Barry Greenwood's careful, thoughtful, and honest approach has been a touchstone and heartening candle in the dark chaos of contemporary ufology, and I concur 100% in Pierre Lagrange's comments. With his resignation from CAUS, Barry once again raises a standard to which everyone in the field concerned about the absurd excesses plaguing ufology and dedicated to the serious investigation and study of UFO phenomena can repair.

I look forward to the first issue of 'UFO Historical Review' and hope it may grow and evolve into a journal which may become the focus of responsible ufology, a place where those who agree UFO phenomena are important and deserve serious study, regardless of their own particular "take" on the subject, can publish and debate and advance knowledge as true colleagues. As Peirre observed, the gulf between "sane UFO researchers/historians [ufology] and the true believers [UFODumb]" is growing each day. Now's the time for the "sane" to cooperate to assure this process leads to a renaissance of ufology unencumbered by fads and foolishness.

Yours for a renewed ufology,

Subject: Cecilia Dean discusses Crisis

Considered by many to be the driving force behind Stargate, Cecilia Dean has been developing a specialized crisis response training model which can be used to respond to traumatized UFO experiencers (abductees and contactees). This model is being designed to train trainers in crisis response techniques at a time that UFO related information is escalating worldwide and contactee experiences are being reported in greater numbers.

With other volunteers, she has established a Contactee Crisis Hotline at 520-388-8591.

Cecilia will also discuss Stargate's ongoing research and congressional efforts to have open hearings on modern UFO evidence. Join the UFO Forum on Tuesday, February 3rd, 6pm PT. This chat is available at <http://forums.msn.com/UFO>

The Briefing Room chat can be accessed by any IRC client. The chat server name is publicchat.msn.com and the room or channel name is #briefing.

A special audio interview with Cecilia Dean is available via Netshow, on the UFO Forum site.

Yes, that was my point. I was really just throwing out snippets for consideration.

Yes, you definitely have a point here. Presentation was important. Also, it was expected that the panel members would take the intelligence reports made available to them and study them after the meetings. Page indicated that not too much serious effort was made here.

Exactly. Perhaps the witness testimony would not have convinced anyone, however, it might have opened the door to further investigation.

I have been to find nothing more than the information Loren Gross has in his books. However, my search is far from exhaustive or exhausted.

> PRESIDENT AND SECRETARY OF STATE

Possibly, it is still classified in a SCI project. I was rather suprised by the level of classification of routine air defense information. Locations and missions of units were Top Secret.

I would add to what was said about Alvarez. He was a supporter of a strong offensive policy. He was an expert on radar and had looked at a number of problems involving radar. He was a Nobel laureate. He was a complete skeptic concerning UFOs. Given all this, he would be "disinclined" to look closely at any UFO evidence presented. He might look at some slightly interesting reports and consider that they might for the moment be puzzling, but he probably would not recommend a big study to look into the possible "air defense implication." Why open a can of worms? He was a support of Teller after all.

So I am not saying that Alvarez was dead set against UFOs because he supported Teller, and there is some dark conspiracy here. It is more like:

- 1) UFOs are a complete waste.
- 2) Yeah, there might be some momentarily puzzling things here, but nothing to worry about.
- 3) If we open this up to a larger study, it is a waste of resources and who knows where it would lead or how the other side might use it.

Dear Colleagues,

Please be aware that I will be out of the country [UK] from Monday 2 February until Tuesday 17 February, so I will not be in a position to respond to e-mail during that time.

UFO Magazine's offices will of course continue to be manned during my absence.

Hope to meet up with many friends and colleagues in Laughlin, Nevada.

All the best!

More Reactions to Barry Greenwood's CAUS

From: jan@cyberzone.net (Jan Aldrich)

Fwd Date: Tue, 03 Feb 1998 17:10:47 -0500
Subject: More Reactions to Barry Greenwood's CAUS

My understanding is that when Barry Greenwood re-activated the JUST CAUSE newsletter in 1984, CAUS was already an inactive and for all practical purposes abandoned organization since about 1982. Barry then asked Peter Gersten if it was alright to re-activate the newsletter and Gersten had no objections and apparently at the time no interest which has continued until his recent emergence back on the UFO scene some 16 years after 1982....

For the last fourteen years, Greenwood was CAUS. CAUS without Greenwood is just another acronym with no real meaning. The history of accomplishments that are directly attributate to Greenwood and the associates he worked with for the last fourteen years had nothing to do with the CAUS that was abandoned around 1982, nor Gersten himself. The only value of CAUS over the last 14 years was Greenwood and the JUST CAUSE newsletter he edited and published plus the research and findings that Greenwood and his associates uncovered since 1984.

----Ed Stewart

I am sad to hear about Mr. Greenwood's resignation. Unfortunately, I have never talked to him before personally, but please give him my respects. His work along with Mr. Fawcett's work in the book The UFO Cover-up really inspired me to do research of my own with the FOIA, and also to start The Black Vault.

For almost 14 years Greenwood and Fawcett ran CAUS. Peter Gersten retained the title of Director in name only. CAUS policy was set by Greenwood in the newsletter, JUST CAUSE.

Barry Greenwood is well known for his critical, common sense approach to the UFO problem. His no nonsense approach built CAUS' credibility. It was one of the few organization in the US that was not tainted by slipshod thinking.

After over a decade of absence, Peter Gersten returned. Without even consulting Greenwood, Gersten reasserted control and associated the CAUS name with a number of dubious elements. What a sad day for ufology.

Jan L. Aldrich

Greenwood was CAUS and CAUS will mean nothing without Greenwood. I was alraedy envisaging to translate and publish the last issue of Just Cause before the news broke out. This has decided me to pay a special tribute to CAUS' public action and to go through with this publication.

Could you possibly ask Barry if we have permission to proceed and wish him, on our behalf all the success with his new publication we look forward to reading.

You can surely add my name to the people who support Barry. Sorry, but my english is not enough good to make a statement of support. Please add my support to any statment you want. You know already what I think about Barry, you and a few others UFO researchers and historians. Today, Ufology is in its dark years (cultists, believers, conspiracy, ....), you are the keepers of the reliable knowledge, gathering huge amounts of data (which would have been lost without your work), and establishing archives on the UFO phenomena for the future.

I have just read the statement from Barry Greenwood in regard to his resignation from CAUS. In order to maintain his well deserved reputation for integrity and clear-thinking, he had no other choice but to resign. Barry is one of those rarities in the field of "Ufology" these days, a person who adheres to critical thinking, and does not succumb to the rampant idiocy that is crippling this field. He is a far better man than those who succeed him at CAUS. I look forward to his new publication which should be read by all concerned. Barry deserves our total support. Jan, please feel free to print this.

Alright, it's time to mention the possible explanation that remains unspoken until now. Since, according to a recent poll, more Americans think that UFO aliens are more intelligent than we are, by and large, than those who think they're less intelligent, the following explanation needs to be included:

It's in accordance with the aliens' own planning. The aliens in charge wished to get us up to speed on the topic of alien craft in the skies relatively quickly -- to the point where some 50% of the population would realize it was occurring for real. So they could at first permit a lot of daytime sightings in so doing. But they didn't wish to suddenly escalate that up to 80 or 90%, because that would quickly snowball to 100% whereupon even science, the open government and the conservative news media would then realize the alien presence. The extreme panic and chaos that would accompany a premature full disclosure would then suddenly be upon us.

Instead the aliens wished to extend the 50% belief level for a couple generations until we had had ample time to get used to it all, discuss it, hash it out, etc., and wait until the end of the millennium before seeing that full disclosure occurred, since they'd figure that human minds would at that time be most open to change. And they'd also have calculated that by then our sciences, especially astronomy, would have advanced enough to allow the idea of habitable alien planets within the galaxy/universe to become plausible and commonplace. So they couldn't continue with so many daytime sightings.

Since daytime sightings are much more definitive and less ambiguous than nighttime ones, they had to go easy on the daytime ones, after the early '60s or so, in order that the UFO "belief" level not be caused suddenly to rise too far too fast. But they could include more nighttime ones, as these would keep the subject in people's minds without causing the belief level to soar past 50%. I.e., skeptics who couldn't handle it all would still be able to claim deniability, and could say, "If 80% could be due to misidentification, etc., then so could the remaining 20%."

I'd guess that the aliens' hope would be that as the end of the millennium drew near, the knowledgeable 50% would become effective at informing the other 50% of what's been going on UFO-wise, and so cause the coverup to unravel via that means. But if that doesn't seem to be occurring, they could increase the percentage of daytime sightings then in order to get the job done.

Why leave alien intelligence out of the picture?

UFO Research Request

Subject: UFO Research Request

Dear colleague,

If you have already received this request request then please ignore it.

I am attempting to devote as much time as possible in to a long term study of three particular aspects of the UFO subject and would therefore appreciate your assistance with obtaining information.

I am looking for any and all information on the following three topics:

1. UFO sightings, contacts, abductions, etc, etc, by people age 18 or under, from any where in the world.
2. UFO landings reports. Again from any where in the world (no age limit of witnesses).
3. Reports of suspected UFO landings, ie: UFO may have been seen to go to ground behind a hill etc. Again from any where in the world .(No age limit to the witnesses).

It is my eventual hope to study these topics and publish accordingly. If required any such information will be treated in confidence, and credit will be given to individuals, researchers or organisations if the material they have provided ends up in print.

Any assistance with this request would be greatly appreciated and I would be most grateful if you could forward my request on to anyone who you think might be able to help.

Yours Sincerely,

Philip Mantle, co-author 'BEYOND ROSWELL'.

FIREBALL UFOs DOMINATE COLORADO SKIES

Colorado's UFO flap roared into its second week with multiple sightings in the central and southern portions of the state.

On Friday, January 23, 1998, Jim Roberts spotted "an orange or salmon-colored globe" hovering above his ranch in Cotopaxi (population 75), a small town on Colorado Highway 50 about 148 miles (248 kilometers) south of Denver. He reported, "The object was hovering, dimming and brightening, over the western horizon."

Four days later, on Tuesday, January 27, 1998, Marshal Steve Ford was driving in his cruiser near the intersection of Blue River Road and Colorado Highway 9 in Breckenridge (population 1,285) when he spotted "a large fiery object trailed by a plume of smoke."

Breckenridge is in central Colorado approximately 83 miles (133 kilometers) west of Denver.

"It was a fairly large object that was on fire with smoke that was spiraling off the back of it," Ford told the Denver Post. "My first thought was that it was a meteor."

"Ford said the object plummeted more than 1,000 feet. He lost sight of it at tree level."

"'It was a vertical shot toward the ground, and I'm sure it impacted the ground,' Ford said."

"Leigh Pezzicara, a spokeswoman for Breckenridge Ski Resort, and several guests reported seeing a flare in the area of Peaks 5 and 6. 'However, we really can't confirm what it was,' she said."

Rancher "John Fisher was in Breckenridge when he spotted the object. According to Fisher, it created a visible trail that covered a quarter of the sky."

Fisher spotted the object just past noontime as he was driving north on Highway 9, near the Breckenridge Building Center. "Although no one saw where the object landed, Fisher believes it hit near Good Pasture Tarn, just west of Breckenridge." (See the Denver Post for January 28, 1998, "Several Report Seeing Its Blazing Path.")

Eight hours later, "hours after a 'daytime fireball' was spotted streaking earthward near Breckenridge... several people reported seeing another blazing object south of town that night."

"Breckenridge resident John Sperber was driving south on Main Street at about 10:45 p.m. when he and a friend saw a bluish-green fireball streak east to west across the sky."

"'It looked like an egg and was so bright we could see some smoke behind it,' Sperber said."

"The object was so close, Sperber said, it must have landed up on Peak 9, near Beaver Run Resort."

'It turned out to be not as close as we thought it was,'

he said."

"Mike Tukewicz was also driving south into Breckenridge on Colorado (Highway) 9 when he and his wife spotted the fireball. His description of the fiery object was similar to Sperber's, except the Tukewiczes witnessed it at 8:45 p.m." about two hours earlier.

"It was blue and gleaming, with a hint of orange at the rear heading from east to west,' Tukewicz said. 'I must have seen it for three seconds before it either disappeared or headed west.'"

"John and Monique Derwyn also viewed the fireball around 9 p.m. from their home in Summit Cove."

"I thought it might've been an airplane going down, but my husband said, no, it's a meteorite,' Monique Derwyn said."

"All of those who say they witnessed the fiery object were facing almost due south and saw the fireball cross the sky from east to west. Sightings of the fireball began about 8 hours after several witnesses said they saw a fiery object plummet from the sky near Breckenridge around noon Tuesday." (See the Denver Post for January 30, 1998, "Fireball Lights Mountain Skies.")

Meanwhile, in Salida, Colorado (population 4,737), 125 miles (210 kilometers) south of Denver, Laray Edwards, 17, was sitting in the family's computer room at about 9 p.m. "when she viewed a moon-sized ball of green light for a couple of seconds racing at top speed and disappearing to the southwest."

At the same time, Mrs. Kathy Ralter and her four children were driving into Salida when they saw the green UFO "down the road a half-mile to the south... No tail was observed by any of the witnesses. They were extremely excited and some were scared." (Many thanks to Tim Edwards and Christopher O'Brien, author of THE MYSTERIOUS VALLEY, for forwarding these reports.)

DAYLIGHT FIREBALL CRASHES IN SOUTHERN WYOMING

On Tuesday, January 27, 1998, shortly after noontime, local ranchers saw a "brilliant fireball" touch down on the prairie in Hanna, Wyoming, near Rawlins (population 9,830).

Rawlins is a small city on Interstate Highway 80 approximately 156 miles (249 kilometers) west of Cheyenne, the state capital. The area is also about 200 miles (320 kilometers) northwest of Breckenridge, Colorado.

"Carbon County investigators have been unable to find any debris associated with a 'ball of fire' that reportedly crashed to the ground near Hanna."

"The ball of fire was reported after noon Tuesday by the pilot of a passing airliner."

"He said he had seen a ball of fire, which he believed may have been a meteorite or space junk," said Tim Patton of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). "He reported he had gotten some (air) turbulence from the object." (See the Rocky Mountain News for January 28, 1998, "No Debris Found from 'Fire Ball.'")

TRIANGULAR UFO SEEN NEAR ZANESVILLE, OHIO

On Thursday, January 29, 1998, at 7:07 p.m., a Bellville, Ohio woman was driving east on a two-lane road east of Zanesville, Ohio (population 26,788) when she saw "a V-shaped object which had a bright light at the front and center. The rear of the object could not be seen due to the brightness of the twin lights. The witness also observed a 'reddish glow' across a portion of the rear which could have been the edge. The object hovered at a high altitude for 25 minutes."

Zanesville is located on Interstate Highway 70 approximately 55 miles (88 kilometers) east of Columbus, the state capital.

At 7:30 p.m., the woman telephoned a nearby friend, who said she "had also been watching the object 'for a period of time' using binoculars. Through the binoculars, she described smaller objects 'maneuvering' near the large object, seemingly to merge with it."

"A third witness...was also contacted and also described the object. Its size was said to be one mile (1.6 kilometers) across (wide) near the edge of the 'craft' and said to be an estimated six to seven thousand feet (altitude). The soundless object disappeared from sight as clouds moved into the area, hiding it from view."

The case is being investigated by local researcher Jim Donohue, publisher of Equinox newsletter. (Many thanks to Kenneth Young, public information director of Tri-state Advocates for Scientific Knowledge (T.A.S.K.) for this report.) (Editor's Comment: Zanesville, Ohio was the site of a big UFO flap in March 1967.)

SPHERICAL RED UFO SEEN IN VENICE BEACH, FLORIDA

On Friday, January 23, 1998, just after 11:15 p.m., a woman living in Venice Beach, Florida, on the Gulf of Mexico approximately 65 miles (104 kilometers) south of Tampa, spotted a strange spherical red UFO just outside her house.

At first the witness thought it "might be an airplane crashing. She quickly changed her mind when, after falling straight down, the object stopped just above treetop height and hovered. As it came down out of the sky, it left a flame trail behind it. Once it started to hover, the trail disappeared, and 'it also appeared to get wider.' It changed into an elliptical shape."

"It hovered for approximately one minute and then sped off to the south-southwest," over the Gulf of Mexico.

The woman then went to bed. Two hours later, she awoke suddenly and, feeling a little anxious, went outside to check the sky. "The object appeared again and did exactly the same thing it did the first time... Sky condition at the time was very clear." The witness "heard no noise while witnessing the object." (See Filer's Files #4 for 1998. Many thanks to Nancy Dunning and George A. Filer of MUFON for this report.)

CHUPACABRA BLAMED FOR PUERTO RICO CAT MUTILATIONS

On Monday, January 26, 1998, three cats were found dead and mutilated at the home of Melvin Rosado in La Parguera, Puerto Rico. A fourth cat "vanished mysteriously."

Parguera is in the southwest corner of the island, on Highway 119, approximately 55 miles (88 kilometers) southwest of San Juan, P.R.

Police believe the killings occurred during the early morning hours of January 26. "One of the cats had its skin separated by a precise, bloodless incision. Sr. Rosado noticed that the three slain felines had identical incisions on their heads and backs. No one in the Rosado household heard any unusual sounds during the night."

"The cats weren't attacked by dogs," Rosado stated, "because our house has gates, and no dog would be able to reach the cats where they were."

Many people in Puerto Rico believe the Chupacabra (Goatsucker) was responsible for the bizarre slaying. (See the newspaper El Vocero of San Juan, P.R. for January 27, 1998, "El Chupacabra Ahora Chupa Gatos." Many thanks to Scott Corrales, author of CHUPACABRAS AND OTHER MYSTERIES, and Lucy Pla of the Puerto Rican UFO Research Group for this report.)

WEIRD FLASHES LIGHT UP THE SKY OVER IRONWOOD, MICHIGAN

On Thursday, January 15, 1998, at 6:50 p.m., Brian M. was walking home from work in Ironwood, Michigan (population 6,700). "Upon reaching my driveway, I stopped and checked the mailbox. When I looked up again, it seemed that a number of stars had decided to start blinking on and off."

"The blinking appeared random, unsequenced, and each time the objects lit, they moved to a new location and seemed to wander erratically," Brian reported. "Because of the on-off sequence, and large trees near the horizon, I am unable to give an exact count, but I would estimate that there had to have been six UFOs scattered across the southern sky, below 45 degrees and as bright as any other celestial objects in the sky."

He estimated that the UFOs were "tens of miles" to the south, past neighboring Hurley, Wisconsin and the Gile Flowage (lake).

"I walked down the drive to the south side of my house, where it was darkest. The objects continued their flashing and motion. Each time one 'lit,' it was in a slightly new position. At last one worked its way towards the southwest. The rest grouped together within 15 degrees (of arc) and headed into the horizon" near where "Orion was rising in the southeast."

Brian said the flashing "lasted ten minutes," and the UFOs "were as bright as Sirius--magnitude one... as bright as a flashbulb popping. I am an expert skywatcher and this incident was unlike anything I have ever witnessed."

Ironwood is Michigan's westernmost city, located in the Upper Peninsula (U.P.) on U.S. Route 2, approximately 605 miles (968 kilometers) northwest of Detroit. (Email Interview)

PURPLE SKY FLASH CAUSES BLACKOUT IN KENTUCKY

On Tuesday, January 27, 1998, at 6:40 p.m., two young men driving in a pickup truck on Nicholasville Road in Lexington, Kentucky (population 225,336) saw a strange "purple flash" light up the sky.

For five minutes, electricity in Fayette Mall and in homes near the Jessamine County line between Highway 27 and Clay Mills Road "was flashing on and off and finally went off" completely after the mysterious flash.

A power outage was also reported at the Southpoint subdivision, located between Fayette Mall and Nicholasville.

The young men "were coming home about 6:40 p.m. when a purple flash above the clouds happened. His friend's truck lost its power, and a 'neon thing' he has on his gearshift. It didn't glow any more during the flash. After the flash went away, he tried to get power back, and the electricity came back on."

Lexington is in north central Kentucky on Highways 27 and 68 approximately 79 miles (126 kilometers) of Louisville. (Many thanks to Steve Wilson Sr. for this report.)

(Editor's Comment: Those aliens had better not mess with the beer cooler or the jukebox at my favorite roadhouse, the Original Dew Drop Inn on Highway 22 in Brooksville, Kentucky. Or there's going to be hell to pay!)

BROWN GOOP FALLS ON PENNSYLVANIA HOME

On Sunday afternoon, January 18, 1998, hundreds of gallons of a weird brown wax-like substance fell on the home of the Snell family in Paradise Township, not far from York, Pennsylvania (population 42,192)

"A mysterious brown substance fell from the sky...It splattered the house, the roof, the windows, the barn, the stone driveway."

"Police can't figure out what it is. Neither can anyone else. It's the color of mud but it's not grainy. An insurance adjuster has ordered tests on the substance."

Rose Snell discovered the weird substance when she returned home at 7:30 p.m.

"It's mystifying," Snell kept saying as she walked around her house." She said "she noticed the brown splash on her door as she entered the house."

"Great, she thought, I bet those boys were having a mud battle."

"Her 18-year-old son, Marc, had been hanging out with several of his friends during the day. She was prepared to have a few words with him as he walked in the door."

(Editor's Comment: Isn't it strange how the teenagers get blamed every time a weird event occurs?)

"But his comment took her by surprise.

'What's going on here?' Marc asked."

"Marc said he returned home about 6 p.m.

He, too, noticed the brown splashes on the door."

Marc Snell also found brown splashes on his car. "He tried to wash them off his windshield with cleaning fluid. They were hard to remove."

"He said, 'Mom, it's like paste or wax on there.'"

The Snells called the Northern York County Regional Police, who dispatched a cruiser to the scene. When the trooper switched on his heavy-duty flashlight, "that's when they realized that the brown splashes covered everything on her property."

"'It's everywhere,' Snell said."

"'It appears as though it came from the sky,' Northern Regional Police Lt. Mark Bentzel said."

(See the York, Pennsylvania Daily Record for January 21, 1998, "What's My Slime?" Many thanks to Rudy Alfano and Errol Bruce-Knapp for this news story.)

(Editor's Comment: Charles Fort would have had a field day with this case.)

UFO HOVERS OFFSHORE NEAR MADEIRA ISLAND

On New Year's Eve, December 31, 1997, reporter Cristina Marto de Pimental and her husband were at a seaside party in Funchal, a port city on the south shore of Madeira island, a Portuguese territory in the Atlantic Ocean 912 kilometers (570 miles) east of Morocco.

"We were watching the New Year's festivities, all the fireworks in the sky," she reported. Then several people at the party called her attention to "a red and motionless light above Funchal."

"The OVNI (Portuguese acronym for UFO) suddenly made a very tight circle, returned to its initial position, and, a few seconds later, it accelerated at great speed in a vertical direction."

She added that a British couple at the festival videotaped the UFO as it hovered.

Sra. Marto de Pimental telephoned the Fuerzas Aereas Portugueses (FAP) headquarters in Lisboa the next day. The Portuguese air force told her that they'd had no flights, neither planes nor helicopters, over Madeira that night. (See Jornal do Madeira for January 2, 1998. Muito obrigado a Bruni Barros para eso caso.)

BLACK HELICOPTER SPIES ON DUTCH UFOLOGISTS

Dutch ufologist Geert van Haalem announced his resignation from UFOIA recently, claiming that he'd been under surveillance lately by unidentified government agents and a black helicopter.

Van Haalem conducted an investigation into repeated UFO sightings in and around Gorinchem, a town in the Netherlands 77 kilometers (48 miles) south of Amsterdam.

Following the most recent UFO sighting in late December 1997, van Haalem reported, "I have been the subject of overt harassment and mind-control techniques."

"One day, as I was leaving home (on van Beethovenstraat in Gorinchem--J.T.), I saw two people...standing on a little bridge with a clear view of my street. It was a man and a woman. The man was fishing with a brand-new fishing rod, and the woman was accompanying him. It was clearly not a good day to fish because it was rather cold. The woman was very large and muscular, and the man was small and thin."

Van Haalem told a fellow researcher about the couple and was asked if he had ever seen a black helicopter. His answer was no.

"The next day, I was in town (Gorinchem) and a black helicopter flew right overhead," he reported, adding that it might have been a SIGINT (Signals Intelligence) chopper. "This is how we believe they've been tapping our phones."

At any rate, van Haalem reportedly told UFOIA associates that he is through with the UFO business. (Many thanks to Danielle Seijmonsbergen for this report.)

JAPANESE PORT INVADED BY WILD MONKEYS

On Sunday morning, January 28, 1998, "a pack of wild monkeys swooped down and attacked passersby" in the seaside town of Ito, Shizuoka prefecture, in Japan.

Six monkeys injured 26 people during the morning attack. "The monkeys appeared in gardens and streets, biting people in the back and legs."

"Local authorities using loudspeakers warned residents to beware of the monkeys as the town organized a hunt for them. 'The people here are scared to death,' an official said."

"The injuries were slight, and the victims received injections for rabies after the waves of attacks by six monkeys between Sunday morning and Monday evening (January 26, 1998)."

"'This is the first time this has ever happened, and we're not sure why it happened,' the official said. 'We've had a lot of snow in the mountains (just west of Ito--J.T.) the past couple of weeks, so maybe the monkeys were looking for food below.'"

Ito is located on the western shore of Sagami Bay approximately 120 kilometers (75 miles) southwest of Tokyo.

(See the New York Daily News for January 28, 1998, "Wild Monkeys Go Ape in Japan," page 26.)

A strange week, eh? And not only for President William Jefferson Clinton of the USA. Our regular features, from the UFO Files and Fun UFO Websites will be back next week. I figured that you readers wanted ALL the dish on this week's uncanny sightings and events.

So join us next Sunday for more saucer news from "the paper that goes home--UFO ROUNDUP." See you then!

Sounds good, but impractical. Equal time provisions were written specifically to provide equal access for political viewpoints during an election. While networks strive to provide equal time, this is done for their affiliates, who are actually covered by the regulations. Networks, like cable channels, are not federally regulated entities, per se.

There is a lot of nonsense on television, and most of it we simply ignore. If Stanton (or any other participants) believes that their comments have been missused, he could sue to have them removed. But, I would suspect that the best course of action would be to ignore the show, which is all it's really worth.

UNITED KINGDOM UFO NETWORK

Saturday 7th February 1998

United Kingdom UFO Network special guest:

Steuart Campbell

Steuart is a respected UFO investigator and author. In his book "The UFO Mystery Solved" he offers the hypothesis that many UFOs are not physical 'things' in the sky, but are in fact mirages of astronomical objects.

During the 1980s when he was investigating many UFO sightings he found that a small percentage of reports were actually mis-identified stars or planets. Other witnesses reported seeing strange objects in parts of the sky when a planet or bright star should have been visible. Steuart realised that something strange was happening to the image of the astronomical object. Something appeared to be enlarging and distorting the image. The answer Steuart gives is that this process is a temperature inversion that causes mirages.

Steuart will be answering your questions live in a moderated meeting taking place at 11pm UK time on Saturday 7th February 1998.

Tim Good 'Alien Base' - News of the World article

Subject: Tim Good 'Alien Base' - News of the World article

Article published in THE NEWS OF THE WORLD Sunday 1st Feb 1998

New book claims ETs are secretly among us.....
By ROY STOCKOILL

THAT neighbour you always thought was weird, the barman at your local who makes you uneasy, the boss who seems to be on another planet... it could be they're more spaced out than you feared. In his astonishing new book, Alien Base, best selling UFO expert Timothy Good demonstrates that extraterrestrials are living among us in secret bases all over Earth including Britain. Some of his chilling eye-witness accounts, documented over 40 years, indicate they are even able to take on human form.

Today we present his evidence. But remember, the truth isn't necessarily out there it might be right under your nose!

IT was a journey that newsagent Hubert Lewis had made hundreds of times before.

Dawn had yet to break over the deserted country lane as he wearily powered his old bicycle through the wind and rain.

All he could think of was getting to the Shropshire town of Church Stretton to collect the newspapers waiting there for him and getting home as quickly as possible.

At first Lewis barely noticed the tall figure standing in the road ahead. But a second glance brought him stumbling to a halt-for hovering in the sky, to the right of the stranger, was a circular object, 60 to 100ft across.

The panicking newsagent cried out, demanding to know who or what was there. But the tall figure answered him, saying there was "no need to be alarmed".

Lewis recalled: "My visitor spoke quite clear English. He told me I had nothing to fear from the future.

"He knew of my troubles and mentioned names of people I had known. He wished me well-then vanished."

Thirty minutes had slipped by-and all the time the circular object had rotated above, whistling softly.

A year or so later, in the summer of 1958, the Shropshire newsagent was confronted by another of the strange beings-this time in a field.

The second stranger, says Lewis- who had taken on the appearance of a human male-claimed he was from Venus and that other aliens from his planet were living among us.

It was arranged that Lewis would take the train to London to meet the alien, who brought with him a second visitor, a female.

They were "well dressed, dark, with a likeness to Continentals." They went to Hyde Park and strolled for an hour by the Serpentine, then drove to Wanstead Flats.

The three then went to a nearby cafe where the couple from Outer Space had tea and sandwiches.

The three had further meetings over the next week before the aliens saw him off back to Shropshire.

Lewis said: "There is much that I learned. Many spacecraft land on Earth. Many aliens are living among us-one can't tell the difference."

Author Good agrees, saying: "The evidence suggests that several extraterrestrial races have established underground and undersea bases on Earth, perhaps as a centre of operations within the solar system."

He tells how a Sheffield-based market researcher, Joelle, witnessed an alien known to her as Mark land in his spaceship in the Derbyshire Peak District in 1963.

Over 15 months Joelle had several meetings with Mark and another alien, Val. They said they were from another solar system, but that their people had bases in South America, Australia and the Soviet Union.

"Once they asked her to translate a Russian manuscript at the British Museum," Good says.

"She cooked meals for them at her London flat. Both Mark and Val had perfect manners, enjoyed wine and had a great sense of humour."

In 1976 Jan Siedlecki witnessed a saucer-shaped craft land in Leeds.

Two 4ft humanoid figures appeared. One said in English: "we apologise for the intrusion." Siedlecki says they showed him over the spaceship.

Aliens were gathered around a circular pool containing a black, bubbling, oil-like substance from which flashes of red light darted in the air.

A former equerry to the Queen says he had a two-hour conversation with an alien called Janus in 1954.

The extraterrestrial made a request that stunned Air Marshal Sir Peter Horsley-he wanted to meet the Duke of Edinburgh. The former Deputy Commander-in-Chief of Strike Command, now in his seventies, says he ruled out such a meeting for security reasons.

One alien's visit to Earth ended when he was beaten to death with a stick by a teenage boy, according to a report from Puerto Rico.

Chino Zayas came across a group of creatures going into a cave in mountains behind Santiago in 1980.

Sergeant Benjamin Morales of Salinas police said: "It had a head too large for its body and pointy little ears. Its skin was greyish green.

Preserved.....

Chemistry professor Calixto Perez, who examined the body, said: "In my opinion it was extraterrestrial."

The creature was preserved in a glass jar at the Zayas home. One day men claiming to be from the US space agency NASA called and took it away, say the family.

Puerto Rico has long been regarded as a possible site for an alien base. For four decades there have been reports of disc-shaped spacecraft.

But sightings literally cover the globe. In Italy, photographer Filiberto Caponi claims to have met an alien creature several times outside his house in Abruzzo. He captured it on Polaroid film in 1993.

Another absolutely amazing post from Stephen Bassett. Please do visit Bassett's 'People' page at UFOmind and especially check out this item:

<http://www.ufomind.com/people/b/bassett/caus-reply.txt>

Now you will find that in this current post and the posting on Bassett's page not *once* does Bassett mention Barry Greenwood by name. It strikes one as rather amazing that you can talk about CAUS for the last 14 years and say nothing about Barry Greenwood.

Please read on:

Let us stipulate, for the moment at least, that Bassett is an innocent if gullible and naive person.

Bassett says in his 'People' page at UFOmind missive:

"I had been talking with Larry Bryant and Peter Gersten about involvement with CAUS."

It does not occur to Bassett to take out a membership to CAUS if he wants to become involved. Possibly, if he did, he would have learned what the policies were and who set them for the last 14 years.

When Larry Fawcett retired Greenwood announced, that all statements on CAUS policy came from him. Now Bassett may not have known that since he was not a member. However, both Bryant and Gersten knew of Greenwood's statement. They were on the CAUS subscriber list. They have not made any decisions or policies for nearly 14 years. They knew of Greenwood statements and policies and knew that Barry would not tolerate Bassett's letter or any links with the organizations and some of the individuals listed therein.

In this sorted business Robert Bletchman's role is probably the worst. Perhaps sometime in the past--over 16 years ago-- he may have been a CAUS official. He was not even a member now. Recently, in the past few years he had been hostile to both Greenwood and CAUS. He may have told the naive and gullible Stephn Bassett that he was a Director of CAUS, but on the telephone to me, Bletchman declared that he "was loosely connected to CAUS." He also had some choice words about Gersten, but that is another story.

Bletchman may have been knighted by Peter Gersten as a CAUS official retroactive to 1 January 1998, but he certainly had not been one throughout Greenwood's 14 year tenure.

Bassett, Bletchman, or Gersten did not attempt to contact Greenwood concerning this letter. It is indeed unfortunate in these days that the telephone is difficult for some people to use. Gersten had been in touch with Greenwood prior to the letter surfacing, but mentioned nothing about his connection with Bassett.

When I transmitted Greenwood's answer to the Bassett letter,

<http://www.ufomind.com/ufo/updates/1998/jan/m07-025.shtml>

I coordinated my reply with Gersten:

Subject: Re: CSETI PETITION
Date: Wed, 7 Jan 1998 18:09:14 EST
From: UFOLAWYER1 <UFOLAWYER1@aol.com>
Organization: AOL (<http://www.aol.com>)
To: jan@cyberzone.net

Jan,

Excellant response to the Petition. I am impressed. My position and the same for CAUS, is that we are against all secrecy... whether created by the government or private, self-proclaimed experts in the field. Maybe one day we will have the opportunity to meet. I still feel that 1975 was an extraordinary year but do not have the time presently to detail it for you. Can you tell me about yourself?

Peter

Gersten professed support of Greenwood and his fromer statements and policies while continuing to align himself with the very people who Greenwood had tried to disassociate from CAUS.

The innocent naive and gullible Stephen Bassett tells us in his UFOmind post:

"When I learned of the problem with CAUS, I took immediate steps to correct the matter and contacted Aldrich. He was not willing to communicate."

However, in my answer to his E-mail on 10 January 1998 we find a different story (B for Bassett, A for Aldrich):

B: I do apologize for this. I also apologize for hanging up on you - I did not understand the source for your frustration.

A: The source of my frustration came from my preception that you were playing with me. You represented that you did not know what was on your website or in your letter. However, talking to people in the Washington, D. C. area, I find they speak highly of you. Although quite frankly, they think your efforts in the UFO field demonstrate great naivite.

B: Peter has stated the CAUS position clearly. Let's agree to disagree and move forward.

A: There is one final item. You are not a member of CAUS or an official. However, Glenn Campbell's Ufomind website has you connected with CAUS.

Please inform Glenn that this linkage is incorrect.

Thank you.

After this communication, Bassett can not claim to be so innocent. He was put on notice that as far as Greenwood was concerned, Greenwood did not consider him a member of CAUS or to have any connection with CAUS and that he should inform Glenn Campbell of such. Bassett did not answer my E-mail. Nor did Gersten contact anyone to inform them of Bassett's new status until after I lodged a complaint with Glenn Campbell after almost a week of inaction on Bassett's part.

