆I saw her as someone who could have served as a bridgehead to relations with that part of the Muslim world with whom our ties are naturally limited,◆ the newspaper quoted Olmert as saying.

Tzipi Livni, the Israeli foreign minister, issued condolences to the Pakistani people.

Bhutto ◆demonstrated brave leadership for her people,◆ Livni said in a statement. ◆Israel expresses the hope that Pakistan will continue along the path of reconciliation, moderation and democracy.◆

Jack Rosen Worries About Nukes And Al Queda

The chaos precipitated by the killing poses dangers beyond Pakistan's immediate neighborhood, said Jack Rosen, a past president of the American Jewish Congress, noting that Pakistan is one of a handful of declared nuclear powers and the only Muslim country with the bomb. Rosen, who was the first Jewish leader to host a Pakistani leader when the AJCongress held a dinner for President Pervez Musharraf two years ago, said he was trying to reach the leadership in Pakistan for an assessment.

◆If the government fell into extremist hands, the bomb also falls into the hands of extremists,◆ Rosen told JTA ◆You don◆t need to worry about a nuclear Iran; you have a nuclear Pakistan in the hands of extremists.◆

Israel radio led its hourly news Friday evening quoting the Pentagon as saying that Pakistan's nuclear arsenal was ◆under control.◆

Prior to her return from exile in October, Bhutto, 54, had been reaching out to Israel as part of a broader strategy of garnering Western support for her confrontation with the military regime led by Musharraf. The United States had been pressing its ally, Musharraf, into accommodating Bhutto's push for new elections.

◆She wrote me of how she admired Israel and of her desire to see a normalization in the relations between Israel and Pakistan, including the establishment of diplomatic ties,◆ Dan Gillerman, the Israeli ambassador to the United Nations, told Ynet, an online Israeli news site affiliated with Israel's daily Yediot Acharonot

Bhutto Wanted Mossad Body Guards

According to a report in Israel's daily Ma'ariv, Bhutto reached out to the Mossad, among other security agencies, for protection.

Bhutto sensed that Musharraf was not fully committed to protecting her, the Ma'ariv report said. Among the routine protective requests Musharraf's government denied, the report said, were darkened windows on all the cars of her convoy and explosive detection devices.

Israeli authorities favored helping her, said Ma'ariv, which reported that she also had turned to Scotland Yard and the CIA for assistance. Hesitant to offend Musharraf, Israel's government had yet to make a decision, the report said.

Bhutto was not always so friendly toward Israel. Pakistan maintained its traditionally hostile posture during her two stints as prime minister, in 1988-1990 and 1993-1996. Those were also periods during which Pakistan's nuclear chief, A. Q. Khan, was developing what he dubbed an ◆Islamic bomb,◆ and, according to reports, marketing it to Israel's most intransigent enemies at the time, Libya and Iran.

Musharraf contained Khan, placing him under house arrest, but only after the United States increased pressure in the wake of the Sept. 11, 2001 terrorist attacks.

Rosen said Musharraf still represented Israel's best hope for reconciliation, noting other signs of warming since the 2005 AJCongress dinner.

◆Musharraf has done a number of things,◆ said Rosen, who now chairs the AJCongress◆ Council for World Jewry. ◆He had his foreign minister publicly meet the Israeli foreign minister. He accepted aid from Israel for the earthquake victims.◆

For Jews and Pakistanis in America, the assassination presents an opportunity for dialogue, said Rabbi Marc Schneier, president of the Foundation for Ethnic Understanding.

Coincidentally, Schneier said, a meeting between American Jewish communal leaders and Pakistani officials had been set just prior to the assassination. Now, he added, the meeting, to take place next month, was more imperative than ever.

◆Now,◆ Schneier told JTA, ◆there is a shared experience, both in terms of the assassination◆ in 1995 of Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin, ◆and in terms of the impact of extremism.◆

Holocaust Survivor Tells Students He Was 'Just A Number'

By Lori Goat

A Holocaust survivor of World War II Nazi concentration camps, Michael Jacobs, spoke of his experiences and insights to Tecumseh Middle School students on May 18.

"I never lost hope. I never lost belief. I knew I would survive," Jacobs said.

The blood of eleven million people, six million Jews, was spilled by Adolph Hitler's Nazi troops during WW II. The carnage began and so did Jacobs' journey when Germany invaded Poland on Sept. 1, 1939.

That November, 14-year-old Mendel Jakubowicz (Michael Jacobs) and his family were thrown out of their home and transported by railroad boxcar to a ghetto in Ostrowiec, Poland.

"Those ghettos weren't like the ghettos you know. We had no freedom. Every move was watched," Jacobs said. "The wrong move got you killed."

One of Jacobs' duties while at Ostrowiec was to collect items from empty Jewish homes. It was not uncommon for him to come across an infant left behind by families who knew they were doomed to die in death camps.

"The families thought if they left the babies, the children might have a chance to live. No chance," Jacobs said. "We took the babies to a tall building. They were thrown out of the windows for German soldiers to shoot."

In 1942, Ostrowiec was broken into several smaller camps. Jacobs and one brother, Reuven, was sent to one of the smaller camps. His two other brothers, two sisters, and his parents were sent to the Treblinka death camp.

"Two, three months later, we heard they were all killed," Jacobs said.

More than 80 members of Jacobs' extended family died during the war.

"After my family was killed in Treblinka, Reuven escaped and was killed fighting for liberation," Jacobs said.

In 1943, 17-year-old Jacobs was moved to the infamous death camp, Auschwitz.

"I remember being relieved getting out of the boxcar. They were so crowded, 75, 100 people in each car. The prison orchestra played for us. But, the air smelled of smoke and burnt human skin," Jacobs said.

Jacobs noticed a man in a white coat watching the prisoners get off the train. He would point at certain people and they would be led away from the others.

"I didn't know when I got off the train, but I learned the man in the white coat was Josef Mengele," Jacobs said.

Mengele performed unconventional and hellish medical experiments on prisoners. He was known as the Angel of Death.

Jacobs survived Auschwitz and was moved to Birkenau prison. He was a part of the 35 kilometer, 5 day death march in the snow to the train junction leading to Mauthausen-Gusen II. Sixty thousand people began the march. Forty-two thousand people died or were killed along the way.

During his imprisonment at Gusen II, Jacobs worked as a machinist. When possible and at extreme risk to himself, he sabotaged German planes.

On May 5, 1945, American tanks rolled into Gusen II.

"I didn't know what was happening. I said, 'Hey guys, look, the Nazi tanks have stars on them, not swastikas.' A soldier came out of the tank and handed me a big chocolate bar. I said, 'Hey guys, look at this, a Hershel bar.' It was a Hershey's bar," Jacob said.

Jacobs and his fellow inmates were liberated by the American Thunderbolts, the Army's 11th Armored Division.

Not wanting to be put in a Displaced Persons' Camp, Jacobs walked to Linz.

"Catholic nuns were serving soup in a bombed-out house. They weighed me while I was there. I stepped on the scale and it read 70 pounds. I couldn't believe it," Jacobs said.

With the assistance of the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society, Jacobs emigrated to Dallas, Texas, in 1951. He founded the Jacobs Iron and Metal Company, met his wife Ginger, and had four children.

Jacobs organized the Holocaust survivors in the Dallas area and founded the Dallas Memorial Center for Holocaust Studies, which opened on April 15, 1984.

Following his lecture about his life and times in concentration camps, Jacobs presented a slide show of photographs taken by the Nazis and of personal pictures of his post-war visits to Poland and Germany.

The photos showed the concentration camps, rooms filled with suitcases, shoes, and other items taken from prisoners, and the gas chambers.

Bar of dead jew soap

Jacobs also showed the students artifacts of his time in the camps, the cap he wore, a pair of child's shoes, and a bar of soap the Nazis made out of human fat.

The most permanent artifact was the tattoo on Jacobs' forearm, "B4990".

"The SS man asked me if I knew what the number meant. I said no. He told me I wasn't human anymore. I was just a number," Jacobs said.

As Jacobs presented the slide show and artifacts, he repeated the same three words, "Nobody can deny."

After the program, Indian counselor Victor Cope presented the Jacobs with a Native American blanket and shawl.

"My people experienced hardships similar to yours and your people. We would like you to have these tokens of our understanding and appreciation," said Cope, visibly shaken with emotion.

Jacobs lectures throughout the region on the Holocaust. His book, Holocaust Survivor: Mike Jacobs' Triumph Over Tragedy, is in its eighth printing.

Across the nation, about 5,000 Pearl Harbor veterans are alive.

SOUTH FLORIDA SUN-SENTINEL

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. — Exactly 66 years ago today, on a sunny Hawaiian island, John Guarino and James Loboizzo nearly lost their lives.

"I could have gone down that morning, and a lot of guys did," said Guarino, 89. "They were standing right next to me."

Loboizzo said, "I can still see those bullets bouncing off the concrete runway. They didn't miss me by much."

But Guarino, who lives in Boca Raton, and Loboizzo, 84, of Pembroke Pines, Fla., dodged the bombs and the bullets unleashed by Japanese fighter planes in the attack on Pearl Harbor that claimed nearly 2,400 American lives and plunged the U.S. into World War II.

Over the years, they and other veterans in the South Florida chapter of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association have recalled the events of Dec. 7, 1941, described by President Franklin D. Roosevelt as "a date which will live in infamy."

They are likely to do so again today, Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day, when Guarino, Loboizzo and perhaps four other local survivors gather for a 10 a.m. commemoration at the Fort Lauderdale Coast Guard station in Dania Beach. But though the date may live forever, the men and women who were there will not. The enemy now is time.

Plantation, Fla., resident Jerry Mintz, president of the Survivors Association, said membership in the local group has dropped to 14. "And I'm one of the younger ones," said Mintz, an ex-Army Air Corps radio operator who is 85.

Nationally, about 5,000 Pearl Harbor veterans are alive, including about 400 in Florida, according to Duane Reyelts, chairman of the Florida Pearl Harbor Survivors Association.

Despite death and disability, any suggestion that the local group be disbanded is always voted down, Mintz said. "There is a camaraderie we have, and we also know the importance is what our motto says: Keep America Alert. A lot of people don't know there was such a thing as Pearl Harbor, so we remind them."

Loboizzo, an Army Air Corps private sitting on his bunk at Hickam Field when the attack began, came home to Connecticut after the war and got into the construction business. He and Mildred, his wife of nearly 63 years, moved to Florida in 1968.

Years ago, Loboizzo was getting out of his car in a shopping center parking lot when a man spotted his Pearl Harbor commemorative license plate and asked, "Is that someplace we bombed or something?"

"That still rankles," said Loboizzo. "He didn't know anything about the war. But I think we're doing a better job of teaching history now. I've been invited to talk to my granddaughter's class in Cooper City next week." In good health, Loboizzo goes to the gym every morning and considers himself a lucky man.

"I just happened to be there," Loboizzo said of Pearl Harbor. "I don't look at myself as any kind of hero. We just made it through."

Guarino, who owned a limousine service in New York City, has outlived his wife, Lillian, four brothers and a sister. He lives alone in the Banyan Place Senior Living facility.

He also enjoys good health, keeps an edge on his sense of humor, and shares Loboizzo's belief that his place in history is happenstance. "I usually talk about Pearl Harbor only when you guys [reporters] ask me," he said. "But about a month ago, I talked to a veterans' group. I went up, gave them rank and serial number and a few lines.

"The reaction? They were all very old. They just sat there like mummies."

Guarino, who lived in Tamarac until his wife died 10 years ago, said his experience in the war may have given him the moxie he needed to run a taxi company in New York and in South Florida. But his identity as a Pearl Harbor survivor does not define him.

"We were there. We did what was asked of us," he said this week as he sat in the sun outside his apartment in Banyan Place's building A. "Now, if you stopped people on the street, maybe one in 50 could tell you about Pearl Harbor. They'd say, 'That's before my time.'

"Pearl Harbor was so long ago, it's like it didn't happen."