My specuation is that Gersten and Bassett wanted to keep Greenwood and myself in the dark on their true intentions for as long as possible.

More details on this are covered by Greenwood in his resignation statement:

<http://www.ufomind.com/ufo/updates/1998/jan/m30-028.shtml>

To sum up:

Greenwood had been the sole voice of CAUS for 14 years.

Bassett's fantasy world to the contrary, only Fawcett and Greenwood were active officials of CAUS since 1984.

Bryant, Gersten, and Bletchman were well aware of this.

The attempt to usurp the hard won reputation for credibility that Greenwood had built during the last 14 years was not one giant misunderstanding, but a calculated, sorted affair. Perhaps Bassett did not understand that from the beginning, but he should now.

I certainly do not wish to be associate with CAUS longer, nor its new fringe policies nor its new officials.

According to Jerome Clark's The UFO Encyclopedia, Vol.2, pgs.378-379, the battle took place on February 25, 1942 between 2:25 a.m. to 4:14 a.m. The Los Angeles Times wrote articles on Feb. 26 & 27, and the San Francisco Chronicle on Feb 26. Clark also quotes other sources.

Some scientists don't shut eyes to the 'unknowable'
Researchers attempting to confront the limits to human wisdom

By SARAH BOXER
New York Times

Many scientists are not fond of the idea that there are things in the universe beyond their grasp.

They do not even like the word "unknowable" and prefer to use the term "intractable" instead. They consider the idea of unknowability an admission of defeat or an invitation for an attack on science.

Recently, though, some scientists have made unknowability their business. Last summer the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation gave some $1.5 million in grants to researchers in different fields -- economics, oceanography, historical linguistics, computer science, population genetics, cell biology, anthropology and the history of science -- to take stock of what is known, unknown and unknowable.

"We are all taught what is known, but we rarely learn about what is not known, and we almost never learn about the unknowable," Ralph Gomory, the president of the Sloan Foundation, wrote in Scientific American in 1995. "Because of such lessons, we grow up thinking more is known than actually is," and we do not recognize the unknowables for what they are.

That is why the average gambler always loses to the average casino owner. "The gambler attempts to predict the individual and unpredictable spins of the roulette wheel," Gomory wrote, while "the owner concerns himself with the quite predictable average outcome."

This is not the first time the depths of unknowability have been plumbed. As John Barrow, an astronomy professor at the University of Sussex in England, writes in Impossibility: The Limits of Science and the Science of Limits (Oxford, coming in April), Heisenberg's uncertainty principle showed that you cannot simultaneously know the position and momentum of a subatomic particle.

Einstein's cosmic speed limit put a cap on the transmission of information in the universe. And Goedel's theorem proved that any mathematical system that is powerful enough to be interesting will contain statements that cannot be proved true or false inside that system.

More recently, chaos theorists have looked at phenomena like dripping faucets and long-term weather patterns, and shown how the tiny inevitable fluctuations in those chaotic systems quickly snowball in unpredictable ways. Complexity theorists have shown that complicated systems, like embryos and economies, are more than the sum of their parts.

Now unknowability itself seems to be coming of age, or at least coming into some money.

So what is an example of something unknowable? Take the diet of a given person living in a village in the year 1300. "You may know on average what his diet was," said Jesse Ausubel, the program officer of the Sloan Foundation. "But you cannot say what he ate on Dec. 15, 1300."

The same goes for future climates. You may be able to say what the average temperature of the Earth's atmosphere will be in 2030, but you cannot know what it will be in New York City.

The study of unknowability in each discipline offers a glimpse of how different scientists approach the boundaries of their own fields.

In anthropology, the limits to knowledge can be determined by practical barriers. If a group of people refuses to perform a ritual while an outsider is watching, that ritual is, in a sense, unknowable. In science history, the knowledge about a problem can be limited by illegible handwriting or some other fluke.

No one will ever know, for example, exactly how Fermat proved his last theorem because, by his own admission, the margin of his page was "too narrow to contain" the solution.

In ecology, unknowability is a problem of scale. If, for example, one wants to see the effect of environmental changes on a forest, one literally has a choice between looking at the forest and looking at the trees.

Simon Levin, a biologist at Princeton University who has received part of the Sloan's unknowability grant, said that when you look at the climate's effect on the forest, "not every detail of every tree is important." What the study of unknowability can help reveal is how much detail you can leave out about individual trees without compromising your knowledge of the whole forest.

Or say you are starting with a single tree. As Levin points out, each tree will react differently to environmental changes and to other trees, and that tree's reaction in turn will have an effect on the climate. So how much can you extrapolate from that one tree about the whole forest?

When it comes to unknowability in historical linguistics, time is the enemy. To name the unknowable is to name a date beyond which the past is irretrievably lost.

According to Colin Renfrew, an archaeologist at Cambridge University who is another recipient of a Sloan grant, the first direct evidence of language is around 3000 B.C., because that is when writing began, in the Near East. So if you want to see what language was like before then, you run up against the boundary of what is knowable and not knowable.

By comparing contemporary Indo-European languages (including English, Spanish, French and German), linguists have reconstructed what they call proto-Indo-European, a precursor to all Indo-European languages, Renfrew said. That takes us back to 5,000 years ago.

But to push back the date further requires help from other fields. For example, Renfrew said, we know that languages spread when populations shift. That means archaeology should say something about language. And DNA studies tell us a great deal about how populations are related, going back some 30,000 years.

The problem is, "it is difficult to correlate data from different fields," Renfrew said. "There is always the possibility of dubious interpretations," which gets more and more likely the further back in time you go. That's why most linguists accept that we can see back at least 5,000 years, but few think we can detect the echoes of a hypothetical first language some 80,000 years ago.

>attack. Truman wrote:

<SNIP valuable comments about war jitters regarding the Korean war and the possibility of direct Russian attack, and the implications of "the bomb.">

Truman wrote in his memoirs of the Dec 6 alert:

"Shortly before we went into that morning meeting, Under Secretary Lovett called from the Pentagon, reporting that the radar screens of some air defense installations in the Far North were reporting large formations of unidentified planes approaching. Fighter planes were sent up to reconnoiter and alerts were flashed to air centers in New England and beyond.
But about an hour later -- while I was meeting with Attlee -- Lovett notified me that the report had been in error. Some unusual disturbance in the Arctic atmosphere had thrown the radar off."

If the Dec. 6 event was indeed caused by an "atmospheric disturbance," then why the CIC high alert two days later for any information on flying saucers?

Was Truman really told it was atmospheric, or was he really told that it wasn't Soviet bombers (the primary concern), but flying saucers instead? It's impossible to know from the scant information that we have.

True it is: we don't have enough information. But what there is paints a picture of confusion:

(a) Truman, in his memoirs, says Lovett (Under Sec of Def. under George Marshall, SECDEF) told him it was atmospheric disturbance (this also appears in the minutes of the meeting)

(b) Secretary of State Den Acheson was told of the alert by Lovett at about 10:30 AM. Acheson wrote: "Our early warning radar in Canada had picked up formations of unidentified objects, presumably aircraft, headed on a southeast course that would bring them over Washington in two or three hours."

An hour later, during which time Acheson went to the White House, "Lovett told us the unidentified objects had disappeared. His guess was that they had been geese."

(c) International News Service carried a report of the event. After reporting on the alert and scramble. INS wrote, "Later a spokesman for the Air Force stated that interceptor aircraft had been dispatched and that the object in question had been identified shortly thereafter as a North American C-47 which was approaching the continent from Goose Bay..."

(d) A memorandum written by AF Col. Charles Winkle on Dec 6 (afternoon?) entitled "air alert 1030 hours" says that the Continental Air Command Air Defense Controller ...at 1030 hours...(reported) a number of unidentified aircraft.. approaching the northeast ...and there was no reason to believe they were friendly." At 1040 hours the information was "further amplified" by radar contact which showed 40 aircraft in flight at 32,000 feet near Limestone, Maine.

The alert procedure went into effect and the President was notified. At 11:04 hours the radar track had "faded out and it appeared that the flight as originally identified is a friendly flight."

"Atmospheric? Geese? One C-47? A friendly flight? Wait a minute. You can bet that the initial 1030 detection was by radar, probably at a distance of about 200 miles (typical for search radar even in those days). Assuming the detection was made by "lashup" radar at Limestone, Maine, then if there were 40 "aircraft" in the vicinity of Limestone only 10 minutes later they must have traveled nearly 200 miles in 10 minutes.... or nearly 600 mph.... FAST for those days.

Also, you can bet that contact signals were repeatedly sent from the ground to these aircraft. Had they been friendly they would have responded. They certainly weren't Russian bombers.... so WHAT WERE THEY?

>Or maybe something else was happening to trigger the Dec. 8

NOTE: This is the "Col Willingham" report made first in the late 1970's. However, Willingham never specified said Dec. 6.

This was a date invented by someone (Todd Zechel? Kevin Randle?). Willingham only said 1948-49, perhaps 1950. HE couldn't pin down a date. This is being checked on.

Yes, there were a lot of Oak Ridge sightings... reported to the Atomic Energy Commission, many involving security guards. This is all in a chapter in my FBI book because these were also reported to the FBI.

Incidentally, the Oak Ridge Security people did not believe the Air Force blanket explanations of their sightings.
No surprise there!

Interview with Dan Sherman

From: georgina@easynet.co.uk [Georgina Bruni]

Subject: Interview with Dan Sherman

Interview with Dan Sherman

Project Preserve Destiny - Alien Implants

Dan Sherman went into the United States Air Force like most other American guys, extremely proud to serve his country and its well trained sophisticated military. During his twelve years in service he was recognised for heroism, and was decorated with the AF Commendation Medal, as well as the AF Achievement Medal with two oakleaf clusters. He also received the Outstanding Unit Award with three oakleaf clusters and was honoured for service in the Persian Gulf war.

Everything appeared to be going well for Sergeant Sherman until he was involuntarily recruited into a special programme called "Project Preserve Destiny" (PPD), an ABOVE BLACK programme which would eventually change his life and result in him leaving the USAF for which he was so dedicated.

Sergeant Sherman began his training for (PPD) at the National Security Agency (NSA) whilst at the same time training for a career in ELINT, a highly sensitive project. The ELINT training, although a genuine programme, was to act as a cover for his participation in "Project Preserve Destiny".

Arriving at the NSA he was told the following startling news by an Air Force Captain. "To put it bluntly, Sergeant Sherman, in the summer of 1960 your mother was visited by what the world commonly refers to as aliens. Random tests were being conducted on the general populace at the time to determine compatibility." The Captain explained that whilst he (Sherman) was still in his mother's womb, he had been implanted to enable him to make contact with aliens through "intuitive communications". He was also told that the US government had been in contact with aliens since 1947. Needless to say, Sherman was shocked, but relieved to hear that he was 100% human and not part alien. So began three years with the (PPD) programme and his communication with an alien species.

Sherman's story is as fascinating as they come, and one can't help but sit back in amazement as you learn what allegedly are the facts of a covert operation so secret it goes even beyond the "Black Projects", and is referred to as "Grey Matter" or "Slant Missions". According to Sherman, the alien cover-up is buried deep within the "Onion Effect" - so many layers, and with every alien project - there is a black project hiding it. After he began receiving disturbing abduction data, realising that alien abductions were still ongoing, he decided to take drastic measures to obtain a discharge from the USAF and go public in the hopes that other insiders will follow in his footsteps.

Exclusive Interview with Dan Sherman
- Georgina Bruni for Sightings Magazine

GB: Mr Sherman thank you for taking the time to do this interview. You are the author of "ABOVE BLACK - Project Preserve Destiny" and I understand the book is about your involvement in a Air Force/Government covert operation relating to an alien (ET) project. Can you offer some details about your work in this project and what it entailed?

DS: I served as an Intuitive Communicator for the National Security Agency while stationed at two separate locations as a member of the US Air Force intelligence community. My job was to maintain intuitive communications with my alien contact and report the results of each contact. My intuitive abilities were a result of what is referred to in grey circles as "genetic management", procedures conducted while I was still in the womb.

GB: You claim that whilst in your mother's womb you were given certain abilities which allowed you to communicate with ET's. Can you explain this, and how did your superiors know that you had this ability which resulted in you being selected for the project?

DS: As it was explained to me, Project Preserve Destiny began in 1960. This was/is a project with the goal of genetically manipulating human offspring so they would have the ability to communicate with this alien species. It is a joint effort (alien/human) in cooperation with one another. I am unclear as to the real reasons for this cooperation. I was told it was to provide an ability to carry on high level communications during an impending electromagnetic communication outage on a worldwide basis subsequent to a major catastrophe in the future.

GB: You mentioned that the ET's were unemotional. Do you mean that they are not ruled by emotions like we appear to be?

DS: Yes. I have touched on this in the book, and many people have written since the book came out wanting to know more about this. Our communications were extremely vibrant, nothing like vocal language. During the communication I could always sense peripheral things surrounding the communication. This is very difficult to explain. I sensed a great deal of emotion but not the demonstrative type we are all so familiar with as humans.

GB: I understand that you haven't actually met an ET in physical form, but do you know what the ETs look like?

DS: No, I have never physically seen one. My idea of what they look like is the same as everyone else's... based on the popular culture icon of the big head, big eyes and pointed chin.

GB: During the time you were with "Project Preserve Destiny" did you ever hear of any British or European involvement in the UFO/Alien cover-up?

DS: During our communications I attempted to bring up the subject of other nations and their involvement. I cannot remember the exact moment I came to this realisation but my impression over time was that there were other nations involved as well. I'm not sure the criteria for this involvement but my thoughts are that the nations involved are close allies of the US. Australia, UK, Canada and perhaps Japan in a limited way. I also believe this based on other information I know not directly related to PPD but crucial to the overall picture nonetheless.

GB: I believe you held some top security clearances, can you name some of these?

DS: The security clearances I held all related to my work with Black projects which I am not at liberty to expound upon. In reading my book you will realize how much of a tightrope I am walking relating to the other missions (highly classified, and rightfully so) and how I have tried to stay away from those topics. My clearances had nothing to do with PPD. In order to hide the existence of PPD they cloak it with other projects of which are highly classified unto themselves... the Black ones. Hence the name "Above Black." An obvious play on words a.k.a. Timothy Good's book "Above Top Secret."

GB: Why did you leave the project and the Air Force?

DS: This is a question that leads to a myriad of answers. The straw that broke the camel's back, however, surrounded the communications that I had started to receive from my second alien contact. The comms appeared to be abduction data. It was unsettling to me to have to report things such as "Potentiality for Recall" and "Residual Pain Levels." I asked to be relieved of my duties regarding PPD, was told no, in no uncertain terms, which led to my retaliation by resorting to drastic measures in attempting to receive a discharge. This is described in more depth in the book.

GB: Many are convinced that world governments are releasing information through various inside sources: have you been briefed in any way to play a part in this, or was the choice to go public wholly your own, and if so, why?

DS: This may be true. Disinformation is very important when attempting to hide the truth. However, in my case, there are a few people in the inner circles of the NSA, NRO and USAF that are not happy. My experience is true and untainted with disinformation. I have decided to tell for many reasons one of them being, I am curious to know more that what was told to me. If I come forward, then others may as well. Sooner or later, someone will be able to put the pieces of the puzzle together and get a much clearer picture of what is going on. My part of the puzzle is small compared to what is left unseen and unexplored.

GB: Do you think that the leaders, i.e. Clinton, Blair, are familiar with the UFO/ET cover-up or are they being kept out of the loop?

DS: I don't believe the current leadership in either country knows the full story. Perhaps none of it. They are not the keepers of the grey flame but I don't know exactly who is. I think the last world leader that knew all of it or most all of it was President Truman. I believe Reagan and Thatcher knew something. Again, I don't know how much though.

GB: In your opinion, is there is need for concern over the alien situation, and is there an alien presence here on Earth?

DS: From my experiences, I would trust my alien contact more than the human commanders I was assigned. When I communicated with my alien contacts, I could sense no dishonesty or distrust. I have no fear of them whatsoever. However, are there other species hanging around that we should not trust? This I don't know. I don't believe there are terrestrial based aliens present, no.

GB: Finally, how are you coping - having come out into the open? Are you being harassed by any of the departments you worked for, UFO skeptics or others?

DS: No. I have not been harassed. Everything is going as planned so far. I didn't think they would come after me if I stuck to the grey aspect of my job. If they can't hang me for revealing Black information they will not do anything. It's a rock and hard place for them. If they arrest me for revealing what I know about PPD then they are validating what I am saying. As long as I walk the tightrope as well as I have been doing, I should be fine. It's interesting to note that I have received much mail since going public and an inordinate amount of it has arrived open. Some of it has even been sliced open from the top. This could be mere coincidence, but in my world you think of these things.

Dan Sherman's book, ABOVE BLACK , an insider account of alien contact and government cover-up, is an excellent read.

Blind Methodology article to appear in JSE

From: RSchatte@aol.com [Rebecca Keith]
Date: Tue, 3 Feb 1998 16:28:06 EST
Fwd Date: Tue, 03 Feb 1998 18:40:34 -0500
Subject: Blind Methodology article to appear in JSE

>From The Houston Chronicle February 2, 1998

Scientists have trouble keeping their eyes shut

Review issued on 'blind' methodology of research by Robert Matthews
New Scientist

Parapsychology, widely dismissed as a sloppy pseudoscience, makes far more use of rigorous experimental methods than other scientific disciplines, according to a study of the prevalence of "blind" methodology in research.

Blind techniques were originally designed to stop investigators in clinical trials from affecting the outcome of their experiments. Blinding prevents them from knowing whether a patient has been given the drug or a placebo and from modifying their observations accordingly. but scientists in other fields face a similar temptation to tweak their data, whether deliberately or subconsciously.

Yet according to an analysis of over 1,000 papers, most researchers seem to believe that they are immune to such foibles. The problem is most acute in the "hard" sciences of physics and chemistry, where not one paper surveyed used blind methods.

Medicine also scored badly. The surveyed papers were published in leading journals such as Nature, the Journal of the American Chemical Society, Cell and the Journal of Applied Physics. By far the highest proportion of papers with blind methods appeared in journals favored by parapsychologists -- the Journal of the Society for Psychical Research and the Journal of Parapsychology.

The study, due to appear in the Journal of Scientific Exploration, comes from Rupert Sheldrake, the London-based biologist who has become a controversial figure for his unorthodox scientific beliefs and interest in "fringe" areas.

"Most hard scientists take it for granted that blind techniques are unnecessary in their own field," Sheldrake says. "Parapsychologists, on the other hand, have been constantly subjected to intense scrutiny by skeptics, and this has made them more rigorous."

Physicists and chemists show no signs of tightening up their methods, Sheldrake has found. In a survey of 23 British university physics and chemistry departments, he found only one that taught its students even the basic techniques involved.

"One chemist summed up his attitude to blind methods by saying science was hard enough as it is, without making it worse by not knowing what you're working on," Sheldrake says.

Tom Fearn, an expert on experimental design at University College in London, says physicists and chemists may have become complacent.

"There is this belief that blind methods are only needed where the subject of the experiment should not know what is happening, or where it's hard to measure the quantity you're interested in objectivity," he says.

Bob,

I don't remember that exchange, but maybe this helps. I happen to be writing an article on commercial space travel.

The space plane you probably refer to is the X-33, an experimental plane that is now under construction. First flight due somewhere next year.

The X-33 uses a so called aerospike engine, a highly efficient engine design that is one of the technologies used to make this plane Single Stage To Orbit.

The design principles are not new. Rocketdyne has been experimenting with the technology since the 1960s. In the articles I read from the New Scientist, Air International and from the web sites of Lockheed, NASA and Aviation Week, there is no mention that the engine design is owned by the USAF. The consensus seems to be that the original funding was provided by a government organization ($ 500 mln), but the identity is not provided. Of course, this could be the USAF. Given that the X-33 engine is a Rocketdyne engine, the design seems to be owned by Rocketdyne.

The X-33 is the precursor to the Lockheed Venture Star, the supposed successor to the Space Shuttle. It will be operated by Lockheed and operational in 2005, hopefully.

Btw. research for my article shows that the worldwide expenditures on commercial space travel will surpass official government spending shortly. Around 2005 commercial expenditures will be around $ 70 bn, twice as much as official government spending and twice as much as the total acknowledged spending on black budget projects.

/ Met vriendelijke groet/Best wishes \

How in the world does one convert "underground bases" of which there are many, partly because it is a good place to hide activities from spy satellites and from the effects of atomic bombs, to ALIEN underground bases????

That is a very big stretch.

Hi!

I came across this post on another mail service I belong to and I thought it might be interesting reading for some of the folks out there.

I have no knowledge of the accuracy of the information contained in this post, and cannot represent it as completely true or factual. However it may explain some things.

Remote Viewers: The Secret History of America's Psychic Spies
By Jim Schnabel; Dell Books, 1997 (July??)

Pages 350-351, Chapter 22 "The Haunted House"

"There was one member of the unit who seemed almost to personify the fate of the program. He was a thirty-four-year-old Army captain, David Morehouse, and he arrived in the summer of 1988. Though Morehouse had never seen combat, he had commanded a Ranger company and had later, briefly, been a member of a secret special-operations squad known as Intelligence Support Activity (ISA). Morehouse was intelligent, a smooth talker, and his career seemed to be on a fast track. Even taking into account the enormous exaggerations that go into military performance reports, it was clear from Morehouse's that he was a cut above most officers.

"Morehouse heard about the remote-viewing unit while he was at ISA. He had no history of psychic experiences, but he had a casual interest in the paranormal, and the idea of being transformed from an ordinary Army officer into a shaman-spy attracted him, as it had so many others. Paul Smith, charged with evaluating potential recruits, thought Morehouse - who like Smith was a Mormon - would make a good candidate.

"After arriving at the unit and training with Smith and Dames and Lyn Buchanan, Morehouse began to participate in DT-S's day-to-day activities.

He seemed reasonably enthusiastic about remote viewing-he wanted to be a Jedi knight like the rest of them-and there were occasions when it seemed that he did have some talent. As time went by, however, and DT-S was increasingly separated from operational military reality, Morehouse responded much the way the others did: by finding other things to do. He had a small home-improvement business, House Tech, that he was already running on the side; after a few months at Fort Meade, he began to spend most of his time attending to it. He would get in late, and leave early, and even while he was at the office, he often seemed to the others to be preoccupied with his House Tech paperwork. Eventually he began turning up at the office only one or two days per week.

Pages 383-386

"Former Stubblebine aide John Alexander, now retired from the Army and working on 'non-lethal weapons' programs at Los Alamos, co-wrote a successful book in 1992, 'The Warrior's Edge' (KK's comments: Morehouse's 'The Psychic Warrior', a ripped off of Alexander's book - and if Alexander told half of what he knew, it would be quite probably 10 times what Morehouse knew), about the alternative world and soldiering. Ed Dames eventually decided he could do at least as well with a book on remote viewing. Ingo Swann hooked him up with a literary agent he knew, Sandra Martin. Dave Morehouse, who had been discussing the remote-viewing program with investigative journalist Dale Van Atta since 1989, was also invited to join the project.

"Dames and Morehouse worked on the book for a while, but they didn't get far, and eventually agreed to turn over the writing to Jim Marrs, a former Texas newspaper reporter who had written 'Crossfire'-a Kennedy assassination conspiracy book that had been one of the inspirations for Oliver Stone's film 'JFK.' Marrs wrote a proposal for an expose of the remote-viewing program, and sold it to Harmony Books (an imprint of Crown Publishing) for a $100,000 advance, which he split with Dames and Morehouse.

"Remarkably, Morehouse was still in uniform at this point, as a training officer with the 82d Airborne Division at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. He seemed to believe that he could continue his military career even as he benefitted financially from exposing a classified program. When the deal with Harmony came through (Morehouse heard about it over his field phone, while on exercises in North Carolina) he used his share of the advance to lease a Mercedes. Through Sandra Martin, he began negotiating with NBC for a movie deal based on his experiences as a military psychic.

"Eventually, Morehouse's apparent love of dangerous situations caught up with him. In early 1994, an irate girlfriend filed a complaint with Fort Bragg authorities, and Morehouse was charged with a number of offenses against the military code, including adultery, sodomy, the theft of an Army computer, and above all, conduct unbecoming an officer. In initial statements to Fort Bragg authorities, the woman mentioned that Morehouse had bragged about his highly classified work at DT-S and other units, had claimed that he could psychically spy on her at will, and had told her about the book he was writing with his friend Ed Dames. Mention of the book deal-which appeared to involve a deliberate disclosure of classified information-set off further investigations of Morehouse by INSCOM, the Army Criminal Investigative Service. Morehouse now faced a likely expulsion from the Army, and a possible jail sentence.

"A few days after Fort Bragg authorities had decided to send Morehouse to a full court-martial, Morehouse checked into Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, D.C. He gave the impression that he was having visions of angels, and was depressed and suicidal. He was no longer competent to stand trial, his lawyers now contended. Remote viewing had destabilized him, and now he had gone over the edge. Morehouse and Sandra Martin now also began to claim to friends that shadowy government operatives were harassing them, trying to shut them up. In one case, Martin told me, some Pentagon operative had tried to intimidate her on the New York subway, standing over her and warning her 'to stop representing Dave.'

"The remote-viewing community was generally skeptical about all these stories, but by the time Morehouse came out of the hospital, months later, he had what appeared to be a powerful defense strategy in place: The court-martial would become an investigation and exposure not of his wrongdoings at Fort Bragg, but of the classified, politically embarrassing remote-viewing program. A lot of dirty government laundry was going to be aired.

"As Morehouse's lawyers began to request special clearances to look into the remote-viewing program, and to interview former participants, the Army classified the proceedings, and attempted to keep them from reaching a trial. Within a few months, Fort Bragg authorities had struck a deal with Morehouse. In lieu of a trial on the Fort Bragg misconduct charges, he resigned from the Army with an 'other than honorable' discharge that left him neither pension or benefits. He officially separated from the Army in January 1995, and went to work for Sandra Martin in New York.

"Ed Dames was now living in Beverly Hills with his girlfriend, the estranged wife of the actor Brad Dourif. After seeing a draft of the Jim Marrs book in the spring of 1995, Dames complained that it was heavily fictionalized, and focussed too much on Morehouse. Harmony eventually cancelled the book.

"Morehouse, undaunted, started to write his own book, 'Psychic Warrior,' and by the fall of 1995 he had sold it to St. Martin's Press. Morehouse now alleged that he had developed psychic powers after being hit on his helmet by a bullet while on a training exercise in Jordan in 1987. He had then been asked to join DT-S, where he had performed various impressive paranormal feats. In early November 1995, Morehouse and a new agent pitched this tale to Hollywood film studios. Several made bids, including Oliver Stone, who narrowly lost out to Interscope Communications. According to 'Variety', Interscope agreed to pay Morehouse $300,000, plus another half million or so when the film was made. Morehouse began working on the book, the screenplay, and a Saturday morning children's cartoon show for Hanna-Barbera-involving a team of superheroes who use psi and other non-lethal powers to combat their foes."

I just checked it. Hmm, don't know. Most of the "bases" had no additional information. I saw some errors regarding the facilities I recognized:

Sandia Base is in reality Sandia National Laboratories.
Lawrence Livermore International Laboratory is L.L. National Laboratories. These facilities have web sites with their real names. Meriwith Hill in England is Menwith Hill.

Not really a fact checker it seems, this Sharbob. Has anyone read Tim Good's book yet? Hope it's better done than this.

CITIZENS AGAINST UFO SECRECY (CAUS) INITIATIVE

In the spirit of promoting and encouraging an end to any and all secrecy relating to extraterrestrial contact with this planet; and in support of the public's right to know this information, CITIZENS AGAINST UFO SECRECY (CAUS) hereby formally offers pro bono legal assistance and representation, under the following terms and condition:

1. CAUS attorney Peter A. Gersten will, without cost or obligation to the person, enter into an attorney-client relationship* with any former or active military officer or government official who possesses any or all of the following evidence of an extraterrestrial event:

- a. eye-witness testimony;
- b. physical evidence, including artifacts, photographs or film;
- c. official government documents, whether classified or declassified;
- d. any other admissible, relevant and genuine evidence which tends to confirm or corroborate such event.

* Inherent in said relationship is the client privilege which affords the client, as a matter of law, the security that anything discussed must remain confidential unless consented to by the client.

2. The client must consent to waive the privilege of confidentiality and allow CAUS to file a Freedom of Act (FOIA) request to the appropriate agency, basing its request on the information supplied by the client. At no time will the source of the information be revealed. *

* CAUS and Mr. Gersten have no ethical, professional or moral problem with keeping the name of the client confidential, thereby respecting the client's privacy.

3. If a subsequent FOIA lawsuit is necessary and the client so agrees, Mr. Gersten will submit all necessary affidavits and affirmations on 'information and belief,' thereby continuing to respect the confidentiality of the client.

4. If it becomes necessary for the client to testify,

* Mr. Gersten will first petition the court and US Attorneys Office for immunity citing the client's reluctance for fear of reprisals.

* The client always controls the proceedings and can withdraw at anytime with his privacy intact.

The CAUS INITIATIVE affords every witness the utmost confidentiality while resolving an obstacle to important disclosures.

Where there is secrecy there is no truth. Without truth there can be no justice.

And without justice there can be no freedom.

Jim: I certainly did not intend to leave alien intelligence out of the picture, and your interpretation is as good as any I have heard .. including some which hold that the nearly 3-to-1 shift ( even greater if we compare the 1940s to subsequent decades) can be attributed entirely to completely earthly effects.

I wish there were some statistical way to take the raw figures, and separate objective (i.e. UFO caused) from subjective ( earthly or /observer oriented) influences.

I suspect this is impossible, due to the many factors involved. Jan Aldrich has correctly pointed out that there were a lot of surplus blimps (etc.) used for advertising purposes.

I cannot rule out the possibility, however, that those responsible for "true" (i.e. completely mysterious) UFOs, have had some change of plan, priority or agenda .. perhaps they indeed decided UFOs were simply being "seen too much".

Alfred's Odd Ode #220

Subject: Alfred's Odd Ode #220

Apology to MW #220 (For February 4, 1998)

So you LAUGH at a conspiracy -- think believers have gone gooney in a bid for truth's subversion with a song they sing that's loony? Are you whistling past the grave yard with your feet in sucking mud? "Vewy quiet, wanting habits," you intone like Elmer Fudd? Do you ape the grand Blue Boobie, shoving snickers up your sleeve, forgetting that the truth could have you grovel on your knees? Lacking all humility you say that all is well, while humans breed like flies in shit that's shoveled from your hell?

No conspiracy?

Then the answer's in **pure** science that is worshipped like a God, not mere cowards wanting money and a 'man' to give the nod. Think science gives the answers when all it watches changes as the watching's making choices that the physics outlines plainly? Think the heavens and the Earth are all quite well explained in the two percent they witness with their measured half a brain? Are you thinking there's no problem while the sky is filled with light that is photographed and studied as they hymn and haw in fright?

No conspiracy?

What a relief to vets of gulf wars -- those cursed with strange malaise. I'm sure they're feeling better finding out they're not betrayed. And what an assuagement Tuskegee is feeling, those that were cursed, sensibility reeling! Those who died crazy, what surcease they must feel; misery imagined, they were played a fair deal. And tell it to Hurricane, near decades in prison, all that life never missed if conspiracies missin'. And it's good that tobacco ne'er conspired to befriend all the kids of the ones they've been killing, no end. Iran and the contras ne'er pointed, in fact, that huge lies had been told, and were lies without tact! That the FED conspires daily to fix all the markets so a few are protected when the Bears are the darkest? That oceans of data aren't held by the gub'mint on lights in the sky -- could portend some new covenant? That government won't lie, and our closed institutions are the living embodiment of just constitutions=85!?!

No conspiracy?

Friend, there's conspiracy enough to float the Navies of the world, and in it hides the jealous and obscene. Those that punch the **ticket**, float the **loan**, and read the **meter** are the architects of shadows and bad dreams. Watch the ones that say they're sneering at the stuff that falls outside what they measure with their shallow little toys. Watch the ones who limit magic we could perfectly enjoy while they act like thieves and cut-throats, just a clutch of "good old boys." It comes down to corruption, and a lack of plain respect that the chosen keep away from you and me. I want to earn my dollar, live my life, and have respect, but I want it from a process I believe!

I don't believe the government, equal feelings for our gods, and our children eating culture has us mewling like we're flogged. There's no trusting in our system that it does the honored thing, just millions suffering needlessly conspired arrows, cuts, and slings.

Lehmberg@snowhill.com

Outrages fortune!

No conspiracy -- indeed! There's enough crass conspiracy to hide the light of any chosen day! Shakespeare and Chaucer wrote regarding the taproots of our propensity to conspiracy. Herodotus and Homer before them, and in clay tablets that yawn at infinity from the beginning of time, the Sumerians before them. It's why we read them, still.

And come on, fellow notes; if the Navy would lie about goosing indignant females in that "Tail Hook affair", they would most certainly concoct a multi leveled, and elaborated tale of inspired prevarication to cover up punching a missile through a passenger jet!

I remember them doing something similar to an Iranian civil aircraft.

Mistakes happen, but you have to cop. With us, it's always a stonewall; it's always a dodge, a plausible deniability; what the rest of us call a back door lie. Why believe them now, unless you WANT to. What recent encouragement has ANY of them provided to believe ANYTHING they say, ever?

No conspiracy?

When the BIGGEST are held accountable for what the SMALLEST must endure, then we can start to believe there's no conspiracy. Finally, how can ANYONE sneer and snicker up their richly appointed and (likely) ill gotten sleeves, and even pretend there's no conspiracy? Now, there's a question that truly answers itself!

" There is some dark truth afoot, and it reeks of fish in Denmark! Conspiracy's alive! We see its sign and hallmark! Whipped into a frenzy by those who sell soft soap, we are dazzled by anomaly contrived to dash our hope "!

Restore John Ford!

I have contacted the FCC, Dick Clark Productions, and UPN.

UPN says its all DC's responsibility, I am supposed to hear back from the FCC, and DC was very defensive and is supposed to have a 'big shot' contact me.. They blame stations for the split screen at the end making it difficult to read the credits.

My focus was on wanting a disclaimer at the beginning saying that none of the "Experts" had seen the video prior to being interviewed.

I also expressed concern with the program being billed, at least in some, locations as a documentary in the newspaper listings.

Yes it is a poor "dramatic production". It is an unpleasant thought to wonder what it would have been like without the experts.. Maybe everybody would have stopped watching halfway through?

One good thing is that Dr. Michael Schermer, the skeptic, certainly didn't appear very convincing to me. Research by proclamation...

I will --ugh-- view it again to see if I have a cause of action.

I certainly agree that the UFO community can't sue or ask for equal time. Perhaps the experts can for deception, wrong use of our likenesses etc.

Does anybody know if anybody else, besides me, was featured in the advance advertising?

That list has to be a joke..not only does it list Area-51 3 times under different names, it later goes on to describe 12 Russian bases (one with 37,000 people) on the Moon and a Japanese/German base on Mars...

Subject: FBI & NSA FOIA Documents

Just a quick note to let you know of the availability of FOIA information on the Internet.

It would appear that the FBI and the NSA have decided that publishing their releasable FOIA documents n the "WEB" is more effecient than responding to all those pesky FOIA requests for information. Perhaps its a good time wasting step, as they point to the published information and allow the researcher to spend time going through the information that is already reviewed, declassified, and released. Of course, if a request for a specific event or meeting is made, it may not be included in the published information. It would be interesting to see if there are any notable documents missing from these published archives.