He had been connected to other murders, prostitution, gun running, and was thought as being the "Drug Czar" of Erie, Pennsylvania. ### Ted Barnes Was Arrested

He was a local homeless man/druggie that was thrown in the pile, as a mastermind. The FBI said Diehl would pay Barnes $125,000 for the hit on her father. Another ridiculous lie, this guy would kill anyone for $5,000 worth of drugs.

Brian Wells's Mother

The FBI, and the State Attorney, clear Rothstein, and accused the pizza delivery man. These clowns let Rothstein and Diehl slide, and then said Brian Wells was in on it, and he got caught in a double-cross.

One Very Ridiculous Story

The FBI says the Pizza guy was in on it. You really have to be a total idiot to believe someone allowed a bomb collar to be put around his neck. The simple truth is this was a monstrous crime, and international Zionists weren't about to let this go down in the history books as another one of their demented plots.

There was mounds of evidence that led to Nathan Rothstein, but this 58 year-old healthy man suddenly developed leukemia, and died in three months. The case would have been forgotten, except for the victim's family hounding the FBI.

Back in 2003, the evidence was eight letters, a bomb that required milling equipment, a machined shotgun, fingerprints, etc. Someone wasn't interested in solving this. Audio 1 and 2 of the cover-up.

Israel ready to bomb Iran

Paul Balles.....15 July 2007

Paul J. Balles considers how Israel, the Middle East's only nuclear power, has persuaded the US and the Europeans, through dissembling and lying, to support an Israeli strike against Iran's civilian nuclear power facilities.

The combined arrogance and dissembling by Israel, the US and now the European Union is so extreme that it's almost beyond belief.

Friday the 13th has always been a bad omen, but this Friday 13 July 2007 sees the omen become a daunting reality. A Newsmax headline reports: "Israel 'approved' to strike Iran".

According to Newsmax, "Israel's minister of strategic affairs said he has received approval from the US and Europe for an Israeli attack on Iran's nuclear facilities."

Avigdor Lieberman is reported as having said, following a meeting with NATO and European Union officials, "If we start military operations against Iran alone, then Europe and the US will support us."

In other words, America and Europe are going to supply the money and weaponry for Israel to destroy Iran's nuclear power facilities. That gets all of the attack freaks off the hook: Israel convinces the West of its lies about Iran's nuclear ambitions; and America and the Europeans only support the lies and provide the armaments and funding.

Is anyone paying attention to what's going on in the Middle East? Israel has more than 200 nuclear bombs; and for that revelation Mordechai Vanunu languished in prison for 18 years. Who are the Israeli leaders trying to kid? Or do they have so much control over the US and Europe that they don't need to kid anyone any longer?

Iran, on the other hand, has wanted to develop nuclear power. Does anyone not know the difference between nuclear power plants and nuclear bombs? Israel and its supporters seem to hope we're confused.

It's an extension of the same power wielding and dissembling they've been doing for years with the Palestinians. They tell the world that they're under threat from the Arabs; and they're using tanks and helicopter gunships to massacre kids throwing stones.

The Israelis scream about the deaths of Israelis and the danger to Israel of the suicide bombers when Israel has imprisoned, tortured, maimed, assassinated or gunned down hundreds of times as many Palestinians.

In their unbridled arrogance, the Israelis continue to build illegal settlements, they destroy a legitimately elected Palestinian government, they build walls that deprive Palestinians of their land, they steal property, and force Palestinians out of their homes and into refugee camps.

America and the European Union are just as arrogant in their support of Israel. Just as the US and the UK proved by invading and continuing to occupy Iraq, the West is again exercising imperialist control over a people they consider a lesser breed.

That arrogant attitude of a chosen people moved the appetites of the British Empire, the occupation of Algeria by France, the conquests of Spain and Portugal. Imperial control is nothing new to the Europeans.

The sickening control freaks of America and Israel differ only slightly from the holier-than-thou Europeans in their conquests. Iraq wasn't enough. They're all back in the same boat now ready to decimate Iran because its president dared to question the legitimacy of Israel.

Oh, yes, Iran also wants to develop nuclear power and preserve its oil reserves. The country has signed the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. And had its nuclear facilities inspected. Israel has not. Iran has no nuclear weapons. Israel does. America and England and the rest of Europe have enough to destroy the world.

They will continue to dissemble with lies that distort what Iran's president has said, what the Iranians are doing and speculating about what Iran intends to do. All of which makes Iran an easy target for the arrogant controllers of the world.

A triple bombing, including a massive suicide truck blast, killed more than 80, and wounded more than 183 people Monday in Kirkuk. The blast left a 30' deep crater. The explosion took place in a crowded commercial area and appeared aimed at causing as many civilian deaths as possible.

As rescuers approached the first bomb, the Israelis denoted a second, killing those trying to help. At least 140 people were killed or found dead nationwide on Monday, according to police reports.

Samueli family gives \$50 million to two UC campuses to support engineering education and research

Irvine, Calif., December 21, 1999

Henry Samueli and his wife, Susan, have personally donated $50 million to the schools of engineering at UCLA and UC Irvine. Henry Samueli is the co-founder of Broadcom Corp. in Irvine, Calif. This donation will be used to help both schools to enhance their increasingly important role in the development of the region as one of the nation's high-tech business hubs. The Samuelis have designated $30 million of their gift to UCLA and $20 million to UCI.

At UCLA, $10 million will establish endowments for graduate fellowships, teaching awards and term chairs, and $20 million will be available for capital construction and other high-priority projects. In recognition of this contribution, the UCLA School of Engineering and Applied Science will be renamed The Henry Samueli School of Engineering and Applied Science.

At UCI, the $20 million donation – the largest single gift in UCI's history – will enable the School of Engineering to support faculty research through endowed professorships, create competitive fellowships for graduate students and competitive scholarships for undergraduates, and support other priority projects in the school. The endowed professorships will be held in electrical engineering, computer engineering and microelectromechanical systems. In recognition of Samueli's support, UCI's engineering school will become The Henry Samueli School of Engineering.

Henry Samueli's ties to the UC system are extensive, starting as a student at UCLA, where he received a B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. in electrical engineering. After working in the private sector, he returned to UCLA in 1985 as a faculty member in the Electrical Engineering Department, and became a full professor in 1994. He has been on a leave of absence from the UCLA faculty since 1995. Since Broadcom's inception in 1991, he has also been active at UCI, including serving on the Board of Trustees of the UCI Foundation, as a board member of the School of Engineering's Corporate Affiliates Program, and as vice chair of the UCI Chief Executive Roundtable.

"The Samuelis' gift is special not only because it will have a tremendous positive impact on the engineering schools at two UC campuses, but because it comes from someone whose involvement with the UC system began as a student, continued as a faculty member, and has developed even further as a business leader," University of California President Richard C. Atkinson said. "We are proud of Henry Samueli's association with UC and of his many contributions to the excellence of the University of California system."

Atkinson noted that the Samuelis' gift will enhance UC's ongoing efforts to address the serious shortage of skilled engineers in California and the nation, to recruit and retain outstanding engineering faculty and to support important campus projects.

"With the support from the governor and Legislature, the University of California is committed to a 40 percent increase in the enrollment of undergraduate and graduate students in engineering and computer and information sciences over the next few years because California's economy, to remain competitive in the international marketplace, needs cutting-edge research and a highly trained workforce," Atkinson said. "The gift from the Samuelis will help us immensely in meeting this commitment."

Henry Samueli is recognized as one of the leading experts in broadband communications circuits, publishing more than 100 papers on the subject. He has been instrumental in founding two high-tech companies, first PairGain Technologies, a telecommunications equipment maker, in 1988, and then Broadcom, the Irvine-based company he founded along with Henry T. Nicholas III in 1991. Broadcom is a leading provider of semiconductors that enable the digital transmission of voice, data and video content for home and business applications.

"Having experienced firsthand the benefit of the high-quality education provided by the University of California, I can think of no higher priority for California's and the nation's future than the support of such an outstanding university system," Samueli said.

"Susan's and my gift is an expression of our gratitude to UCLA and UC Irvine, and a demonstration of our commitment to the state's future by further enhancing the capabilities of these two excellent engineering schools. The work of their faculty and alumni has had, and will continue to have, an extraordinary impact on the lives of all Californians and the rest of the world."

Leaders at UCLA and UCI expressed their appreciation for the Samuelis' gifts and noted the significance of the impacts they will have on the two schools of engineering.

"This landmark contribution will help the UCLA School of Engineering and Applied Science enhance its position as a leader in engineering and technology for the 21st century," UCLA Chancellor Albert Carnesale said. "We are enormously grateful to Henry and Susan Samueli for embracing UCLA's commitment to support the efforts of our students and faculty in the science and technology arena."

"This very generous and strategic gift reflects the Samuelis' deep commitment to education and research," UCI Chancellor Ralph J. Cicerone said. "Henry and Susan Samueli understand the need to grow the intellectual capital that is the lifeblood of a research university; their gift will provide crucial support to UCI engineering students and faculty, enabling them to create the new knowledge that drives technological progress. UCI is honored to name our engineering school after such an illustrious student, faculty member and business leader."

"Henry Samueli has made significant contributions to the excellence of our electrical engineering department and the school," said A.R. Frank Wazzan, dean of the UCLA School of Engineering and Applied Science. "His outstanding accomplishments as a UCLA student, his role as a distinguished member of our faculty and his performance in his co-leadership role with Dr. Henry Nicholas, also a UCLA graduate, at the helm of one of the highest ranked companies worldwide in the fields of communications and information technology have established him as a leader in academe and industry."

"The Samuelis' gift will have a major impact on the UC Irvine School of Engineering's ability to help meet the increasing demand for high-tech engineers, and to develop new technology to fuel the growth of high-tech business in this region," said Nicolaos Alexopoulos, dean of the UCI School of Engineering. "High-tech engineers are an absolutely crucial ingredient in the future economy of America and the world, and the Samuelis' gift enables UCI to have a major role in the future of engineering."

Henry and Susan Samueli also are active in the community as advocates of education and the arts. Henry Samueli is on the board of Project Tomorrow, a community partnership to enhance K-12 science education in Orange County, as well as the board of the Orange County Performing Arts Center. He received the 1999 National Human Relations Award from the Orange County Chapter of the American Jewish Committee.

Susan Samueli serves on the board of the Orangewood Children's Foundation and also is on the boards of Opera Pacific and Temple Beth El in Aliso Viejo.

The UCLA School of Engineering and Applied Science, which is ranked 20th among engineering schools by U.S. News & World Report, has been on the cutting-edge of technological advances since its inception as the College of Engineering in 1945. In addition to the school's strengths in traditional engineering programs such as aerospace, electrical engineering and computer science, it is advancing research in the evolving fields of wireless communications and networking, micromachines and biomedical engineering.

The school continues to attract leading faculty and exceptional students from around the world, and offers more than 30

LOS ANGELES - The co-founder of semiconductor maker Broadcom Corp., under scrutiny in a federal stock options probe, was accused seven years ago of building an underground hideaway at his estate to indulge in drugs and sex with prostitutes, according to court documents.

Death Threats

In a draft complaint made against Henry T. Nicholas III, a construction crew claimed the billionaire failed to pay them millions of dollars for work performed between 1998 and 2002, and used "manipulation, lies, intimidation, and even death threats" when anyone threatened to quit.

The illegal network of tunnels and rooms underneath Nicholas' Laguna Hills estate was kept secret from his wife and city officials, the documents said.

The purpose of one secret room was to allow Nicholas to "indulge his appetite for illegal drugs and sex with prostitutes," the crew claimed.

The allegations in the draft complaint were not filed with the crew's lawsuit against Nicholas in 2002, which was later resolved in a confidential settlement. However, the complaint was attached in 2005 as a supporting document to a lawsuit filed in Orange County Superior Court by a man seeking a larger share of the settlement.

Some of the allegations were similar to those made by former Nicholas employee

Nicholas' attorney Steven A. Silverstein has characterized Kato's claims as an extortion attempt and said of the construction crew complaint, "all of the allegations are denied."

Nicholas, 47, also has been identified by an internal Broadcom audit as bearing "significant responsibility" for the way stock options were granted and dated during the high-flying days of the Irvine-based technology company.

The company said it found evidence that Nicholas, who left Broadcom in 2003, personally approved of options dates that led the company to restate earnings and record $2.22 billion in non-cash expenses. Another Nicholas attorney, John W. Spiegel, has said his client did not knowingly engage in selecting grant dates after the fact.

A decade later, the 47-year-old faces a federal investigation and accusations from a former employee that threaten to tarnish his image as one of the tech industry's leading entrepreneurs and one of Orange County's most generous philanthropists.

Federal authorities are probing Nicholas' role in the manipulation of stock option grants at Broadcom Corp., the Irvine company he co-founded and led until 2003. The inquiry follows an internal company review that found Nicholas bore "significant responsibility" for the so-called backdating of option grants.

In conducting their probe, federal investigators have taken note of a civil suit filed in Los Angeles County Superior Court by Kenji Kato, who worked for Nicholas as an administrative assistant for nearly seven years beginning in 1999.

In court filings, Kato alleged that Nicholas required him to oversee supplies of cocaine and other drugs, pay prostitutes from a "petty cash" fund and conceal his boss' "extracurricular activities," including his alleged drug use, from his wife and others.

Nicholas' lawyer called the allegations "crazy" and contended the civil suit was a $9-million extortion scheme. Los Angeles County sheriff's detectives investigated the extortion allegation and the case was under review by the district attorney, officials said.

Federal prosecutors, meanwhile, were examining the issues in the civil case to determine whether they were relevant to the options case, according to two people with knowledge of the probe who spoke on condition of anonymity because it was an active investigation.

Federal agents this week served subpoenas on several of Nicholas' employees, but not the billionaire himself, according to another person with knowledge of the matter who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Henry Nicholas has denied those allegations, and also denied the claims in Kato's suit.

"These absurd allegations seem to be intended to disrupt the principal focus of my work, post-retirement, which would be in criminal justice and medical research," he said in a statement to The Times.

Nicholas met with The Times at his office in Aliso Viejo on Thursday and again at his $19.5-million home in Newport Coast on Friday, accompanied both times by lawyers and a public relations advisor.

Nicholas said he had been counseled not to discuss the stock options probe or the allegations in the civil suit. But he did say that Kato sank into drug abuse while working for him at Level 7, a music and media company.

"We don't have drug testing," Nicholas said Friday. "We just set the bar so high you have to be sober to meet it. That was too high, unfortunately, for Kenji."

In an interview, Kato attorney Joseph Kar acknowledged that his client had used hard drugs, but said Nicholas introduced him to the practice.

"Before he met Nick, I think the most he had ever done was to smoke marijuana," Kar said.

Kato, 35, was a Pepperdine University graduate student in law and business when Nicholas hired him in 1999. The son of former Oxnard Mayor Tsujio Kato, he met Nicholas through an event-planning business operated by his brother, Dean Kato, according to records and interviews.

"We would entertain him and his guests, by arranging lavish events, dinners, concerts, parties fit for only billionaires," Kenji Kato said in a court filing.

In his lawsuit, Kato alleged that Nicholas and his companies owed him $150,000 in unpaid wages on his $100-an-hour contract — and that they had later breached an agreement to settle his claims for $3 million.

Lawsuit: Ex-Broadcom CEO used drugs, prostitutes

Amid ongoing investigation of options backdating at company, allegations by former employees draw further attention of federal agencies

A civil lawsuit accusing Henry Nicholas III, the former president and CEO of Broadcom Corp., of mistreating employees, using illegal drugs and paying for prostitutes, has reportedly caught the attention of U.S. law enforcement officials investigating stock options backdating at the company.

Fr

Nicholas, who resigned from Broadcom in January 2003, is the target of a civil lawsuit brought by cousins Kenji and Scott Kato, both former employees of Nicholas. The lawsuit, filed in November in Superior Court of California for the County of Los Angeles, alleges that Nicholas and his lawyers reneged on a settlement for wrongful termination and other claims.

The Wall Street Journal reported Friday that the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Central District of California, which is investigating stock options backdating at Broadcom, has begun looking into the Katos' claims. The U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation interviewed Kenji Kato in April, and this week, it began interviewing other Nicholas employees, the news report said.

Nicholas' lawyer, Steven Silverstein, called the allegations "complete and total nonsense, a fabrication." Kenji and Scott Kato are trying to extort money from Nicholas, he said.

Asked about the U.S. attorney's interest in the civil case, he said, "What could this possibly have to do with stock options backdating?"

Kenji Kato's lawyer, Joseph Kar, declined to comment on the U.S. Attorney's interest in the case. A spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney's office didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment on the investigation.

Broadcom, a chip maker for communications devices, announced in January it would take a $2.24 billion charge for stock options backdating. Broadcom said it found options for 232.9 million shares of company stock that had been backdated, with 9.7 million of those shares going to executive officers.

Kenji Kato, who describes himself in court documents as a former personal assistant of Nicholas', said Nicholas and his lawyers offered him a settlement of more than $2.9 million in November, then withdrew it. Kato had accused Nicholas of wrongful termination, breach of contract and infliction of emotional distress, among other things.

Kenji Kato worked for Nicholas from October 1999 to April 2006, and during much of that time, Nicholas threw wild parties and regularly used illegal drugs, such as cocaine, according to a court filing from May. While at Broadcom, Nicholas hired prostitutes for clients and for himself, and he spiked customer drinks with powdered ecstasy pills to lower their "inhibitions and guard," Kato said in the filing.

Silverstein

Silverstein said the proposed settlement between Nicholas and Kato was part of a Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department sting operation into the Katos' extortion attempts. "From the first time we ever heard from those guys, we knew it was false ... and we contacted police," Silverstein said.

Nicholas' lawyer, Steven Silverstein, didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment on the lawsuit. In addition, Kato signed a confidentiality agreement when working for Nicholas, according to documents filed by Level 7 LLC and The Management Company LLC, two companies owned by Nicholas.

Kato has threatened to make public "certain sensitive private alleged facts ... which he had expressly promised to keep private," the Level 7 court documents say. "Kato's wrongful conduct by issuing these threats ... will cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiffs."

Nicholas regularly yelled at employees, and he demanded that Kenji Kato carry a bag with illegal drugs for him, according to Kenji Kato's filing. Nicholas also demanded that Kato use drugs along with him, Kato said.

"I was regularly exposed to ... a high degree of debauchery while working for Nick," he said in his filing. "The first time I used cocaine was when Nick shoved a tiny spoon up my nose because I was falling asleep, while he was talking to me. Over time, I got sucked into his extreme lifestyle."

By the end of Kato's employment, Nicholas was using "large quantities" of illegal drugs, including cocaine and heroin, and had withdrawn from his friends and family, according to Kato's May filing. Nicholas had stopped paying Kato, although he still demanded work from him, and when Kato walked out, Nicholas owed him $150,000 in back pay, the court documents say.

Nicholas had promised Kato employee benefits and Broadcom stock options, but he never delivered, according to Kato's filing.

Henry T Nicholas III was, for a brief period, one of the richest men in America. A patron of the Orange County arts scene, he had a trophy wife and enjoyed playing Rod Stewart numbers at full volume from the steps of his mansion.

The 6ft 6ins engineer founded the company Broadcom in 1991, making the innards of cable TV boxes at his Redondo Beach apartment. When it floated in the go-go years of the internet boom, his shares went up in value 40 times and he soon acquired the trappings of the super rich: private jets, a Lamborghini and a mansion in Laguna Hills with its own equestrian estate and, court documents claim, his personal brothel, hidden in an underground grotto.

Secret bar

The grotto was reached by hidden doors with secret levers, leading to tunnels and a 2,000sq-ft underground sports bar called "Nick's Café". According to claims in court papers, this was a "secret and convenient lair", to cater for "Mr Nicholas's manic obsession with prostitutes" and his "addiction to cocaine and ecstasy".

He used his private jet to pick up prostitutes as far away as New Orleans, Chicago, Las Vegas and Los Angeles "and bring them back to the Pond for his rock star friends", according to documents filed with Orange County Superior Court. "He provided his guests with transportation and cocaine, ecstasy, methamphetamines, marijuana, mushrooms, and nitrous oxide [laughing gas]".

In January 2003, Mr Nicholas quit Broadcom, saying he intended to spend more time with his children and tend to his marriage. Among the many legal troubles he now faces is a divorce battle with his wife Stacey, with whom he controls $1.1bn in Broadcom shares.

Mr Nicholas apparently told his wife about the underground passageways and rooms under their mansion when work began. But the construction was said to be far more elaborate than she imagined and ultimately cost $30m to build over three years.

In August 2000, Mr Nicholas took his wife to Hawaii for a week while work was being finished. The contractors were "threatened with financial ruin - whatever it took - if they failed to complete the task within a week", it is claimed.

Armed guards

But the noise and the sight of armed guards blocking public horse-trails near the site led neighbours to complain. The authorities shut the building site. They did not know "the [underground] room ceiling was covered over so it was not observable from above ground", according to the contractors.

At the time, Mr Nicholas told the Los Angeles Times the structure was "a pump-house" for run-off water. The contractors say the underground site, called Ponderosa, "was infamous for excessive extravagance, its sex rooms and its million-dollar sound equipment", the documents claimed. The allegations were made by a construction company which says it was not paid. The claims have been denounced as falsehoods by Mr Nicholas's lawyer but echo other claims made by Kenji Kato, Mr Nicholas's former assistant. Mr Kato says he is owed $150,000 in back wages, and alleges serial drug use and other debauchery at the mansion.

- Sordid allegations add to billionaire's woes

Flush with wealth from Broadcom Corp.'s 1998 public stock offering, computer chip magnate Henry T. Nicholas III made a few additions to his equestrian estate in Laguna Hills: hidden doors and secret levers, an underground grotto, tunnels and a 2,000-square-foot sports bar he called "Nick's Cafe."

But there was more, according to a claim made in court documents: plans for a "secret and convenient lair" with hidden entries for Nicholas to indulge his "manic obsession with prostitutes" and "addiction to cocaine and Ecstasy."

FOR THE RECORD:

Nicholas lawsuit: An article Wednesday in Business about Broadcom co-founder Henry T. Nicholas III quoted attorney Joseph Kar as saying his client, Kenji Kato, was unfamiliar with allegations in court papers against Nicholas by contractor Roman James but knew of the court case because "Nicholas had mentioned it infrequently." Kar said Nicholas mentioned James infrequently, not the case. —

-----

The allegations by a construction team, denounced as fabrications by Nicholas' lawyer, echoed others in a recently surfaced lawsuit filed late last year by Kenji Kato, a Nicholas assistant from 1999 to 2006.

In his suit, Kato claims that Nicholas and his companies owe him $150,000 in back wages. Filings in the suit allege drug use and debauchery at a Newport Coast home owned by Nicholas, who denies the accusations.

Responding in a lawsuit pending in Orange County Superior Court, Nicholas has alleged that Kato is bound by confidentiality agreements that bar him from disclosing information about the billionaire and his businesses.

Kato's allegations are being examined by federal authorities probing Nicholas' role in the manipulation of stock options at Broadcom, according to people with knowledge of the investigation. Through his attorney, Nicholas has denied any wrongdoing.

Nicholas, 47, co-founded Broadcom in 1991 and served as its chief executive until 2003. Broadcom's success made him one of the nation's richest men, and he has given millions to schools, the Orange County Performing Arts Center and other causes.

The alleged plans for the covert underground hideaway, to be connected to Nicholas' Laguna Hills home, were detailed by Roman James of Newport Beach, the lead contractor on the project, and six other contractors, engineers and construction workers who worked on it and filed a lawsuit against Nicholas in 2002.

The construction team accused Nicholas of failing to pay millions of dollars for work performed between April 1998 and April 2002. Nicholas was said to have used "manipulation, lies, intimidation and even death threats" to pressure "nearly every contractor and vendor" on the project to perform extra work without pay "at warp speed."