The address for the FBI documents is:

<http://www.fbi.gov/foipa/ufo.htm#top>

The address for the NSA documents is:

<http://www.nsa.gov:8080/docs/efoia/released/ufo.html>

I'm sorry if this information is "old news" to you, as some may get their information from the same "lists" that I do. But I think that this is important enough to promote among researchers, who may not be aware of its availability. Please forward this information on to anyone who may be interested.

Thanks for the message. This does jibe with what little I know about the subject. Interested to learn that Morehouse's original connection with RV did not come as a result of a bullet grazing his head during a training exercise in Jordan (which is the claim he makes in PSYHIC WARRIOR). I was aware that Marr's book on psychic stuff was cancelled. Marrs then turned to UFOS and wrote Alien Agenda which was published last year. It has a chapter or so on RV.

There may be something there.... but it seems to me to be even more difficult to separate truth from bovine excretion in RV than it is in UFOS.

I'm getting a little tired hearing about this issue. It would have been better if everybody who should have known better, didn't watch it in the first place. This was not at all surprising. Quite expected, really, and it's time we finally start to boycott these shows/stations. As a matter of fact, if you remember I had this to say long before the show aired...

Prophetic? No! Just plain, common sense! Forget about suing the bastards. They're only doing what we all expected them to be doing in the first place. Ignore them - don't join them. Its time to wake up and face the 'real' facts!

Bruce,

My wife and I studied Basic Controlled Remote Viewing (CRV) with Lyn Buchanan, and as you said, there's something there. In my opinion, Lyn is the best teacher in the CRV business. CRV is far from 100% accurate and was originally developed with feedback after a session being essential. If there's no feedback, then technically it's not remote viewing. Ingo Swann developed the protocols (With the help of U.S. Gov't funds) and stressed the importance of feedback as part of the CRV protocols. Without feedback, you'll never know if you're right or not.

Remote viewing Aliens and such is probably a lot of fun but next to impossible to obtain feedback. Marrs shouldn't have devoted so much space in his book to this topic. Marrs also made a big deal about multiple viewers getting the same results with regard to certain alien targets. Marrs said that this added to the credibility of the results. Marrs obviously didn't talk to the most qualified, respected and experienced remote viewers. If he would have spoken to Joe McMoneagle, Lyn Buchanan or Paul Smith, he would have been told that if seven viewers get the same results on a common target and one viewer gets something completely different, it's just as likely that the one viewer is right as it is that the seven are right. So as you can see, mutiple viewers means nada and Marrs should have done his homework. What the hell was he thinking?

Remote viewing works, it's far from perfect and it needs to be studied further. It takes A LOT of practice to become a good viewer. Most people aren't dedicated enough to be successful in the RV field. At the present time, I'm one of those people.

As far as David Morehouse goes, I won't even waste my time. He has so many misrepresentations in his book it's not even funny.

Now here's my two cents about Alvarez. I recently spoke to a technician who used to work at Lawrence Berkeley Lab when Alvarez was the director back in the 1970s. He told me a few things that might give some insight into the man's personality.

He said Alvarez was obviously very bright and enthusiastic, but not very imaginative. His work was mostly derivative. Despite his Nobel, he was a second tier physicist, not among the greats like an Einstein or Fermi or Dirac. What's more, deep down Alvarez knew it (according to my technician source). He could also be very petty. This came out in the way Alvarez apparently relished tearing down people who disagreed with him, especially when he thought they might upstage him.

I remember one such incident from the 1970s when I was a grad student at Berkeley. Berkeley physicist Buford Price thought that maybe he had discovered a magnetic monopole in a heavy cosmic ray track recorded on a glass photographic plate. The magnetic monopole is one of the Holy Grails of physics. If verified, Price had a lock on the Nobel Prize. Before Price had completed his investigation, however, word leaked out and what resulted was sort of the 1970s equivalent of cold fusion.

But getting back to Alvarez, there was no love lost between the two. Alvarez couldn't stand the idea of Price getting the Nobel (Alvarez had also been looking for monopoles), and was determined to discredit Price and his discovery. It wasn't just a scientific controversy; it got very personal as I recall. Eventually Alvarez came up with the alternate explanation of a uranium atom track, and that's where matters stand to this day, the issue unresolved. Price never did get his Nobel or credit for discovering a monopole. (While Alvarez and Price were fighting it out, I remember a graffiti in one of the physics men's rooms about in which of his orifice's Price wished he had a monopole.)

The technician had his own run-in with Alvarez's ego (but didn't seem bitter about it). Also back in the 70's the technician had gotten some national press for a promising invention of his, developed at LBL. He said Alvarez blew his cork, yanked him from the project he had developed, and replaced him with a "real physicist" (who didn't know a damn thing about it). Alvarez apparently couldn't stand the fact that a "mere technician" had upstaged his group of PhD scientists by getting written up in the press.

What this amounts to are the usual personality ingredients we have all seen in the petty, arrogant, and self-righteous "scientific" UFO debunker. Alvarez in this respect sounds very similar to other scientist debunkers like Menzel or Sagan.

I also asked the technician if he thought Alvarez could have been a "spOOk" scientist, perhaps working for the government on secret or black projects. (I was thinking about Alvarez's involvement with the Robertson Panel.) He said he didn't think so.

Take this hearsay for what it's worth.

Hello List,

Judging from the 'The News of the World' article, it looks we're back to the Adamski era. That Tim Good may have included the cited testimonies in his book casts serious doubts on the value of this "research".

It may be Tim Good stuff, but if it's bad, it's bad.

OCCAM THE BARBER

Veteran Blatherphants may recall an issue of Blather from October 1997, titled 'Passports for Aliens' [at]:

<http://www.nua.ie/blather/archives/issue1no22.html>

where I told of claims by various people concerning an alleged crash of an extraterrestrial craft in Co. Roscommon, Ireland. The supposed crash was said to have taken place in May 1996.

I won't go as far as to revisit the entire tale here, but for those readers who may be unfamiliar with it, check out the original article

<http://www.nua.ie/blather/archives/issue1no22.html>

See also 'Watching the Skywatchers'

<http://www.nua.ie/blather/archives/issue1no27.html>

where I mention the sudden interest that the ICUFOS

<http://freespace.virgin.net/ic.ufos/> were showing in the Curlew mountains area of Roscommon.

In short, there were rumours of a crash, the subsequent cordoning off of a large area of countryside by the army followed a great flocking to the scene by unnamed politicians, diplomats and U.S military personnel. I was not alone in putting forward the theory that that the downed bird was no less than a warplane on an unofficial military flyover. 'UFO Reality' magazine criticised Blather for this theory pointing out that if the alleged incident was a NATO cock-up, then surely the public would have been told. UFO Reality don't seem to realise that Ireland is not a member of NATO.

<http://www.nua.ie/blather/archives/issue1no30.html>

So why am I blathering on about all this yet again? On Tuesday 27th January 1998, I received a phonecall from an acquaintance of mine, who informed me that he has possession of some 35 documents of correspondence with various Irish governmental bodies. These documents contain information regarding the 'Roscommon Crash'. I shall refrain from mentioning my source just yet, not because I doubt their veracity -- it is a reliable source -- but because Blather has not yet laid eyes on these documents. The Blather Joint Chiefs of Staff shall be discussing them next week, hopefully giving me cause to explore them in more detail.

So what do the documents say?

Apparently they mention the crash of a Swedish Airforce Saab Gripen MkII, killing both *test pilots* on board. The fighter was flying from Knock Airport in Co. Mayo, on an easterly course. The area was cordoned off, the Gardai (police) were asked to keep away, and the wreckage was retrieved. In previous reports, mentions of U.S. military personnel wandering about rural Ireland were mentioned, and the *new* version tells us that these chaps were in for the kill -- they were eager to get their hands on *something* that the Gripen was carrying.

Even if this is an accurate account of the alleged events, it still raises a multitude of questions, necessitating a possible trip to Occam's Barbershop. What was a Saab Gripen doing over Ireland? Why was it flown by test pilots? Why were the U.S. military so interested, and why were they allowed to get involved?

Some background, and some answers. . .

Ireland, in case anyone is under any alternative illusions, is a neutral republic. Sweden too, is a neutral, if rather well armed nation. Neither are members of NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization). As the Swedish airforce are no strangers to Irish airspace, through airshows and the like, why should there be such secrecy about a crash?

A joint venture between Saab and British Aerospace, the Gripen is billed by its manufacturers as being the 'first fourth multi-role generation fighter in service'. Although developmental work began 1982, it only ended in December 1996. Many are now in service, and it is becoming a constituent part of Sweden's defence forces. The two seater version 'has been developed for combat use as well as for both conversion and tactical training', and is not expected to be used in service until some time this year.

<http://www.gripen.saab.se/>

The Gripen carries state of the art avionics, including the 'air-to-air Tactical Information Data Link System (TIDLS), which permits real-time exchange of data both within and between cooperating tactical units.' Is the U.S Air Force desperate to get their hands on this? Surely, with amicable relations that Sweden would have with the U.S., and the relationship between Saab and British Aerospace promoting industrial resource sharing with the U.K., a close ally of the U.S., would there *need* to be American military personnel hanging about in Co. Roscommon?

More next week (hopefully).

UFOS AND UFOLOGY

It was with some hesitation that I chose to purchase Paul Devereux and Peter Brookesmith's 'UFOs & Ufology'. I had read Bob Rickard's review in Fortean Times 106, where he gave it an 'Excellent' rating, and I have deep respect for both authors - I've cited Devereux's endeavours in Blather before. But when I went to pay IEP20 for their new publication, I was a little taken aback. I held in my hand a 'coffee table' sized tome, with an almost abstract rendition of 'extra-terrestrial' in front of a saucer. 'Potboiler', I muttered, and left it down. Eventually, after a few minutes thumbing through the pages, pacing and beard stroking, I was away with a copy under my arm.

Apparently you shouldn't judge a book by its cover. I didn't - I bought 'UFOs & Ufology' on the strength of the authors' previous work. However, I hope that people do buy this book because of its cover - because if they buy it hoping for yet another reassurance of the reality of flying saucers and alien visitation, perhaps they might actually learn something.

The authors trace UFOs from their earliest historical mentions, discussing their meanings in different cultures, right up to describing how and why 'flying saucers' suddenly made news in 1947, put forward their own theories, and still have room to explore the various hypothesis outside their own ideas. Any Roswell believer who doesn't have questions raised for them by the chapter on *that* alleged incident needs a boot in the ear. The tenuous links between crop circles and UFOs is explained, and the abductionists, such as John Mack and Budd Hopkins are heavily criticised, but not without well expressed reasons. Devereux's own field -- earthlight research -- is clearly explained, as is its relationship to the overall UFO phenomenon. While the authors pull no punches, they are not dismissive either. They never debunk the idea of extraterrestrial life, yet do a damn fine job of explaining why there is yet little evidence to support it.

Probably the best overview of the UFO phenomenon that money can buy.

"THE BLACK HELICOPTER"

I was about 4:40 PM EST, I was in the house washing up when I heard the noise of a helicopter over the house, I went and got the camera and walked out onto the back porch. There was what looked like a Black helicopter hovering directly over my home at about 1500 - 2000 ft. I aimed the camera and started to take pictures but after the first one I took the camera ran out of film The helicopter did not appear to have any markings or identification on it. It did make the "typical" noise a helicopter makes. It hovered for about 2 minutes, during this time it appeared as if it was spraying a liquid substance from the bottom of the helicopter onto the ground and homes below, this was mainly over my home and my immediate neighbors. I noticed the liquid because as I was looking up at the helicopter there was a very fine mist of moisture forming on my glasses, I then went into the house and watched from the inside as the helicopter turned and tipped the cockpit down as if it was looking at me, it hovered in this position for about 30 seconds and then turned as it hovered and headed towards the direction the UFO Sphere / Orb went , it headed for the south west. Hello Updates.

Last night I received, from Skywatch International, a long account of a "sighting" over Brooklyn, and was interested to note that the "witness" had attempted some form of mental communication with the object in question.

Has anyone else ever found that, when watching "unknowns," it is possible to establish some form of telepathic rapport?

The text of the posting follows here. There were also TWO photographs of the object in question.

PART 1 OF 2 : "UFO SPHERE / ORB"

Date: Sunday FEB. 1, 1998

Time: 4:20 PM, EST Camera: MINOLTA
Film: Kodak Gold, ASA400, 36 Exp., 35 mm

"UFO SPHERE / ORB"

This picture shows a " UFO Sphere / Orb" which was filmed over Brooklyn, New York by ALEX CAVALLARI. The UFO sphere / orb was seen maneuvering in what appeared to be a controlled and or piloted fashion.

It was a nice day and I had to go outside on the roof of my home to adjust my amateur radio antenna because some high winds had shifted its position. When I was finished I was looking around skywatching for a few minutes before going inside. It was clear with some white clouds, the sun was low and bright.

I first noticed a small orange / red colored bright dot in the eastern sky, in the direction of Kennedy Airport. At first I thought there was some dirt on my glasses, so I cleaned them and looked back at the sky, there was no colored dot to be found anywhere. I scanned the sky for a few more seconds and all of a sudden the UFO appeared , it just appeared from nowhere, I did not see it fly to the area in the sky which I viewed it in. This time it was much bigger and closer, it was about the size or diameter of a cigarette (1/4 in. diam.), when viewed at arms length. I went inside and got my camera, it took me about one minute to get the camera. When I returned and looked for the sphere it just appeared to swoop straight down in front of my view and then it stopped for about 3 seconds and then it disappeared. When it was at its closest point to me it was bigger than the moon. I held the camera up and started to look through the camera to scan the sky so if I saw the UFO again I would be ready for it. The camera is set to automatic when it is first turned on and I had the zoom set to 12x maximum zoom. About 3 - 4 minutes went by and I was getting tired of looking through the camera so I decided to have a cigarette and wait and look around the sky for awhile. About 5 - 6 minutes goes by and I hear a loud rushing noise in my ear, only my left ear, it sounded like the rush of the ocean or electrical "static" noise, the noise was perceived as fairly loud and it lasted about 10 seconds. The noise was fading out slowly when I started to think to myself =85.. "you do this all the time=85.you fly around take pictures of us and never let us take pictures of you =85I know your there =85.come on, that not fair, I know you hear me...." and all of a sudden I turn around and I see the UFO hi in the sky and to the north, it is a small colored dot again, I aim the camera and it is gone, I turn to the left , west, and it is right in front of me I take 1 picture, the UFO started to move forward and down towards me and then stopped , it was the size of a basketball when viewed at arms length, a bright red, orange, yellow, white orb. It appeared to be a solid mass of light, there were different layers of color around the perimeter of the sphere. It then went to the right, north, then went straight up and straight back down, I was able to have the camera on it during this time and I took 2 pictures. Then it just flew from the right, north, stopped for a split second and headed to the south west and it appeared as if it flew into the sun and was no longer visible. The total time of the event was about 12 minutes.

The flight pattern and the ability of this craft to appear and disappear make it appear to Alex that this must have been a craft which had intelligence controlling it. Is it coincidence that when Alex mentally thought for the UFO to come back that it did or was it a form of mental electrical communications?

"LIFE IS ELECTRICITY AND ELECTRICITY IS LIFE"

Hi,

Thanks for your interest in the event, yes I agree that the SPHERE does appear "somewhat" like a picture of "lens flare" but upon closer examination I think you would see it is not that. I have other pics from other times which appear to show the same type of object, in Australia these are seen and are sometimes called ZEUS SPHERE / ZEUS FIRE, I think.

I am the only eye witness to this event but I do have others who have seen these or similiar SPHERES with me on several occasions in Brooklyn, over the same area and in LONG ISLAND, NY near Point lookout.

thanks,

Nope,

Lens flare. Plain and simple. The characteristic color is a dead give away.

Put this one in the circular file.

Helicopter looks black because it is silhouetted against sky.

Playing with the JPEG reveals a lighter color and detail.

Hi BOB,

What I said was "There was what looked like a Black helicopter hovering directly over my home at about 1500 - 2000 ft." Were you able to determine what color it was markings etc? I used Adobe Photoshop to "check it out" and I did not see anything.

I am not nor claim to be a image expert.

HI BOB,

I do not know how I could see lens flare travel around the sky and I do agree it even looks like it. I will try to find the other pics/story I have of a sphere that was filmed with others viewing it with me from last year for you to "check out".

I think we must remember that just because something looks like what we think it is does not mean that is what it is.

Hello Bob and other list members.

In my posting I did NOT include the photographs, as this was not the "focus" of my question. [The inclusion was mine. --ebk]

The witness had described, in some detail, the movements of the "unknown," and that the whole event had a duration of approximately 12 minutes. I notice, also, that the object had been seen in the direction of Kennedy Airport, by the witness, BEFORE he had looked through his camera viewfinder.

Could a lens flare behave in such a fashion, AND move around for 12 minutes?

My question to the list was, in fact, asking if anyone had had any experience with "rapport"/"communication" etc. with "UNKNOWNNS."

My area of study is not so much photographic, as "communication."

Thank you.

Alex,

You could only see lens flare travel around the sky if you were looking THROUGH the camera and moving it. If you saw this with your naked eye and then caught it on camera, that would be very different.

Maybe the aliens have learned to cleverly disguise their craft so that they look just like lens flare in photos!!

Subject: Re: 'UFO Sphere/Orb' over Brooklyn, NY

Dear All,

Many thanks for the the info thus far. I am currently reading for a B.sc(Hons) in prehistoric Archaeology in Bournemouth, U.k.I am fascinated by the concept of extraterrestrial life and can't wait for the day when archaeologists will be called upon to evaluate evidence of stellar civilizations!

On a more earthly note, after sifting through endless amounts of British published material on the subject, I have found that there seems to be a common agreement that needs reappraisal. Many publications show pictures of circular anomolies on the ground (not crop circles) and interpret them as evidence of alien landings.I would suggest that at least 99% of these are simply archaeological features dating to no later than the late Iron-Age.

Why are archaeologists excluded from the scientific study of ufology? The most recent sightings in this area were last year when a group of three spherical/bright objects "screamed" across the horizon between the Purbeck hills and Hengistbury Head before turning sharply east and literally disappearing.

I am interested in the role of sightings in antiquity and whether prehistoric man was influenced temporaly/spiritually by the phenomenon. Cave art and contemporary carvings seem to be devoid of any depictions of such encounters.

I would discount the ramblings of Von Danekin!!(Chariots of the Gods)etc.

I would be interested to hear from any serious ufo researchers that agree with the fundamental role that archaeologists could have to play in this arena.

Keep up the good work!

Best wishes and kind regards,

Si Cleggett

Subject: Re: Another old case recently uncovered

Hi all. Since people are getting into typing up old cases from the archives, I thought I'd contribute a little something along this line, too. (I think it's a great idea, BTW, because a lot of classic cases are so far not available in electronic format for newbies to obtain via the web.)

This one is a bit different, though. This is a previously unknown case which was apparently reported to Project Blue Book back in 1954, but which was never filed by them. The case is contained in a letter sent to Ruppelt via TRUE Magazine, but was never acknowledged.

I received this letter from one of the original witnesses, after I appeared recently on a radio talk show about UFOs. He still had his own carbon copy of the original letter to Ruppelt, and felt that it should be recorded by someone seriously interested in case data. So, here is the complete text of the letter to Ruppelt, available to researchers nearly 44 years after it was written!

Capt. E. J. Ruppelt, U.S.A.F.R., c/o TRUE Magazine
New York City, N.Y.

Dear Sir:

It was with great interest I read your article 'What Our Air Force Found Out About Flying Saucers' which appeared in the May 1954 issue of True Magazine. I have read quite a few accounts concerning these unknown flying objects, but your article was by far the most interesting. Never having seen such objects, I was perhaps a little skeptical, but never considered them impossible. On July 22 however, I did see "something" and was fortunate enough to have three other people as witnesses.

I understand that you are no longer connected with this research, but I have taken the liberty of writing you, hoping that you will pass on the following report to those who may be interested.

On July 22, between 8.15 and 8.30 p.m. C.D.T. I saw what at first appeared to be five aircraft in the southern skies. It was a very clear sunny evening and these aircraft seemed to be reflecting the sun -- they were a very bright shiny silver in color. The angle at which they appeared in relation to directly overhead and the horizon would be, I judge, between 20 to 25 degrees (see sketch). I watched these objects for not less than three minutes, possibly six or seven -- unfortunately I did not think to time them -- did not realize what I was viewing. During that time they did not increase or decrease in size, all the while glowing a very bright silver in color. While watching, they appeared to 'drift', almost imperceptibly in a westerly direction. Suddenly four of the objects disappeared and the fifth (No. 1 in the sketch) vanished possibly 30 seconds later. They did not grow smaller and vanish, but simply disappeared, very much like a person turning off a light. At no time was any sound audible. These objects were in formation (see sketch) and as long as they remained visible, they did not alter their formation. As for the shape of these objects, I believe "round" would best describe them - they were definitely not square, oblong or cigar-shaped.

Whatever these were, they were also seen by people living in the Winnipeg area at approximately the same time. As Winnipeg and Selkirk are roughly 20 miles apart, these unknowns could hardly have been balloons. To have been seen from both places at the same time, it would seem to me that these objects would have to be at a very high altitude and also very large in size. Some of the people in Winnipeg who saw these strange objects, reported such to the two newspapers, The Winnipeg Tribune and the Winnipeg Free Press.

I am not by any means an expert on aircraft, but during the war I served with the Royal Canadian Navy and spent a few months with a British Aircraft Carrier.

The people with me at the time these objects were sighted were my wife, my sister-in-law and her husband. No doubt you have had many reports at different times from various people - believe me, I am not a "crank" looking for publicity, but I actually saw something which I have seen before and of that I am certain. If there is anything else, such as any further details concerning that which I have reported, I sincerely hope that you or someone will write, as I shall be only too pleased to try and answer. I am definitely very curious and interested to try and learn what I actually did see.

Yours very truly,

Alex,

Why did you not center the "sphere" in your frame area instead of having it off to the other side of the frame from the sun?
(Exactly where one would expect a lens flare).

As a professional photographer I would like to state categorically that this is a lens flare. Sorry I can only speak to what I see, not any other references to what you saw before or after taking the picture.

That chopper looks to me like a 3 rotor Huey or a Mitubishi, more likely the latter. It certainly is a conventional helicopter of some type. it has elevons, tail rotor, stinger to protect tail rotor from tail low landings. It also looks like a chin mounted "Tyler Mount" under the forward cabin, which as you probably know Bob, is a gyroscopically controlled video or film camera used to take aerial shots without any vibration showing up in the shot. It's a steady-cam in the sky. It might have been up there getting aerial footage for a movie. It could have been a search light, but does not look like the usual type.

Kevin Randle, being a helicopter pilot, might recognize the silhouette if he's monitoring this list.

It shouldn't be forgotten that the reason that helos hover for long periods of time is because they can. That's what they are built for.

REGARDING UFO ORB...

Lens flare was my initial impression...when I noticed the considerable increase in brightness moving to the left in the picture, suggesting the sun was just to the left of the field of view.

However, if it was actually seen prior to the picture being taken, then the witness testimony must be weight against the potential explanation....

Apology to MW #221 (For February 7, 1998)

You look out on the blackness of a starry, starry night to washed out points of light polluted, symbols of your fright=85Seeing but a fraction of what is really there, you hope its strange ambivalence won't put you to its dare. Move on out to darkened space, and the fraction's even smaller; despite the fact you're seeing more -- enigma just gets taller! That space is huge, immense, unknown -- its size is ever larger. The length and breadth accelerates, its hugeness fans its ardor. In it's found potential of a billion trillion ids, if you've thought it, it has happened =85 and has happened as it did. And much, much more has happened than is thought of in these minds that inhabits our shared multi-verse in slow rivers of old time.

There is blackness that transcends Pol Pot, or Hitler -- even Stalin! There are miseries undreamed of in their pits to snare the fallen. Despair so thick it runs in veins like toxic waste in dreams -- that mirror all the passion of its shrieks, and cries and screams.

But balance is the order so the inverse also happens. There is truth and light and sun washed sight to complement its lesson. There's the smell of leaves of grass on a million peaceful worlds, a touch of silk that's cobweb sheer on healthy frames un-shamed, unfurled. Unclouded and austere and never screwing for percentage, they are living, laughing, loving, and they know the sweet advantage.

Like a fiction, or a star trek, or a star wars, love abides. It's the feeling good with honor that is felt with humble pride. It's the looking out to see their works as lasting, fitting in. It's achieving all their dreams AND satisfactions found therein! There's a breathing free with honor in a world they help build, there's completeness for that *spot* in them -- you love it when it's filled. They respect the individual, the key to their success, they live in lucent Edens they construct, but I digress.

Garibaldi, someone like him, lives his life on edge of failure; a captain takes a sacrifice to task. Anything can happen on a million billion worlds. Dr. Drake can only tell you when you ask. He's more than just a WAG, and he's conservative as hell; he is science un-myopic and he's got a tale to tell. It's a statement on veracity that watchers do exist, could watch us span potential -- watch some of us resist =85 Could be looking from the shadows some avoid in dangerous fear -- go beyond the envelope that you contain and label queer. =85Deliver from the darkness, or give up on the light. Living on (?) -- in all your selfishness, and disrespecting spite.

Earth is but a point in space, and cursed with infestation. A cancer rages in her flesh; it's humankind, and its gestation. Barely self aware, it's wondered, "will it meet its test (?)" ; will it wallow in its toxic filth, or will it rise, amidst the best? Will it screw for best percentage like Ms. Ripley once observed, and grind itself beneath its heel -- unrepentant, undeterred? Or will it work to meet the watchers, read a history handed down, though it crumble proud foundations of old systems un-profound.

It does little good to maintain that these are not precipitous times. On the one hand we look into untroubled skies with a good clearing breath in our collective chest -- remarking that it's a grand time to be alive =85 on the other hand -- well, the other hand is empty=85empty and cold.

We feel this on levels underlying the brave fronts we put up during the day, holding this tenuous *thing we call reality* together in gnashing teeth, and scratching nails. Some of us are able to hear the screams of those that fall to the wayside, or under foot, in this mad dash to covet imagined satisfaction; smell those ground up for grease to lubricate the lifestyles of a dwindling few; see the disrespected stagger in induced retardation; feel the hopelessness, despair, and anguish of a MAJORITY of INDIVIDUAL people who inhabit an insignificant and brown tinged, but blue and white point in space.

I think it explains the popularity of "Titanic", a theme of increasing frequency nearing century's end; the ship a metaphor for the *impossible* occurring; a complete and absolute destruction, even disappearance, of the very ground you stand on; a plunging out of sight into the black, high pressure, and terrifying unknown. Maybe we go out with some blustery passion, or not -- the slide to crushing dissolution is complete for both.

I stand as round shouldered and vulnerable as any, but I square my shoulders to hoist a one fingered salute to any fate that sweeps down on all of us, or just on me. I'll face what's true, and make it work, if I'm able! Or not.

The salute remains.

Well, it took them long enough, but the mainstream media has finally picked up on this story. This story was first reported last year by Linda Moulton Howe on Art Bell's Dreamland.

Interagency Snafu Causes Scientific Records to Be Shredded

By Malcolm W. Browne

A huge trove of scientific records from the Naval Research Laboratory has been destroyed because of snarled communications between another federal agency and the laboratory, which calls the loss a calamity.

An investigation by both agencies is to be concluded this month. But although the investigators expect to pin the responsibility for the loss of the irreplaceable documents, which spanned half a century, nothing can be done to recover them. All were shredded last year, in a mistake that attracted little public notice until a recent account of it in a Washington newsletter, Science and Government Report.

Dr. David van Keuren, the naval laboratory's historian, said in an interview that the destroyed records included some 42,000 scientific notebooks and 600 cubic feet of letters and other correspondence. All had been stored at the Federal Records Center in Suitland, Md.

Although some of the lost records were as recent as the mid-1980s, about 80 percent predated 1950. While they had little value for scientific research, they were nonetheless prized, as historical documents.

Over the course of decades, the Naval Research Laboratory, which has a staff of about 3,500 and is based in Washington, has made a number of major contributions to the nation's science and technology, in the development of American radar, astrophysics and radio astronomy, the study of underwater sound, the invention of sonar, the investigation of matter under enormous pressures like those found within giant planets, and the chemistry of carbon cage molecules, among other fields.

One major loss from the documents' destruction was that of many of the records covering the laboratory's role in launching Vanguard, one of America's earliest space satellites. Vanguard made it into orbit in March 1958, just months behind the Soviet satellite Sputnik and America's first satellite, Explorer.

Although many records of the Vanguard program were lost, van Keuren said, some private records kept by relatives of scientists who worked on the project have been recovered. There are hopes, he said, that other private sources may be able to fill in a few of the gaps.

Van Keuren discovered the shredding last August, when he asked the laboratory's archivist to retrieve some documents about materials science from the Federal Records Center and was told that they had been destroyed.

"As you can imagine," he said, "we're very unhappy."

The National Archives and Records Administration, which runs the records center, does not question the value of the destroyed papers, said Dr. Susan Cooper, spokesman for the agency. Dr. Cooper said a "fail-safe" system for protecting valuable federal documents had evidently failed.

Under that system, she said, before documents from federal agencies are placed into storage, they are provisionally assessed as either permanent or temporary, depending on the records center's perception of their importance.

"The archives of a Cabinet secretary are always designated as permanent, for example," Dr. Cooper said, "while my correspondence would, in general, be temporary."

Then, when temporary files have been stored for a long period and are about to be consigned to the shredder, the records center must give the federal agency from which they came 90 days' notice, in case the agency wants to preserve them.

The Naval Research Laboratory contends that it never received such warning last year before its temporary records were destroyed.

But Dr. Cooper replied, "We have the evidence that the laboratory received notification but did not act on it."

Dr. John Carlin, who as archivist of the United States heads the National Archives and Records Administration, said the destroyed documents had been judged by his agency to be "informal laboratory notebooks containing technical data which is routine, fragmentary or essentially duplicated in technical reports and papers."

Moreover, said Dr. Cooper, "though the Navy responded to other notices that came with this one, it raised no objection to carrying out the scheduled disposal of the laboratory material."

Florida sightings increase and Astronaut claims Congressional Hearings likely.

GULF BREEZE, PENSACOLA, FLORIDA

Ray Pollock reports that he and Elise had a 25 minute sighting, while standing in their driveway January 31, 1998, starting at 6:22 and lasting until 6:47 p.m. in Pensacola. Ray states: It was the typical red light "Bubba" of old. It appeared approximately half way between the horizon and the moon at that time in the evening. It gradually moved north and rising until it was approximately the same elevation in the sky as the moon from our vantage point. It moved perhaps 15-20 degrees to the north and then changed direction to an east/southeast movement until it was around five degrees shy of directly overhead and then faded out. There was a dimming and brightening more or less constantly during all this time, though it remained various intensities of red. It did not go through the white phase, we have seen periodically in the past. There was no sound associated with the sighting other than small planes in the sky that were all moving in directions away from the object. Thought you might like to know. There was another sighting reported in a different location by Carole Baker. Still another group reported a sighting from a different location, which was apparently the same object which we saw-based on their description.

As an aside, Whitley Strieber has been here for the last couple of days doing an article for Life Magazine and was present for another sighting in the Gulf Breeze area. See Carol's web site: www.deleree.com/skywatch-diary later in February for a more detailed report on these sightings.

First, for those who think we saw an airliner. We live in an area bounded by a very busy commercial airport (about 1 & 1/2 miles away). At times when using the east-west runway, they come in low only a few hundred yards from our back patio doors. We are quite aware of what airliners can and do look like as well as small private aircraft. Add to that the fact our boundaries include a busy Naval Air Station and one of the largest Air Force facilities in the U.S. Do we know what all of these aircraft look like? You bet. We have been studying these for years, just so we can recognize a UFO for what it is, rather than being an airliner, military jet, C-130's, etc. I forgot that you have no idea about "bubba" since none of you are apparently familiar with this area. The phenomena that has been on going here for the past 50 years.

The object was a rather brilliant at times red light -- it pulses from very bright to moderately bright and occasionally will disappear completely. Pulse rate is around 7.5 times per second (earth frequency for the uninitiated). (This has been pretty carefully checked a number of times on sequential video frames.) For the brilliant white phase it goes through at times (this particular sighting did not) the frequency is generally 30 times per second. It changes intensities between video frames at 1/30 second. There is no possibility of mistaking it for something else, we have witnessed these objects hundreds of times. We've even had up close and personal sightings. This includes a sighting of the what we call the Gulf Breeze craft where the port holes, etc., were quite visible. It hovered stationary and silently over the Shoreline Park area no more than a few hundred feet away. These are not imaginary, they are real. When you have had as many sightings of these craft as we have, there will no room in your minds for even considering the possibilities of mistaken identities or other mundane explanations to explain these objects away. Believe me, it would be much simpler to ignore these objects or even the possibility that there are such objects and get on with the more mundane aspects of everyday life. However, for those of you who have had abduction experiences, for example, you know very well, that that is no longer possible.

PENSACOLA BEACH: I quote exactly from Anne Morrison's report of the January 30, 1998, sightings. "Hi everyone, I wrote a brief description of the sightings we had this weekend, thought you might like to read them. Since, we did not use a compass and inclinometer the elevation and azimuths are just rough estimates. We were at Pensacola Beach, at water's edge, the Dunes Hotel at 6:27 p.m., looking to the north to north west at approximately 30 to 40 degrees elevation, we saw a stationary red light which varied slowly in intensity. As we watched, some witnesses had binoculars, it very slowly moved higher in the sky pulsing randomly as it moved. It was slowly moving toward the witnesses and took 8 to 10 minutes to come directly over our heads. Then it moved to the east of us and slowly faded to white, then disappeared. Almost immediately, someone spotted another steady red light due east, but only 5 to 7 degrees above the horizon and over the Gulf. It remained in that position for about 3 minutes then disappeared. There were several small planes in the sky at the same time and were easily recognized as same. There were twelve witnesses, eight of whom have a great deal of experience seeing the Gulf Breeze red light. The sky was completely clear with a very light wind from the south-southeast, the red object moved into the wind. The sighting lasted approximately 8 to 10 minutes.

On Saturday evening, January 31, 1998, we went to the last public parking lot and boardwalk on Fort Pickens Road before you go into Fort Pickens, Pensacola Beach. We had barely arrived when we saw a steady red light to the north-north west at about 7 degrees above the horizon. The red light was a long way from us as it was not as bright as the night before. It was so dim at times that it was difficult to see without the aid of binoculars. The light appeared at about 6:27 p.m., and remained in view for 22 minutes. It moved very slowly appearing higher in the sky and going more east. Because it was so far away it is difficult to assess its exact path from our location. At no time did any of us see any strobe lights, white or green with the red light. It was a single red light that varied randomly in intensity. There were some thin clouds in the distance. The sky over head was clear, the wind was light and from the south at 5 mph according to the weather report. There were 11 witnesses. Just a side note, one of my more "sensitive friends" says that the sightings will be increasing to an almost every night occurrence by Spring. Thanks to Ray Pollock and Ann Morrison.. Editor's Note: If you want to know more details about the Gulf Breeze sightings; I investigated in the late 80s and early 90s and wrote the foreword to Dr. Bruce Maccabee's and Ed Walter's excellent book: "UFOs Are Real, Here's the Proof" with are excellent photographs.