The allegations were contained in a draft complaint that was prepared but not filed as part of the contractors' lawsuit, which was resolved in a confidential settlement in 2002.

The draft complaint, however, was attached in 2005 as a supporting document to a lawsuit against the attorney for James, James R. Traut, by another man who sought a larger share of the 2002 settlement.

There was a 2006 judgment in that case, but the outcome was not clear in court documents and attorneys involved in that case could not be reached for comment. Nicholas was not named in that case.

The Times obtained the draft complaint from the Orange County Superior Court file — and blanket denials of its allegations from the Nicholas camp — on Tuesday.

Nicholas attorney Steven A. Silverstein said Tuesday that "all of the allegations are denied" and charged that the similarity between the Roman and Kato cases was not coincidental.

"Basically, where Kenji got his idea for his extortion came from Roman James," Silverstein said, contending that Kato was familiar with the previous case.

In court filings in his lawsuit, Kato said Nicholas made him oversee supplies of cocaine and other drugs, pay prostitutes from a "petty cash" fund and conceal his boss' illicit activities.

Kato's lawyer, Joseph Kar, said his client knew of the James case only because "Dr. Nicholas had mentioned it infrequently." But Kar said he and his client "have not seen that complaint" and were unfamiliar with its allegations.

Any similarity in the lawsuits "goes to corroborate the abuse and misbehaving of Mr. Nicholas" detailed in Kato's court papers, Kar said.

Nicholas made no secret of the underground passageways and rooms under his Laguna Hills home, but the filing by James contended the subterranean complex was more elaborate than even Stacey Nicholas was aware of and ultimately cost $30 million over three years.

Nicholas took his wife to Hawaii for a week in August 2000 while work on his secret chamber was being completed, the filing claimed. Stacey Nicholas has since filed for divorce.

"Plaintiffs were promised payment and/or threatened with financial ruin — whatever it took — if they failed to complete the task within a week," the draft complaint said, and hundreds of workers began toiling 18 hours a day to excavate and pour concrete.

The noise and presence of armed guards hired to block access to community horse trails near the project prompted neighbors to complain to Laguna Hills authorities, who discovered the work was being performed without a permit and shut it down, "although the room ceiling was covered over so it was not observable from above ground," the contractors said.

In a September 2000 Times story about the dispute, Nicholas said the newest underground structure was "a pump house" to handle water runoff from the horse trails.

The draft complaint disputed that account and claimed the new construction was tied to the alleged separate underground facility being built by Nicholas.

It said Nicholas, anticipating he would eventually obtain a permit from the city "to complete his lair," implemented a backup plan, arranging "to completely fabricate the interior" of the hideaway at a Laguna Niguel warehouse.

The location, referred to as the Pond or the Ponderosa, "was infamous for its excessive extravagance, its sex rooms and its million-dollar sound equipment," the document alleged.

Nicholas had his private jet pick up prostitutes in New Orleans, Chicago, Las Vegas and Los Angeles "and bring them back to the Pond for his rock star friends," the draft complaint said. "He provided his guests with transportation and cocaine, Ecstasy, methamphetamines, marijuana, mushrooms, and nitrous oxide [laughing gas]" — and even arranged for his private helicopter to land at a nearby hospital helipad, it said.

The lawsuit alleged that Nicholas required pledges of loyalty and secrecy from the contractors and at one point threatened James' life.

Nicholas, in an interview with The Times last week about the Kato suit, said the allegations of drug use against him were especially absurd because he had been recognized by authorities for his efforts to boost law enforcement.

The Kato case adds another layer to Nicholas' legal tribulations, which include a divorce case with allegations of drug use against him by his estranged wife, Stacey Nicholas.

Henry Nicholas has denied those allegations, and also denied the claims in Kato's suit.

"These absurd allegations seem to be intended to disrupt the principal focus of my work, post-retirement, which would be in criminal justice and medical research," he said in a statement to The Times.

Nicholas met with The Times at his office in Aliso Viejo on Thursday and again at his $19.5-million home in Newport Coast on Friday, accompanied both times by lawyers and a public relations advisor.

Nicholas said he had been counseled not to discuss the stock options probe or the allegations in the civil suit. But he did say that Kato sank into drug abuse while working for him at Level 7, a music and media company.

"We don't have drug testing," Nicholas said Friday. "We just set the bar so high you have to be sober to meet it. That was too high, unfortunately, for Kenji."

In an interview, Kato attorney Joseph Kar acknowledged that his client had used hard drugs, but said Nicholas introduced him to the practice.

"Before he met Nick, I think the most he had ever done was to smoke marijuana," Kar said.

Kato, 35, was a Pepperdine University graduate student in law and business when Nicholas hired him in 1999. The son of former Oxnard Mayor Tsujio Kato, he met Nicholas through an event-planning business operated by his brother, Dean Kato, according to records and interviews.

"We would entertain him and his guests, by arranging lavish events, dinners, concerts, parties fit for only billionaires," Kenji Kato said in a court filing.

In his lawsuit, Kato alleged that Nicholas and his companies owed him $150,000 in unpaid wages on his $100-an-hour contract — and that they had later breached an agreement to settle his claims for $3 million.

In subsequent court filings, Kato also alleged that Nicholas secretly spiked the drinks of business associates with drugs, ordered aides to fill balloons with laughing gas to entertain party guests and left drug paraphernalia strewn about a second Newport Coast house owned by Nicholas where Level 7 had a recording studio.

Nicholas also was said by Kato to sometimes stay up for days on end.

"At times, when I was required to stay at Nick's home ... he would wake me up and make me drink and do drugs with him, because that was one of his favorite things to do," Kato said in court papers. His case is pending.

In his statement, Nicholas noted that "during the period of alleged drug use, I received numerous awards for my work in criminal justice from district attorneys and various police organizations."

"As for my supposed abnormal 'sleep habits,' the longest time I recall staying awake in the last 10 years was doing several all-nighters side by side with our current attorney general, Jerry Brown, to defeat Proposition 66," Nicholas said in the statement, referring to the 2004 initiative that would have amended the state's "three strikes" law.

In addition to being Nicholas' assistant, Kato also worked for Level 7, which has worked with bands including Linkin Park. Bands occasionally recorded and partied at the home where Level 7 had its studio.

It was there that much of the alleged drug abuse occurred, according to Kato and four other former employees who signed sworn statements about their experiences.

"On regular occasions ... I was ordered to fill-up to 20 balloons of nitrous oxide and deliver them to Dr. Nicholas; or, when I was required to clean up after Dr. Nicholas I frequently found remnants of usage of drugs, such as straws and plates, residue of cocaine, nitrous oxide balloons and alcohol," Gerald Wada, a staffer for four months in 2006, said in court papers.

Nicholas disputed the allegations. He said he helped Chester Bennington, the singer for Linkin Park, kick an addiction to alcohol and prescription drugs, which Bennington confirmed Friday. "When you wake up and have a Jack Daniel's for breakfast, it's a pretty bad sign," Bennington said.

Denise Boudreau, who is described in Kato's declaration as a purveyor of drugs to Nicholas, called the accusation "ridiculous."

"It was so over the top it was funny," said Boudreau, who works for Level 7. "I thought Kenji was losing it."

Boudreau said Kato was resentful when Nicholas and others running Level 7 discovered that Kato had botched many assignments at the record company and expelled him from Nicholas' "inner circle."

Boudreau said she occasionally saw drugs used at the recording studio, but only by musicians and that Nicholas was never present.

On behalf of Nicholas, attorney Steven A. Silverstein has sued Kato in Orange County Superior Court, saying that Kato is bound by confidentiality agreements that bar him from disclosing information about Nicholas and his businesses. That case is still pending.

Although court records included a draft copy of a settlement agreement with Kato for $3 million, Silverstein said that was the product of negotiations he conducted as part of a sting operation directed by sheriff's detectives.

"There was never, ever, ever any intent to ever pay a penny, not one penny, for the extortionate demands," Silverstein said

Court records show that at one point Silverstein wore a sheriff's "wire" to secretly record a settlement meeting with Kato and three of his lawyers, some of whom threatened to go public with Kato's allegations.

"They unambiguously said, 'If you pay us $9 million we will make certain that no one ever knows about this information,' " Silverstein said.

Kar denied any attempt at extortion and said he did not expect to be charged with wrongdoing.

Nicholas founded Broadcom in 1991 with Henry Samuelli, his former engineering professor at UCLA, who now owns the Anaheim Ducks hockey team and remains chairman of the Irvine computer chip maker.

In a filing with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Broadcom exonerated Samuelli from backdating stock options but found "substantial evidence that Dr. Nicholas was at times involved with the selection of grant dates after the fact."

Nicholas' criminal attorney, John W. Spiegel, acknowledged that some stock option grants should have been accounted for differently, but said the company's investigation showed Nicholas "did not knowingly engage in selecting grant dates after the fact."

Nicholas stepped down from Broadcom in January 2003, but his family trust still owns nearly 30% of its voting shares.

In a draft complaint made against Henry T. Nicholas III, a construction crew claimed the billionaire failed to pay them millions of dollars for work performed between 1998 and 2002, and used "manipulation, lies, intimidation, and even death threats" when anyone threatened to quit.

A civil lawsuit accusing Henry Nicholas III, the former president and CEO of Broadcom Corp., of mistreating employees, using illegal drugs and paying for prostitutes, has reportedly caught the attention of U.S. law enforcement officials investigating stock options backdating at the company.

Fr
Nicholas, who resigned from Broadcom in January 2003, is the target of a civil lawsuit brought by cousins Kenji and Scott Kato, both former employees of Nicholas. The lawsuit, filed in November in Superior Court of California for the County of Los Angeles, alleges that Nicholas and his lawyers reneged on a settlement for wrongful termination and other claims.

The Wall Street Journal reported Friday that the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Central District of California, which is investigating stock options backdating at Broadcom, has begun looking into the Katos' claims. The U.S. Federal Bureau of Investigation interviewed Kenji Kato in April, and this week, it began interviewing other Nicholas employees, the news report said.

Nicholas' lawyer, Steven Silverstein, called the allegations "complete and total nonsense, a fabrication." Kenji and Scott Kato are trying to extort money from Nicholas, he said.

Asked about the U.S. attorney's interest in the civil case, he said, "What could this possibly have to do with stock options backdating?"

Kenji Kato's lawyer, Joseph Kar, declined to comment on the U.S. Attorney's interest in the case. A spokeswoman for the U.S. Attorney's office didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment on the investigation.

Broadcom, a chip maker for communications devices, announced in January it would take a $2.24 billion charge for stock options backdating. Broadcom said it found options for 232.9 million shares of company stock that had been backdated, with 9.7 million of those shares going to executive officers.

Kenji Kato, who describes himself in court documents as a former personal assistant of Nicholas, said Nicholas and his lawyers offered him a settlement of more than $2.9 million in November, then withdrew it. Kato had accused Nicholas of wrongful termination, breach of contract and infliction of emotional distress, among other things.

Kenji Kato worked for Nicholas from October 1999 to April 2006, and during much of that time, Nicholas threw wild parties and regularly used illegal drugs, such as cocaine, according to a court filing from May. While at Broadcom, Nicholas hired prostitutes for clients and for himself, and he spiked customer drinks with powdered ecstasy pills to lower their "inhibitions and guard," Kato said in the filing.

Silverstein said the proposed settlement between Nicholas and Kato was part of a Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department sting operation into the Katos' extortion attempts. "From the first time we ever heard from those guys, we knew it was false ... and we contacted police," Silverstein said.

Nicholas' lawyer, Steven Silverstein, didn't immediately return a phone call seeking comment on the lawsuit. In addition, Kato signed a confidentiality agreement when working for Nicholas, according to documents filed by Level 7 LLC and The Management Company LLC, two companies owned by Nicholas.

Kato has threatened to make public "certain sensitive private alleged facts ... which he had expressly promised to keep private," the Level 7 court documents say. "Kato's wrongful conduct by issuing these threats ... will cause great and irreparable injury to plaintiffs."

Nicholas regularly yelled at employees, and he demanded that Kenji Kato carry a bag with illegal drugs for him, according to Kenji Kato's filing. Nicholas also demanded that Kato use drugs along with him, Kato said.

"I was regularly exposed to ... a high degree of debauchery while working for Nick," he said in his filing. "The first time I used cocaine was when Nick shoved a tiny spoon up my nose because I was falling asleep, while he was talking to me. Over time, I got sucked into his extreme lifestyle."

By the end of Kato's employment, Nicholas was using "large quantities" of illegal drugs, including cocaine and heroin, and had withdrawn from his friends and family, according to Kato's May filing. Nicholas had stopped paying Kato, although he still demanded work from him, and when Kato walked out, Nicholas owed him $150,000 in back pay, the court documents say.

Nicholas had promised Kato employee benefits and Broadcom stock options, but he never delivered, according to Kato's filing.

Henry T Nicholas III was, for a brief period, one of the richest men in America. A patron of the Orange County arts scene, he had a trophy wife and enjoyed playing Rod Stewart numbers at full volume from the steps of his mansion.

The 6ft 6ins engineer founded the company Broadcom in 1991, making the innards of cable TV boxes at his Redondo Beach apartment. When it floated in the go-go years of the internet boom, his shares went up in value 40 times and he soon acquired the trappings of the super rich: private jets, a Lamborghini and a mansion in Laguna Hills with its own equestrian estate and, court documents claim, his personal brothel, hidden in an underground grotto.

The grotto was reached by hidden doors with secret levers, leading to tunnels and a 2,000sq-ft underground sports bar called "Nick's Café". According to claims in court papers, this was a "secret and convenient lair", to cater for "Mr Nicholas's manic obsession with prostitutes" and his "addiction to cocaine and ecstasy".

He used his private jet to pick up prostitutes as far away as New Orleans, Chicago, Las Vegas and Los Angeles "and bring them back to the Pond for his rock star friends", according to documents filed with Orange County Superior Court. "He provided his guests with transportation and cocaine, ecstasy, methamphetamines, marijuana, mushrooms, and nitrous oxide [laughing gas]".

In January 2003, Mr Nicholas quit Broadcom, saying he intended to spend more time with his children and tend to his marriage. Among the many legal troubles he now faces is a divorce battle with his wife Stacey, with whom he controls $1.1bn in Broadcom shares.

Mr Nicholas apparently told his wife about the underground passageways and rooms under their mansion when work began. But the construction was said to be far more elaborate than she imagined and ultimately cost $30m to build over three years.

In August 2000, Mr Nicholas took his wife to Hawaii for a week while work was being finished. The contractors were "threatened with financial ruin - whatever it took - if they failed to complete the task within a week", it is claimed.

At the time, Mr Nicholas told the Los Angeles Times the structure was "a pump-house" for run-off water. The contractors say the underground site, called Ponderosa, "was infamous for excessive extravagance, its sex rooms and its million-dollar sound equipment", the documents claimed. The allegations were made by a construction company which says it was not paid. The claims have been denounced as falsehoods by Mr Nicholas's lawyer but echo other claims made by Kenji Kato, Mr Nicholas's former assistant. Mr Kato says he is owed $150,000 in back wages, and alleges serial drug use and other debauchery at the mansion.

- Sordid allegations add to billionaire's woes

Flush with wealth from Broadcom Corp.'s 1998 public stock offering, computer chip magnate Henry T. Nicholas III made a few additions to his equestrian estate in Laguna Hills: hidden doors and secret levers, an underground grotto, tunnels and a 2,000-square-foot sports bar he called "Nick's Cafe."

But there was more, according to a claim made in court documents: plans for a "secret and convenient lair" with hidden entries for Nicholas to indulge his "manic obsession with prostitutes" and "addiction to cocaine and Ecstasy."

FOR THE RECORD:

Nicholas lawsuit: An article Wednesday in Business about Broadcom co-founder Henry T. Nicholas III quoted attorney Joseph Kar as saying his client, Kenji Kato, was unfamiliar with allegations in court papers against Nicholas by contractor Roman James but knew of the court case because "Nicholas had mentioned it infrequently." Kar said Nicholas mentioned James infrequently, not the case. —

The filing in Orange County Superior Court added that Nicholas had the interior built in warehouse space nearby, which became his "personal brothel" until his wife caught him having sex with a prostitute there.

The allegations by a construction team, denounced as fabrications by Nicholas' lawyer, echoed others in a recently surfaced lawsuit filed late last year by Kenji Kato, a Nicholas assistant from 1999 to 2006.

In his suit, Kato claims that Nicholas and his companies owe him $150,000 in back wages. Filings in the suit allege drug use and debauchery at a Newport Coast home owned by Nicholas, who denies the accusations.

Responding in a lawsuit pending in Orange County Superior Court, Nicholas has alleged that Kato is bound by confidentiality agreements that bar him from disclosing information about the billionaire and his businesses.

Kato's allegations are being examined by federal authorities probing Nicholas' role in the manipulation of stock options at Broadcom, according to people with knowledge of the investigation. Through his attorney, Nicholas has denied any wrongdoing.

Nicholas, 47, co-founded Broadcom in 1991 and served as its chief executive until 2003. Broadcom's success made him one of the nation's richest men, and he has given millions to schools, the Orange County Performing Arts Center and other causes.

The alleged plans for the covert underground hideaway, to be connected to Nicholas' Laguna Hills home, were detailed by Roman James of Newport Beach, the lead contractor on the project, and six other contractors, engineers and construction workers who worked on it and filed a lawsuit against Nicholas in 2002.

The construction team accused Nicholas of failing to pay millions of dollars for work performed between April 1998 and April 2002. Nicholas was said to have used "manipulation, lies, intimidation and even death threats" to pressure "nearly every contractor and vendor" on the project to perform extra work without pay "at warp speed."

The allegations were contained in a draft complaint that was prepared but not filed as part of the contractors' lawsuit, which was resolved in a confidential settlement in 2002.

The draft complaint, however, was attached in 2005 as a supporting document to a lawsuit against the attorney for James, James R. Traut, by another man who sought a larger share of the 2002 settlement.

There was a 2006 judgment in that case, but the outcome was not clear in court documents and attorneys involved in that case could not be reached for comment. Nicholas was not named in that case.

The Times obtained the draft complaint from the Orange County Superior Court file — and blanket denials of its allegations from the Nicholas camp — on Tuesday.

Nicholas attorney Steven A. Silverstein said Tuesday that "all of the allegations are denied" and charged that the similarity between the Roman and Kato cases was not coincidental.

"Basically, where Kenji got his idea for his extortion came from Roman James," Silverstein said, contending that Kato was familiar with the previous case.

In court filings in his lawsuit, Kato said Nicholas made him oversee supplies of cocaine and other drugs, pay prostitutes from a "petty cash" fund and conceal his boss' illicit activities.

Kato's lawyer, Joseph Kar, said his client knew of the James case only because "Dr. Nicholas had mentioned it infrequently." But Kar said he and his client "have not seen that complaint" and were unfamiliar with its allegations.

Any similarity in the lawsuits "goes to corroborate the abuse and misbehaving of Mr. Nicholas" detailed in Kato's court papers, Kar said.

Nicholas made no secret of the underground passageways and rooms under his Laguna Hills home, but the filing by James contended the subterranean complex was more elaborate than even Stacey Nicholas was aware of and ultimately cost $30 million over three years.

Nicholas took his wife to Hawaii for a week in August 2000 while work on his secret chamber was being completed, the filing claimed. Stacey Nicholas has since filed for divorce.

"Plaintiffs were promised payment and/or threatened with financial ruin — whatever it took — if they failed to complete the task within a week," the draft complaint said, and hundreds of workers began toiling 18 hours a day to excavate and pour concrete.

The noise and presence of armed guards hired to block access to community horse trails near the project prompted neighbors to complain to Laguna Hills authorities, who discovered the work was being performed without a permit and shut it down, "although the room ceiling was covered over so it was not observable from above ground," the contractors said.

In a September 2000 Times story about the dispute, Nicholas said the newest underground structure was "a pump house" to handle water runoff from the horse trails.

The draft complaint disputed that account and claimed the new construction was tied to the alleged separate underground facility being built by Nicholas.

It said Nicholas, anticipating he would eventually obtain a permit from the city "to complete his lair," implemented a backup plan, arranging "to completely fabricate the interior" of the hideaway at a Laguna Niguel warehouse.

The location, referred to as the Pond or the Ponderosa, "was infamous for its excessive extravagance, its sex rooms and its million-dollar sound equipment," the document alleged.

Nicholas had his private jet pick up prostitutes in New Orleans, Chicago, Las Vegas and Los Angeles "and bring them back to the Pond for his rock star friends," the draft complaint said. "He provided his guests with transportation and cocaine, Ecstasy, methamphetamines, marijuana, mushrooms, and nitrous oxide [laughing gas]" — and even arranged for his private helicopter to land at a nearby hospital helipad, it said.

The lawsuit alleged that Nicholas required pledges of loyalty and secrecy from the contractors and at one point threatened James' life.

Nicholas, in an interview with The Times last week about the Kato suit, said the allegations of drug use against him were especially absurd because he had been recognized by authorities for his efforts to boost law enforcement.

LOS ANGELES - The co-founder of semiconductor maker Broadcom Corp., under scrutiny in a federal stock options probe, was accused seven years ago of building an underground hideaway at his estate to indulge in drugs and sex with prostitutes, according to court documents.

In a draft complaint made against Henry T. Nicholas III, a construction crew claimed the billionaire failed to pay them millions of dollars for work performed between 1998 and 2002, and used "manipulation, lies, intimidation, and even death threats" when anyone threatened to quit.

The illegal network of tunnels and rooms underneath Nicholas' Laguna Hills estate was kept secret from his wife and city officials, the documents said.

The purpose of one secret room was to allow Nicholas to "indulge his appetite for illegal drugs and sex with prostitutes," the crew claimed.

The allegations in the draft complaint were not filed with the crew's lawsuit against Nicholas in 2002, which was later resolved in a confidential settlement. However, the complaint was attached in 2005 as a supporting document to a lawsuit filed in Orange County Superior Court by a man seeking a larger share of the settlement.

Some of the allegations were similar to those made by former Nicholas employee

Nicholas' attorney Steven A. Silverstein has characterized Kato's claims as an extortion attempt and said of the construction crew complaint, "all of the allegations are denied."

Nicholas, 47, also has been identified by an internal Broadcom audit as bearing "significant responsibility" for the way stock options were granted and dated during the high-flying days of the Irvine-based technology company.

The company said it found evidence that Nicholas, who left Broadcom in 2003, personally approved of options dates that led the company to restate earnings and record $2.22 billion in non-cash expenses. Another Nicholas attorney, John W. Spiegel, has said his client did not knowingly engage in selecting grant dates after the fact.

Riding the high-tech wave of the 1990s, Henry T. Nicholas III became one of the nation's richest people, a brash and innovative billionaire who gave millions to charity and made hundreds of his employees wealthy with stock options.

A decade later, the 47-year-old faces a federal investigation and accusations from a former employee that threaten to tarnish his image as one of the tech industry's leading entrepreneurs and one of Orange County's most generous philanthropists.

Federal authorities are probing Nicholas' role in the manipulation of stock option grants at Broadcom Corp., the Irvine company he co-founded and led until 2003. The inquiry follows an internal company review that found Nicholas bore "significant responsibility" for the so-called backdating of option grants.

In conducting their probe, federal investigators have taken note of a civil suit filed in Los Angeles County Superior Court by Kenji Kato, who worked for Nicholas as an administrative assistant for nearly seven years beginning in 1999.

In court filings, Kato alleged that Nicholas required him to oversee supplies of cocaine and other drugs, pay prostitutes from a "petty cash" fund and conceal his boss' "extracurricular activities," including his alleged drug use, from his wife and others.

Nicholas' lawyer called the allegations "crazy" and contended the civil suit was a $9-million extortion scheme. Los Angeles County sheriff's detectives investigated the extortion allegation and the case was under review by the district attorney, officials said.