TAMPA, FLORIDA

Hello, My name is John Spicola and I believe I saw something about two weeks ago above Tampa, but the funny thing is no one wants to talk to me about it! I called two TV stations and all the media seems to be thinking about is the President's affairs! I am not the only one who saw lights that night. There were other reports by a TV station here in Tampa, WTVT Fox about the lights. I learned of the other people who saw them also. Here is my story. "It was 12:30 AM on a cool, but very clear Florida night, there were no clouds, no lighting that is very rare for a Florida evening. It was the middle of January, and it's beautiful here in the winter. I was walking my dog on the sidewalk next to my neighbor's house and all of a sudden there was this intense light. So stunning was this light that I cowered expecting to be hit by something falling. So fast and bright was this light it left me stunned for a couple of seconds. There was no noise, car, airplane, helicopter anywhere that I could hear. As my eyes adjusted to this brightness, the light turned into about twenty spotlights; shining on the street, the sidewalk, my dog, and me. I started to get mad. I said, to myself what helicopter, plane, could make these lights appear straight above me. I then instinctively looked over my right shoulder, and as I started to turn around the lights swirled to the right as if the object was spinning away. Again there was no sound. The whole thing took less than a minute and it was over. My little dog and I were just left there as he did not whince or bark the whole time. I had to ask myself what happened? I nervously walked back to my house and sat on my sofa. I had just been watching TV so I knew the exact time, only five minutes had past. I questioned my sanity for about a minute and said to myself something was out there, but what? Then there was nothing but clear bright sky and many stars. #### ARIZONA

Arizona's new UFO flap swept into its second week with hundreds of sightings reported in and around Phoenix and the city of Casa Grande. My position was

North of Casa Grande looking towards Phoenix, 30 miles away and looking in the NE direction. This was only one formation of the four formations I observed on January 18, 1998. This formation stayed basically fixed in this pattern for a solid thirty minutes while #4 moved around in the formation. At one point #4 gotten so bright I almost had to put the binoculars down. I had the impression in the back of my mind that it was going to land. A few seconds later, it dimmed to the intensity of the other three orange globe lights in this formation. There was constant activity in the other 3 formations off to the west, east and directly north of my position. I had a difficult time trying to watch all four formations, since these lights would wink out then back on in same position and then move close in and then out again. I could make out structure with the binoculars when the lights would dim on some of these orange globes. As I said, this activity was going on in the other formations of two and three white to orange lights but this formation really stood out. Then #4 really got bright. Brighter than I've ever seen on any video so far.. Thanks to Robert Michael C.

UNITED KINGDOM

Victor Kean reports there were hundreds of reports of large Flying Triangles (FT) over southeastern England last year. The Flying Triangles have, on occasion, been first observed in the North Sea off the Suffolk coast. They then generally visit one or more of the three coastal Nuclear Power Stations. Project FT' is fortunate to have a stable team of experienced observers in each of the main areas surrounding the Nuclear Power Stations (NPS). These began from the chance sighting of a FT by an avid ornithologist (bird watcher) who armed with binoculars and notepad began to record her sightings back in 1993. The idea spread from county to county--Suffolk, Essex, Kent and so on. Now our 'teams' work to a 'duty roster' and each FT sighting is 'confirmed' by the observer telephoning his fellow observers in the same area and getting them to look at the object. The three main observation groups are *not* in contact with each other, but channel they're observations into a central well-established UFO research group who collate all the reports. These in turn are checked and transmitted 'down the line' for entry into the project's database. Additional sighting reports from independent sources are verified by an experienced researcher before acceptance.

Tell those skeptics that no aircraft would hover for 2 to 25 minutes over a N.P. station...Just think of the consequences if it fell out of the sky due to some 'malfunction'. The first 100 FT 'Work Periods' (WP) of 1997 has now been entered into my Basic "FT Analysis" program. All these are from the UK's Nuclear Power Stations. Looking at the 'Elapsed Times' i.e. The time computed between the 'First' and 'Last' visit of each WP there is a noticeable decrease in these when the Full Moon is above the horizon. I do take your point that these are very small numbers i.e. only three (3) Full Moons but nevertheless the pattern holds for those first three. As you will appreciate, it will take time to enter the remaining WPs of the year. The sudden step down in recorded times after 02:00hrs on March 30th 1997 is also noticeable though these do climb back up over the following WPs. It is almost as if the FT 'controllers' realize from their NPS surveillance that a change has occurred in the routine of the NP plant. (Perhaps some particular exercise/ change occurs around 'Midnight' by the clock and this has now shifted by one hour. I shall try to find out from my sources if this is so.) There is a question of why should the FT be wary of being seen? We all thought they could make itself invisible. So, why doesn't it do so? More food for thought. Thanks to Victor J. Kean and Project FT.

TASMANIA

Information from the Australia, NZ. National UFO Hotline February 1.
 "Respondents report sighting two bright white triangular objects ripping through the night sky over Devenport, Tasmania at 11.55 PM. The first object sped passed at an incredible speed, a low altitude on a westerly heading. A few seconds later, another white triangular object flew past on the same course and bearing, however this object appeared to have a bright green light or glow following it. The objects appeared to be identical in shape and color, there was no sound. The objects were a definite right angle triangle shape, "they appeared to be like the broad swept back wing of a stealth or delta winged American spy craft". #### MARS

WASHINGTON (CNN) -- NASA officials unveiled a photograph February 2, 1998, that proves for the first time that there was once a flowing river meandering across the planet. Vice President Al Gore, who was on hand for the unveiling, joked that scientists can now say "a river ran through it." NASA scientists say the photograph does not confirm when the river existed. But they estimate that it was about 1 billion years ago. A second photo also unveiled Monday revealed evidence of horizontal layers on the surface of Mars -- which could prove Mars has something similar to the Grand Canyon in Arizona. Gore and NASA officials showed the pictures at a briefing on the research and development portions of President Clinton's proposed 1999 budget. The administration has proposed increasing spending for research and development to $78.2 billion. Gore described the discoveries about Mars as the "kinds of new facts that are so exciting to people in all fields." Gore said Clinton is earmarking $170 billion over five years for research and development, the largest commitment to "key civilian research" in U.S. history. " (CNN)

STANTON T. FRIEDMAN

Stanton appeared on the UPN television show, "Incident in Lake County," broadcast on January 20, 1998. I asked Stanton for his opinion of the show. He writes: "George: I have indeed expressed my strong feelings on the UFO Updates out of Toronto and on Monday night on the Jeff Rense and Art Bell shows. I was asked to be interviewed in Los Angeles by somebody doing a quick fix up of a show for Dick Clark Productions on alien abductions. A call on Dec. 31, arrangements on Jan. 1, fly to LA on Jan 2, (four time zones away). On Jan. 3, I was interviewed for over an hour by a woman very knowledgeable about UFO abductions. The questions were general. That evening I caught a red eye after spending three hours with my daughter. I was never shown the video. I was not asked about the video. I was asked questions about abductions, which I answered to the best of my ability having been involved for 30 years with various abductees such as Betty and Barney Hill, Travis Walton, etc. The show was not broadcast here so I only recently saw a tape. There is no question that the video is a dramatic non factual, fiction effort, and not a very good one. I have contacted the FCC, Dick Clark Productions, and UPN because I understand that much of their press advertising was deceptive and because the show will apparently be broadcast again after Feb. 20. No news to report. At the very least there should have been a disclaimer saying none of the Experts had viewed the video prior to their interviews or were asked about it. No press listings should have had it under documentaries. I responded to many E-mail complaints. Nobody complained about what I said or how I said it. False arguments were made that the show involved the notorious Robert Kiviat of Alien Autopsy fame. Regards, Stan Friedman.
Editors Note: Stan did a good job on the show. However, he agrees with us that the show was a non-factual, fictional dramatic presentation and not the actual documentary of an abduction they advertised.

ASTRONAUT EDGAR MITCHELL

MUFON's John Thompson writes. "By pure coincidence after getting CSETI's e-mail this morning, urging all to contact their federal representatives to ask for congressional hearings on UFOs, Dr. Edgar Mitchell, former moon walker, was on the United Broadcasting Network (UBN) Radio today. Knowing that he was involved in Dr. Steven Greer's CSETI effort, I called UBN and was able to talk to him. He said, Many think that efforts for Congressional UFO Hearings have gone no where, but the real news is that behind the scenes many congressional leaders have been agreeing, that they should take place. It is Mitchell's belief that Congressional Hearings will take place and they may be started relatively soon.
It was encouraging to hear this from him and it is clear that he thinks momentum is still building. P.S.: I just received another e-mail from Tony Craddock of CSETI who says "committee chairs" should be contacted and not "local representatives. Draft up a letter or fax, and send now." Thanks to John Thompson our former Georgia Director who always does a great job. He is now our State Section Director.

GOVERNMENT AND UFOs

There are indications that our government for the first time in thirty years is starting to take UFOs more seriously. This may be in part caused by MUFON, the Fund for UFO Research, CUFOs, Skywatch International, ISUR, Citizens Against UFO Secrecy and particularly CESTI all campaigning for a Congressional Hearings into the matter. The White House has apparently directed specific questions about UFOs to various branches of government. Astronauts Edgar Mitchell, Gordon Cooper and many former military personnel have spoken out on what they know. The D.C. briefing to Congressional staff personnel that I participated in on April 9th may be bearing fruit. Also, these Files your reading are being sent to several congressman. Meanwhile, new technology is beginning to explain the flight characteristics of UFOs.

Extensive wind tunnel tests at comparatively slow speeds indicated the disc shape was not an effective airfoil for flight. Further, tests indicated the disc unstable in flight. However, new data from Mach 25 shock wind tunnel tests indicate the shape is ideal at high speeds. In an Aviation Week & Space Technology, (5/15/95, pages 66 & 67), article entitled 'Air Spike' Could Ease Hypersonic Flight Problems." The article discusses means of creating a plasma sheath around an air vehicle to prevent overheating at hypersonic speeds. The research was done at the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute. "With this capability, traditional hypersonic design rules would change, and ultra-light, blunt-bodied, lens-shaped or saucer-shaped single-stage-to-orbit vehicles could emerge." Steven J. Dunn of Current Encounters states, "If you follow the descriptions of the test vehicles used in the Mach 25 shock tunnel, you will find configurations that match common the photographs of UFOs. The shock tunnel studies have proved that the disc shaped objects are ideally suited for travelling at 25 times the speed of sound or roughly 15,000 mph. These speeds are ideal for getting a craft into orbit around the Earth. These studies prove what Ufologists have known for years. UFOs have an excellent design for high speed travel.

My speculation is that White House and Ufologist pressure has created a need for our intelligence satellites to scan the heavens for potential alien invaders. Some of our intelligence satellites are not only scanning the Earth for a possible enemy threat, but piggy backed on these satellites are sensors looking out an scanning deep space. The sensors have recently been programmed to pick up fast moving objects known as 'Fast Walkers' as far out in space as the asteroid belt. Early indications are that UFO 'Fast Walkers' are now being tracked in deep space. Our sensors and computers at NORAD keep track of all known objects in Earth orbit. These are called, 'Correlated Targets.' Unconfirmed reports are that at least once a week, an unidentified or 'Uncorrelated Target' is tracked entering the atmosphere. "These unidentified returns not in our computer data banks, may be alien space craft." Some unidentified or Uncorrelated Targets also leave the Earth's atmosphere. The organization now responsible for keeping track of the unidentified objects is the new Imagery and Mapping Agency, (IMA). If craft are reaching us from space, they appear to be in very small numbers. Further, the speculation is that the craft may be entering and leaving the oceans or secret bases. The possibility that underwater bases are being used is gaining support.

JJ,

No, a lens flare could not behave as described, UNLESS it was only seen through the viewfinder of the camera. This JPEG that Errol sent is not high res enough to stand much enlargement, but it has all of the characteristics of lens flare caused by the sun just outside the image frame as it would show up in a cheap camera with a circular aperture. Better cameras usually have hexagonal, pentagonal or octagonal apertures, and the lens flares assume those shapes.

It would help to know precisely what brand and model of camera was used and what type of film.

In the meanwhile, I don't think there is much profit in attempting communication with lens flares.

I have seen these "swirls" in a backyard in the Los Angeles area (at least I assume these are what you are referring to). They were brand new and looked very much like the pictures associated with the Billy Meier case. These swirls appeared the night that the inhabitants in the house saw a lot of red light filtering in from the backyard.

They aren't. They may be excluding themselves, but that's a different idea. ;-)

Cave art shows many examples of modern day-style Greys and other nonhuman forms. John Carpenter has assembled a lecture on this subject and you can hear him discuss this briefly as part of his interview now available via Netshow at:

Hi Alex!!

May I ask you, the WITNESS to this event, whether YOU felt that you had experienced some form of "communication" with the "unknown?" You did briefly mention the subject, but would you be willing to elaborate on that at all?

I also notice that this discussion has strayed into the realms of proving or disproving something to be a LENS FLARE. I did not even post your photographs!!!! I was commenting on your description of the sighting.

My original question was that of "communication" and whether other list members had experienced same when observing such "objects."
Best wishes.

HI DREW,

The image has the orb in that location because as it was moving , while it was doing its "thing" I was trying to capture it on film , I took many pics during this event and never saw any lens flare through my camera . It is not like the orb posed or stood still for me to film it, as soon as I saw it in the camera I took pics, Where it ended up it ended up. I already said that I agree it looks like lens flare but I know it was not. There is probably no way I could prove this even if I had 100 other witnesses , it appears that as long as the so called "experts" voice there opinions that is the final word, well I think the "experts" should start to understand that it is possible for them to make an incorrect assesment of something. If I saw any lens flare through the camera during this I would say so, I do not want false or misleading info to be presented to the ufo community. The orb was very much the color in the pic and I guess it is possible for lens flare and the orb to be close in colors.

I am not new to the ufo field and have many years of experience and I do not put out what I believe are false reports or pictures.

Is it possible for any of the film "experts" to plot the lens in the camera to know if the camera is capable of producing lens flare at that part of the lens? Is it impossible to get lens flare in the middle / center of a image? I do have other pics of this ORB and I might consider releasing them if I can be convinced that this is lens flare but so far no one in my opinion has done that.

I have seen many orb pics, some were of orbs of different colors some white and most if not all were called lens flare by the "experts" at some point in time. So I guess as long as a orb is the color and in a possible posiotin to be considered lens flare, thats what the "experts" will call it, even if that is incorrect.

I thank all the people who have emailed with there opinions and am not in the least bit bothered by the negative ones, I think this is what should be.

So, I do not know what else I can say about the event except I would be glad to take a lie detector test / voice stress analysis etc to help support what I claimed happened.

thanks,
ALEX CAVALLARI

I'm pretty sure its a french Eurocopter (or Aerospatiale) AS350 "Squirrel" A pretty common aircraft in our skies here and widely used by all sorts of civil organisations. I think they may be sold under a different name in the US. The nose mount is a little unusual..all Ive seen use a mounting underneath just forward of the tail boom for spotlights/cameras etc..but thats probably just one option.

I, too, would be eager to see any and all interested archaeologists involved with ufology based solely upon the premise of these "ancient astronauts" theories that have been popular since perhaps the late 60's/early 70's. I'm not sure whether or not I agree with them (proponents), but it does deserve a closer SCIENTIFIC evaluation then it has gotten to this point. Good luck, my friend.

Ted Phillips has collected more than 5000 physical trace cases wherein people saw the saucer on or near the ground and subsequently the rings or circles were observed. I think there needs to be a far better definition of what is meant by circles.. NOT crop circles but not collections of stones either.

Which pictures?

Hi Bob,

There's a lot to your last conjecture! This is precisely what's happened over and over. At night they often flash red, green & white lights to simulate aircraft lighting, but do it wrong in some fashion to let the careful observer know. I think Bruce Cornet was perhaps the first to document on video or film at night the abrupt transformation of what looked rather like aircraft lighting to what had to be a UFO.

And then there're the black "helicopters" that have flown recklessly low around abductees' houses, etc., and sometimes made no noise whatsoever. (I don't buy the idea that our military has been able to develop totally silent helicopters, and then engage in such maneuvers.)

And then there are the UFOs at night that are just points of light, and when they don't dart around they just hover still and pass themselves off as a star. Prof. Harley Rutledge (sp?) has documented some of them.

And then there were the pseudo-airships of the 1890s that Jerry Clark once investigated and wrote up.

So a flying lens flare seems to be the latest.

Bob, Bruce and list members,

At great risk of starting the 'Eyewitness Testimony' thread again, I don't think it should be given much credence at all. It is impossible to examine eyewitness testimony under a magnifying glass or any other technique.

At great risk of raising the rule of Parsimony, or 'Occam's Razor' thread again, we should be looking for the simplest solution before we resort to extraterrestrials.

That's my two cents. How much would two cents weigh? <g>

Posting Rules

To help current and future readers of UFO UpDates' posts and the UFO UpDates Instant Archive software at:

<http://www.ufomind.com/ufo/updates>

please observe the following rules when posting to the List.

1. Line-length

Please make your lines no more than 70 characters long

-----This line is 70 characters-----

Longer lines are wrapped by various pieces of software along the Net and leave awkward and eye-jarring line lengths.

2. Attribution

When responding to a message from the List, always include the four line 'header' from the body of that message at the start of your message - eg.:

>Date: 01 Jan 97 00:00:01 EST
>From: Genghis@mukluk.com <Bob Bobberts>
>To: UFO UpDates - Toronto <updates@globalserve.net>
>Subject: UFO UpDate: Grays are Grey Area

Again - it's at the beginning of the 'body' of the message you are responding to.

3. Quoting

Always quote from the message to which you are responding.

Quotes should come before you key your response.

Start each quoted line with a 'greater-than' sign (>) as the first character. It should look like this:

>Start each quoted line with a 'greater-than' sign (>) as the >first character. It should look like this:

Keep quoted material from previous messages to a minimum: Just quote enough text to let people know what you are referring to.

Messages that do not utilize the required quoting protocol or contain excessive quoting will not be posted to UpDates.

The Archive software will automatically italicize these lines. Visit the Archive page and take a look.

Most modern E-Mail software will allow the user to click a 'Reply' button and automatically open a new window, with the message being responded to inserted with universal quote-mark (>) at the beginning of each line.

When 'Reply' is clicked, some E-Mail software will insert a line which states:

On 01 Jan 97 at 00:00:01 EST, UFO UpDates wrote:

If your program does this, please remove it - UFO UpDates did not write the message - it merely posted it to the List.

5. Don't send 'personal' responses to the list that should be sent directly to the original author. Send a message to the list only if it contains new information that you want everyone to see.

Messages that contain what the List Administrator considers to be personal attacks or 'flames' will not be posted to the List. Those messages will be forwarded to the person they refer to for their information.

6. URLs (Web Site addresses) must include 'http://' and be on one line. The Archive software will make the URL a 'click-able' link to that address in your archived message.

Alex,

Don't even waste your time responding to people who aren't taking you seriously and trying to make you look like a hoaxer. How many times do you have to tell them that you saw it with your eyes? If people can help you great, but if all they want to do is question your intelligence then you have to ask yourself, why?

Even if the 'object' was a lens flare, (and I doubt that it was since you said you saw it with your eyes first) that doesn't answer Jennifer's question regarding the success of telepathically communicating with such objects.

Let me try to get an answer for you. This is for anybody on this List who can help Jennifer out. If I see a big grey, silvery disc shaped object hovering over my house, and 20 people in attendance all see it too, how could we try to communicate with it? Has anybody had luck in trying to communicate with similar unknown objects? Please address your experiences to Jennifer or Alex.

Thanks!

Thank you for the Selkirk, Manitoba 22JLY54 sighting.

I already had the Winnipeg sighting, (about an hour earlier or 1930 hrs ) which states that very similar objects were seen headed West. This is good verification from a totally independant source, and I am adding Selkirk to the *U* UFO Database.

Bruce,

I think it is lens flare.

That DOES NOT mean that the photographer didn't see anything.

To me it just means that the photographer didn't capture it on film, but when the film came back the convenient lens flare was latched onto as a photo of the sphere.

I'm waiting for info on the camera brand and model number. If the camera does not have a round lens aperture, then it might not be lens flare. I am pretty confident that it will turn out that this was taken with a camera with round "Waterhouse stop" diaphragm instead of a multi blade hex design.

Drew:

In ufology some people's two cents out weigh other people's million dollars. If it didn't, we would all now be on the 'Heaven's Gate' ship. Or we wouldn't have nearly the number of impoverished ufologists we now do. <BG>

Thanks.

Hi Alex,

What happens is that some of the people who subscribe to the list don't read all of the data that comes in but just target certain areas. I find this a bit maddening because you have to keep explaining yourself over and over, thereby making yourself look defensive.

I've had this happen to me more than a few times and I won't waste my time on it.

The guy sez, he saw the thing then took a picture of it. Accept that and move on, otherwise you're calling him a liar. If we took that attitude with all of our witnesses, and it got around, where the hell would we be?

Alex,

In all of your posts it is like you are evading the one important question I asked, WHAT camera did you use??

If you had a non-SLR camera, you could not see lens flare even if it was there. If you had an SLR, most of the time you would not see the lens flare because the lens is wide open for viewing, but the diaphragm closes down to take the picture. Lens flare is more likely at smaller diaphragm openings.

Tell us about the camera!!!!!!!

Communication with UFOs?

>that you had experienced some form of "communication" with the >willing to elaborate on that at all?

JJ,

Your interest in communication prompts me to post this to you.

In the summer of 1974 while looking at the night sky, and using a small telescope. My son and I were attracted to a yellow cast light low on the horizon. We tried to focus on it but could not and soon found that it seemed to be moving toward us. Almost as though we attracted it? It moved closer and we moved out of the shadows into a clear field next to our house. The light stopped moving toward us and now started to move north passing in front of us.

It moved too slowly to be an airplane. It made no sound and could not have been a balloon. Suddenly the light went out. I made mental note of where it went out. It was almost under a big star. As we stood there looking and wondering the light came back on. It had passed under the star and continued on. It never changed it's slow speed but the light did go off again several times.

Finally leaving our field of view we went to bed. The next day I awoke with a compulsion. Over and over I relived the event. I have never had an experience effect me like that. I worked the afternoon shift at the time so I didn't return home until after midnight. I was compelled to go to the field to visualize again the events of the night before. As I imagined the place in the sky where the light went out I saw that the big bright star was gone. As soon as I became aware that the big bright star was no star, my compulsion was gone. I have often wondered how the compulsion was turned on and off, and if that experience was designed to convince me that there are more living here than just mankind. If so it worked. Strange as it may seem a friend that I worked with also had a similar experience.

This may not be communication as you would expect, but I felt moved to share it with you.

Alex,

Yes I read your story, and I am not calling you a liar.

You may well have seen an orb and photographed lens flare and missed the orb in the photo. It would not be the first time.

I still am convinced that the photo shows nothing but lens flare. Doesn't say anything about your story one way or the other.

Please supply technical info on camera. Brand, model number, etc., as well as film brand and type. This info should ALWAYS accompany any purported UFO photograph.

Jim,

I do think our military has developed silent aircraft.
Technically it is just a matter of wave dynamics and generating sound waves to cancel out those made by the aircraft. The technology is very simple, but the amplifier power would be the difficult part. But maybe there is a way to feed the cancelling waves directly into the structure of the aircraft, in which case they could be dead silent.

>Stan Friedman

Oh, by the way Stan...

In my previous message to you regarding this topic, I neglected to mention another incident, which left more than just 'trace' elements.

A farmer in Western Daviess County, saw a light descend behind the trees on his farm and appear to land. Since it was dark, he did not want to stumble around out there in the dark, so he waited until the next morning.

The next morning he surveyed the area where he had seen the object appear to land, and didn't find anything. This was in late winter.

When he started his spring plowing, he noticed something interesting in the area where he remembered seeing the light descend into his field.

The field was still slightly frozen near the tree and fence line. He walked over to the object and noticed that it was an imprint, pressed and compacted into the mud, of a small disk about three inches in diameter, with a nipple about two inches long protruding from the bottom of it. Since it was hard and compacted, he picked it and took it home with him and made a plaster cast of the imprint.

After it was examined, it looked as though it could have been a "pressure" sensor attached to the foot of a larger foot pad. In other words, the nipple was the first thing to become imbedded in the soil, followed by the small three inch disk, which supposedly measured the density and integrity of the soil, so it could be determined if the large landing pad could be supported by the soil.

Sure this is all speculation, but, one thing is sure. I have seen the plaster cast of this casting. I have a video copy of it.

The thing just "popped" up out of the ground intact when the spring thaw happened.

This is the only "evidence" the farmer had to support his sighting.

Just another tid bit of history from Space_Link UFO Archives.

>Stan Friedman

Hi Stan...

Back in 1967, I investigated a "burned circle" in a farmer's soy bean field. I took samples of the dried bean plants and the soil within the circle. The circle was about 30 feet across.

The farmer described hearing a noise like squeeling tires, and thought some young people may have been using the straight stretch of roadway by his house to drag race. Coming out on his front porch, he heard a slight "pop" sound and caught a glimpse of a flash of light out of the corner of his left eye. He turned his head toward the flash and sound, to see what he described as a beer can shaped object rising straight up out of his soy bean field (approx) 100 yards from his front porch. He described what appeared to be a trail of flame emitting from the rear of this object.

He then stated that the object rose to an altitude of approximately 100 feet, tilted over in a horizontal position, and preceed to exit the area very quickly toward the North.

An associate of mine, who had access to a small Cessna later flew over the field and took photographs. They showed a "V" shaped pattern of "burned" soy bean plant tops in the direction which the farmer said the object departed, or North. The "V" pattern was about the width of the circle at the edge of said circle, and stretched out about a 100 feet as it narrowed in the direction the object disappeared.

The farmer said the object was completely out of sight in no more than 30 seconds at most, growing smaller as it proceeded in direct flight North.

Getting back to the samples I took, I sent them to NICAP along with a description of the incident.

About six weeks later, I received a return letter from NICAP, thanking me for sending the plants and the report, advising me they would contact the gentleman themselves to continue the investigation.

That was the last I heard from them.

I did not follow up on the investigation. I had photographs, soil and plant samples and a tape recording of the conversation with the farmer. He had my phone number in case any such event occurred again.

I have never heard from him again. I would suspect that it is highly likely that this person is deceased today, nearly 30 years later. He was in his late 50's to early 60's back then...I can't remember right off of the top of my head.

Just thought you might like to hear about this case from my "UFO ARCHIVES."

BLACK HELICOPTER CHASES
UFO OVER BROOKLYN

On Sunday, February 1, 1998, at 4:20 p.m., Alex Cavallari, New York state director of Skywatch International, was at his home in the Sheepshead Bay section of Brooklyn, N.Y. when he spied a luminous red-orange sphere in the sky.

"It was a nice day, and I had to go outside on the roof of my house to adjust my radio antenna because some high winds had shifted its position," reported Cavallari, who is a ham radio enthusiast with the call letters KB2NYV.

Cavallari saw "a small orange/red colored light dot in the eastern sky" near Nostrand Avenue. Thinking it was a smudge on his glasses, he immediately cleaned the lenses and looked again. "I scanned the sky for a couple of seconds and, all of a sudden, the UFO appeared. It just appeared from nowhere."

"This time it was much bigger and clearer," he added. "But the size or diameter of a cigarette (1/4 inch) (0.5 centimeters--J.T.) at arm's length. I went inside and got my camera," a Minolta 35mm with 12X maximum zoom.

Returning outside, he looked for the UFO again and "it just appeared and swooped down in front of me and then it stopped for about three seconds and then it disappeared."

At its point of closest approach, the UFO "was bigger than the moon." Setting the camera on maximum zoom, he scanned the sky through the viewfinder, hoping for another glimpse of the UFO.

Six minutes later, turning to the north, he spied "a small colored dot" over Avenue X. "I aimed the camera, and it turned to the left, west, and it is right in front of me. I take one picture. The UFO started to move forward and down towards me and then stopped. It was the size of a basketball when viewed at arm's length--a bright red, orange, yellow and white orb. It appeared to be a solid mass of light."

Keeping the camera on it, Cavallari shot two more photos. "Then it flew for the right, north, stopped for about a second, and was no longer visible."

At 4:20 p.m., Cavallari was in the house washing up "when I heard the sound of a helicopter over the house. I went and got the camera and walked out onto the back porch. There was what looked like a black helicopter hovering directly over my house at about 1,500 to 2,000 feet."

Aiming the camera, Cavallari shot one photo of the black helicopter before running out of film.

"The helicopter did not appear to have any numbers or identification on it," he reported. "It did make a 'typical' sound a helicopter makes. It hovered for about two minutes. During that time, it appeared as if it was spraying" some sort of mist "from the bottom of the helicopter onto the ground and houses below."

While watching the helicopter, Cavallari's glasses became covered with some of the mist. Carefully he wiped them off and retrieved a sample of the mist.

Then "the helicopter turned and dipped its front end as if it was looking at me. It hovered in this position for about thirty seconds and then turned as it hovered and headed towards the (same) direction as the UFO sphere/orb. It headed for the southwest," towards Neptune Avenue and Brighton Beach.

Copies of the UFO and black helicopter photos are available in digital form. Readers can send a request to XELAUFO@aol.com. (Many thanks to Alex Cavallari for letting UFO ROUNDUP quote from his report.)

STRANGE TUBE-SHAPED UFO APPEARS IN LEANDER, TEXAS

On Saturday, January 24, 1998, at 3:20 p.m., D.B. Michael was at his home in Leander, Texas (population 3,398) when he received a phone call from his brother, Dave, asking him to hurry outside, "You've got to see this!"

Leander is on Highway 183 about 23 miles north of Austin, the state capital.

"He and (D.B.'s son) Daniel were in their backyard, which joins mine." Hurrying outside, D.B. "observed the object moving in a northerly direction," describing the UFO as "a cylinder object that was positioned upright, not oblong."

The men shot several photos of the UFO with their two 35mm cameras while "the object stayed vertical without any rotation."

"We followed it on U.S. Highway 183 heading off at (county highway) 2243 East. We then travelled on 2243 East and pulled off the road. It passed over us...We then commenced east again intending to go to Interstate (Highway) 35 and intercept it again."

Just then, "a dark helicopter was observed flying for the south at an altitude of about 500 feet," he added, "Reaching I-35, we looked about but found nothing. We traveled west on Highway 29. We observed three jet aircraft that appeared to be in V formation...in a flight that that would have intercepted the object if it had continued in the direction of travel last seen by us." (Many thanks to Steve Wilson Sr. for this report.)

MYSTERIOUS LIGHTS SEEN IN SAN BERNARDINO

On Saturday, January 24, 1998, at 9:30 p.m., Doris W. was at home in San Bernardino, California (population 164,164), a large city on Interstate Highway 10 approximately 63 miles (101 kilometers) east of Los Angeles, when she got a real surprise.

When her son came home from work, Doris reported, "I opened the door and behind him were three large lights like the colors of the sky when seen first thing in the morning."

Doris noticed "that the three lights were side by side in a straight longitudinal position."

"I asked my son what they were. He turned around to look and immediately got his camera."

Meanwhile, Doris went across the street and alerted her neighbors. Soon there were six people on the sidewalk, looking up at the lights. "One of the lights moved eastward and vanished. The other two were in the southern part of the sky. When a jet approached us, they disappeared without a trace." (Many thanks to Tim Hagemester of NACOMM for this report.)

THREE-DAY UFO FLAP HITS

PENSACOLA, FLORIDA

Skywatchers just south of Pensacola, Florida (population 58,615) had their patience rewarded when a red spherical UFO appeared for three nights straight over the Gulf of Mexico.

Pensacola is 195 miles (312 kilometers) west of Tallahassee, the state capital.

On Thursday, January 29, 1998, Roy and Elsie Pollock of Florida MUFON spied a UFO over the city at 6:22 p.m.

"It was a typical red light 'Bubba,'" he reported, like those seen on many occasions in nearby Gulf Breeze, Florida. "It appeared approximately halfway between the horizon" and the zenith, and "gradually moved north and rising until it was the same elevation in the sky as the moon. It moved perhaps 15 to 20 degrees to the west and then changed direction to an east/southeast movement."

"The object was a mostly brilliant at times red red light--it pulsed from very bright to mediumly bright and occasionally will disappear completely. Pulse rate is about 7.5 times per second...It hovered rotating and silently over the Shoreline Park area."

The following night, Friday, January 30, 1998, Anne Morrison and her fellow skywatchers set up camp in Pensacola Beach (population 4,000) on Highway 399 just south of the city.

"We were at Pensacola Beach, at water's edge, at the Dunes Hotel at 6:07 p.m.," she reported. "Looking to the northwest at approximately 30 to 40 degrees elevation. As we watched...it very slowly moved higher in the sky, pulsing randomly. It was slowly coming towards" the beach "and took eight to ten minutes to come directly over our heads. Then it moved to the east of us...then disappeared."

The 12 skywatchers then saw "another steady red object in the east, but only five to seven degrees above the horizon and over the Gulf (of Mexico). It remained in this position for about three minutes, then disappeared. There were 12 witnesses, eight of whom have a great deal of experience seeing the Gulf Breeze red object."

The next night, Saturday, January 31, 1998, at 6:27 p.m., the skywatchers went to the last public parking lot on Fort Pickens Road in Pensacola Beach.

"We had barely arrived when we saw a steady red light to the north/northwest at about seven degrees above the horizon. The red light made a long arc above us and was not as bright as the night before." The UFO "remained in view for 22 minutes. It moved very slowly, appearing higher in the sky and going more east." (See Filer's Files #5 for 1998. Many thanks to George A. Filer, Ray Pollock and Anne Morrison of MUFON for these reports.)

UK MEN SPOT A UFO OVER GREAT BENTLY, ESSEX

On December 3, 1997, at 8 p.m., two men, one 18, the other 34, were walking in Great Bently, Essex, about 55 miles (88 kilometers) northeast of London when they spied a strange light in the sky.

"To start with, it was very small," the younger witness reported, "Only about the size of a normal aeroplane light. But as it got closer to us, it got bigger and at one point it was much bigger than a coin held at arm's length."

"We saw it up close for thirty seconds, but it was in view for at least a few minutes. It passed directly overhead at one point. The colour was white. The object seemed to be giving out light all over its surface."

"It came from the northeast and departed towards the southwest. It wasn't very high up. It was much lower than a normal plane, probably only about 100 feet (30 meters). It traveled much faster at first, but seemed to slow down when it passed over me." (Email Interview)

ITALIAN COUPLE VIDEOTAPES A UFO OVER CASSINO

On Tuesday, January 20, 1998, at 7:20 a.m., an Italian husband and wife spied a UFO over the small city of Cassino, 160 kilometers (100 miles) south of Rome.

The UFO was also seen in Cervara.

When they first saw the UFO, "it moved slowly from near the ascendant (zenith)" and flew in a horizontal trajectory.

Five minutes later, the silvery object returned, and "when the phenomenon repeated itself, the spouses got a camera and filmed it for seven minutes on videotape."

The case is being investigated by Giovanni Ascione, Antonio Cecere, Mario de Luca and Enzo Paliotti of Centro Italiano di Studi Ufologici. (Grazie a Edoardo Russo di CISU per questo rapporto.)

TWO TRIANGULAR UFOs FLY OVER NORTHERN TASMANIA

On Monday, February 2, 1998, at 11:55 p.m., witnesses in Devonport, on Australia's Bass Strait on the north shore of Tasmania "spotted two bright light triangular objects ripping through the night sky."