Federal prosecutors, meanwhile, were examining the issues in the civil case to determine whether they were relevant to the options case, according to two people with knowledge of the probe who spoke on condition of anonymity because it was an active investigation.

Federal agents this week served subpoenas on several of Nicholas' employees, but not the billionaire himself, according to another person with knowledge of the matter who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Henry Nicholas has denied those allegations, and also denied the claims in Kato's suit.

"These absurd allegations seem to be intended to disrupt the principal focus of my work, post-retirement, which would be in criminal justice and medical research," he said in a statement to The Times.

Nicholas met with The Times at his office in Aliso Viejo on Thursday and again at his $19.5-million home in Newport Coast on Friday, accompanied both times by lawyers and a public relations advisor.

Nicholas said he had been counseled not to discuss the stock options probe or the allegations in the civil suit. But he did say that Kato sank into drug abuse while working for him at Level 7, a music and media company.

"We don't have drug testing," Nicholas said Friday. "We just set the bar so high you have to be sober to meet it. That was too high, unfortunately, for Kenji."

In an interview, Kato attorney Joseph Kar acknowledged that his client had used hard drugs, but said Nicholas introduced him to the practice.

"Before he met Nick, I think the most he had ever done was to smoke marijuana," Kar said.

Kato, 35, was a Pepperdine University graduate student in law and business when Nicholas hired him in 1999. The son of former Oxnard Mayor Tsujio Kato, he met Nicholas through an event-planning business operated by his brother, Dean Kato, according to records and interviews.

"We would entertain him and his guests, by arranging lavish events, dinners, concerts, parties fit for only billionaires," Kenji Kato said in a court filing.

In his lawsuit, Kato alleged that Nicholas and his companies owed him $150,000 in unpaid wages on his $100-an-hour contract — and that they had later breached an agreement to settle his claims for $3 million.

In subsequent court filings, Kato also alleged that Nicholas secretly spiked the drinks of business associates with drugs, ordered aides to fill balloons with laughing gas to entertain party guests and left drug paraphernalia strewn about a second Newport Coast house owned by Nicholas where Level 7 had a recording studio.

Who Were The Real Aggressors?

There is common understanding that the 2nd World War was a defensive war against an expansionist militaristic Germany threatening her neighbours' borders. England and France are portrayed as the underdog nations. The facts, even from an informed British view, are clearly at odds with this perception of those tragic events.

Germany Is A Small State

As Adolf Hitler pointed out, "The assertion that Germany affected to conquer the world was ridiculous. The British Empire embraced 40 million square kilometres, Russia 19 million square kilometres, America 9.5 million square kilometres, whereas Germany embraced less than 600,000 square kilometres. It is quite clear who it is desires to conquer the world." (1)

Germany Had A Peaceful Foreign Policy

Far from being belligerent National Socialist Germany went to great lengths to promote peaceful co-existence with her neighbours. In fact it was remarkably successful in developing a foreign policy which embraced all races and creeds. It was her mastery in doing so that threatened the existence of the League of Nations and ultimately led to the Jewish Dance of Death on Christian Europe's sacred soil.

League Of Nations

This forerunner to the United Nations was an American-Jewish cabal which arrogantly presumed to impose their code of conduct on the free world. (The Protocols of the Learned Elders of Zion, the Jewish plan to control the world). Similarly inspired trade agreements dictated international trade to which most nations were then bending the knee.

Germany's Trade Agreements

National Socialist Germany's fairer approach to peaceful co-existence, with the introduction of a mutually beneficial interest-free trading system, evolved to threaten the American-Jewish control of world affairs. "The real reason for America to go to war against Germany was Hitler's disruption of a working world economy [NWO]." (Hitler's Table Talks, Ullstein Publishers, Frankfurt 1989, p. 21)

Hitler Had A Blueprint For A Prosperous Trade Routes For Europe

The German people's choice of leader said; "Our economic relations with this country (Yugoslavia) are undergoing constant development and expansion, just as in the case of the friendly countries of Bulgaria, Greece, Rumania and Turkey. The essential reason for this is to be found in the natural conditions, which make it possible for these countries and Germany to complement each other's economic systems. Germany is happy today in the possession of peaceful frontiers in the West, South and North."

Britain, France, And Poland, Were the War Mongers

The Fuhrer added: "Our relations with the Western and northern States, Switzerland, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Finland and the Baltic States, become all the more satisfactory with the increasing tendency in these countries to turn away from certain articles of the Covenant of the League of Nations, which involve danger of war."

The League Of Nations Did Nothing

The German Leader was referring to the League of Nations selectivity when addressing matters of international dispute. Just as the United Nations Organization today impudently ignores Israeli, British and American aggression, its forerunner disregarded the anti-German sabre-rattling of Poland and Czechoslovakia and turned a blind eye to Soviet Russia's (and Britain's) territorial ambitions.

Norway's Leader Wants A United Front Against Communism

Norway's perceptive nationalist leader Vidkun Quisling further enraged New York's 'world government' string-pullers when he observed. "A Nordic union between Scandinavia and Great Britain, with the adherence of Finland and Holland, and in which Germany and eventually the British Dominions and America might later on be absorbed, would take away the sting of any communist combination and secure European civilization and peace for the foreseeable future." (3)

Europe Unites Against World Jewry

When war was finally forced upon Germany there ensued a struggle in which the central European State of National Socialist Germany did not stand alone. Italian Leader Benito Mussolini had already seen the advantages of peaceful co-existence with her prosperous neighbour and had coined the term Axis when he formed alliance with Germany in 1936. The people of Austria would soon vote overwhelmingly to become part of greater Germany, as had the Saar region on January 13, 1935.

Roosevelt Pushed Japan Into War

Japan reacted strongly to the 'American' cabal's impudent demand that they subscribe to trading conditions on 'American' terms. But realising that she alone could not stand up to the British and American drive for the economic colonisation of the Pacific Rim she was the third to join the defensive Axis.

This was an open secret in the United States: "The memorandum which Senator Hall, with the approval of President Roosevelt, handed to Japan on 26th November, 1941, amounted to the maximum terms of an American policy for the whole Orient." (

Two Sides Of The Jewish Coin

Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria, each of which were threatened by the Communist menace to the East of their borders quickly sought refuge within the defensive Axis. They too were painfully aware that they had been caught between a rock and a hard place, or what Hitler had so succinctly described as "Capitalism and Bolshevism as being the two sides of the same international Jewish coin."

Roosevelt And The Zionists

"Neither the French nor the British would have made Poland a ground for war, if Washington had not continually pressed for it," said US Ambassador U.S. William C. Bullitt. (5)

As the struggle reached titanic proportions it became a war to the finish. The two sides of 'the Jewish coin' maneuvered its Gentile mercenary armies against the expanding coalition of free-trade National Socialist alliance nations.

The Hidden Generals Wear Skullcaps

Perceiving that the 'hidden generals of the West' wore skullcaps (yarmulkes) William Joyce the charismatic Irish-American National Socialist mockingly described the Jewish national anthem as being the hymn, 'Onward Christian Soldiers!'

Christians United Against France, England, and America

Forming a defensive ring around Europe and making pre-emptive strikes against their British, French and American tormentors, later to be joined by Soviet Russia (the other side of the Jewish coin), men and women of all nationalities rushed to Christian-Europe's defense.

"There can be no doubt that he (Hitler) broadened the war in 1941 only on preventive grounds." announced the renowned British historian, Professor A.J.P Taylor.

Such was their determination to protect Europe, volunteers of many European nations rushed to join National Socialist Germany's Waffen SS divisions. By 1944, when Christian Europe's fate stood in the balance, of the 910,000 men and women under Waffen SS arms, less than half were German born nationals. 310,000 were men of German descent but born outside Germany. Almost a quarter, 200,000 were non-German volunteers from many nations including Great Britain. (6)

British SS Defend Hitler's Berlin

(Anthony Byers of Effingham in Surrey described an incident in defeated Berlin: "As a National Serviceman in Berlin, I met a Russian officer who was impressed by the fighting spirit of eight misguided (sic) British soldiers. They held up an entire Russian Regiment for almost two days until they ran out of ammunition. Only two survived to surrender and were promptly shot by the understandably irritated Russians who had lost almost 100 men and three tanks.

The Russian officer said that had SS Unterscharfuhrer Cornfield, and a soldier he named as Plead, been fighting the Germans they would have deserved the Victoria Cross." He added: "I hope you British invented a good story for their families, for a brave soldier is still a brave soldier even when a traitor to their country."

The Free World Joined The Waffen SS

Europe's Waffen SS Divisions included men and women from the four corners of the world including Muslim and Indian units. In the Eastern war zones Hungarian and Yugoslavian troops helped to stem Stalin's Red Army hordes. Rumanians in Waffen SS uniform and those of their own national regiments fought side by side with their European cousins in arms.

Tens of thousands of Italian volunteers formed a wall of steel defiance against the armies of 'the other side of the Jewish coin'. On June 27th 1941 the Spanish Falange Party made their formal request for volunteers to come to Christian Europe's aid. From the capital city of Madrid alone came forward 4,000 volunteers. In all 40,000 Spaniards came forward to don the 4,000 permitted Waffen SS uniforms.

The Dutch Waffen SS

Of their sacrifice Adolf Hitler said: "One cannot imagine more fearless fellows. They scarcely take cover. They flaunt death. I know in any case that our men are always glad to have Spaniards as neighbours in this sector." (The Russian Front). (7).

The Dutch Waffen SS regiments numbering 50,000 volunteers fought with heroic determination along the ramparts of Europe with their equally determined Belgian comrades who had provided 40,000 volunteers.

Hitler Had The Biggest Volunteer Army In The World

From France came 20,000 volunteers to form among others the famed Waffen SS Charlemagne Division, famous for its spirited defence of the German capital when under the Red Army siege. In addition can be numbered the three Finnish Waffen SS divisions whom were regarded as the finest troops on earth. To these brave defenders of Europe can be added the Waffen SS divisions, regiments and units made up of Lithuanian, Estonian and Latvian volunteers.

Divisions were also raised in Denmark.

Fighting alongside them were units made up of Ukrainians, White Russians, Georgians, Armenians, Tartars, Siberians, Kalmucks and others. In fact National Socialist Germany has the honour of having attracted the biggest volunteer army in the history of mankind.

Russia's Nightingale SS Division

This came about when the Nightingale Divisions made up of troops drawn from the collapsing Soviet Union joined forces with the Axis nations to turn their guns on Churchill and Roosevelt's allies, their hated Jewish-Soviet oppressors. It is estimated that the Nightingale Division numbered in excess of 1,000,000 men and women which more than equaled in size the entire strength of the Waffen SS. These and their families were slaughtered by British and Red Army units after the war's end.

Europe's Rebellion Squashed

Alas it was an uneven struggle as the combined armies, air and naval armadas of three empires, in alliance with the powers of darkness pulling the strings of international finance, were brought to bear on rebellious Europe. The hegemony of American/Soviet/British co-operation was imposed upon defeated and exhausted Europe.

Judaism's Revenge

The real bloodletting was to begin as across Europe the victorious mercenary armies of Judah sought revenge. The walls went up, the shackles were ratcheted tighter, the firing squads formed up and before the volleys anyone, civilian or otherwise who had or might rebel against the old order of servitude to Mammon.

Across Soviet and Western Europe the slaughter continued apace. Those alone spared were those who uncompromisingly conceded to slavery, intellectual and moral.

The Fifth Columnists Of Judaism

The fifth columnists of Judaism who could be relied upon to suppress freedom alone were granted privilege and positions of influence. So it is even today.

Germany was to suffer the most. Five million servicemen and women, civilians too, were abducted to the Soviet Union's gulag archipelago. A further four million, mostly civilians, were slaughtered by the Red Army during its terrifying surge across Germany's northern borders. An estimated additional 5,000,000 in what was left of Germany were starved and otherwise maltreated to death after the war's end.

Germany Was Completely Outnumbered

The German nation notwithstanding such gallant and generous support from its neighbours had been fought to a standstill by the British, Soviet and American empires, which in total amounted to 116 times its own national territory.

Every European, every Christian, every person who longs for the true independence of all nations on earth, should stand in homage to those who fought and died against the three-headed hydra of Satan.

Will Europe rise against the Protocols (of the Learned Elders of Zion) again? How delicious the irony to reflect that those protesting today in Genoa, are struggling in the same tentacles as their European predecessors. How greater the ironies if among them are the sons and daughters of those who once formed Jewry's armies that so recently stifled the great European renaissance of the Twentieth Century.

Ludwig Braeckelee Questions Wikipedia

While researching my next article about the Lockerbie bombing, I witnessed an incident that made me wonder whether intelligence agents had infiltrated Wikipedia.

Anyone who knows the universal success of Wikipedia will immediately grasp the importance of the issue. The fact that most Internet search engines, such as Google, give Wikipedia articles top ranking only raises the stakes to a higher level.

Lockerbie And It's Propaganda

In the aftermath of the Lockerbie bombing in 1988, the finger of suspicion quickly pointed to a Syria-based Palestinian organization -- the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine, General Command (PFLP-GC) -- hired by Iran. The terrorist group was created by a former Syrian army captain, Ahmed Jibril, who broke away from the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine (PFLP) in 1968.

Does The Hoax Of Entebbe Flow To Lockerbie

I had learned from a recently released U.S. National Archives file that Shin Bet, the Israeli Security Agency, had infiltrated the PFLP and helped the Entebbe hijackers (Israeli commandos rescued the hostages in Uganda in 1976), so I wanted to learn more about the link between the PFLP and the PFLP-GC. I also wanted to learn more about allegations made by David Colvin, the first secretary of the British Embassy in Paris, concerning the rather bizarre collaboration between the PFLP and the Shin Bet.

Wikipedia Erases The Shin Bet Relationship

As I could not locate the article in which I had learned about the allegations, I consulted the article on the Entebbe Operation on Wikipedia, where I knew the story had been noted. To my surprise, I found that all references to the alleged collaboration between the PFLP and the Shin Bet had been suppressed. Moreover, it is no longer possible to edit the page.

False Flags And Disinformation

Conducting false flag operations and planting disinformation in the mainstream media have long belonged to the craft of the spies. In the months preceding the 1953 overthrow of Iranian Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, U.S. and U.K. intelligence agencies used both techniques abundantly.

A copy of the CIA's secret history of the coup surfaced in 2000. Written in 1954 by the Princeton professor who oversaw the operation, the story reveals that agents from the CIA and SIS (the American and British intelligence services) "directed a campaign of bombings by Iranians posing as members of the Communist Party, and planted articles and editorial cartoons in newspapers."

A Compliant Media Is Needed

The section of the report concerning the media speaks volumes: "The CIA was apparently able to use contacts at the Associated Press to put on the newswire a statement from Tehran about royal decrees that the CIA itself had written. But mostly, the agency relied on less direct means to exploit the media.

"The Iran desk of the State Department was able to place a CIA study in Newsweek, using the normal channel of desk officer to journalist. The article was one of several planted press reports that, when reprinted in Tehran, fed the war of nerves against Iran's prime minister, Mohammed Mossadegh," the document said.

Bush Wants The Pentagon As A Disinformation Source

Half a century later, the technique of disinformation is as important as ever to intelligence agencies. In the aftermath of the attacks of Sept. 11, 2001, the Pentagon set up the Defense Department's Office of Strategic Influence with a mission "to provide news items and false information directly to foreign journalists and others to bolster U.S. policy and the war on terrorism."

The new office attracted so much criticism that the Bush administration eventually shut it down in February 2002. Even defense officials publicly denounced the dangers of such a program, which could have left the department without a shred of credibility.

"We shouldn't be in that business. Leave the propaganda leaks to the CIA, the spooks [secret agents]," a defense official said.

Is Wikipedia Harboring a Secret Agent?

According to clues accumulated by ordinary citizens around the world, it could be that the CIA and other intelligence agencies are riding the information wave and planting disinformation on Wikipedia. If so, tens of thousands of innocent and unwitting citizens around the world are translating and propagating their lies, providing these agencies with a universal news network.

The Salinger Investigation of the Pan Am 103 Bombing

Pierre Salinger was White House press secretary to Presidents John Kennedy and Lyndon Johnson. Salinger also served as U.S. Senator from California and a campaign manager for Robert Kennedy.

But Salinger is also famous for his investigative journalism. Hired by ABC News as its Paris bureau chief in 1978, he became the network's chief European correspondent in 1983.

During his distinguished career, Salinger broke important stories, such as the secret negotiations by the U.S. government with Iran to free American hostages in 1979-80 and the last meeting between U.S. Ambassador April Glaspie and Saddam Hussein in 1990, during which she led the Iraqi president to believe that the U.S. would not react to an invasion of Kuwait.

Salinger Investigates Pan AM 103

Salinger, who was based in London, spent a considerable amount of time and energy investigating the bombing of Pan Am 103 over Lockerbie. He and his collaborator, John Cooley, hired a young graduate, Linda Mack, to help in the investigation.

The Farce In The Netherlands

"I know that these two Libyans had nothing to do with it. I know who did it and I know exactly why it was done," Salinger said during his testimony at the Zeist trial, where one of the Libyans was convicted of murdering the 270 victims.

"That's all? You're not letting me tell the truth. Wait a minute; I know exactly who did it. I know how it was done," Salinger replied to the trial judge, Lord Sutherland, who simply asked him to leave the witness box.

"If you wish to make a point you may do so elsewhere, but I'm afraid you may not do so in this court," Lord Sutherland interrupted.

Salinger's Assistant Is Wikipedia's Primary Editors

Slim Virgin had been voted the most abusive administrator of Wikipedia. She upset so many editors that some of them decided to team up to research her real life identity.

Attempts to track her through Internet technology failed. This is suspicious in itself as the location of normal Internet users can easily be tracked. According to a team member, Slim Virgin "knows her way around the Internet and covered her tracks with care."

Daniel Brandt of the Wikipedia Review and founder of Wikipedia-Watch.org patiently assembled tiny clues about Slim Virgin and posted them on these Web sites. Eventually, two readers identified her. Slim Virgin was no other than Linda Mack, the young graduate Salinger hired.

Salinger's Other Assistant Chimes In

John K. Cooley, the collaborator of Salinger in the Lockerbie investigation, posted the following letter to Brandt on Wikipedia Review, which has been set up to discuss specific editors and editing patterns and general efforts by editors to influence or direct content in ways that might not be in keeping with Wikipedia policy:

She claimed to have lost a friend/lover on pan103 and so was anxious to clear up the mystery. ABC News paid for her travel and expenses as well as a salary'

Linda Mack Pointed Everything At Libya

Once the two Libyan suspects were indicted, she seemed to try to point the investigation in the direction of Qaddafi [Libyan President Col. with Iran the commissioning power. [In 2001, Abdelbaset Ali Mohmed Al Megrahi was convicted of murder and sentenced to life in prison; Lamin Khalifah Fhimah was acquitted.]

The Wikipedia Watch Dog Group

Salinger came to believe that [first name redacted but known to be Linda] was working for [name of intelligence agency redacted but known to be Britain's MI5] and had been from the beginning; assigned genuinely to investigate Pan Am 103, but also to infiltrate and monitor us.

Charles E. Coughlin was an American Catholic priest and a popular radio figure of the 1930s. Coughlin ministered at the Shrine of the Little Flower in Royal Oak, Michigan, from 1926 to 1966, when he retired.

In the first year of the Franklin D. Roosevelt administration, Coughlin supported the Democratic president, but broke with him after a short time. Throughout the 1930s Coughlin used his popular weekly radio program — which averaged 3.5 million listeners every week—and his magazine, Social Justice, to spread his ideas and attack his enemies. From 1934 onward Coughlin's targets included Roosevelt, individual Jewish leaders, and Jewish institutions, all branded as Communists.

Coughlin, a right-wing populist, advocated a form of corporatism influenced by Italian Fascism. In 1934, Coughlin organized the National Union for Social Justice through which he argued that neither capitalism nor democracy had a future in America. In 1938 the National Union developed into the Christian Front which was even more ardent in its support of fascism and became a mouthpiece for Nazi propaganda. Subsequently, as war loomed in Europe, Coughlin supported isolationism, charging that Jewish financiers were secretly behind efforts to involve the United States in the war.

Coughlin believed in the existence of a secret world Jewish conspiracy. In 1938, his magazine Social Justice serialized the discredited Protocols of the Elders of Zion, which Coughlin believed to be accurate. This tsarist forgery purported to be the minutes of a conference of Jewish leaders plotting to take over the world.

Stalin a jew

Coughlin repeatedly used the "Judeo-Bolshevik threat" as a theme, asserting that the entire Soviet leadership, including both Lenin and Joseph Stalin, was Jewish. Coughlin also accused American Jewish financiers, primarily the Wall Street firm of Kuhn-Loeb, of collaboration with the Bolsheviks in their efforts to uproot Christianity in Russia. Publicly proclaiming that he was not an antisemite, Coughlin nevertheless argued that all the ills of modern society were caused by a Communist-Jewish conspiracy.

During the 1930s, Jewish efforts to force Coughlin to tone down his anti-Jewish rhetoric or to get him off the air altogether failed due to his popularity and the support he received from the Bishop of Detroit. Coughlin continued to argue against American participation in World War II even after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor. These arguments led to his undoing.

Jews wanted Coughlin arrested

At the height of his popularity, Coughlin received more mail than President Roosevelt. Indeed, a public opinion poll taken in 1938 showed that 25 percent of those polled supported all or most of Coughlin's ideas. Coughlin was thus the most visible of the American right-wing activists during the 1930s and his antisemitism deeply troubled American Jewry.

Charles Edward Coughlin (October 25, 1891 – October 27, 1979) was a Canadian-born Roman Catholic priest at Royal Oak, Michigan's National Shrine of the Little Flower Church. He was one of the first political leaders to use radio to reach a mass audience, as more than forty million tuned to his weekly broadcasts during the 1930s. This radio program included praises of Hitler and Mussolini[1] and was "a variation of the Fascist agenda applied to American culture." [2] His chief topics were political and economic rather than religious with his slogan of "Social Justice" against the New Deal.

[edit] Early broadcasts and political activism

. He was an early supporter of Roosevelt's New Deal reforms, and coined the phrase "Roosevelt or ruin," which was famous during the early days of the FDR administration as well as "The New Deal is Christ's Deal." [3] However, Coughlin's focus changed during the 1930s as he preached more and more about the negative influence of "international bankers" and of Wall Street on the general welfare and about the need for monetary reform. Coughlin claimed that the Depression was a cash famine, and proposed monetary reforms, including the elimination of the Federal Reserve System, as the solution.

By 1934 Coughlin was perhaps the most prominent Catholic spokesman on political and financial issues, with a radio audience that reached millions of people every week. When he began criticizing the New Deal, Roosevelt sent Joseph P. Kennedy and Frank Murphy, prominent Irish Catholics, to try to tone him down. Ignoring them, Coughlin began denouncing Roosevelt as a tool of Wall Street. He supported Huey Long until Long was killed in 1935, and then supported William Lemke's third party in 1936. Thus, as Coughlin became a bitter opponent of the New Deal, his radio talks escalated in vehemence against Roosevelt, capitalists and Jewish conspirators. Kennedy, who strongly supported the New Deal, warned as early as 1933 that Coughlin was "becoming a very dangerous proposition" as an opponent of Roosevelt and "an out and out demagogue." Kennedy worked with Roosevelt, Bishop Francis Spellman and Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli (the future Pope Pius XII) in a successful effort to get the Vatican to shut Coughlin down in 1936. [4] In 1940-41, Kennedy attacked the isolationism of Coughlin (and aviator Charles Lindbergh). [5]

Coughlin in 1935 proclaimed, "I have dedicated my life to fight against the heinous rottenness of modern capitalism because it robs the laborer of this world's goods. But blow for blow I shall strike against Communism, because it robs us of the next world's happiness." [6] He accused Roosevelt of "leaning toward international socialism or sovietism on the Spanish question." Coughlin founded the National Union for Social Justice, an organization with a strong following among nativists and opponents of the Federal Reserve, especially in the Midwest. As Kazin notes, Coughlinites saw Wall Street and Communism as twin faces of a secular Satan. They defended a "people" who cohered more through piety, economic frustration, and a common dread of powerful, modernizing enemies than through any class identity. [7]

One of Coughlin's campaign slogans was: "Less care for internationalism and more concern for national prosperity" which went well with the isolationist movement in the United States. Coughlin's organization appealed especially to Irish Catholics. In 1936, Coughlin helped found a short-lived political party, the Union Party, which nominated William Lemke for President. Coughlin promised to retire if Lemke did not get 9 million votes, and when he received only 900,000 Coughlin stopped broadcasting briefly. He resumed in 1937.