"The first object sped past at an incredible speed, at a low altitude on a westerly heading. A few seconds later, another white triangular object flew past on the same course and bearing. However, this object appeared to have a green light or glow following it. The objects appeared to be identical in shape and colour. There was no sound. The objects were definitely a right-angle triangle shape, that appeared to be like the broad swept-back wing of a Stealth or delta-winged American" aircraft. (Many thanks to Ross Dowe of Australia-New Zealand National UFO Hotline for this report.)

CASHMAN SOLVES MYSTERY OF THE CHESHIRE LIGHTS

A recent UFO has now been identified, thanks to the investigative work of Mark Cashman, assistant director of Connecticut MUFON.

On Friday, January 16, 1998, motorists spotted mysterious bluish-white flashes near Cheshire, Connecticut, about 25 miles (32 kilometers) south of Hartford. Mark Cashman subsequently talked with two of the eyewitnesses.

The incident took place between 10:45 and 11 p.m., Cashman said. "The other witness indicated that the cars were driving west on (Highway) 691, heading for (Interstate Highway) I-84, and the flashes were about 15 degrees behind the car, which would mean that the (initial) Sleeping Giant (state park) location just wasn't possible."

"I plotted the sight lines on a map based on information taken from the witnesses," he added, "and the sight lines converge at the densest part of Meriden, Connecticut."

Cashman then contacted the power company in Meriden and learned that "86,000 customers in that area were without power and transformer problems" as a result of the ice storm "could have caused the flashes."

"An arcing power line and certain kinds of transformer problems can cause extremely bright blue-white flashes of the kind reported." Based on this information, the recent Connecticut UFO should be classified as "identified." (Email Interview)

BLACK HELICOPTER FLYBY IN LEBANON, INDIANA

On December 28, 1997, a farm family living near Lebanon, Indiana (population 12,059), located on Interstate Highway I-65 approximately 27 miles (43 kilometers) northwest of Indianapolis, reported a black helicopter flying very low and very fast over their property.

According to Lawrence R., the "helicopter passed directly over our place. It stirred up a pack of coyotes-- they started yapping and howling in the field beyond our barnyard." (See Farm and Ranch Living for February/March 1998, page 47)

L.A.'S BRENTWOOD SECTION HAS A MYSTERIOUS PAST

What do Monica Lewinsky, O.J. Simpson and Cindy Crawford have in common?

They all live in Brentwood, an upscale neighborhood in the west end of Los Angeles.

"And when the upscale Brentwood district was recovering from the notoriety and gawkers brought by the O.J. Simpson case, the juggernaut of news coverage descended for a second time upon Bundy Drive, Gretna Green Way and other streets familiar to trial watchers." (See USA Today for February 5, 1998, page 3-A.)

"'It's a little deja vu,' said Elaine Katz, 40, strolling past the scene with her leashed saluki-shepherd mix, Shayne."

"Retired schoolteacher Joan Taylor, 75, struggled in vain to pull her family's Scotch terrier past the staked-out journalists. 'He wants to see what's going on,' Taylor said, 'I can hardly drag him home.'" (USA Today, February 5, 1998, ibid.)

"Lewinsky's father, Bernard, lives just a few blocks from the condo where Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman were knifed to death in 1994." Nicole's condo is at 875 South Bundy Drive.

"The oncologist's home is also not far from O.J.'s old estate" at 360 North Rockingham Avenue "where the media camped out for months before and after his sensational murder trial."

"Los Angeles Police Department Sgt. Terri Brinkmeyer said cops expected 'a media circus' in Brentwood. 'But we're used to that, especially in this area.'" (See the New York Post for February 4, 1998, "Circus Is Back in Brentwood," page 3)

Probably neither the Lewinskys nor O.J. nor supermodel Cindy Crawford, who owns "a 4,000-square-foot, four-bedroom, Spanish-hacienda-style home in Brentwood" (See the Globe for February 10, 1998) are aware of the strange events that occurred in the district back in January 1934, which resulted in some wild claims and a mysterious disappearance.

In 1933, self-styled inventor and mining engineer G. Warren Shufelt came to Los Angeles, hoping to interest backers in his "radio X-ray" device, a kind of early-day subterranean sonar.

Visiting Brentwood, then a new post-World War One subdivision, Shufelt tested his invention and discovered underground tunnels running south to Santa Monica and the ocean. He also discovered tunnels deep beneath Dodger Stadium, the Central Library and Fort Moore Hill, now site of the Los Angeles Unified School District headquarters.

"To understand his find, Shufelt said he took his secret to Arizona, to a famous Hopi Indian leader known as Chief Greenleaf."

"The Hopi tale the chief told him begins about 3,000 B.C. with a highly advanced race known as the Lizard People. According to legend, after a fire or meteor nearly destroyed their culture, the mysterious race built three underground cities along the Pacific coast."

"The capital of this underground world was said to be beneath downtown Los Angeles. (Another city was under Mount Shasta and nobody knows where the third city was.) Caverns and tunnels housing a thousand families supposedly were created with an unknown chemical solution that melted bedrock. Tunnels and rooms were said to be filled with gold--then a symbol of long life rather than wealth--and lined with a cement superior to any known to modern man."

"The legendary lost city of tunnels was built in the shape of a lizard, also a Hopi symbol for longevity." (See the Los Angeles Times for July 22, 1996, "L.A. Scene--The City Then and Now" by Cecilia Rasmussen.)

The Brentwood tunnel supposedly runs parallel to Sunset Boulevard, turning south beyond Bundy Drive, crossing San Vicente Boulevard and passing under the Brentwood Country Club before heading for Santa Monica.

Shufelt announced his plans to excavate the reputed "temple room" under Fort Moore Hill. (See the Los Angeles Times for January 29, 1934.)

"The city gave Shufelt permission to drill down to 1,000 feet, but after only reaching 350 feet, drilling stopped for fear of a cave-in. Breathless newspaper accounts were never followed up, and Shufelt disappeared." (Los Angeles Times, July 22, 1996)

A local psychic of the 1930s, Edith Elden Robinson of Paco Rivera said she had a vision of "a vast city...in mammoth tunnels extending to the seashore," with a few running under Brentwood. (Editor's Comment: Prehistoric tunnels have also been found under Rome, Italy, apparently predating the Etruscan period, 1300 to 300 B.C. The Etruscans, a.k.a. the Rasenna, founded "Roma" on the site of an earlier city--Saturnia.)

1967: UFO CHASES AIRLINER OVER PERU

On February 2, 1967, a Douglas DC-4 airliner owned by Faucett Airlines took off from Piura in northern Peru. The four-engine propellor airliner was headed south to Lima, the national capital.

Flying the DC-4 was Captain Osvaldo Sanvitti and a crew of six. There were 52 passengers on board, including Colonel Alberto Rosell of the Peruvian Army.

As the DC-4 flew over Chiclayo, Capt. Sanvitti reported, "We were at an altitude of 7,000 feet when I suddenly noticed a luminous object to the right of the plane. It was beginning to get dark (about 7 p.m. February is summer in Peru--J.T.) and the object, which emitted a very strong light, was shaped like a reversed cone. It was more or less at eight miles (12 kilometers) from the plane, flying at the same speed, same altitude and keeping the same direction. In other words, it was flying in line with our plane as if it wanted to observe us closely."

"As I was observing it myself," he reported, "I saw it making a number of movements, all of which were done at a fantastic speed. It darted vertically in the air several times and then returned to its original place. I alerted my crew and then I told the passengers to watch the UFO. I told them that, in my opinion, it was observing us."

"The object followed us for a while to our right, making ascending and descending maneuvers from time to time, but always following our plane in a parallel route. Then, suddenly, it flew towards us like an arrow, passing above the plane. While doing this, it emitted flashes of vivid colors."

"When it approached the plane, it had a bluish light on its upper part and a red light below. But when it passed above us, I saw that its lower section was shaped like a funnel. I estimated that the upper section, which was the largest, had a diameter of about 230 feet. After passing above us, the UFO took a position to our left, at a distance of two miles from the plane."

Picking up his microphone, Capt. Sanvitti tried to contact the tower at Aeropuerto Jorge Chavez in Lima. He wanted to report the sighting, but all he got on the radio was static.

Meanwhile, in Lima, airport manager Edwin Boris "was very worried by the fact that Capt. Sanvitti was not in touch with us. I was unable to make any communication either with him or his plane."

Back on the DC-4, things were getting pretty scary.

The radio was still out. Even worse, the cabin and cockpit lights began to flicker and grow dimmer.

"The crew and passengers of the DC-4 suddenly noticed a second UFO flying next to the first one. 'The two objects were flying over our plane,' continued Sanvitti's testimony 'They both had the same size and shape. I was beginning to tell the control tower that there were two UFOs around us when suddenly both left at a fantastic speed in one blow and disappeared. It was our last sighting of them."

Immediately the DC-4's power was restored. At Chavez airport, Boris "could hear his (Sanvitti's) voice explaining what had happened. He was saying, 'A UFO has flown around us, observing us. The passengers are frightened.'" Amazingly, this was Capt. Sanvitti's second UFO encounter. In 1953, while piloting a small plane over Barcelona in Venezuela he spotted "a silvery saucer-shaped object." (Many thanks to Antonio J. Huneeus for letting UFO ROUNDUP quote from his article, "Peru's Most Incredible Close Encounters," Unsolved UFO Sightings, Winter 1998 issue, pages 64 and 65. Copyright 1998 by Antonio J. Joe,

You misinterpret me. I have not said, and will not say, that Alex didn't see anything. He very well may have.

I think he is mistaken in thinking he captured it on film.

That's a very different thing.

I've seen many things that I was unable to capture on film, and I am a professional photographer.

I need to hear from Alex what camera he used. This will make it possible to prove that I am wrong and it is not lens flare.

That would also make it possible to estimate the size of the object (very roughly) based on lens focal length.

Alex,

First...you're original question regarding "communication" with orbs or discs is a very real, and needed inquiry to this list, and I hope others can expand on any communication, telepathy or other, with entities from unknown sources.

I have not had one of these encounters, but I do have experience with photo analysis. I am not prepared to state the photo presented on this list of the "orb" is a lens flare, but I do agree with Bruce Maccabee, preliminary analysis does include this as a possibilty.

You stated there are more pictures of the orb. Comparative analysis is one of the greatest assets to investigating unknowns, that's why videos are so fascinating to work with...one can look at several images of the same object. If you have more than one photo of this orb, please post them...for the benefit of all.

There is room for the skeptical, just as there is room for the intuitive believers.... it's all a matter of working together for a common truth.

cheers,
Bryan Butcher

Hi there Bruce!

You mention "yellow" here. The night time events that I have witnessed have pretty well always been in the yellow/orange/amber range, and nearly always between horizon and an angle of about 10 degrees maximum.

> We tried to focus on it but could not

I experienced the same thing. My group of observers was standing at water level and the light source appeared to be moving closer.

I remember, quite clearly, feeling as if this was a police launch coming towards us.

This is characteristic of the "events" that I have seen. Sometimes, the light source will brighten and then diminish. "Pulsation" is a word that I frequently use in connection with these events.

> Finally leaving our field of view we went to bed. The next day I "COMPULSION".....AHA!!!! understatement!!!!!!

I notice that on certain days I am literally "driven" to go and observe. On other days, no feeling at all.

Yes, I feel that that is possible. We DO, as humans, seem to need a "nudge" every now and then, to remind us that MAYBE we are NOT alone here.

Your account is very similar to what I have experienced. Also, I DO think that there was some form of communication.

Aloha Alex....

I'm not sure of the significance of this thread. If you say you saw an anomaly and photographed it, then you did as far as I am concerned. I think you can be taken at your word. Even so, if it is not lens flare, it is not identifiable as anything either terrestrial or extraterrestrial so what is the point? Everyone agrees that there are unidentifiable lights in the sky, and the fact that you and millions of other people have seen and photographed them is interesting.

But the discussion has digressed to the point where people are suggesting that UFOs intentionally spoof camera optics to mimic a natural camera phenomenon while appearing as something else to a live observer. Is it that two sets of photons are on the same path but one set enters only the camera and one set enters only the observer's eye? As my english professor used to state so eloquently: "How do it know?"

Has it come to the point when everything anyone sees is an ET craft? And if it happens to look exactly like an airplane or a falling star, or a black helicopter or a lens flare, does that merely mean that the ETs have nothing better to do than defy the known laws of physics for the purpose of creating optical illusions on the off-chance that a UFO investigator with a camera might be looking up?????

Apparently so. I wasn't a skeptic when I joined the list. I wanted to learn things I don't know, of which there are a LOT. But I am starting to become convinced that no one knows much of anything and either make up explanations for everything they don't understand, or claim that they HAD all the evidence but the MIBs stole it in the middle of the night. It's B.S.!

It IS a lens flare....IT'S NOT a lens flare... IS..... NOT.... IS..... NOT..... What difference does it make? What is proven one way or the other? Nothing! It is not evidence of ANYTHING!

Dear Updates.

In my earlier post which included a gif. file of an "event" that I documented last May, I neglected to include details of the camera that was used.

For your information:

PANASONIC "OmniMovie" VHS format.
PV-610-K
8:1 Power Zoom

At the time of this "event" I was also using a X 5.5 Tokina converter

I then had "stills" taken off the VHS tape..

Sorry about the oversight.

Best wishes,

JJ

A FEARFUL SYMMETRY

A TRUE STORY OF ALIEN INTRUSION INTO HUMAN LIVES

By D. Lynne Bishop

Editorial

Dan Sherman went into the United States Air Force like most other Americans, extremely proud to serve his country and it's well trained military. During his twelve years in service he was recognised for heroism and has been decorated with the AF Commendation Medal, as well as the AF Achievement Medal with two oakleaf clusters and was honoured for service in the Persian Gulf War.

Everything appeared to be going well for Sergeant Sherman until he was recruited into a special programme called 'Project Preserve Destiny' (PPD), an ABOVE BLACK project which would eventually change his life and result in him leaving the USAF.

<http://www.aboveblack.com/>

An account of Dan's story has just appeared in the latest issue of Sightings (UK) - January 98 - Vol 2 - Issue 8 & From Beyond (USA) - January 98

>From Dan's home page:

About the Author

Dan Sherman spent almost three years as an intuitive communicator while serving in the USAF. In ABOVE BLACK he tells of his training, things he learned from his alien contacts and the events that lead him to seek a discharge from the United States Air Force, at all costs.

By coming forward, he hopes his story will encourage other insiders to do likewise. Sherman says, "The information I have come forward with is important in the sense that someone has to start talking... someone from the inside. Preserve Destiny is only one of many alien projects that I suspect the US government, as well as other governments, are heavily involved with. In releasing to the public what I know, I have tried to take a stand against the keepers of the grey flame within the sacred halls of the NSA, CIA, USAF, NRO and other agencies. Hopefully this will open the door for other insiders to peer through and feel more comfortable stepping out into the light of day. If not, 'they' will continue to suppress the most fascinating aspects of our own existence... that others exist!" =A0=A0=A0

Serving over 12 years in the United States Air Force, Dan Sherman has been recognized for heroism and has been decorated with the AF Commendation Medal and the AF Achievement Medal with two oakleaf clusters. He has also received the AF Outstanding Unit Award with three oakleaf clusters as well as being honored for service in the Persian Gulf war. He is married with no children.

Thanks to Dan Sherman for taking the time to be our special guest. Thanks to all the visitors who joined the channel. Thanks to Crow and Raine for moderating the meeting. Thanks to Dave_UFO for arranging Dan's visit.

Session Start: Sat Jan 31 22:58:50 1998

<Raine> <color> Welcome Mr.Sherman can you tell us about the type of genetic alterations the aliens did to you to create the type of conduit you became for the NSA? And if there are others in the public sector being biologically manipulated by them for those purposes and others?

<Dan> I don't know exactly what procedure was performed.. all I was told was that I was a part of a genetic manipulation

<Dan> program designed to give humans the ability to communicate for a specific reason with this alien race....

<Dan> There are others that have the same ability. DS

<Raine> <Tinman-BF> Question: When you meet your first alien contacts, How did you feel and was it expected ?

<Dan> I have never "met" personally any alien. (Sounds funny even typing it!) I "intuitively communicated" with two separate aliens. DS <Raine> <mulder> do you know of cia involvement with ymca, using selected targets as manchurian candidates to carry out covert ops for cia/nsa?

<Dan> I'm unaware of any CIA involvement with what you speak of. Sorry. DS

<Raine> <color> question: Do I recall that you mentioned a location in the Great Lakes area that was part of the information you recieved from the aliens? If so, can you tell me more about the area mentioned and the significance of that area? What is going on there?<Dan> I had received abduction data towards the end of my stay with the project. On three occasions I looked up the location of the abductions

<Dan> of which I was receiving information about. One of them was in Wisconsin somewhere. I didn't look at the specific area of Wisconsin. DS

<Raine> <Dave_UFO> Since leaving the USAF and PPD project have you met anyone else involved with the project?

<Dan> No... neither do I expect to. Although, I guess it is possible someday. As people get out of the military under normal circumstances

<Dan> I'm sure there will be other intuitive communicators who come forward. DS

<Raine> <Tinman-BF> Question: Do you, in you life time, think that the government will come out in the open to public about the presence of Aliens

<Dan> I believe they will never do so voluntarily. But the more people who come forward who have knowledge, the more they will be forced out of the UFO closet. DS

<Raine> <color> question: While meeting abductees, have you come across meeting any that You had received information about them, while working for the NSA? from the aliens

<Dan> I had never received personal data that would allow me to connect a certain person to the data I received. DS <Raine> <Angela-> Mr Sherman does "k811" mean anything to you? If so , what do you associate it with?

<Dan> If you replace the "8" with another symbol, yes. DS

<Raine> <mush> Dan: have you new information about the company of noise cancellation

<Dan> Interesting question. A man named "Bob" that I have been communicating with has done a lot of research about that company since I released my book and has found out a

<Dan> lot of interesting information. I may be getting this onto the aboveblack.com website soon. Interesting stuff, all the correlations... DS

<Raine> <Gandalf1> dan: you said that you intiutivly communicated with aliens... did you do this by "telapathic communication" if yes isn't this quite impossible as you have to have a certain focus on the person you are trying to communicate with?

<Dan> I am always careful to NOT call it telepathy mainly because I'm not sure what telepathy specifically feels like. I "intuitively communicated" and from what I

<Dan> have read about telepathy, this is a much more real and vivid way of communicating. This is explained in the book a bit more in depth. DS

<Raine> <mulder> were u involved in project stargate,have u ever dealt with sas or sis in uk?

<Dan> No I have never worked with these projects. Very classified projects are always extremely compartmented and the chances of someone

<Dan> working on several different highly classified projects at once is very unlikely. DS

<Raine> <comet7> Dan, do you know what type of aliens these were and where they were from?

<Dan> I'm unaware of the "type". and I never really was able to find out where they were from. I do know they manipulated time in order to travel.

<Dan> This would allow them to be from a great distance from earth. DS

<Raine> <Dave_UFO> Did you ever feel that there was an ulterior motive to your work in that you were perhaps being trained for something more than what you had been told?

<Dan> Yes, most definitely .. especially towards the end. The cover story they told me about providing a means of worldwide communication

<Dan> in the future because of an electromagnetic outage worldwide was most likely true (perhaps) but there was certainly more to it than that. DS

<Raine> <SickBoy> Hello Mr Sherman. Why do you expect people to believe your story? You have offered no evidence at all to substantiate your claims. Except you tell us about genetic alternations that modern medicine cannot do. That you are telepathic, but not with humans. You can make anything seem plausible to believers by introducing the alien factor. What do you feel is the most convincing thing about your story?

<Dan> My background in the military can be verified. The bases I have been stationed at are "known" for there "interesting" missions. Other than that, it is based on faith. Just because someone does not have evidence

<Dan> of something does not automatically make it untrue. DS

<Raine> <color> what types of information did you receive? And what information did you receive regarding the abductions in Wisconsin? Or elsewhere?

<Dan> I received "comms" for more than two years. The types of information varied throughout those years. They started with strings of <Dan> numbers. But slowly evolved to images and towards the end it became what I readily identified as abduction data. It was not a great deal

<Dan> of data... things like time, date, lat/long (location) potentiality for recall, residual pain levels...etc. Nothing person specific though. DS

<Raine> <Dave_UFO> Dan I understand that your family may not know of your involvement in Project Preseve Destiny (PPD). Is this still the case? How do your friends & work colleague's react to you?

<Dan> Something as different as my experience will automatically make people uncomfortable. This has been the case with a part of my family.

<Dan> There is a part of my family that does not know however because I learned a lesson when revealing it to the other part of the family. If <Dan> you want your relationships to be unfettered by mistrust, you simply don't bring it up. Coincidentally, my firends are more readily accepting of <Dan> this. My wife, however, has been rock soild throughout the whole ordeal as she knows me better than anyone else, and knows I wouldn't

<Dan> make this type of thing up. DS

<Raine> <Crow> Dan I know that you said you were taken to your comms room via a van with blacked out windows. Did you get taken directly into an NSA building or did the van park outside and you had to enter the building by walking <Dan> I was taken there via a blacked out van and a van without windows period. I was taken into a garage like structure. I never saw the outside of this structure. I went directly

<Dan> from the van to the door I entered to get to the elevator in the garage. DS

<Raine> <buck7> Dan, how can you be sure that you were not being manipulated mentally by your NSA employers into thinking that you were in contact with aliens? With all due respect.

<Dan> This is a popular question. The short answer is, I can't be sure. But the nature of the communications would lead anyone to believe that it

<Dan> was from extraterrestrial origin. Humans have the mental structure of communications compared to what I experienced. It

<Dan> is very difficult to explain the difference. DS

<Raine> <color> question for him: would you be able to locate the region (north, south)in Wisconsin if you saw a map ? What do you think is happening there?

<Dan> Have a "certain" structure of communications compared to what I experienced. (Correction)

<Dan> I believe it was in the southern part of the state. All I did was look at the lat/long and notice it was in Wisconsin. I didn't look at the specific city.

<Dan> Sorry! DS

<Raine> <Crow> Dan obviously you still have the ability to do these comms now, have you contacted Spock or Bones since you left the project

<Dan> No, I have had no comms since I was relieved of duty from the program. It was like I dropped off the face of the earth. This was obviously

<Dan> government controlled. DS

<Raine> <Dave_UFO> How did you cope during the time you were involved with PPD with not being able to tell anyone? It must have been most stressful.

<Dan> In the beginning it was very difficult. But, if you think about it, at the time people were not as ready as they are today to hear such an <Dan> experience and believe it. Even if I had told someone, I would have been thought of as crazy. (Still am today by many but it's not quite as <Dan> bad today) Plus, I don't care anymore. DS

<Raine> <color> question: How did the agency know to pick you to put into that program? How did they find out your special genetical development in order to select you from the ordinary group of military person?

<Dan> This whole thing was co-orchestrated by the government and them. They have obviously kept good records. DS

<Raine> <RavNmaD> Dan, due to the nature of your communications, how were you able to discern between a true communication and what you *wanted* to see or hear?

<Dan> This is a question that cannot be answered without experiencing it for yourself. The communication was not from the imagination part of the brain.

<Dan> It happened very lucidly. Very difficult to put into words. DS <Raine> <SickBoy> Can you tell us why you left the military?

<Dan> The abduction data really started to get to me mentally. There were many things going on at the time and an event happened that kind of <Dan> broke the camel's back so-to-speak. I requested a discharge and my commander came back with a retort that basically said I was

<Dan> never getting out... even when my enlistment was up. So I took the only measure I knew at the time that would most definitely get me out

<Dan> of the military. For legal reason, I really can't go into specifics. DS

<Raine> <Angela-> You say you were 'genetically' altered in the womb. Were you ever abducted? By the Govt/Military that you can recall? Either as a child or an adult? It would seem that 'someone' would need to track your progress as you grew in efforts to monitor the genetic changes.

<Dan> No. I have no recollections of any post womb abductions. I was told my ability didn't become fully developed until my mid 20's. Evidently <Dan> there was no need to "monitor" my growth. DS

<Raine> <jarod> what if anything does he know about E2SCD

<Dan> Sorry, nothing. DS

<Raine> <RavNmaD> Dan, what do you know about 'Fastlane'? is that term familiar with you?

<Dan> I feel pretty dumb, should I know these terms? No, sorry, not that one either. DS

<Raine> <color> question: Will you ever try to make a connection from the information you received to the actual abduction that took place? Creating a link between what you received as data to the actual event? Proving the info.

<Dan> Unfortunately, at the time I received this data I had no idea that I would be talking about this to anyone. I never made any notes or anything

<Dan> like that. The only information that could be useful that I received was locational data and date. I'm not sure how this would have been too

<Dan> helpful anyway. DS

<Raine> <Dave_UFO> I'm interested in knowing how people reacted to you when you came clean. Your wife must be the closest person to you. How did she react and how does she feel now?

<Dan> She's right here. She says she was "amazed and intrigued, and believed every word of it." Also, that I am a wonderful person and tall, dark

<Dan> and handsome. :) (Okay, those are my words.)

<Dan> Her family was not as accepting as we would have liked, but tolerant. DS <Raine> <JeroenW> Dan, are you still in comm contact with intelligence?

<Dan> What intelligence, Jeroen?

<Dan> Alien or military? DS

<Dan> Either case it is "no". DS

<Raine> <UnixKid> Are you willing to take an independent polygraph test? As well as a mental health evaluation?

<Dan> I would be willing to take either as my experience is very much reality and the truth. I have a very firm grasp of reality. Sometimes too firm

<Dan> according to my wife. DS

<Raine> <RavNmaD> Dan, what was your MOS in the AF?

<Dan> Before it changed (BTW it's AFSC in the AF) it was 20570. They changed in the 90's and it became 1N570 (I think...can't remember exactly.) DS <Raine> <JeroenW> The same agency who implanted EBE. I think it was Psi.

<Dan> I'm in contact with no one in regards to my duties with the AF. DS

<Raine> <minator> Did anyone ever try to prevent you from writing your book or try to change the details in it?

<Dan> No. I wrote and released this book with very little fanfare. I purposely published it myself so as to start out with people like you who are the built

<Dan> in market and closer to the front lines of the alien worldwide story. Now that almost everyone in the "alien" community knows about it, it's <Dan> very unlikely that the government is going to do anything about it since so many people "who care" and are monitoring, it would automatically

<Dan> justify what I am saying if anything were done to me. Now we are taking it to the next level... worldwide exposure. Stay tuned.

DS

<Raine> <mulder> ever dealt with mi7 agents over the project in alaska? ever had involvement in chilean secret service?

<Dan> You have to remember I didn't have access to any program but the one I worked on. I know the Alaska project may have ties to what I did, but

<Dan> I am unsure what they are specifically. DS

<Raine> <buck7> Dan, Do you have any info on the extent of government involvement in this affair? In other words, does the involvement extend beyond the U.S. government,( ie Great Britain,Russia,etc.)?

<Dan> I firmly believe there are several governments involved in the project. This may have to do with the "worldwide" phenomanon that is <Dan> supposedly going to occur in the future. Other government's involvement was alluded to by Bones.. DS

<Raine> <comet7> Dan, do you think that you are now.. after leaving the military, being highly monitored or watched because of what you know?

<Dan> Probably right after the release of the book. We had some mail come to us opened. Perhaps still now. I'm not concerned because I <Dan> believe I haven't released any "black" information that would cause them to have a reason. DS

<Raine> <Rasputin> have you been tested by others with the same ability? Birds of a feather and all that...

<Dan> The project was so compartmentailized that I never met (other than at school and we couldn't talk to one another) anyone else with the

<Dan> same abilities. DS

<Raine> <tinbox> Dan, has the military exerted (or tried to exert) any pressure on you regarding the content of your book?

<Dan> None. DS

<Raine> <Crow> Dan I know you have mentioned a Captain and gave out his name Captain Black did you get any repercussions from giving out his name?

<Dan> No. Actually, this name I gave out was not the Capt in question but another Capt that I worked with that I was thinking of at the time. What a

<Dan> mess that was. DS

<Raine> <UnixKid> Can you give us the name of the chief field officer in new orleans?

<Dan> Unfortunately, I have no idea what you are referring to, Unixkid. Sorry. DS

<Raine> <Dave_UFO> Now that you are no longer involved with Project Preserve Destiny do you feel that should a time come when communication systems fail, that you will be used as the project intended?

<Dan> That's a good question. I think it depends on how many they have trained and how needed I would be. My guess, probably not. DS <Raine> <color> Is it breaking security to reveal the operations of the agencies you were involved in? Especially a project unofficially acknowledged as aliens/ufos are. Did you recieve the go ahead from them to talk?

<Dan> In the book I explain the different levels of the classified "onion". There are many levels, the black one is the one that I have to be careful about

<Dan> not revealing any info. Unfortunately, they were almost all involved with the black projects. It makes it hard to talk about agencies. Raine, I must draw

<Dan> this to a close. DS

Sighting in Wolverhampton

My partner was coming back from a meeting at about midnight on 5th December (last night) when she saw what she at first thought was a barn owl flying past the car (this is Wolverhampton) but she then saw what she says was like five small plates grouped together but moving around very fast as if they were logging her movements. They were at about tree height but were not lights.

They did not shine very much except with a sort of translucent light and there was no noise. She went into the house and when she looked out of the window they were gone. She is a complete sceptic and is not fan of sci-fi and she is unusually disturbed by this.

Has anyone seen anything similar?

UFOs OR FAKES? YOU DECIDE

Is there life beyond Earth? These new exclusive pictures of these UFO sightings in the UK were caught on camera and video by Sunday readers. Nick Fiace asked Nick Pope, a Ministry of defence expert and the author of the best seller Open Skies, Closed Minds, to give his verdict on the evidence. Now make up your own minds.

I BELIEVE IN ALIENS! AND THIS IS THE FINAL PROOF

Sci-fi freak Marcel Riddell could hardly believe his luck four months ago when his sister Ruth pointed excitedly through her bedroom window. In the sky above a neighbour's house, there was the classic UFO hovering. The 14-year-old snatched his sister's camera and began to fire off shots. This photograph was taken on her Hanimex camera, bought by their father Alan at a car boot sale for $4.

He pressed the button twice but when Marcel went to take a third photograph the UFO had disappeared. Marcel whose from Dersingham in Norfolk, says: "It's the first UFO I've ever seen. It's marvellous, now I really believe they exist and there is life on other planets. Sadly, only Ruth and I saw it, even though it was there or a time. I believe UFOs come from outer space and are operated by people, not necessarily humans, who are much cleverer and more advanced than us. There are secret bases in the desert where this sort of thing is all worked out. I believe if UFOs landed whatever was inside the craft wouldn't want to harm us. But they might do experiments on humans to see what we are like and find out what makes us tick. When I told my friends, they didn't believe me. But when I showed them the photos, they had to take it as proof."

Ruth who's 11, says: "I believe in UFOs. I've always been interested in them and I always asked about them but nobody could tell me very much. This is the final proof I needed."

Marcel's 51-year-old father Alan, who works in the village shop says: "My son has never told me a lie, and so if he says it is a UFO in the picture then I believe him. I have asked Marcel over and over again about it and he swears to me that this is no hoax."

Nick Pope's verdict:

"The photo appears to show a structured craft and it's one of the most interesting photos I've seen of late. It should be subjected to a full study at a photographic lab."

IT STOOD STILL - THEN VANISHED IN A FLASH

As bar manager Derek Davis relaxed during a work break, his boss Gordon Wilson pointed to a bright light, which had been hovering in the night sky for 10 minutes. Derek had been too busy watching TV and eating a snack in the room above the bar where he worked to spot the unexplained object.

Gordon, co-owner of Dream Bar in Edinburgh, cried out: "Derek, there's a light in the sky that isn't moving." Derek, 26 and pictured right, recalls that the sighting was at about 10.30pm on August 15 this year. "Gordon happened to have his camcorder with him and he pointed it at the light. It was stationary and then vanished in the blink of an eye.

"The light reappeared later and there was a red glow in front of the cloud cover. To the naked eye, the shape appeared as a ball of light from a distance." But when Gordon zoomed in on it with his camcorder, it revealed a spinning spiral, which was hovering, in the sky about two miles away. At first, I thought maybe it was a helicopter but it wasn't like any helicopter or aeroplane I had seen before. I'm quite open-minded about calling it a natural phenomenon. I believe that there are things in the sky we don't see everyday, but I'm not going to say I believe in alien life forms. Still, it was exciting and it makes you think."

Nick Pope's verdict:

"Sometimes when you zoom in, you get an image on the camcorder lens that regulates the light hovering or flying towards their field of view."

DID OUR SECURITY CAMERA FILM A VISITOR FROM SPACE?

When William Cox turned up for work, he was greeted by an excited security guard who had shot some remarkable footage an hour earlier in the sky. William, who worked for the electricity board, watched stunned with tape of a hovering disc-shaped object. The security guard had spotted the UFO at 6pm on September 12, 1993, in the Worsley area of Manchester. He decided to focus one of the outside security cameras on it and zoom in. William, a 47-year-old father of one from Wigan, says: "I'd never seen a UFO before except on TV. When he showed me the film, I thought, 'What the hell is it?' I was shocked and stunned. The guards were excited because they didn't know what it was. The security guard saw it travel across the skyline and when he turned the camera on it, it stopped in mid-air. It was there for about four minutes and then he said it just vanished suddenly."

The UFO first appeared as a ball of light. But when the camera panned in on it, the shape rushed quickly towards the lens, before darting away and coming back again. The camera close-up revealed a circular light with a dark line shifting across the centre of it. It was just like a bright light in the sky, and it was only when he zoomed in with the camera that he saw the actual shape," says William. "His colleague confirmed everything. They called me and a couple of managers in and we all huddled in a cabin to watch it. There was quite a bit of excitement at the time. We reported it to the police and Manchester Airport but they were told there was nothing in the area at the time. It seemed strange to me, but our management decided there was no further action we could take." William says the sighting was a one-off and nothing had been seen in the area before or since. "We were more amazed than anything." He says. "You hear of these things and you see pictures on the television, but when it happens near your workplace, it makes you think. Perhaps there is something out there after all."

Nick Pope's verdict:

"Again, I think this is the consequence of zooming in and out. There's a possibility that the light could have been Venus viewed from an exceptionally bright magnitude."

Cornwall prepares for a total eclipse

Sean O'Neill talks to the council officer who will keep disaster at bay when the lights go out.

ASTRONOMERS will tell you that it is unmissable, something worth travelling thousands of miles to see. A total solar eclipse of the kind which will be visible from Cornwall on the morning of Aug 11,1999, is a once in a lifetime event: midnight darkness in the middle of a summer day.

There has not been a total eclipse visible from the mainland since June 1927; there will not be another until September 2090.

The centre line of the 1999 eclipse, along which totality will last for two minutes six seconds, finds land near St Just, runs eastward through Falmouth and on towards Europe.

Half a million are expected to travel to see it, adding to the half a million visitors who will already be in Cornwall at the height of the holiday season.

Whatever the astronomers say, the Cornish will tell you it is a recipe for disaster. Expect 30-mile traffic jams, no hotel beds, overpriced fast food and mountains of rubbish.

An Eclipse Summit is being held in Truro this week at which scientists, planners, police, firemen, health officials, transport chiefs and other interested parties will try to bring order to the expected mayhem.

Steve Winston, Cornwall's emergency planning officer, likens the task to waiting for a meteorite to hit. "The eclipse itself will do no harm, but the people who come to see it could cause great damage," said Mr Winston. "Off-the-wall planning is what we do in this department, dealing with catastrophe. This might not be a catastrophe, but it could be in that league."

Without a cash injection from Government, the eclipse could create a financial crisis for Cornwall. It will place a massive strain on local resources and produce little in return.

Cornwall's biggest gripe is that the eclipse will happen when the tourist season is at its peak. The county's hotels, campsites, beaches and bars will already be full. "At that time of year we normally expect to double the population of the county," said Mr Winston. "We expect accommodation problems. I know some hotels took bookings from astronomers as long as seven years ago." Many are already fully booked for eclipse week.

Mr Winston lists a myriad of other problems: Can archaeological sites be protected against New Age eclipse rituals? How will ambulances get along congested roads to reach the injured? And can he be sure everyone will heed the safety warnings not to look directly at the eclipse with the naked eye?

"We have to strike the balance between making sure people get the maximum from viewing the eclipse and preventing them from doing themselves permanent eye damage," he said.

Despite the preparations, there is one problem beyond any planner's control. Should it rain or cloud over, as it often does in Cornwall in August, there will be nothing worth seeing. "In which case," sighed Mr Winston, "we will have half a million very fed up people on our hands."

UK.UFO.NW says: We will be there to witness this and will bring you a full report and photographs late in 1999.

Strange case of the A46 UFO remains a mystery

What did all these people see in the sky?

UFO Investigator Kirk Hargrave-Parsons likes to keep an open mind.

"If something is not fully and properly explained beyond a shadow of a doubt then every explanation is true and every explanation is also untrue." He set up the Charnwood UFO Research Group (CUFORG) a number of years ago after a fascination that has been going on "since I could read." The biggest mystery to date came early on in its history. It started in East Staffordshire and moved into Leicestershire and then Rutland.

"We had 30 reliable sightings including policemen, school dinner ladies, teachers, and we investigated it thoroughly. We still don't know what it was.

"The Ministry of Defence said it was nothing to do with them and East Midlands Air-port didn't pick anything up." One school of thought was that it was a military aircraft. "Someone tried taking a picture but all they got was a black photograph," said Kirk. It was first sighted by two teenage boys in Burton-on-Trent.

Red light

They described a diamond shaped formation of white lights with a single red light in the centre, which moved steadily and was accompanied by a faint electrical humming or whining. Both boys said the lights appeared to be on the under-side of a flattish craft. When investigators drew a blank they appealed in local papers and were inundated with similar tales of clusters of lights. A group of students travelling on the A46 towards Leicester claimed to see a cluster of lights moving over Ratcliffe-on-the-Wreake towards South Croxton and Lowesby.

And a man, who only identified himself as Jim X, who said he was carrying out illegal metal-detecting at Sauvey Castle near Owston, on the night, wrote that his detector consistently malfunctioned and of the atmosphere becoming heavy and oppressive. He said that he flashed his torch into the sky a few times and claims to have received answering flashes. He then realised his torch-beam was reflecting back off a large metallic craft. He panicked and ran.

GUFORG concluded all the evidence pointed to a strange craft flying around the East Midlands. It was probably dark grey, flattish and roughly oblong with a pointed or tapered front end. Kirk said: "We like to get there as soon as possible and interview witnesses face to face, you can find out an awful lot by watching their body language, and it is a chance to see where the sighting took place." No stone is left unturned in their efforts to uncover if we are not alone. They check Ordnance Survey maps, where the object came from, the direction it went to, then they contact airfields and Leicester Astronomical Society and even BR. Some mysterious sightings turn out to have quite comical explanations. Kirk recalled one man who had recently moved home who spoke of regularly seeing lights moving quickly outside his home. What he hadn't realised was his new home was close to a railway line.

Hoax

"We try to eliminate as many possible reasons for a UFO as we can and in 99 out of 100 we find the UFO is of a fairly mundane origin or a hoax." And believe it or not there are usually a glut of calls around November 5. "I would hope they were joking, but we get calls from people saying there were bright lights suddenly disappearing after a loud bang." But then there are the one per cent of cases where there is no rational explanation...

Venus may be that UFO

VENUS can account for a large number of so-called UFO sightings. Dr Martin Barstow, Leicester University lecturer in physics and astronomy, believes people are genuinely mistaken when there is an obvious explanation. "I don't believe UFOs exist, I have never seen any good evidence." "As scientists we are here to try to prove things, it is easy to prove something exists once you find it, but trying to prove something doesn't exist is very difficult." "As part of a research programme in the States we were flying rockets and nearly every time we got about 100 reports of UFOs." "It gives you an idea of how bright things affects people's perception of what is going on." He said that Venus, currently visible in the night sky as a bright light, was one of the most commonly mistaken lights in the sky. "If you are moving around or driving it will seem that Venus is following you and moving very quickly. Because it is faraway it tricks your brain and you lose all sense of perspective and you get this optical illusion," added Dr Barstow. Helicopters displaying lights may often produce the same results.

Scientists listen intently for ET

British scientists are to help American experts search for evidence of extraterrestrial life. Radio astronomers at Jodrell Bank in Cheshire are to take part in a project linking two of the world's biggest radio telescopes.

The 250ft Lovell Telescope, which is operated by the University of Manchester, will provide support to the vast 1,000ft telescope at Arecibo in Puerto Rico. It is hoped the project will start next month.

Over a 10-year period, the two instruments will listen for artificial radio messages which could signify an attempt at communication by an alien civilisation.

The telescopes can pick up radio waves within a range of 150 light years from the Earth. They will be focusing on the parts of space where 2,000 stars similar to our sun are located.

The programme is a turning point for the American organisation dedicated to discovering whether or not we really are alone in the universe.

The SETI Institute (Search for Extra Terrestrial Intelligence) currently operates a relatively small 140ft radio telescope at Greenbank, West Virginia.

Later this year the the institute will switch to using the telescope in Puerto Rico. At 1000ft in diameter it is the largest single-dish radio telescope in the world.

How will it work?

The telescope at Arecibo is built in the natural hollow of a mountain and uses the rotation of the Earth to scan the sky.

Jodrell Bank's role will be to confirm any likely candidates for extraterrestrial messages and help locate their source.

Using two telescopes at different points on the Earth will also reduce ground-based interference and enable the astronomers to locate the source of a signal much more accurately.

SETI's space scanning programme, Project Phoenix, was launched in the 1970's. Dr Richard Davis, senior lecturer in physics and astronomy at Manchester University, said: "People often wonder why SETI hasn't been successful so far, but a serious search has not been made to date.

"This is the first time we've had a system that's really up to the job. If there are any transmissions out there, we'll find them."

Scientists hope the Lovell telescope can be devoted to SETI for at least one month a year.

"Crossing the threshold"

Dr Seth Shostak, from the SETI Institute, said he expected to find clear evidence of extraterrestrial intelligence in the next 10 to 15 years.

"It seems not unreasonable to think we may now be crossing the threshold," he said.

Dr Shostak said the best hope of success was to find a message that was sent to Earth by aliens who intended it to be discovered. Other ET broadcasts might well be completely unintelligible to humans. Dr Davis is a little less confident than his American colleague about locating a signal.

"Hand on heart, we don't know if we'll be successful. The chances are that something like 100th of the star systems out there will have planets like the Earth. I'm keeping an open mind."

Are aliens being cut off by gas in the galaxy?

IF little green men really are trying to call Earth, they may be having problems getting through. According to a new theory from astronomers, signals from alien civilisations to mankind are likely to be disrupted by vast clouds of gas, deep in the heart of space.

If the theory is right, we may have already been contacted by extra terrestrials - but failed to recognise the message.

Every year, intriguing radio signals are picked up by U.S. scientists working for SETI - the Search for Extra Terrestrial Intelligence. But because the signals have been fleeting, and have never been repeated, they have been put down to random noise from space or glitches in the equipment rather than calls from another civilisation.

Now some of the most respected astronomers in America say those brief messages might herald tantalising clues about deep space. Few radio signals picked up by SETI have even lasted more than 20 or 30 seconds, supporting the old random origins theory.

But a new academic paper says the signals may be distorted by electrically charged gas between the stars.

This could alter a reading by 20 times, either boosting it or reducing it. That means scientists would have to search a patch of sky tens of thousands of times before they had a chance of recording a repeat signal, whatever its origins.

According to Joseph Lazio, one of the paper's authors, current SETI data is inconclusive. 'It's compatible with both zero and tens of thousands of ET civilisations,' he said. 'Many more observations are needed before we can say anything concrete.'

Philip Corso & the alien autopsy

I don't know what to make of Colonel Philip J. Corso and his book 'The Day After Roswell', but Corso was recently interviewed in the UK-based magazine 'The X-Factor' (issue 25).

One question put to Corso was:

Have you seen the Roswell autopsy video ?

I saw the Roswell footage and I saw some things in it that nobody could have known about, so maybe that gives it authenticity, I don't know. I lean towards the opinion that it is authentic, but I can't really tell you that I'm 100 per cent sure.

What this says about Corso and Ray Santilli's film I'm not sure. Any comments ?

Philip Mantle.

From: Joseph Polanik <jpolanik@mindspring.com>
Date: 9th December 1997

UK.UFO.NW Dave says: I read the below report from Joseph with great interest as I have experienced sleep paralysis myself, although I have to say Alien's and UFOs were not involved.

Sleep Paralysis - Frequently asked questions

Skeptics often use 'sleep paralysis' to explain (or explain away) Alien Abductions, Old Hag Attacks and other paranormal phenomena. How realistic is this?

Q. What is Sleep Paralysis?

During REM-sleep [Rapid-Eye Movement or dream sleep], the brain sends out a signal immobilizing the body so that we do not act out our dreams. That is sleep paralysis. Everyone experiences it several times a night, whenever they enter a period of REM sleep, about every 90 minutes.

Q. Well, okay, but we're usually not aware of all these episodes of sleep paralysis.

Precisely! It's the presence of *Awareness* during Sleep Paralysis [ASP] that makes a difference.

Q. ASP? Could you be a little more specific?

Have you ever found yourself lying fully conscious or in a dreamlike state, unable to move or cry out, while perhaps experiencing auditory or visual phenomena? If so, you have experienced Awareness during Sleep Paralysis [ASP].

ASP experiencers often feel intense fear and may even believe that they are dying. Experiencers often sense the presence of an unseen, malevolent being. An episode of ASP can occur while the body sleeps in any position, but it is much more likely while sleeping on one's back. Often experiencers feel the pressure of a crushing weight on their chest as if being pushed downward into the bed. A few sense a what seems to be a phantom being sitting on their chest. They may be unable to feel the breathing process continue, but those who see their chest can see it continue to inhale and exhale --- they just don't feel it as the body has gone to sleep while the consciousness remains alert despite reduced sensory input from the body.

Q. How can Sleep Paralysis be used to explain Alien Abductions, Old Hag Attacks and other paranormal experiences?

Sleep Paralysis *can't* explain any of these or other anomalous experiences.

Since everyone experiences sleep paralysis, it does not differentiate between those who report Alien Abductions Experiences, Old Hag Attacks, Incubi/Succubi Visitations, Lucid Dream Events or Out-of-Body Experiences, and those who don't report these unusual experiences.

What *does* differentiate between experiencers and non-experiencers is that experiencers report Awareness during Sleep Paralysis.

Hi Joe!!

Thanks for getting this back on track.

Attached is a gif. of an "unknown" that I documented back in May.

I was not aware of any "communication" between self and said "unknown/s," but, I DID ask it/them to show themselves again!!!!

It/they kindly manifested on three consecutive evenings, and I don't think that THIS was a lens flare.

Best wishes.

Subject: Photo Of UFO Over Vancouver 1992?

List,

UFO*BC was sent this picture recently. Indeed it appears to be Vancouver for certain. I believe I even have the area pinned down however further details were not given us besides the date it was taken and that the pic was part of a complete roll taken that day.

We would like to talk to the people involved.

Can anybody help us out?

Bill Oliver

Toxic data at Area 51 ruled confidential

By Bob Egelko

SAN FRANCISCO - An attempt to pry loose information about alleged toxic waste burning at a secret Air Force site in the Nevada desert - said to be the "Area 51" of extraterrestrial lore - hit a stone wall of secrecy in a federal appeals court Thursday.

Lawyers for five current and former workers at the base, and the widows of two workers allegedly killed by toxic wastes, are not entitled to learn whether hazardous substances exist there or how they are handled, the results of a federal toxics inspection or even the name of the base, the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said.

The 3-0 ruling upheld the Air Force's claim that giving out that information could endanger national security and a 1995 order by President Clinton further restricting disclosure. Before arguments in the case last November, the judges reviewed confidential government statements, while Air Force security officers guarded their conference room.

Besides the classified statements, the court cited an unclassified filing by Air Force Secretary Sheila Widnall, who said information about certain chemicals in the soil or water "can reveal military operational capabilities or the nature and scope of classified operations."

The court, in an opinion by Judge Pamela Rymer, said the disclosure of even "seemingly innocuous information" can be barred if it is part of a "mosaic" of classified information.

"The court cannot order the government to disentangle this information from other classified information," Rymer said. She said the court was persuaded not only that the information was properly withheld, but also that "any further proceeding in this matter would jeopardize national security."

Jonathan Turley, a Georgetown law professor who represented the workers, said the ruling "sets an extremely dangerous precedent" for anyone seeking information from the military.

"This case has nothing to do with national security," he said. "I obviously know what happened at Area 51. My (clients) worked at Area 51. ... This case has to do with criminal violations" of hazardous waste laws. He said he would seek a rehearing from the entire court and, if unsuccessful, appeal to the Supreme Court. But Turley said the two lawsuits have also accomplished an important goal: forcing the government to acknowledge the site and conduct a toxics inspection, although results of the inspection were not made public.

Justice Department spokesman Joe Krovisky declined comment, saying government lawyers had not seen the ruling.

Area 51, about 90 miles north of Las Vegas, is a base where military aircraft such as the U-2 and Stealth fighter were tested. Its secrecy and remoteness have been prime fodder for UFO buffs, who link the site to the supposed crash of an alien spacecraft at Roswell, N.M. - a scenario played out in the movie "Independence Day."

In the current case, the government identified the site in question as "the operating location near Groom Lake" and denied it was Area 51. The court left the denial unchallenged after reviewing classified material. Turley scoffed at the denial, saying the name was verified in a government security manual as well as declarations from workers and security officials.

The lawsuits said employees at the base routinely put hazardous chemicals in open 55-gallon drums and burned them. The suits said the exposure killed two workers, Walter Kasza, 73, and Robert Frost, 57, whose widows Turley represents, and injured the other plaintiffs.

Turley said Frost, before his death, lost a workers' compensation claim for his injuries, and Kasza never filed one. The workers sought no damages but requested a court finding that the Air Force stored toxic wastes without a permit, and orders forbidding transportation and burning of toxics.

U.S. District Judge Philip Pro denied the requests but ruled that the results of an Environmental Protection Agency inspection of the site, conducted in response to one suit, would have to be made public unless Clinton intervened. The president then barred disclosure under a law that lets him exempt any federal facility from requirements of a federal toxic cleanup law.

The government appealed Pro's ruling, saying the report should have been declared secret under national security without the president's intervention, which must be renewed annually. The court declined to decide the issue, saying it was no longer a live controversy because of Clinton's action.

Rymer's opinion denying disclosure and ordering dismissal of the case was joined by Judge Harlington Wood of the 7th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, temporarily assigned to the panel. In a separate opinion, Judge A. Wallace Tashima said secrecy was proper but should require a presidential order rather than a subordinate's declaration of national security.

The case is Kasza vs. Browner, 96-15535.

Transmit An ET-mail Into Space

Email ET only at the Alien Contact Network

For a limited time we are offering the users of this newsgroup the opportunity to transmit an ET-mail (for free) into space using our very powerful 12Kw 2meter transceivers. The signal is relayed by at least four other high power radio stations in a 50 mile radius. If they are out there, they will hear us. We also listen 24Hrs.

This is a genuine World's First !!

Let's see how soon we get shut down..

MEXICO CITY UFO VIDEO WILL AIR IN MARCH

Another major special, this time on the UPN network, will feature the already-famous daylight UFO videotape shot over Mexico City on August 6, 1997. Though stills from the video and a quick-time version have been posted on the web, this UPN special, scheduled for Wednesday, March 11, will provide the first opportunity for most Americans to learn about this Mexico City event.

Posted promo on the show reads as follows:

"From executive producers Henry Winkler and Ann Daniel ("Sightings"), this riveting one-hour special centers around never-before-seen video footage of a recent UFO sighting in Mexico City, and explores the phenomenon of unidentified flying objects while examining other recent, mysterious observations in the night sky. Stephen Kroopnick is the co-executive producer. The special is produced by Fair Dinkum and Ann Daniel in association with Paramount Network Television."

Since the UFO video was released to Paramount by famed Mexican newsman Jaime Maussan, CNI News expects the TV special will also include excerpts from Maussan's videotaped interviews with Mexico City eyewitnesses who saw the August 6 UFO. This should be a good program. The special, titled "UFO Sighting!" airs Wednesday, March 11 at 9pm Eastern time. Check your local listings.

Mir Cosmonauts to appear live on QVC

Company press release

Live From Outer Space: MIR Cosmonauts To Appear On The First Intergalactic Edition Of QVC's "First Friday: Extreme Shopping" - MIR Cosmonaut Aleksandr Lazutkin also Scheduled to appear from NYC's 'Catch a Rising Star' airs Friday Night, February 6th from 1 am - 2 am (ET)

Somewhere in Outer Space -- QVC will take shopping to new heights as it welcomes Russian cosmonauts, live via satellite from the MIR Space Station, to take a break from their navigational duties and join the party at 'First Friday: Extreme Shopping.' The February edition of QVC's late-night series will focus on out-of-this-world treasures including Mars rocks, meteorites, space uniforms and the famed 'astronaut' space pens. This special 'Extreme Space' edition will air live from legendary Catch a Rising Star comedy club in New York City on Friday, February 6th from 1:00 a.m. ET/10 p.m. PT - 2:00 a.m.ET/11 p.m. PT.

Russian Cosmonaut Aleksandr Lazutkin, flight engineer on last summer's historic edge-of-your-seat MIR mission, will also share his harrowing adventures with QVC viewers. Lazutkin will appear live on the telecast from the Catch a Rising Star comedy club in New York City along with five rising young comics whose spacey observations will provide comic relief.

'QVC not only scours the planet, it scours the universe in its search for unique products,' said Fred Siegel, senior vice president of marketing for QVC. 'In the true spirit of interplanetary detente, we are delighted that the Russian space agency has accepted QVC's invitation to 'go live' from the MIR.'

MIR Cosmonauts will demonstrate the uses and features of the Fisher Space Pen, the only pen to write in the gravity-free void, freezing cold (-50 F) and extreme heat (+250 F) of space. Since 1967, astronauts on manned space flights, including the moon, have used the Fisher Space Pen, with its sealed pressurized ink cartridge, to write at any angle, even upside down.

For viewers looking for a more complete space experience or just unique evening attire, QVC will make the Sokol KV- 2 Pressure space suit available. The standard launch and reentry suit is used by all cosmonauts and worn by American astronauts for emergency reentry from the MIR Space Station. The suit weights approximately 22 lbs., includes a pressurized hood and is complete with boots, gloves plus all fittings. QVC will make three suits available for $25,000 each.

Straight out of the heavens, viewers will also have an opportunity to buy meteorites and chunks of Mars. A limited amount of meteorites from Earth's most recent meteorite shower will be available, which occurred in China on February 15, 1997 (Valentine's Day in the U.S.). Many Chinese believed the shower foreshadowed the death of Communist Party Leader Deng Xiaoping. Three meteorites of three inches in diameter will be on sale for $2,500 each and twelve smaller meteorites measuring one and one-half inches will be sold for $850 each.

CHAPTER 10

The next several days following the Midwest UFO Conference were quiet and uneventful. Each of us digested the information we had obtained--and I realized that, like an appetizer, the Conference had only taken the edge off my hunger for knowledge. I had been introduced to vast new expanses of space and time, and with each flight, my horizons were expanding. I could see no end in sight, and I was aware of how infinitesimal a speck I was in the universe I had, willingly or unwillingly, become a part of.

On September 26, my husband and I visited with some friends in a neighboring town. We had been close friends for several years, and because they knew us so well, my mood swings had been apparent to them. I had been unwilling, in the beginning, to tell them what was causing the moods, but had finally thrown chance to the wind and blurted the story to them--warts and all--so the topic of UFO phenomenon had become common.

My husband and Jack never miss an opportunity to get together to pursue their favorite pastime of playing with and talking about computers. This night was no different, and Mary and I sat on the couch, trying to tune our husbands out. We had watched television off and on most of the evening. It was a warm, Indian-summer night, and the windows were down, letting in the faint breeze. During a lull in the conversation, we heard a distinctive click, and the lights dimmed as the power fluctuated, and a surge protector connected to their computer shut off. We noticed it was around 8:30 P.M. My husband and I laughed, telling our friends that the power at our house fluctuated constantly. They replied that they very rarely had brownouts. We forgot about the incident and continued our visit, while my husband and Jack continued talking about the latest advancements and updates in computer software. Mary and I have a tendency to doze off when they get started using "computerese" language, so we were startled by the next power drain that occurred about 9:30 P.M. This was beginning to seem a little odd, but still fell within the purview of a normal happening. When the third, and final outage struck at 10:30 P.M., we were really mystified, and our hackles were rising. This just couldn't be a normal occurrence!

Nothing further happened to alarm us, and my husband and I said our farewells at 11:30 that night. Jack and Mary followed us outside, as we walked toward our car. I had just opened the car door on the passenger side, when Jack exclaimed, "Look at that strange light!" Following his gaze, we all turned toward the northern sky. There in front of us was an orange-red sphere, floating silently in space. There were no strobe lights and no other color, other than the single orange glow. Its movement was eerie--it seemed weightless. I gulped as I stared at it in fascinated, rapt attention. With a recognition born of sightings twenty years in the past, I knew this was the same disc I had watched as a teenager. Mary said, "That's the same thing I used to see when I was around eleven or twelve years old!" I stared at her in amazement.

Jack ran back inside to get the binoculars, and the rest of us continued watching the object, as it moved between the constellations of Cassiopeia and The Big Dipper. The sky was clear with no overcast and no moon, and our vision was impeded only by some large trees in the distance. Only a few seconds passed, before he returned with two pairs of binoculars. We progressed on down their driveway, as we attempted to keep the glowing object in sight. The sharp gravel suddenly reminded Jack that he had no shoes on, so he returned to the house again. As he returned for the second time, the orange "light" had passed on out of view behind the range of trees. The entire sighting had probably only lasted between two and three minutes.

We all walked back down the driveway toward our car, talking excitedly about what we'd just seen. Speculation was running rampant for a few seconds--could this be a true UFO? There were no red, white or green lights on the object. It had been just the one solid, steady orange glow. There were no strobes that would be indicative of regular aircraft, so we were non-plussed.

My husband and I got into our car and waved to Jack and Mary. During the drive home, I scanned the sky frequently, hoping beyond hope that it would show up again, but it remained an elusive enigma.

During the next few days, my husband and I settled back into our regular work routine. I seemed to have reached a plateau in my search for answers to the alien abduction phenomenon. The fence I was straddling had become familiar, if not comfortable, and I wasn't sure there was an open avenue to follow. Throwing myself into my daily job seemed the best idea, so I began focusing my attention on more mundane matters.

My husband and Jack planned to attend a computer seminar in St. Louis, Missouri on September 29, and for several days our energies were devoted toward preparation for the trip. Due to the distance involved (roughly a six-hour trip, one way), my husband would need to leave by 2:00 A.M. that morning. Having never needed an alarm clock, I awoke at 1:00 A.M. and told my husband it was time to get up. He mumbled something incoherent, and rolled over. I again tried to wake him up, and he growled at me. About that time, the alarm clock he had set went off--and he got up in a slight huff. I decided it was an excellent time to make him a cup of something with caffeine in it.

I headed toward the kitchen and microwaved (technology is a wonderful thing!) a cup of tea for him, which he drank in a somewhat better humor. He finished dressing, and having forgiven me for waking him ten minutes early, gave me a cheerful goodbye as he headed out the door. I turned to retrace my steps to the bedroom, and noticed the digital clock in the living room. It was 2:01 A.M. Contemplating several more hours of restful sleep, I had no clue that all hell was about to break loose.

My little half-breed mutt padded along behind me as I returned to the bedroom, her footfalls adding a syncopated beat to the heavier tread of my feet. She joined me on the bed, taking her usual, (but not favorite), location down at the foot of the bed. After some scrambling for position, she finally settled in, straddling my legs. I closed my eyes, but was restless--and my legs had a cramped feeling not related to the dog lying there. I shifted position a couple times, and finally came to rest in the center of the bed. It had turned off cool that night, and the dog seemed intent on sharing body heat, for she again plopped down on top of my feet. I closed my eyes, thoughts of the dog and my husband revolving through my consciousness.

With no warning at all, I was suddenly and painfully jolted by a shock wave! In a panic, my thoughts screamed out, "It hurts! It hurts!" I had no idea what was happening to me. With a jolt beginning at my toes and working immediately up my body to my scalp, I was paralyzed. It was instantaneous and complete--there was not a hair on my head capable of moving.

I lay there, screaming in my mind, "What's going on? I can't move! It hurts!" As if wrapped in a blindingly bright, white cocoon, my only sensation was of light through my closed eyelids--yet there were no lights on in the bedroom. With a sickening lurch, I felt as if I had been upended, and slammed into the headboard of the bed. The motion continued into a twisting, spiraling, upward movement. Nauseated, I thought frantically, "Oh, God--don't let me throw up!"

In horror, I realized I was spinning toward the ceiling. My eyes flew open for one brief moment, and I saw the ceiling fan and light only inches from my face. As I rapidly approached the ceiling, I closed my eyes again. Awaiting the inevitable pain of smashing into the ceiling, I was instead wiped out by the realization that I had passed through the ceiling and was continuing a twisting, turning motion upward--higher and higher into the night sky.

There are moments in life that are transcendent--when a human being comes into contact with something so far beyond the pale, that he cannot survive the event without having been forever changed. This was my moment.

My screaming thoughts became more coherent as the spinning slowly began to ebb, and my nausea lessened. My fear was overwhelming--I knew what had happened, but tried vainly to deny it. My consciousness swam in and out, and I blacked out. Upon regaining consciousness, I was lying prone on a hard, smooth surface. I sensed motion around me, and struggled against the invisible bonds that held me tightly in place. Nothing happened! Desperation set in, and I fought harder against the paralyzing grip that bound me--to no avail. The harder I struggled, the tighter the force became. I was tiring rapidly, and gaining nothing.

With more guts than good sense, I decided to try something different. My proof of the entire alien phenomenon was here before me--if I would just take that chance. All I had to do was open my eyes and look. Such an easy thing . . .

The decision to do just that was the hardest thing I've ever done in my life. Feeling like my eyelids were made of lead, I eased my eyes open a faint crack. "Oh, Goddamn--they're real!" I screamed in my mind. The gray-white, doe-eyed alien standing by my waist on the right-hand side flinched, as if a force had hit him. Panicked, I closed my eyes, fighting to regain some composure. Several minutes passed, and I reasoned, "I can't believe it, just because I saw one alien. I'm going to look again, and if it's still there, I'll know they are real."

Summoning up every ounce of courage I possessed, I again opened my eyes. To my left, at about waist-level, was another gray-white alien. In the short moment before my consciousness faded, I was able to see that his head was flatter on top and he wore a white outfit, similar to a smock. As I stared directly into his Oriental dark-brown eyes, I was soothed by an intense wave of relaxation and peace. I knew this alien. He was my protector, my friend--my companion of past years, and guide for the years to come. With the cessation of fear and anxiety, I closed my eyes and drifted, his promise of, "No harm will come to you," ringing through my head.

"Fingers!", I mentally screamed, as I came bolt alert, both eyes wide open and focused on the smaller, large-headed alien. With astonishing dexterity, the long fingers beat a rapid rhythm across my belly, from right to left. Having finished one circumference, they began again, in fast succession. Disgust and horror rose within me, completely stifling any thoughts of peace and goodwill. With each palpation, the clear, gelatinous goop adhering to its hand left a sticky, wet residue behind.

Depression overcame my senses. I was completely impotent, at the whim and mercy of an entity that was not human. At that moment, I surrendered. I closed my eyes and went away mentally--away from a creature whose motivations I could not understand, and away from what it was doing to my body. My proof had been established on a conscious level, but I could not watch further.

Some time passed, and I again became clearly aware of my surroundings. As my eyes blearily peered ahead, I saw a piece of striated tissue, red and black, lying near my feet. "Surgery," I thought dimly. Feeling woozy and anesthetized, I tried to make out features of the tissue, but could not identify it. With my head swimming, I sank again into oblivion.

And awoke to find myself somewhere else. With my sense of hearing returning, but still paralyzed, I was being half-lifted, half-dragged through a room containing numerous small end-tables. These tables were stacked with odd equipment and books, and flanked the left-hand wall. As my unseen escort dragged me through the room toward a doorway, three men--dressed in black--watched impassively, no hint of emotion warming their cold features.

Completely in my escort's power, I was dragged past these men into the room beyond, and dropped on the floor, like a piece of baggage. From my vantage point, I could barely discern the hint of a laboratory in the gleam of metallic equipment. I heard and saw what appeared to be a stream of water, running down a sluice. Clear at first, the water quickly turned a murky, dirty color, and strange clumps of a vaguely meat-like substance floated through. An apparatus with a suction-cup device attached to the end was lowered into this liquid, perhaps suctioning out the tissue. A salty, tangy smell assailed my nostrils, and I was momentarily nauseated again.

The sound of a male voice drifted from behind, and a swarthy, middle-aged man entered my field of vision. As I gazed at him--thick black hair, full mustache, heavy jowls, possibly a Latino or of Mediterranean extraction--the hatred I felt for this man was a palpable force. I knew this man--knew I hated him. And I was in his power.

Within seconds, a woman joined him. Also of dark complexion, she was a fitting companion for this man I detested. Her long, jet black hair was parted severely down the middle, and fell past her shoulders, flowing into the black dress she wore. She stood there arrogantly, as if daring me to recognize her. With a gut-wrenching sense of betrayal, I knew this woman had in the past been a trusted friend--and now knew her to be a traitor.

The two conferred with each other briefly, and my still unseen escort roughly lifted me from the floor.

Upon regaining an upright position, I realized I had some mobility, and the ability to speak was returning. As our strange group exited the laboratory and reentered the room with the end-tables, I purposefully gazed into the woman's face. "I will remember you. I will remember this!", I said to her with vengeance in my heart. Shock was evident in the startled glance she threw at me. Regaining her composure, she all but sneered, "No, you won't." With utter conviction, I replied, "Yes, I will!"

We exited a very human-looking high-rise building, and the man and woman walked toward a very sleek, highly polished black car. My escort manhandled me into a nondescript black car, and got behind the wheel. As the couple drove by us, heading in the opposite direction, with a last defiant gesture, I stuck up the middle finger of my right hand. The look on the woman's face told me I had broken through her self-control.

I had no time to congratulate myself--for quite suddenly I was lying on the table in the ship again. My silly, familiar, always-in-trouble dog was walking toward my face--and I suddenly thought of my brother's dachshund, its features appearing in my swirling, nebulous thoughts. My thoughts became less substantial, finally drifting away.

At 4:00 A.M., with no transition from a sleep state to an awake state, I was back home, in bed. The dog was unusually quiet, and made none of her characteristic movements. I was scared to death and angry--and no longer straddling the fence. Alien abduction was a physical reality.

Connecting to our weekly UFO meetings on the IRC (internet relay chat) is now easier than ever.

If you are using at least one of the following web browsers:
Netscape 3 ++
MS Internet Explorer 4 ++

Simply visit one of the below url's (world wide web) addresses. When the 'ultrachat' page has loaded you will see a large grey filled box somewhere on the screen. It may then take a few more seconds for the java script to load and run.

The grey area will then turn white and you will be asked to enter a nickname. Your own name or a nickname will suffice here.

Once you press return you will be presented with various bits of information scrolling up the screen. After a few seconds you will be connected to the uk.ufo.nw #UFO channel.

Down the right hand side of the screen you will see a list of the people currently on channel. At the bottom of the screen is where you type your messages. The large upper left section of the screen is where you read and follow the proceedings of the meetings.

Don't be shy. We are all a friendly bunch. Give it a go. You'll soon get the hang of it. We'll be happy to offer any assistance that you may need.

JJ...

Was this frame the clearest image obtained from the video? There is obvious camera motion (blur) and restricts analysis greatly. As I pointed out to Alex in a previous post...comparative data is great to work with. If you have more stills of this event... please post.

It's not a matter of being skeptical of a hoax...it's a matter of gaining a clearer picture of what is being seen.

cheers,

Bill,

Well for sure this one is NOT lens flare.

Unfortunately, without access to the original print or neg it is impossible to tell just WHAT it is. It could be a bird. Or it could be a UFO. Or it could be a hoax.

No way to know from just the photo.

Absolutely right JJ, that is not lens flare.

Is this a still frame from a video camera? If not,

I don't think it's necessary to raise the issue of hoaxing, it's just that we SHOULD look at more prosaic answers before we resort to more paranormal ones. All possible earthly explanations need to be tested FIRST.

>Is it possible for any of the film "experts" to plot the lens in >the camera to know if the camera is capable of producing lens >this ORB and I might consider releasing them if I can be >convinced that this is lens flare but so far no one in my opinion >has done that.

The answer is yes to both questions. You may have seen the multiple "UFOs" over the Whitehouse taken in 1952. These lights were plotted to the street lights that are also shown in the photo. Perhaps you could include the make of the camera and especially the lens make (aperture, focal length etc.). The fact that the human eye is also has a lens could explain why you saw this with the naked eye as well.

You have to understand that the photo is "suspect" because the sun is obviously just out of the frame. It could also be a result of what is called a sun dog or similar phenomenon, where the light is refracted off very minute ice crystals in the atmosphere. The fact that it was transitory could be because of the clouds passing in front of the sun, acting like a large blind, allowing the sun dog to appear and disappear. I would be interested to know what the colour of the orb appeared to be to the naked eye.

>I have seen many orb pics, some were of orbs of different colors >some white and most if not all were called lens flare by the >"experts" at some point in time. So I guess as long as a orb is >the color and in a possible position to be considered lens flare, >thats what the "experts" will call it, even if that is >incorrect.

There have been many people who have taken orb pictures under different circumstances than yours. It would take too long to go into them here, however they were obviously a result of lens flare. Some said they couldn't see them but were able to photograph them.

>I thank all the people who have emailed with there opinions and >am not in the least bit bothered by the negative ones, I think >this is what should be.

It is unfortunate that you use the term "negative" as this leads one to suspect that you are not open to a more prosaic answer should it exist. This phenomenon needs more objectivity and less belief otherwise we run the risk of starting a new religion. (Maybe it already is! <G>)

>So, I do not know what else I can say about the event except I >would be glad to take a lie detector test / voice stress analysis >etc to help support what I claimed happened.

I won't raise the issue of the credibility of these tests. <g>

Hi, I have a short story to contribute to "ESP and Aliens".

1978 was a good year in Missouri for UFOs. Shortly after the episode I am about to report, I became involved in investigating a flap area approximately 60 miles north of St. Louis, called Elsberry. Prior to this May incident I was not involved in UFOlogy, and had not read any books on the subject etc.