[edit] Antisemitism

After 1936, Coughlin increasingly expressed sympathy for the fascist policies of Hitler and Mussolini, as an antidote to Bolshevism, though this was before World War II began. His CBS radio broadcasts also became overtly antisemitic. He blamed the Depression on an "international conspiracy of Jewish bankers", and also claimed that Jewish bankers were behind the Russian Revolution. On 27 November 1938, he said "There can be no doubt that the Russian Revolution ... was launched and fomented by distinctively Jewish influence."

He began publication of a newspaper, Social Justice, during this period, in which he printed antisemitic polemics such as The Protocols of the Elders of Zion. Like Joseph Goebbels, Coughlin claimed that Marxist atheism in Europe was a Jewish plot. The 5 December 1938 issue of Social Justice included an article by Coughlin which closely resembled a speech made by Goebbels on 13 September 1935 attacking Jews, atheists and communists, with some sections being copied verbatim by Coughlin from an English translation of the speech published in 1935.

On November 20, 1938, two weeks after Kristallnacht, when Jews across Germany were attacked and killed, and Jewish businesses, homes and synagogues burned, Coughlin blamed the Jewish victims,[8] saying that "Jewish persecution only followed after Christians first were persecuted." After this speech, and as his programs became more antisemitic, some radio stations, including those in New York and Chicago, began refusing to air his speeches without pre-approved scripts; in New York, his programs were cancelled by WINS and WMCA, leaving Coughlin to broadcasting on the Newark part-time station WHBI. This made Coughlin a hero in Nazi Germany, where papers ran headlines like: "America is Not Allowed to Hear the Truth." On December 18, 1938 two thousand of Coughlin's followers marched in New York protesting potential asylum law changes that would allow more Jews (including refugees from Hitler's oppression) into the US, chanting, "Send Jews back where they came from in leaky boats!" and "Wait until Hitler comes over here!" The protests continued for several months. Donald Warren, using information from the FBI and German government archives, has also argued that Coughlin received indirect funding from Nazi Germany during this period.

Additionally, after 1936, Coughlin began supporting an organization called the Christian Front, which claimed him as an inspiration. In January, 1940, the Christian Front was shut down when the FBI discovered the group was arming itself and "planning to murder Jews, communists and a dozen Congressmen"[9] and eventually establish, in J. Edgar Hoover's words, "a dictatorship, similar to the Hitler dictatorship in Germany." Coughlin publicly stated, after the plot was discovered, that he still did not "disassociate himself from the movement," and though he was never linked directly to the plot, his reputation suffered.[10]

[edit] Cancellation of radio show

At its peak in the early 1930s, his radio show was phenomenally popular: his office received up to 80,000 letters per week from listeners, and his listening audience was estimated to be as much as one-third of the nation. Coughlin is often credited as one of the major demagogues of the 20th century for being able to influence politics through broadcasting, without actually holding a political office himself.

Boya (1995) argues that the Catholic Church did not approve of Coughlin. The Vatican, the Apostolic Delegation in Washington, D.C., the archbishop of Cincinnati, and the chairman of the National Catholic Welfare Conference (NCWC) all wanted the priest silenced. They recognized that only Coughlin's superior, Detroit Bishop Michael Gallagher, had the canonical authority to curb him; and Gallagher supported the "Radio Priest." Therefore, due to Gallagher's autonomy and the prospect of Coughlin leading a schism, the Catholic leadership was impotent, a clear example of the limits of ecclesiastical power.

A radio battle was fought in the late 1930s between The Reverend Walton E. Cole, a Unitarian minister in Toledo, Ohio, and Coughlin. Coughlin, became highly controversial when his broadcasts took a political turn toward Nazism and anti-Semitism. Rev. Cole tried to prevail upon the Catholic hierarchy to have his inflammatory broadcasts stopped. Walton Cole's widow, Lorena M. Cole, donated papers to the Claremont School of Theology with personal notes and reminiscences about this tense episode.

Coughlin's populist message was contrary to the agenda of the FDR administration. They decided that although the first amendment protected free speech, it did not necessarily apply to broadcasting, because the radio spectrum was a "limited national resource." New regulations and restrictions were created to force Coughlin off the air. For the first time, operating permits were required of those who were regular radio broadcasters. When Coughlin's permit was denied, he was temporarily silenced.

Unwilling to give up without a fight, Coughlin worked around the restriction by purchasing air time and having his speeches played via record. However, having to buy the time on individual stations seriously reduced his reach and strained his resources. And while Coughlin's voice grew dimmer, the voices of his critics grew louder.

According to Marcus' book, Coughlin's opposition to the repeal of a neutrality-oriented arms-embargo law triggered more successful efforts to force him off the air. In October 1939, one month after the invasion of Poland, the Code Committee of the National Association of Broadcasters (NAB) adopted new rules which placed "rigid limitations on the sale of radio time to spokesman of controversial public issues." Manuscripts were required to be submitted in advance. Radio stations were threatened with the loss of their licenses if they failed to comply. This ruling was clearly aimed at Coughlin due to his leadership in opposition to the growing American involvement in the Second World War. As a result, the September 23, 1939 issue of Social Justice stated that he had been forced from the air "...by those who control circumstances beyond my reach" (pp 173-177).

Coughlin reasoned that although the government had assumed the right to regulate any on-air broadcasts (a right they still maintain to this day), the first amendment still guaranteed and protected freedom of the written press. He could still print his editorials without censorship in his own newspaper, Social Justice. However, FDR's administration stepped in again, this time revoking his mailing privileges and making it impossible for Coughlin to deliver the papers to his readers. He had the right to publish whatever he wanted, but not the right to use the United States Post Office Department to deliver it. The lack of a conduit to his followers seriously reduced his influence, and after the attack on Pearl Harbor and the declaration of war, the peace movement began to sputter out and isolationists like Coughlin were seen as being sympathetic to the enemy. In 1942, a new bishop of Detroit ordered Coughlin to stop his controversial political activities and to return to his duties as a parish priest. Coughlin complied and remained the pastor of the Shrine of the Little Flower until retiring in 1966. He refused numerous interview opportunities, and continued to write pamphlets denouncing Communism until his death at Bloomfield Hills, Michigan in 1979, at the age of 88.

Gilbert's definitive chronicle The Holo caust (1985) was followed by seven more books on this painful subject. His new one is an account of the Night of Broken Glass, which was unleashed against the Jewish communities across Germany on November 10, 1938. The Nazi SS ordered synagogues, Jewish homes, and Jewish shops to be burned to the ground, and Jews fleeing the flames were shot. Jewish property not destroyed by the fire was vandalized, and Jews were randomly arrested. A thousand synagogues were destroyed, their holy objects desecrated.

These acts of intimidation and brutality were carried out ostensibly in rage against the assassination in Paris of a German diplomat by a young relative of a Polish Jewish family forcibly expelled from Germany some weeks earlier. Gilbert begins with the events of the night itself, and then he examines the six years leading up to it, tracing the response of the German Jews, the German government, and the world. A powerful account of the helplessness of the Jews. George Cohen

The Good Father's Grand Poppa Was Jewish

"I'm not here to judge," said Desbois, whose grandfather survived a Nazi camp. For years he cried with his grandfather over the brutality he suffered at Rava Ruska camp in western Ukraine.

Desbois visited in the 1990s and asked the mayor where the Jews were buried. The mayor said he didn't know.

The Witnesses Were Children

He stresses that most of the people whose stories he records were children during the bloodletting. "They were poor. They were afraid." And they stayed afraid for decades.

Soviet leaders barely mentioned the slaughter of Jews.

Witnesses Never Talked

Witnesses to the Holocaust, and even survivors, were considered suspect, with many Jews accused of collaboration with the Nazis. Fear of speaking out lingered even after the Soviet Union collapsed in 1991.

Desbois says his group has surveyed about a third of Ukraine, and found 726 mass graves.

Sarah Novabski Beat Dying Jews With A Shovel!!

Sarah was at the Zhytomyr village massacre. She testified that Nazis murdered all the village Jews, and that she was given a shovel to bury them, but they were still moving. Sarah had to beat them to death with the shovel.

Then my mother came, and asked me questions I wasn't able to answer."

Why Did Jewish-Controlled Soviet Union Keep This Quiet?

In 1942, the Nazis fought Russians to Stalingrad. By January of 1943, the Germans were retreating to Germany. I doubt they had time to scour remote villages for Jewish peasants, and for what? This is just more nonsense using the Bolshevik killing field graves as props.

The Story Of Seth Eisenberg

Seth Eisenberg A Troubled Genius

He has been accused of fraud, sued by his parents and chased by creditors he owed hundreds of thousands of dollars. Now Seth Eisenberg, 45, leads a nearly $5 million, taxpayer-funded program to teach South Floridians to maintain happy and healthy marriages.

Eisenberg's Momma

Eisenberg mother, Lori Gordon, made him CEO of PAIRS International in 1996. She oddly sued her own son over wrongdoing at PAIRS, but says it was an attorney's mistake.

Eisenberg's Rap Sheet

- A 2003 lawsuit filed by a former employer who accused him of fraud, stealing business leads and hacking into company computers.
- A related 2003 arrest on a charge of unlawful computer access that was dropped after he went through a pretrial program for people accused of a first offense.
- A 2001 lawsuit filed by his parents, who tried to evict him from a home they owned. Eisenberg and his parents reached an undisclosed settlement and say they have put the disagreement behind them.
- His bankruptcy, filed in 2005, when he owed creditors more than $350,000.

PAIRS Is Non Profit And Receives Government Money

Eisenberg said he now makes $90,000 a year administering the grant, which PAIRS received as part of a nationwide pro-marriage initiative promoted by President Bush.

Tara Wall, spokeswoman for the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services Administration for Children & Families, which oversees the grant, said that as long as PAIRS is running the marriage programs effectively, the background of its managers and employees are not an issue. 8

Glowing Endorsements From Fellow Zionists

When he is not working with PAIRS, Eisenberg volunteers, coaching youth sports and, in the past, working with homeless children, he said.

The father of Daniel Wultz, a Weston teen killed in a terrorist bombing while on a trip to Israel, called Eisenberg a "miracle maker" who helped his family cope with their grief. Eisenberg also helped them establish a foundation to honor Daniel's memory.

Liars Impugned His Integrity

Rick Case Automotive Enterprises accused Eisenberg of padding his salary by falsely taking credit for sales leads. Police arrested Eisenberg and charged him with unlawful access of a computer system. The report said he hacked into Rick Case's computers after being fired and e-mailed important business information to competitors.

The charge against Eisenberg was dropped after he completed a pretrial intervention program for people accused of a first offense.

A Turbulent Marriage

After attending Indiana University, Eisenberg married and moved to Israel. In 1995, Eisenberg filed for a restraining order against his wife, saying she attacked him in bed. In 1997 they divorced.

Back On Top

In 2005, he declared bankruptcy. He owed his creditors $358,213 — including $53,296 to his mother. Today, Eisenberg is back with PAIRS, overseeing the nearly $5 million program.

So What Is It All About?

It seems to be some sort of counseling program, that lives off corporate, academic and federal grants. The trainers, shrinks, psychologists, or whatever title they have seem to teach sexual relations. It is probably a 2007 version of Roosevelt's New Deal.