May 31, 1978 my husband and I were at the Lake of the Ozarks, just outside of Camdenton at his parents home. We were sitting at the boat dock, as we often did, watching the stars, enjoying the spring evening.

Over the lake and quite far away we both noticed a tiny bluish light coming our way. In 1978 air traffic was minimal in that area and large commercial planes at that altitude unheard of. AS we watched it I began to feel uneasy. AS it grew in size so did my apprehension. I wanted to run (FROM WHAT?). I remember it becoming about the size of Venus.

Suddenly we connectd and I screamed, "They saw me." I bolted, my husband caught me, turned me around, I yelled, "Go away go away now!" With that it turned left and was gone. My (normally) skeptical husband looked at me and said, "What did you do that for? Why did you make it leave?" To this day he is convinced I made it leave. But what was it?

And this is just another story added to the millions.

HI LIST,

I will try to answer everyone's questions in this one email, if I miss anyone please tell me and I will get back to you. I am not trying to avoid any questions you have but I have received over 300 email about this pic and it is a slow process to answer all of them, so please be patient and I will get to them.

The camera is a Minolta Freedom Zoom 90C

This is a partial list of its technical details from the small book it comes with:

Type: 35 mm auto focus lens-shutter camera

Lens :38-90 mm f / 3.5-7.7 power zoom lens

Auto focus System : 3-beam infrared type with cancelable focus hold; range: 0.75m / 2.5 ft.(wide),0.9m / 3.0 ft (tele) to infinity

Zoom Control: Sensor-activated Auto Standby Zoom (ASZ) sets a zoom position based on subject distance; zoom lever for manual override.

Metering system: External, two-segment silicon photocell for separate illuminance readings of center and background picture areas.

Auto exposure: Programmed auto exposure; range (ISO); EV 6 TO EV 17 (1/4 SEC AT F / 3.5 TO 1/350 SEC AT F/19 AT 38 MM SETTINGS, EV 8 TO EV 17 (1/4 SEC AT F /7.7 TO 1/250 SEC F / 22) AT 90 MM SETTING

Film speed: Automatic setting for DX -coded ISO 25 - 3200

Viewfinder: Real-image type with focus frame, close-framing guides: magnification: 0.45X at 38 mm, 0.95X at 90 mm: image area 85% coverage: eyepiece LED lamps show focus and flash status.

Film transport: Automatic threading, auto advance to first frame, auto winding, auto rewind and auto rewind stop: rewind button for manual start of rewind.

Power: 6V Lithium battery (2CR5)

The camera is about 5 years old and has seen a lot of action, it is not new, ran a minimum of 120 rolls of film through it, it has never been serviced or cleaned other than the lens gets cleaned and the case gets wiped down. I know I ran 120 rolls of film minimum because I still have 19 dead batteries lying about.I get about 7 rolls to a battery on the average.

The film I was using was KODAK , 36 exp ,Color, Gold 111 DXn, 400 ASA

Yes , I agree it is possible that what I saw and what I captured on film are 2 different things but I do believe what I captured in the pic was what I saw with my eyes.

Yes, I agree it is possible for the ORB I saw and the so called "lens flare" to look very similar. The colors, size etc make me believe the image in the pic is the ORB and not lens flare.

Yes, I agree it is possible for me to have captured lens flare but, I did not see any in the camera during the event.

If there are many reports and pictures of "unknown" objects which appear to be lens flare by the "experts" is there any way to determine from the camera, if it was lens flare? Like a double blind scientific experiment? Today is Sunday and its a nice day outside , same time and weather condition so I am going to go and take a roll of pics from as close to the same position as last time and I will see if I get any lens flare in any pics which is unseen by my eyes.

I have access to a tv production studio, so I gave the pic to a friend I do some tv production with along with a few other assorted ORB pics, the opinion was that all of the pics could be lens flare but that there is no way to be 100% sure. Now, I can easily understand that, so what is need from the film/camera experts is a guaranteed test of the camera to see if something in a pic is lens flare, that is what the "experts " should design, in my view that is. Or possibly a camera which can not produce lens flare. I think that would put an end to this lens flare/orb controversy and that would be a great benefit to the ufo community and it might make the person who designs it rich.

I can not be 100% sure if the Orb was moving or standing still when I took the pics. I think it was in motion and appearing to stop.

Yes, I can send the pic in a higher resolution, I have a flatbed scanner and Adobe Photoshop so if it can be done in it I can do it.

I think I covered all the questions on the Orb, so I will try to get to the possible mental "communication".

To start with I believe I have seen and interacted with some ET'S, I have ongoing UFO/ET appearing events since my childhood. I believe thought is electrical activity and we are like radio transmitters and receivers, we send and receive electrical signals, thought is electrical. I also believe there are lifeforms which do the same and that it is possible for technology to communicate with the brain/mind of man, meaning ,a machine can transmit electrical signals through the atmosphere which can be perceived and understood as intelligent info by man and reverse. I also believe in biological and cellular telepathic communications, it too is a form of though so it is also electrical signal transmission and reception. I do believe this is a provable statement, there have been experiments with plants and animals as well as people and to me the results help support "telepathic" communications. There have been experiments with modulated radio frequency transmitters sending electrical radio waves out from an antenna aimed towards a person and the person has perceived the modulations in the signal.

I have interviewed many people who claim to be in mental contact with "unknowns", I do believe some are in contact on a mental electrical level. I believe this is no secret and it is happening on a one to one personal level because that is the only way it will be accepted. Many of these people have pics of "unknown" aircraft, et, unknown marks on there body, implants and some have "samples" of evidence supposedly of unknown origin. Some of them get physical/mental signs of when the "unknown" lifeform/ufo is about to appear/communicate with them.

I perceived what I though was a loud noise, static in my left ear right during this event. I believe this was the "signal" so to speak. I always tell people to think to "them" when we are ufo hunting. I have gone ufo hunting with others in this field and at times I have been the only one to get "unknown" pics. There is a phenomenon called EVP, Electronic Voice Phenomenon, it is supposedly a form of communication with the dead/spirits. You "think" a question and try to record an answer to it from the "BACKGROUND NOISE" present. I have been experimenting in this area for about 10 years now and all I can say is you can communicate with unknown "voice" through it. I teach how to do it in very small private sessions. The skeptics cannot get "voices" during their experiments, the ones who believe sooner or later get a "voice" and can have an ongoing communication. Some times it takes a few months of experimenting to make an initial contact with a "voice". I also believe ET can be found and contacted using this technology but with different detectors.

I believe communications/"voices" can be found in many different forms of "noise" such as electromagnetic noise found in the electromagnetic spectrum, radio frequency noise, optical noise, white noise, electron noise, chemical electrical noise and others. I have experimented with all of those forms of noise and I believe I have found voices in all of them.

If anyone is interested in EVP it has been well documented for the past 50 years or so, I also have a short article on how to perform the simplest of EVP experiments and would be happy to send it to anyone who is interested. All that is required is a simple audio tape recorder set up, determination, time, belief and a very open mind.

Thanks
ALEX CAVALLARI

Tom,

Obviously if the object looks and behaves like some well known object, it doesn't interest either a layman or ufologist as being anything abnormal.

If an object that looks like a certain kind of lens flare flits around the sky as reported by a reliable eye witness, then it's of great interest to the layman and even to some ufologists!
(Most ufologists have heard of similar reports for so many years that it may not interest them any more.)

For me, it's worth noting for two reasons: (1) It says something about how far ahead the UFO-alien's technology is from anything we can understand, and (2) it says something about their strategy or level of ethics in dealing with us, in that they provide a certain measure of deniability to persons who can't accept its reality and who don't mind ignoring certain aspects about the object's description or reported behavior when latching onto that deniability factor.

Hi there Barbara!

Thank you for that interesting story!

However, I hadn't actually alluded to "ALIENS" or "ESP" in MY postings.

I only give these events the title of "UNKNOWNNS."

Someone once said that, making an assumption, makes an "Ass out of U and ME!" Are we then, to assume, that these "unknowns" are of E.T. origin? (E.T. being a term I prefer.)

I also prefer NOT to use the word "ALIEN" as this, surely, "alienates" whatever it is that I am personally trying NOT to alienate.

However, it would seem that you did, in some way, have "communication" with the object in your story.

Best wishes,

JJ

> Over to Greg and the rest of the list,

You can ask direct questions about drinking, because people know whether they've had a drink or not. But you can't ask with equal confidence about abductions, because (assuming that abductions take place at all) people don't always remember being abducted. They're apt, instead, to remember things like lights in their rooms, beings by their beds, and missing time.

The mail Budd Hopkins gets bears this out. You don't find many, if any, people writing to say "Yes! Those beings you write about took me, too!" Instead, they say "All my life I'd had experiences I couldn't understand. I've seen lights in my room (etc.). I read one of your books, and thought, maybe this is the explanation. I'm hoping you can tell me whether or not it is."

It's against this background that the Roper Poll was conducted. The reasoning Budd and Dave Jacobs used was more or less this: Since nearly all abductees remember having a number of experiences, like lights in their rooms, we should ask how many people have had these experiences. That might give us a rough notion of how many people have been abducted."

There's a logical fallacy if you take this absolutely literally. Just because nearly all abductees have had these experiences, you can't conclude that nearly all people who say they've had these experiences have been abducted.

Still, we're familiar with this sort of inductive reasoning in other contexts. If you come home and find your house has been turned upside down, and your valuables are missing, you conclude you've been burglarized. Doctors look for symptoms, and reason backwards from the symptoms to the disease. Assuming, again, that abductions are real, we don't know for sure that all the indicators Budd and Dave asked about in the Roper Poll mean for sure that people have been abducted. But they might, on the analogy with being burglarized.

In any case, there's nothing more to go on. If you believe in abductions and you want to know how many people might have been abducted, you can't ask directly, because people won't remember. But you can ask about memories that are nearly universal among abductees, and move on -- as best you can -- from there.

Menwith Hill (somewhere in Britain) is another of those secret military bases that everyone knows about.

But, I cannot find it in my references!

I need longitude/latitude coordinates to enter a sighting in the *U* UFO Database.

Can anyone tell me how to locate Menwith Hill with some reasonable degree of accuracy?

Thank You all in advance

If you see a perfectly recognizable terrestrial aircraft, the chances are that you cannot tell it's altitude within 1,000 feet or it's speed within 50% of actual groundspeed. Nor can you tell the weight or engine size of a car approaching you on the road. Without knowing whether an object even exists; what an object is; a known distance from the object or a quantifiable performance spectrum of an unknown, you cannot tell anything at all. The only thing a still picture of what appears to be a lens flare tells you is that you cannot tell anything at all about it. You cannot even tell whether or not it is actually a lens flare.

You do not even know what the picture represents, Jim. What does a picture of a lens flare tell you about 'their strategy or level of ethics.....'? And since you cannot know what it is a picture of, since no one does, it cannot tell you anything.

I have spoken with you before, and I respect your opinion and intelligence, but the most anyone can say about a picture of an unidentified object is that it is a picture of an unidentified object, and that is not EVIDENCE of anything.

Hello Bryan.

Regarding the clearest image from the video, I only obtained two frames, and those were purely to show the two boats in the foreground.

I was focused on the distant objects, which, at my height above water's surface would have been 5.1 Nautical Miles, or 5.9 Statute Miles from my vantage point. They appeared at the same time on three consecutive evenings.

On 26th May I obtained a different camera, which I have been using ever since, and which gives better focus and general clarity.

Maybe, next May, they will reappear, and give me further opportunity to film them.

I will let you know if they decide to visit again. I HAVE asked them. :-)

Best wishes.

WHAT? Archeologists are not excluded from SSUFOS (scientific study of UFOs.) HOWEVER, they must be aware that this is mostly NOT archeology... UFO events have happened within the last 50 years or within the recorded history of mankind. The oldest events "live" only as written records. HOWEVER... archeologist might look for evidence of old contact, as you sugges. (Also consider Gerald Hawkins and the Stonehenge analysis.)

>I am interested in the role of sightings in antiquity and whether

What you ahve rejected is, of course, precisely the type of evidence one mught search for. However, the controversy over the meanings of these scraps of evidence will probably relegate them to the "undecidable" pile and hence they will probably play only a minor role in ufology , which primarily (not totally) the study of relatively recent events.

>I would be interested to hear from any serious ufo researchers

Your report on recent sightings is the type of research archeologists can do...and anyone else. Just try to be sufficiently critical not to get snowed by the garbage that floats around in this field of research.

>Keep up the good work!

Thanks, you too,.

OK. Thanks Alex.

What you have here is your garden variety point-n-shoot camera.

You COULD NOT see lens flare with this camera because when you look into the eyepiece you are NOT looking through the taking lens, but through a separate viewfinder which is only very approximately accurate in perspective and framing.

Because the camera is fully automatic, when you load it with 400 speed film, it will set a fast shutter speed and very small lens aperture when pointed at the sky. This small aperture is the ideal situation to capture and accentuate lens flare.

Your idea of doing tests is a good one. Try shooting some photos at the same time of day in similar weather and point the camera in the same direction. The sun will be in a slightly different position due to seasonal change, but you can compensate for this by shifting your angle slightly north. Shoot a whole roll with the sun just outside your frame. You will most likely get a bunch of lens flare photos. If the front of the lens is dirty or scratched this will make it even more likely.

Scanning the image at higher resolution won't accomplish anything. I would need to see prints or the original negatives to determine anything.

Do your sky photo tests first, though. I'm pretty sure that you will convince yourself that the photos only show lens flare.

Re: 'UFO Sphere/Orb' over Brooklyn, NY

BTW, I'm sorry if I offended you. I was being dismissive of your photo, not your story. I've seen one of the bloody things myself, so I know that UFOs exist. Unfortunately we are not going to prove it with photos.

Hi JJ,

Do you know any of the people in the two sailboats? Did they or any others also see the two bright objects in your gif video frame while you were videotaping them? How do the two bright objects look like when the second sailboat passed in front of them a moment later? Were the two bright objects in front or behind the sailboats?

Since the two bright objects seem to be at the horizon (at first glance they look like distant clouds or oceanliners shining in bright sunshine), why are they so sharply defined while the sailboats, waves and horizon are not? Are the red colour borders at the bottom of the two bright objects present when you videotape other bright objects or do you think they are part of the objects themselves? Did you also see these red borders with your eyes only?

Why do you feel that the object(s) you saw on three consecutive nights were the same as these daytime bright objects? Did they look any different? Did they resemble the red lights you saw over Lake Ontario near Oakville last summer?

Thanks for sharing information about your UFO sightings with us.

Nick

Thanks Bryan,

Well, that tells us a LOT <G>! Minolta only makes dozens of cameras, and how many 12X zooms they have made I do not know.

However, this does sound like what we refer to in the camera business as a point-n-shoot. A fully automatic camera, and not an SLR with through the lens viewing. Alex's comment about not seeing lens flare becomes important if this is the sort of camera used, because he COULD not see lens flare. On this sort of a camera you are not looking through the taking lens when you look into the eyepiece. You are looking through a separate optical viewfinder which only shows an approximation of what the lens is seeing. You may very well not see any sign of flare in the viewfinder and have a very high flare situation.

In fact pointing one of these cameras toward the sky is always an invitation to flare.

Once I have a model number on the Minolta, I will talk to my friends in the technical dept at Minolta and determine what sort of diaphragm the camera in question has.

photograph.

You should also know that a sensible investigator doesn't divorce one UFO event from the multitude of other such events that preceded it. Many of them provide the skeptic with a measure of deniability. I think this has been gone over too much before to do so again now. But perhaps you can't realize what a horrible shock it would be for negative skeptics, who think that the UFO phenomenon is just something dreamed up by the entertainment media or by sick minds to have to suddenly find out for sure it's for real. The UFO entities have given us and the negative skeptics 50 years to get used to it all. To me, that says something about their level of ethics, even if you don't see it.

It would be very interesting to see a longer sequence here. I note the blur, which suggests motion, on all objects but the UFOs. Was the camera tracking the objects? At what distance were they? (They look very 'superimposed' -- but please note, I'm not attacking your veracity, merely making an observation). The color/albedo values also seem out of kilter on the objects, when compared with the average values in the frame itself. Can you provide additional images?

Ed Stewart suffered a stroke yesterday.

The extent of the stroke is unknown. It appears at this time that he cannot walk and does not have control of his right side. Other than that the extent is unclear. He appears to be in good humor and lucid.

Get well, soon, Ed!

'UFOs & Social Security?' Clinton's Speech 02-09-98

Subject: 'UFOs & Social Security?' Clinton's Speech 02-09-98

<http://www.whitehouse.gov/WH/New/html/19980209-15022.html>

Hi All,

Thanks to my lovely, alert wife Desiree Murgia, I am able to share this with all of you. Today, she was searching through the transcript of President Clinton's speech on Social Security. Why? I have no idea! Clinton gave the speech today at Georgetown University. The entire transcript is found at the address above. I think Mr. President is starting to give us more hints regarding his own special interests.

-6th paragraph from the top-

[Begin Quote]

"You know, there was a recent poll which said that young people in the generation of the students here felt it was far more likely that they would see a UFO than that they would draw Social Security. (Laughter.) And others may think that it's a long way off, as Mannone said, and the Vice President said he thought it was a long way off."

[End Quote]

-And 27th paragraph from the top-

[Begin Quote]

"Now, if you look at that plus the present investment patterns of the funds of which are designed to secure 100 percent security and, therefore, get a somewhat lower return in return for 100 percent security for the investments, that's what will cause the problem. So if you look at the presently projected retirement and the presently projected returns, that will cause the problem.

It's very important you understand this. Once you understand this, you realize this is not an episode from the X Files, and you're not more likely to see a UFO if you do certain specific things. On the other hand, if you don't do anything, one of two things will happen -- either it will go broke and you won't ever get it; or if we wait too long to fix it, the burden on society of taking care of our generation's Social Security obligations will lower your income and lower your ability to take care of your children to a degree most of us who are your parents think would be horribly wrong and unfair to you and unfair to the future prospects of the United States."

[End Quote]

Could our dream of Open Congressional Hearings be around the corner? Get ready Dr. Greer! Am I reading too much into this speech? We just found it curious that UFOs would come up twice during a speech on social security.

Very well, Jim. The photographer says that he cannot identify the object as terrestrial or extraterrestrial. Or anything about it. It might be a lens flare, a wayward monopole, the manifestation of a portion of the dark matter in the universe, or nothing at all.

Your logic is starting to wear thin, Jim. What you are saying, in effect, is that if a skeptic sees a ET craft it will appear to him as an unidentifiable anomaly. If a non-skeptic is standing next to him and sees the same thing, he will see an ET craft. If they both take pictures, the skeptic will get a picture of a lens flare and the non-skeptic will get a picture of an ET craft that LOOKS like a lens flare in case he decides to show it to another skeptic.

> To me, that says something about their level of ethics, even if > you don't see it.

Ok....What does it tell you and who are we talking about?

Aloha Tom

Robert O. Dean - Notes From The Prophets Conference

Robert O. Dean - Notes From The Prophets Conference
Oct 10-11-12, 1997

"Contact Panel" - Opening Statement By Robert O. Dean (Scroll to bottom for 'Contact' panelist information)

"I have to tell you that I am indeed honored to be on this panel, to be sitting beside some people that I love and respect and have admired for many, many years. This gentleman on my left is a very special American hero (referring to Dr. Edgar Mitchell). I hope all of you get a chance this weekend to shake his hand and thank him for what he has done.

"We're talking about contact and I understand that's the subject of this panel this afternoon and the over-all subject of this weekend, but I don't believe we're going to be dealing with contact. We've had contact for several thousands of years. In my approach to this and in my research I have concluded that we are not alone and we have never been alone. And I have also concluded that there has been what I call an intimate relationship between the human race and our friends and our family from the stars, probably from the beginning of our history. The evidence for that is literally overwhelming.

"Instead, I would like for you to look again at the definition of another word. I dug in the old Webster's Oxford Dictionary and I found out the real meaning of the word 'apocalypse'. Most of us who have been brought up in the Jewish faith, the Christian faith or Islam look upon the apocalypse as a rather frightening and terrible thing: about the four horsemen riding, bringing famine, war, pestilence, so on. These horsemen have been riding now for about the last ten thousand years. But, the real meaning of the word apocalypse, going back to the original Greek, means the uncovering, the discovery, and the revealing, and that, ladies and gentlemen, is what we are confronting here today and within these next few short years. We are literally being confronted with the uncovering, and the discovery and the revealing of who we are; what we are as a species and as a race; how we came to be here; why we are here; and, God bless 'em, where we are all going.

That is what we are being confronted with and that is going to shake the world to its very foundations. That discovery, that revelation is upon us.

We are in the middle of this apocalypse, and the next few short years are going to be literally earth shaking.

"I do not believe that the American people are prepared for this. I do not believe that the people on this planet are ready for this, and there are a lot of reasons for that. As an old infantry soldier I'm always raising hell with my government because it has not taken the lead in educating us as to what's happening. But I don't believe that we can depend on the government for that. We have to depend on ourselves and each other.

(applause)

"As several other people on this panel have said, the answers really are within us. Once we realize who we are, what we're here about, where we're going, that truth will literally set us free....

"We've been trying now for some time to have open hearings in Congress. We want this issue to be in the hands of the elected representatives of the American people where it should have been from the very beginning.

(applause)

"And so as Ed Mitchell has pointed out several times, sadly enough, this issue is in the hands of someone else. That has got to be changed.

(applause)

"I want to say in closing that I want you all to approach the next few years, not with fear, not with dread, and not looking for doom. I want you to understand that we are at the beginning of a new age, of a new time, of a new beginning.

"I believe in the American people. I believe in the citizens of this planet. I am proud to be a member of the human race. Ladies and gentlemen we are going to have an absolutely glorious future.

"God bless you and thank you."

Robert O. Dean, retired Army Command Sergeant Major

Back in the Sixties, NATO issued a classified report stating that UFOs were real, of extraterrestrial origin, and had visited the earth. This extraordinary report was said to come out of NATO's command center, the Supreme Headquarters Allied Powers Europe (SHAPE), located then just outside of Paris, France.

Dean, a highly decorated veteran, served on the front lines in both Korea and Vietnam. In 1963, while assigned to the Supreme Headquarters Operations Center (SHOC), SHAPE's war room, headed up by then-Supreme Allied Commander of Europe, Gen. Lyman Lemnitzer, Dean claims he was able to read the detailed 12-inch-thick NATO report on UFOs.

Regarding lens flare:

In another message I suggested you post you other pictures so we can see if the "flare" appears in other locations relative to the source of light.

It is my understanding that this was taken in late afternoon so the sun would have been on the horizon. Try to be accurate with the directions.

Were there any streetlights around or other lights at the time? Since you know where you took the photo (I presume) and in which direction (from the background) you can, presumably, take another at roughly the same time or at least for the same lighting conditions (e.g., sun on horizon?)

TRY TO CREAT A LENS FLARE.... you will be able to tell when you have by looking through the lens. Point the camera ALMOST at a bright light which appears in a darker surrounding background. We can compare a guaranteed lens flare with the orb.

Hi Barbara, JJ, Errol and list,

This subject is one in need of quite a deal more study and one oft overlooked in pursuit of the more "nuts and bolts" type investigations.

I would be grateful to any other list members if they would post their experiences in relation to this subject as Barbara has done.

If we suppose that these "unknowns" are piloted by extraterrestrial entities, surely it is reasonable to expect (given the capabilities under development by the military etc. here on earth) beings advanced enough to travel the vast voids of space would be capable of communication on a non auditory level - e.g. Telepathy.

If we accept for the purposes of this exercise that the possibility of the abduction phenomenon is real, and that the removal of memories, or at least their suppression, must somehow relate to mental interference of a type by the ETs, then this would surely imply a vastly greater understanding of neural operation by the ETs, and, therefore, suggest that at the very least, uni-lateral telepathy is well within the ET capabilities.

It is interesting to note that, from the passage supplied by Barbara, whilst there is a suggestion of telepathy, the actual communication manifested as an audible response from the witness to this event (which, given the disclosed non familiarity with ETs and UFOs in general by Barbara at that time,) is hardly a surprising response.

Barbara - perhaps you would be so kind as to provide the list with your perception of what was actually communicated, whether it was uni or bi-lateral, and if the telepathic communication is what precipitated your desire to flee(?).

Was there some type of fear or impression of imminent peril "communicated" by the object or its possible occupants, or was your reaction more to do with a "fear" of the unknown - a natural reaction by many faced with the events as outlined? You have delineated your response clearly enough, but I am still left wondering what you actually "received", if anything, or, if it was your impression that the telepathy was solely on your behalf, in "ordering" the object to leave?

Far from being "Just another story added to the millions", each "experiencer" should look to sharing their knowledge for the betterment of understanding by all investigating in this arena. If only more people would come forward!

Regards,

ASIUS

The Antipodean.

Don,

I take strong offense to this response of yours. Perhaps it's just your need to vent frustration at your attempts at requesting information or help from an E-mail list.

Firstly, I am aware of all the circumstances surrounding Alex's claim. As I stated, I can only respond to the evidence provided, and, in my opinion as a professional photographer, what I see is a lens flare and all the incumbent circumstances that cause it.

I don't have to accept anything, and I am NOT calling Alex a liar! Where the hell would we be if we accepted everything?
Exactly where the state of "ufology" is today, with too many people who are already accepting everything at face value.

It has already been suggested by Bob that there may be two phenomena at work. Alex admits at least the possibility that he may not have captured what he saw on film.

I sure hope you used more critical faculties in writing your book on the Shag Harbour incident! Otherwise we may have to suffer through an account by a fisherman 'Jones' who claims he saw pigs flying the craft before it hit the water.

>IS..... NOT..... What difference does it make? What is proven >one way or the other? Nothing! It is not evidence of ANYTHING!

BE A SKEPTIC!!!!

And understand that here you see the workings of an investigation.
In the ufo "business", since UFOs/ET/Alien Flying Craft(AFC) DON'T EXIST according to the "straight" world, the witness is always guilty until proven innocent (because no sane witness would report something that is impossible...obviously <g>).

Alex says he saw something. Then he took a picture of it.

If you believe Alex...you don't need the picture! His report is good enough. If you don't believe his report is accurate (maybe he honestly misidentified something.... or maybe he made the whole thing up---a hoax), then you have the picture to "prove" something was there.... Or was it?

So now we have counter proposals to explain the picture (I note no one has yet proposed an explanation for the sighting itself...like, for example, ball lightning..... but that would just be explaining one unknown with another). Could the picture show the object he saw? If not, it certainly wouldn't be the first time that someone saw (A) and photographed (B) by accident...as Bob Shell has pointed out. In fact, quite a number of photos/videos/etc.

I have looked at have shown things which are not consistent with the witness testimony.

Anyway, I have (and another person) have proposed that the other pictures be posted. It is possible that the other pictures contain images that cannot be flares. Also, Bob has suggested learning about th camera so we could determine whether or not the iris would,. indeed, allow a flare like that image.

So, suppose we conclude it is a flare? That means the testimony must stand on its own and we have only the witness (Alex) memory for the description of the object he saw. POINT: WE CAN'T SIMPLY REJECT THE SIGHTING EVEN IF WE CAN EXPLAIN THE PHOTO IMAGE...unless we can prove that Alex is a (mean, nasty, probably CSICOP member) hoaxer!!!!

As to whether or not the sighting could be a misidentification of some wierd thing or if it is definitely ET/AFC related...that argument mus be based on the testimony/

ON THE OTHER HAND: if the flare theory is rejected... then I see no other explanation than that Alex photographed what he saw. Now the argument would switch to whether or not the photo is of an ET craft (AFC). (Or could it be a mental projection.. whatever that is... or some other bizarre phenomenon... just as unknown as UFOs).

SO, you ask, what is the payoff? WHAT IS PROVEN? About the only thing we can get out of the photo argument is the possibility that we have an actual photo of one of the light balls that have been so often reported by witnesses...who didn't have cameras handy! This would be a valuable payoff.

At the very least we appear to have a sighting of something wierd. It may or may not be earth shaking, but it could be another nail on the coffin of the skeptics.

And the appearance of the helicopter.... how many times have I heard of that? (let me count the ways).

There is a non-uniform blur of your sailboat images. This suggests to me a time exposure. Was this an evening shot? Did the camera rotate during exposure or was it on a tripod?

If the camera rotated then the length of the "light" images is not related to their actual size.

There are general geometric relations between a light source and a flare it might cause in an optical system. If you have other pictures with th orb in different locations they might prove that the orb is not a flare. For example, if you have another photo in which the sun (?) or light source is to the left and the orb is also left of center (the photo you showed has it right of center), this might be evidence against a flare. If you have several photos with the orb in different locations you might post same to help in the "flare analysis"..... which is being treated as "independent" of your testimony.

Hi Errol, JJ, and list subscribers,

I would like to take offense at this UN-scientific and obviously biased opinion.

Jenifer Jarvis is a well-respected and honest skywatcher.

She has presented many pics of the "ORBS" and has been working with CSETI for several years.

My experience with photographing unidentified LITS reveal that sometimes even a close-up photo will sometimes be blacked out completely. Or will present light that looks totally different than that seen with naked eye.

Skeptical disinformation is not the same as scientific proof.

*****

Hello Nick,

Thank you for your comments and questions.

SAILBOAT PEOPLE !!!!! NO...unfortunately, but it won't be long before I AM IN A BOAT !!!!! 32 footer !!!

The "bright objects" were at approximately 5.9 statute miles from my location. I have NO idea who else was watching them at that moment.

The "bright objects" are way behind the boats, as you can see by the fact that the boats are very fuzzy and out of focus.

I had a converter on my camera giving a magnification of 8 x 5.5 at the time. Sorry about blur, but I was focused on the BRIGHT BOYS, not the boats.

Regular boats don't really pique my interest!!!

The "RED BORDERS" that you mention are characteristic of "unknowns" operating at "lower power" according to Paul R. Hill in his book "Unconventional Flying Objects - A Scientific Analysis."

The "cloud" around the "unknown" appears to be "see-through"..... certainly to myself, and the camera!!!

WITH MY EYES???? My attention was drawn to these "BRIGHT" objects on the previous night, May 20th, and they also appeared on the 21st and 22nd at identical times. I saw them more as ORANGE than red, BUT no changes have been made to the video. YOU SEE what I SAW on the original!!! The "still" has not been altered either.

Re. the RED LIGHTS over Lake Ontario last year: the red light you mention was similar to a pulsating red light on a small aircraft (e.g. Cessna), but this continued for about an hour, and executed strange turns, so I am doubtful as to whether it WAS a "conventional." This sighting you mention occurred on Tuesday, May 13th, 1997.

I hope to continue with this documentation as the spring approaches.

*****

Hello Brian!

Thanks for your comments.

The camera did not NEED to track the objects in question.
Pixel count on the video showed no "linear" movement as such.
I just locked the camera in position, on the tripod, and let it "roll."

The wind was quite strong, and some vibration took place, but there was NO need to do any tracking.

The sequence ran for about 15 minutes if I remember correctly.
This also happened on the following evening, May 22nd. at the same time.

The video has NOT been altered in any way, and neither has the still that I posted on UpDates.

Re: Communication with UFOs?

Best wishes.

Judging by wha we know about Mr. Clinton and his probable exclusion from the inner 'loop' of individuals housing this kind of sensitive material, I would guess that some are probably reading too much into this speech. It is highly unlikely that we'll see any Congressional hearings into the phenomenon of UFOs under this administration.

The context was that only one person saw (and photographed) it.
So if you don't change the context, it goes like this: The witness sees it, and he finds it to be unidentified and very impressive, and his photograph supports him (although it may resemble a lens flare or a meteor or whatever). Then the skeptic learns of it and keeps open the likelihood that it is still unidentified, since the object's behavior does not accord with what its photograph resembles, and since the witness has credibility. Also, a negative skeptic learns of it, and concludes either that the unidentified object is not a "genuine" UFO, or that it is the same thing which the photo resembles, even though that conflicts with the witness's report on its behavior.

I'm very excited about this! Some of you know, I ran a bookstore for years, and it has always been a love of mine. I get asked often to recommend books(I do write reviews for several publications) on these topics, and now I can do it and actually give you a source for them at the same time! This is being done in association with Amazon.com, which has an outstanding reputation for the five "S"s of internet shopping: selection, searchability, service, savings, and security. If there is any specific book you want (or topic in which you are interested), let me know and I will do the research and e-mail you a link you can use to check it out more (and order it if you want). I will be linking to books within the Media Alert, to make it more efficient for you. If you click on the link, you will be sent to that title on Amazon. You do =not= have to buy it at that point! Rant of the Week: "Let's pie the polluting lolly!"

Every week we pick the wackiest, scariest, nastiest or funniest rant from the hundreds of letters received by us here at ParaScope headquarters, and present it to you as our Rant of the Week. This week, we're thrilled to offer a special "remote guest rant" from Noel Godin, the twisted genius behind the recent guerilla cream pie attack on probable anitchrist Bill Gates. Excerpted from an interview on the Netly News web site (netly.com), Godin's comments offer invaluable insight into his inspired assault. Enjoy.

"I'm part of a gang of bad hellions that have declared the pie war on all the unpleasant celebrities in every kind of domain. [Our slogan is: 'Let's pie! Let's pie! Nincompoop guys!'] We began to act against 'empty' celebrities from the artistic world who were thinking they were the cat's whiskers.

"[We decided to pie Bill Gates because] in a way he is the master of the world, and then because he's offering his intelligence, his sharpened imagination and his power to the governments and to the world as it is today -- that is to say gloomy, unjust and nauseating. He could have been a utopist, but he prefers being the lackey of the establishment. His power is effective and bigger than that of the leaders of the governments, who are only many-colored servants. So Bill Gates was at the top of our lists of victims. The attack against him is symbolic, it's against hierarchical power itself. Our war cry was explicit: 'Let's pie! Let's pie the polluting lolly!'

"We declare war on all the governments of the world, on Tony Blair, on Bill Clinton, on the pope... On our blacklist, you will also find Demi Moore; Tom Cruise and John Travolta, who are both members of the Scientology; Bill Graham... On the other hand, we have enemies everywhere. We had thousands of propositions to help us, even abroad. We also have many enemies. But we are like the characters of a cartoon. We are like Laurel & Hardy, Bugs Bunny, the Marx Brothers, the yippies of May 1968."

Hi there Bruce!!!!

This is an un-altered still taken off a video tape.

The camera was on a tripod, and I was using the Panasonic vid cam that I mentioned on Sunday in my posting. The mag was x 66 and I was focused on the bright objects, not on the boats.

Having locked onto the "event," I did not move the camera, and just let it "roll" for about fifteen minutes.

I captured two frames from the VHS vid, and posted one of them to the UpDates list.

Best wishes.

JJ

Second Posting to Query from Bruce Maccabee:

Hi Bruce.

Here is the posting I did to UpDates on Sunday, again:

Dear Updates.

In my earlier post which included a gif. file of an "event" that I documented last May, I neglected to include details of the camera that was used.

For your information:

PANASONIC "OmniMovie" VHS format.
PV-610-K
8:1 Power Zoom

At the time of this "event" I was also using a X 5.5 Tokina converter

I then had "stills" taken off the VHS tape..

Sorry about the oversight.

Best wishes,

JJ

Dan, Dave, Henny and others on the List

With your fine help I have definitely located Menwith Hill (Golf ball domes and all)... so no need to look any further.

It is interesting to note that I already had 10 other sightings listed within about five miles, Menwith is the eleventh!

Blubberhouses has 4 listings in the *U* database, Ilkley and Ilkley Moor account for another four. Others are in Beamsley and Addington.

I could have found this out from my own bookshelf if memory had served me better..

Menwith Hill is prominently discussed in 'The Puzzle Palace', a book by James Bamford, ISBN 0-14-00.6748-5, 1982 Penguin Books.

See. pp 268-272, pp 419-420 and pg 510.

There were several reprints in the USA and UK editions.

Thank you all for you help!

He said that he thinks he can walk now and is impatient to get out of the hospital.

Apology to MW #222 (For February 11, 1998)

In each of us lies a potential for power, beyond all our reach, and of course, beyond grasp. It is in this pure conscious we cower denying the fact of this power to our last charmless gasp. It's why tested faith can move mountains of mountains, while common faith just puts you on your knees, and the whispers of the ancients go unheeded in that folly, and your trust is uncontesting in prevaricating breeze. With soul sold to hard science, to exclusion of the *false*, the rut is plain, and would explain our graceless, soulless waltz.

We are jealous of our turf and repel the odd incursion that we justify might push us from our *spot*. We pronounce on this indifference in the treatment of our fellows who could flatly go to hell as quick as not. And it's 'cause we're so damn many, cut in half we're still too many, and we breed, and= plan, and suffer without end. Respect is parceled out to quell the fear we'd do without -- how some are faking cohorts, chums, and friends.

The mainstream skies are quiet, and the press is on a diet of our William's errant pee pee, plain we see. All things remaining equal, I can find it far less feeble to support a fellow human =85 gets it up like you and me (g).=
The obverse is a curse, who can't or won't while being terse, is the person that's revolted by their glands. Take my choice between the two, and Willy wins again, brave crew; he'll be the one to love sweet life, eschewing= crimes that _others_ do.

Bush and Reagan got it up (?), and monkeys fly from Trent Lott's butt (!); they were bitter with their gonads withered, dry, and shriveled up. I'll= take a man still vital though he dally just a trifle. If true it was consensual= so detraction is just spiteful. Bill didn't take your mother's money, like the Reagan/Bush bunch did -- them whose balls are dry and self detested. Bill= has steered to center like elitists never do, and that is true, and documented= -- uncontested.

Some say the other countries of this spinning blue white globe are laughing up their sleeves at Uncle Sam. Well, I submit it's much, much worse. It is, in fact, the universe that's laughing hard enough to beat the band. Our morality's a joke that is writ to make poor folk _quiver_ 'neath the lashes of their guilt. Their lives then spent in toil, they are boiled in culture's oil, then buried out of sight in toxic silt.

All of this and more is surely hiding in the shadow of William's surly= member now presented, freshly used? As it sways and sates its hungers space born watchers watch hate mongers, then retreat from an encounter that might bring them into view. The lights in velvet skies and the perils of our Earth, somehow driven far away to miss its thrust? Gone are silent greys, the vicious reps, and wishful nords; seemingly in terror of the thunder of its lust?

In its shadow lights still dance, strange enigmas of weird chance, and the multiverse's maw still yawns and beckons. But we would rather stew regarding who puts what in who=85 -- and that is what we _are_, you think or reckon?

The UFO Message I seemed to receive in May 1995.

~~~~~ In 1995 UFO's were reported in Central Australia. I drove from North Queensland to count the horses' teeth. This was late in May 1995.

When I got there I spoke to many witnesses. A UFO, often with a smaller, fainter light behind it, had taken to swooping in from the west every night and had been astonishing, delighting and terrifying the staff and tourists there.

Lou Farkas, Manager of the Wycliffe Wells tourist park said
"Channel 10 from Brisbane" had purchased spectacular footage from a tourist for $ 100 000. I certainly have heard nothing of it since. Lou's business relied mainly on tourists and there was little prospect that a hoax of any sort would affect his trade much. It was interesting that his wife of Chinese extraction had set up a shrine in the shop with a life sized ape doll at its centre.

I did not get any footage. I carried a still fixed focus camera and a JVC S-VHS videocamera, but did not intend to so much as get any camera out unless an approach was made and it was clear to me the camera would not offend. Lets face it, photos were no proof anyway. My mission was not to get proof but to discover the nature of the total picture.

I was told by Lou that 30 m craft were materializing 1 km above the Jarra Jarra Ranges and proceeding eastwards, visiting Wycliffe Wells as if to get water.

Local aborigines told me that certain pools were empty because "they drink the water".

My mini-expedition set itself up in the sparse gum forest where only a few days earlier eyewitnesses said the craft had hovered, illuminating the treetops with its lights.

We camped in a dry creek bed and later, at a better positioned gravel dump immediately to the N of W Wells. The nights were cold and by day the flies sought to lay eggs in our tear ducts, sometimes with success. It is a funny sensation. : ) There was nothing paranormal there that we came across.

Eyewitness and regional newspaper accounts from people of all cultures confirmed a certain pattern of activity, that hovering craft with lights were approaching and following motor cars on the highways. They were not earth lights and they were not advanced military aircraft. These persistent vessels acted with clear intelligent intent but there is no way anyone with access to secret military craft would go out night after night and follow aborigines and whites around in their cars at a few meters altitude.

On our last night on the gravel dump one of my sons got gastro, or we would not have been awake. At 4 a.m. a TOTALLY SILENT aircraft drifted overhead. From illumination from flashing lights on the fuselage I made it out through binocs (later) to be a US YF-23 or YF-24. I did my ID from a "Time" Video. My report seems to have later led to a posting on the skunk works mail-l "Goddam Loud Mouth UFO Watchers" or words to that effect. : )

At the time we did not feel it was a "real" UFO despite the astonishing silence in the still desert air. The cessna "paper plane" that flew past at a great distance made a racket.

The advanced tactical fighter was flying south at the time, canting slowly and severely as it no doubt made full use of its side scanning radar apparatus which is mounted in a long slit in the belly of these aircraft. Or is it some sort of device for delivering intense microwave pulses?

Its course was such as to take it over Wycliffe Wells at 4 a.m. One night a little earlier I believe I saw a second such craft flying south only it was much further to the west. That indicates what Australians would call an emu parade. And like a dog that runs from an abusing master, the UFO's had stopped coming to Wycliffe Wells - as I observed. So yes, the US is hunting UFO's.

Sorry Joe, I did meander there. Communication is also my interest. Communication with UFO's seems to take a variety of forms:

1 - telepathic messages from UFO's, (gene seem to develop compulsions and passions that may or may not reflect the policies or attributes of some exotic culture. (prophesizing)

I believe communication did occur on my journey to Wycliffe Wells. At the time I thought I was going to get to see diffuse "earth lights" over some sacred spot, something like that. It was not until well after I got there that I heard how they followed cars. From the Queensland border westwards the road is devoid of any settlement. It was dark anonsciousness, and it was linked in my mind to the view out of the windscreen. It was as if I had two views, one of the headlights on the road ahead, the other of a tall skyline of black pine trees. This feeling and perspective stayed with me four or more hours as we cruised along.

Then I heard this drumming, deep and slow. I was bemused at the sound, and wound the window down and up, turned the radio on (static) and off again. Nothing changed the noise. It carried a feeling too.

Maybe through this area and they have had huge quakes in recent years. I got a feeling of immense strain, as if it were some vast geological underground entity with impending gestation. I'm afraid that sounds a bit New Agey! I can only report what came to me. Maybe magma dragons are for real.

Then a voice spoke. And when Ed Walters described it as "grinding out" he got it spot on. It was slow and deep and male:

"I am he ra. I am chi ra. I am win"

Now I am clear about the first six syllab of Egyptian temples.

Funny how in movies or under hypnosis (no, never for me) people remember every last word. My mind captured the first eight, then I was so flabbergasted I lost focus a moment.

Then the drumming continued for some minutes afterwards while I just continued to drive. I guess I was tired and dazed, but it never occurred to me that it might have been a UFO trying to communicate with me. That must sound dumb. It is. (The penny did not drop until I started ploughing throughtit appeared - and then he went to sleep.

I often wonder what I would have seen had I stopped the car and looked above and behind. I have not let myself wonder what might have happened had I got out of the car. BTW there was no "lost time" that night so far as I can tell.

I have strived mightily to make sense of what the UFO - if that was what it was - said to me. One translation is:

"I am a friendly rhean,
I am the hand (gift-giving) of Rhea,
I am signa and they are approaching people and offering to beef them up. And I blew it. : )

Lets briefly recall the myths associated with Demeter. Her symbol was a black triangle. She quartered the world looking for her missing daughter "Persephone", which seems to mean "fairy say hearer". Demeter's "chariot" was in the control of horses and dragons.

In magic so far as I know a few women get the exotic powers and they have the responsibility of implementing these powers for the good of the commuems to be a neat system of checks and balances!

I had a type one communication. I should mention that about a year earlier a member of my family suddenly started having intense repetitive dreams in which he is at the 1st floor window of our home in Millaa Millaa and he is watching a craft with flashing lights coming drifting up the main streeet in the middle of the night. It was about then that we both started having all sorts of low-level paranormal experiences. These were duly reportfor us.

In spiritualism there have been cases where it appears that entities have been sent from the "other side" to inform a selected person via a fellow human "spirit medium". Generally they offer a cluster of information related to the question/s uppermost in the seeker's mind.

So another spin-off from my trip to Central Oz was a lengthy communication via spirit medium which detailed the nature, activity and disposition of what most people would call the local alien or ET cultures or cnk it is of unrecognized significance. I believe that one of the exotic agencies that humans are trying to suss out has gone to a lot of effort to offer an articulate net human (for all my faults) a straight explanation of what is going on.

Let me emphasize that this belief is based on observation and other members of this list are welcome to X-question me with a view to discovering a simpler explanation.

BTW the source of the type three communication (spirit medium) made it clear thao religion and that I have reached a stage where I could not care squat diddley if people believe what I report or not. It is just unfortunate.

I still hope someone can locate that famous video taken at Wycliffe Wells. As for any possible connection of all this with Pine Gap, America's "extraterrestrial status" base near Alice Springs (south of Wycliffe Wells) - well, that is another story.

All the best.

Like that's never been done before. It didn't bother you any when I sent you those Japan sightings. Thanks incidentally for your Nobody suggested you were Drew, but the witnesses take enough crap as it is. They at least deserve a BIT of an investigation before being jumped on.

Now that's a cheap shot and you know it. Spending four years on this investigation, and Chris Styles five and a half is hardly just an account by fisherman Jones watching pigs flying some craft. Apparently you and others ignored this one when it was right in your face, even in the Condon report. It appears as well that you have continued to ignore it if that foolishness is all you can come up with.

OH YES...that is for sure!!!

> I'm not sure I > understand why you only have two still frames, one which you > posted, if you took the video?

BECAUSE...at $5.00 per frame video capture, I decided that I only needed two stills of THIS specific event to use on my website.

I do not have unlimited funds, and the website has already consumed many hours of my programmer's time.

> Also...did you have a camera with > you on the other nights when the objects reappeared? I guess > I'm > asking if there are more photos period :)

The objects appeared on THREE consecutive nights.

May 20th, I briefly saw them on playing back my videotape. It appeared that, after tracking the movement of a "conventional ORB" further east, I had panned briefly to the west and the "bright objects" had shown up. I did not think much about them as they were just visible briefly on the tape.

May 21st, the evening in question, I caught sight of these bright objects, and decided, as they seemed "anomalous, " to put them on film.

When I got home I reviewed the tape, and saw the "objects." I asked my son what he thought they were, and he said that they looked like reflections on a building in the sunset.

May 22nd, the third evening, I set up the video camera as on the previous night, and they kindly showed themselves again. I did NOT examine the tape, on returning home, due to extreme fatigue.

Next morning, the 23rd, a friend came round to watch the tapes whilst we chatted over coffee. I was in the kitchen when she called me in to look at the tape more carefully. It was then that we saw, more clearly, what had, in actual fact, shown up on the video tape.

I didn't really consider things like "substantial sighting" when I was going down to the lake, daily from March 22nd to June 24th. I was simply going there to hang out, take some vid, and hopefully catch some of my "friends" on tape. The normal round-trip to the lake is approximately 40 miles. When I visit the south shore on many days, the drive is a round trip of 100+ miles.

> Photographic and video evidence will not solve the UFO mystery

TRYING.....really trying.....BUT, I think that, at the time, I was just really happy to be there, watching things that, up until that time, were NOT part of my normal reality.

Best wishes.

<snip>

Aloha Bruce....

Thank you for your comments. I agree with them to a point, but my position is not exactly the way you present it. First, I neither dispute Alex's sighting report nor his photograph. What I dispute is a tendency, on the part of people who claim to be investigators, to infer data which cannot be supported by the evidence. In this case an eyewitness report and a photograph are the evidence. Unfortunately, neither the report nor the photograph are clear and undisputable evidence anything, and certainly not of the moral and ethical propensities of extraterrestrials.

This is not an investigation since no one disputes Alex's sighting report. This is an exercise in futility. The object has gone on its merry way and no matter how much everyone argues about what it may or may not have been, there is no possible way to know. Even if a similar object appears as you read this, you cannot know whether it is the same object as before or whether it has the same purpose. When people start rationalizing evidence instead of dispassionately looking at the evidence at hand, the investigation becomes an imagination contest.

Cut to the chase. I contend that arguing about something that is not demonstrable one way or the other may be interesting, and may certainly provoke thought among people who have no idea how to go about their stated purpose, but is basically pointless. Let's develop a focus for all of this. We can start a foundation, get some sponsors, and offer a million dollars to any non-government entity who can demonstrate clear and unambiguous proof of first contact. Then turn the investigators loose on the applicants. That would give UFOlogy a shot in the arm and generate some good press for the cause. And, it would also open up every claim to public scrutiny. I think I can find the sponsors. And no, I am not joking.

Aloha
Tom Burnett

Hi there Steve!!

Thank you kind sir!!!

> She has presented many pics of the "ORBS" and has been > working with CSETI for several years.

Right now I am working on getting some of this documentation up on a website, and then interested parties can see for themselves what it is that I have witnessed.

I am doing occasional "sorties" to the lake, and on January 20th witnessed 7 submersions (of "orbs") in a space of 40 minutes. I am not filming as yet, because my fingers tend to seize up, and I can't manipulate the camera with gloves on. Temperatures are not that bad, but on New Year's Eve, when I saw only ONE "orb," just on midnight, the temperature was around - 20 C.

> My experience with photographing unidentified LITS

I must admit that things seen through the viewfinder sometimes bear no resemblance to what was seen with the naked eye. Also,
I find that, on many occasions, I have left the camera "rolling," so to speak, and that interesting anomalies have appeared on replaying the tape. Things that I never saw with naked eye.

However, this was probably because I was busy chatting with passers-by or my co-watchers. :-)

I think that, the only thing that we are going to prove is that there are things around us, above us and below us, about which we know very little > scientific proof.

> Steve

Well said, Steve. The big problem with UFOlogy is the question of just what constitutes scientific proof. Essentially, we are dealing with a nonreproducible phenomenon which occasionally leaves highly ambiguous physical traces.

Photography and videography are, alas, in this digital age, unreliable, and are likely to promote much controversial heat, but little light. Radar and other 'independent' verification technologies are also subject to known anomalies which render them inadequate for pure scientific verification. Outside of the physical investigations we conduct (checking weather, flight trajectories, astronomical and meteorological phenomena, etc.), the most critical information we receive is (obviously) the testimony of eyewitnesses. And unfortunately, this can only be at best anecdotal. The character, experience, and psychological makeup of such witnesses therefore becomes of critical importance.

My own feeling is that the best any of us can do is to investigate reports thoroughly and make up our minds as to the veracity of the witness. Thus, any corroborating evidence (or, indeed, evidence to the contrary) must be viewed strictly within the context of the witnesses character, competence, and experience. Such a methodology cannot, in the strictest sense, be called scientific, but UFOlogists are continually breaking new ground in philosophy, psychology, and science. Any 'answers' undoubtedly lie in the diligent application of methodologies from all three.

Hi Steve,

If you will carefully read your threads you will discover that "JJ" was not involved in the heated discussion that Drew and I were having on this list. The discussion arose from a picture and sighting of a UFO in Brooklyn by Alex Cavallari.

It began because I was making a point of people not reading their email and getting their facts straight before commenting. Seem familiar:-) Again, this had nothing to do with JJ's sighting, which I find very interesting and would like more detail on.

Regards,

Don Ledger

PS-You will probably hearing from Drew as well.

CORRECTION:

Please note that in a posting I made last night...I stated that the video camera I was using was set to a magnification of X 66.

On the evening of May 21st., 1997, the camera which I was using had a Power Zoom of X 8, and I was also using a Tokina X 5.5 converter. Thus, magnification was only X 44, and not X 66 as I had previously stated.

On May 26th. I obtained a new camera, with a Power Zoom of X 12, which I have used ever since.

Fatigue takes its toll !! :-)

I will analyze your video for free. No charge. I have the capability of doing video frame grabbing, and I have webspace available to make all the grabs, or a good sampling, available to other parties interested in your sighting.

Interested?

I don't understand "conventional orb," could you be more specific? How much video do you have of this first orb, the one you were tracking?

Have you thoroughly checked the shipping traffic. I remember someone on this list stated ships reflecting sunlight can sometimes appear on coastal horizons. Being a land-locked Iowan...I have no idea what this looks like, but checking with the local shipping authorities would be prudent. If no ships were present in the area of the sighting, then it's a no brainer on that particular theory. I do not question you saw something...you have it on video...but I don't know if we can dub it "anomalous" until all possibilities are exhausted.

Again I would urge you to make this tape available for an independent researcher to analyze. If not myself...someone who has the observational and technical skills to extract as much information from it as possible. If these glowing orbs are a reality, and you have caught one floating above the water on film, no matter what your initial intent was...you have entered the realm of ufology :)

We are all trying JJ...and being happy is the ultimate goal...yes? Perhaps we can be happy with orbs being part of our normal reality...eh?

Wrong assumption! I did not ignore this case as I hadn't heard of

Bob,

Sorry if I lost my temper. I didn't mean to come across so strongly. However, one of your earlier posts is what pushed my over the edge. Here is what you wrote with regard to if Alex captured what he saw, on film.

>Nope,

>Lens flare. Plain and simple. The characteristic color

> is a dead give away.

>Put this one in the circular file.

>Bob

How can anybody be so sure of something that they weren't even present at? You may be right but you may be wrong. Your response didn't seem to leave open the possibility of the latter.

Why didn't you write something like this: "Alex, my experience with cameras and photography lead me to believe that the object in your photo may very well be the product of a lens flare. I could be wrong but that's what it looks like to me. Maybe you missed the actual orb and got the lens flare instead. Try to recreate the conditions at the time the photo was taken and see if lens flare occurs again. Good luck."

I know you wrote something similar in future emails but the line "Nope. Lens Flare. Plain and Simple." really made my blood boil and made me think of the Air Force's cavalier answers at the "recent" Roswell, Case Closed press conference.

So that's why I responded so strongly to your post. I hope no offense is taken. I realize you're trying to get to the truth along with all of us.

Keith,

You may be right but I don't think so. What evidence is there that open hearings are "highly unlikely" under the current administration?

I trust Edgar Mitchell's opinion and this is what he had to say recently on that matter.

Joe
-----

Excerpt from:

Filer's Files, #5-1998, 2-6-98

George A. Filer
MUFON Eastern Director, Skywatch Investigations

ASTRONAUT EDGAR MITCHELL

MUFON's John Thompson writes. "By pure coincidence after getting CSETI's e-mail this morning, urging all to contact their federal representatives to ask for congressional hearings on UFOs, Dr. Edgar Mitchell, former moon walker, was on the United Broadcasting Network (UBN) Radio today. Knowing that he was involved in Dr. Steven Greer's CSETI effort, I called UBN and was able to talk to him. He said, Many think that efforts for Congressional UFO Hearings have gone no where, but the real news is that behind the scenes many congressional leaders have been agreeing, that they should take place.

It is Mitchell's belief that Congressional Hearings will take place and they may be started relatively soon. It was encouraging to hear this from him and it is clear that he thinks momentum is still building.

P.S.: I just received another e-mail from Tony Craddock of CSETI who says "committee chairs" should be contacted and not "local representatives. Draft up a letter or fax, and send now." Thanks to John Thompson our former Georgia Director who always does a great job. He is now our State Section Director.

Apparently I got off on the wrong foot with you somehow...I am not a skeptic. I have seen several UFOs. I think it reasonable to believe that UFOs which manifest characteristics of intelligent control are intelligently controlled. I also think it is both logically and mathematically probable that some, but not all of the intelligently controlled UFOs which are observed or recorded are directed by extraterrestrial intelligences.

Where we differ is that I do not believe that every UFO seen by anyone can be an extraterrestrial craft. I think that pictures of ducks and airplanes are just pictures of ducks and airplanes, not UFOs that are trying trying to fool the camera a telepathic mind-meld.

I am simply saying that pictures of UNIDENTIFIED objects are just exactly that. And to start rationalizing the purpose and ethics of a race (or races) of extraterrestrials from a picture of an UNIDENTIFIED object is beyond human abilities.

Mr. Spock would die of illogic apoplexy if he read that. ALL UFOs are genuine UFOs. But all UFOs are NOT extraterrestrial. I do not dispute Alex Cavallari's report or photograph at all and I never did. What I said was that neither his report nor his picture identify the sighting as anything. It is an UNIDENTIFIED object. You can insist it was a spacecraft all you want, and you can imagine all sorts of scenarios for why it chose to appear as a lens flare, but unless you can identify it it is still a UFO.

Really, if the extraterrestrials/UFOs are shape-shifters and have unlimited telepathic powers, it is difficult to imagine that the military could ever see one, much less capture it...And if they did, they certainly could not keep its condition and location away from others with the same powers who would certainly come to recover it.

And if they have such remarkable powers, everything we can see or photograph is meaningless in any case because we can only see and record what they want to show us.

I think that, while they have advanced mental abilities and technology, they are not immortal do not possess unlimited powers. I think we CAN see and photograph their craft. And I think there are probably ways to avoid being abducted and used in medical experiments. But I would really like to see people concentrate a little more on finding out what we don't know and locating some unambiguous evidence and artifacts than continue to argue about who is a skeptic and why anyone who does not immediately accept every photograph of a UFO as an extraterrestrial vehicle should be excommunicated and burned at the stake.

I previously suggested that the UFO community band together, find some sponsors, and offer a one million dollar reward to any non-government entity who can demonstrate unequivocal proof of first contact. The sponsors can be found easily enough. I could find them myself, and so could most of the people who will read this. It got the issue in the news again (and might keep it there with updates), but you never know.....

Of course, by the time everyone finishes arguing about who gets to do what, it will never happen....

PUBLIC SERVICE BROADCAST

Before we drag on the wellies and wade into another pool of Blather, let me bring your wonderous attention to the fire exits, and the new Blather-Blabber-Chat: A web based discussion board for Blather subscribers to chew the fat, spit the gravel and feel the tarmacadam.

It's available at <http://www.nua.ie/blather/blabber/>

SIGHTINGS OF SOMETHING

The rather clammy and smelly paged 'Sightings' (<http://www.rapide.co.uk/sight.htm>) magazine has in this issue (Vol. 2 Issue 9) an article by one Dermot Butler of IUFORA (Should really be IUFOPRA, The Irish UFO & Paranormal Research Association), entitled 'The Wicklow Hotspot', a watered down version of his 'Irish Case Files Update' (<http://www.digiserve.com/ufoinfo/iufopra/files.shtml>).

To be utterly pernickety, 'Sightings' habit of randomly littering their publication with irrelevant photographs of unidentified flying objects and wizened grays is less than useful. This is especially true in the Irish article, as none of the UFOs mentioned were photographed. The article is a meander through the various reports from the county of Wicklow, into which the urban sprawl of Dublin reaches. Unfortunately, it's neither long enough or in-depth enough to attempt serious analysis of each case. It does however, give one the impression of that Wicklow is a 'window' area. I don't dispute this, but it should be noticed that County Wicklow covers an area of 782 sq. miles (2025 sq. km). Wexford is also mentioned and if one doesn't cut off the 'window' at the exact county border with Dublin, but permit it run to the edge of the Dublin mountains where they sweep down to the city, we have a larger area altogether.

Another Irish UFO group, ICUFOS (<http://freespace.virgin.net/ic.ufos/>) mentioned in this column many times before, claim window areas in Roscommon and Bantry, West Cork. Blather is rather concerned about this. If this little republic of ours (<http://www.odci.gov/cia/publications/nsolo/factbook/ei.htm>) develops any more UFO windows, the damn things will start overlapping, possibly causing what I propose to label 'The Paranormal Greenhouse Effect'. If this motion is carried, I might as well claim to be the first sinner in the glasshouse to start flinging sceptical lumps of Wicklow granite.

A LETTER FROM SWEDEN

In light of my still-not-having-got my talons on the Roscommon documents (<http://www.nua.ie/blather/archives/issuelno38.html>), Hugh O'Connor in New South Wales, Australia (<http://www.mpx.com.au/~hugho/index.html>) has come up with some interesting Swedish correspondence regarding the Saab Gripen. The identity of the correspondent has been kept from me, for obvious reasons.

'... all the testflights concerning the plane's performance or it's technical devices are still done by the testpilots from SAAB. Some of them are employed by British Aerospace originally, but rented out to SAAB if they have anything to do with the Gripen or the 2000.

'The testpilot, who flew the very first Gripen and the prototype of the 2000, happens to be the father of a friend of mine and through him I know most of the pilots and the going ons around those planes. I haven't asked, but if there had been a deadly accident with two testpilots killed, ##### would have surely talked about it.

If not him, #####, the guy from England who's been visiting me last week, had been working on the plane till end of 97, he talked to high ranked SAAB people only on Friday, but he didn't mention anything either. They were surely not testing the plane or its performance when they came down.

'And the Americans must know about the technical things inside it already, because a lot of them have been in Linkping all of last year and everybody was very hush-hush about the purpose of their visit, so it was not for the commercial planes they came. . .

'Linkping is such a small place in some ways, if i go to my favourite bar, half the people there are from SAAB and the other half either from Ericsson or university. . .

'On Saturday night the guys who would have been sent to make inquiries about the crash from the company were all there. .. at least the ones I know, but they were in good spirits and planes coming down usually makes them gloomy and hectic.'

So -- we're left none the wiser, really. Blather has emailed Saab, and may yet go as far as to phone them.

CANS OF CAECILIANS, KETTLES OF RED HERRINGS

There were plenty of interesting responses to last week's

'Subjectiveness Trap'

(<http://www.nua.ie/blather/archives/issuelno39.html>).

Todd Pellman quite justifiably makes a point:

'It seems to me that in your discussion of SETI in the previous Blather you made a mistake as to the motivating assumption of SETI. It is not "If there are other technologically advanced cultures, then it is likely that they will be transmitting certain radio signals," but instead that "If we receive certain radio signals, then it is most likely due to a technologically advanced culture." Pointing out that intelligent life may exist without the use of such technology in no way weakens the assertion that evidence of such technology implies intelligent life.'

Blather would agree, but would assume that in order to propose the latter theory, one has to consider the former.

Reader Stephen Gallagher, on the chances of another lifeform utilising radio.

'If we're talking of life of a 'similar intelligence' to human, then it seems very likely that at some stage in their development that they would invent radio technology.

'If they were any way intelligent then I don't think they would have made a decision like [deciding that radio was obsolete], I can't see how radio is going to go out of fashion any time soon.'

Blather stated that 'It's worth realising that our perception of intelligence is potentially chauvinistic and very subjective -- if it doesn't seem intelligent to us it's just not intelligent. The perceived intelligence of another lifeform seems dependent on its ability to communicate with us'.

To which Stephen responded:

'So there is no such thing as some absolute measure of intelligence? I think we can be fairly objective in this matter with regards to assessing the potential 'intelligence' behind something like a radio transmission. If we detect some signal that can't be attributed to already known radio sources like quasars etc. then we can investigate in more detail whether the signal has the necessary complexity to have an intelligent source.'

Derek Bell piped up with:

'About two distinct intelligent species being unable to understand each others' language: this is quite plausible if Chomsky's linguistics is a good model of what happens in intelligent beings. Basically, Chomsky proposes that humans have a "meta-grammar" (my term) in our genes that describes the types of language that humans can speak/write/whatever. If another intelligent species appears with a quite different meta-grammar, there may be no common ground for them to communicate! (The two meta-grammars having no grammars in common.)'

And Pat Marren:

'The real test of the feasibility of SETI is, how long is it likely to take before some superior civilization beams us an order for take-out Chinese? That, of course, depends upon the density of "sun-like stars" in our neighborhood of the galaxy, and the probability that each might give rise to civilizations with a taste for Chinese food.

'The earth began emitting a decent amount of human-broadcast radio waves about seventy-five years ago. Assuming the speed of light is constant, that means we are at the center of an ever-expanding communications shell of a radius of seventy-five light years. Assuming further that our alien pals are hungry, and therefore prompt about sending out a reply, the "reply" radius is currently half of seventy-five light-years, or about 37 light years.

'Carl Sagan states his belief that if one in a million sun-like stars foster intelligent life, then there are millions of instances of intelligent life in the galaxy. Now I don't believe in UFOs, because if I were a superior being I would not be mucking around trailer parks in search of sexual experimentation. I'd go right to the center of the action -- the West Wing of the White House. But Sagan was obviously right. There must be millions of civilizations-- it's just statistics.

'So my question as a taxpayer must be, how many sun-like stars are there within 37 light years? And how many sun-like stars is our ever-expanding sphere of radio emanations likely to encompass before I am out of the taxpayer role and in a trailer park? A million? If it's a million, then it's worth it. If it's thirty-seven or fifteen, then the hell with it.

Blather reader Al Tepper is conducting a survey on subjectivity for his masters at <http://www.users.dircon.co.uk/~tepper/survey.htm> and invites all readers to take part.

Arthur Goldstuck, in South Africa, has named Blather as this week's Legendary Site of the Week. See the listing at <http://www.web.co.za/arthur/leglist.html> and Arthur's 'Legends from a Small Country' site, at <http://www.web.co.za/arthur/welcome.html>

ERRATA

No one, other than the fastidiously vigilant Paul (Archeire <http://www.archeire.com>) Clerkin spotted the glaring mistake in last weeks issue, where I appeared to claim that Carl Sagan's book 'Cosmos' was 'the best selling book in the English language'. What Blather really meant was 'best selling science book'.

NASA Radar Reveals Hidden Remains at Ancient Angkor

RELEASE: 98-28

NASA RADAR REVEALS HIDDEN REMAINS AT ANCIENT ANGKOR

New evidence of a prehistoric civilization and remnants of ancient temples in Angkor, Cambodia, have been discovered by researchers using highly detailed maps produced with data from an airborne imaging radar instrument created by NASA.

Experts say the findings, made possible by the Airborne Synthetic Aperture Radar (AIRSAR) developed by NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL), Pasadena, CA, may revolutionize the way archaeologists view the ancient city's development.

Angkor is a vast complex of some 1,000 temples covering about 100 square miles of northern Cambodia. Little is known of the prehistoric occupation of this fertile flood plain, but at its height the city housed an estimated population of one million people. The famous temples were built from the eighth to thirteenth century AD and were accompanied by a massive hydrological system of reservoirs and canals. Today, much of the civilization of Angkor is hidden beneath a dense forest canopy and is inaccessible due to poor roads, land mines and political instability.

"The radar data have enabled us to detect a distribution of circular 'prehistoric' mounds and undocumented temples far to the northwest of Angkor," said Dr. Elizabeth Moore, Head of the Art and Archaeology Department at the School of Oriental and African Studies at the University of London. "The site's topography is highlighted by the radar, focusing our attention on previously neglected features, some at the very heart of the city.

"The radar maps not only bring into question traditional concepts of the urban evolution of Angkor, but reveal evidence of temples and earlier civilization either absent or incorrect on modern topographic maps and in early twentieth century archaeological reports," she said.

"The radar images make apparent many features that are not readily identifiable on the ground," said Dr. Anthony Freeman, a radar scientist at JPL who has collaborated with Moore for the past three years studying the use of radar on the Angkor site. "We can see differences in vegetation structure and some features that are obscured by vegetation cover."

In December 1997, Moore surveyed a small mound on the perimeter of the famous 12th century AD temple, Angkor Wat, that Freeman had first noticed in the radar image. "Previous archaeological accounts from 1904 and 1911 note only two temples and make no mention of the distinct circular form of the mound. We found four to six temple remains, including pre-Angkorean structures," Moore said. "This suggests occupation of the 12th century site some 300 years earlier, radically changing accepted chronologies of Angkor."

Angkor's beauty is seen in its temples, but the greatness of the Khmer city lies in the multitude of water-related constructions, according to Moore. The Khmer kings nominally dedicated temples to Hindu and Buddhist deities, but the underlying significance was veneration of ancestral spirits, ensuring fertility of the land. Management of water was essential, both for control during the monsoon rains and conservation during the dry season and involved the construction of moats, dikes, canals, tanks, and reservoirs. The largest of these reservoirs, dated to the 12th century AD, is five miles long and its function remains a matter of archaeological debate.

"These new detailed topographic maps have shown us many more hydrological features and highlighted how they function in the rituals and daily life of the Khmer people," Moore explained.

"Using a technique known as radar interferometry, which combines two images to create a three-dimensional topographic map, we can construct a map of the area surrounding Angkor that is more accurate than most maps we have of the United States," said Dr. Scott Hensley, a radar engineer at JPL. "This map lets us see both natural and human-made water management features at the site with great clarity."

"Angkor is situated on the edge of the Tonle Sap lake, a unique body of water that doubles in size during the rainy season. These maps give us new insights into the human impact on this ecosystem, from the ancient Khmer to the present day, and are of importance in the study of our changing Earth," Freeman continued.

The Angkor radar images were taken in late 1996 as part of the AIRSAR Pacific Rim Deployment and were a follow-up to the 1994 study of Angkor with data collected by the Spaceborne Imaging Radar-C/X-band Synthetic Aperture Radar (SIR-C/X-SAR) that flew on NASA's Space Shuttle Endeavour.

Like SIR-C/X-SAR, AIRSAR transmits and receives three radar frequencies in both horizontal and vertical polarizations. While both systems use C-band and L-band wavelengths, AIRSAR has the added benefit of P-band, a longer wavelength that can penetrate below the forest canopy. In addition, AIRSAR can be flown in a mode called TOPSAR that allows it to measure topography and create three-dimensional images of the surface.

AIRSAR images of the Angkor region will be posted to the Internet at this address:

<http://www.jpl.nasa.gov/news/>

AIRSAR flies on a NASA DC-8 aircraft that is managed at NASA's Dryden Flight Research Center, Edwards, CA. The AIRSAR instrument is managed by JPL, a division of the California Institute of Technology, for NASA's Office of Earth Science, Washington, DC. This office manages NASA's Earth Science enterprise, an internationally coordinated effort to study natural and human-induced changes in the Earth's land, oceans, atmosphere, ice and life.

The AIRSAR flight over Cambodia was funded by the Government of Thailand. Ground verification has been made possible by Vann Molyvann, Minister of State for Culture and Fine Arts, Territorial Management, Urban Planning and Construction; and Dr. Ang Choul=8Ean of the Cambodian Authority for the Protection and Management of Angkor and the Region of Siem Reap.

Hi there Tom !!!!

You have made some very interesting comments in your recent posting re. UFO/SPHERE/ORB thread.

>And if they have such remarkable powers, everything we can see >or photograph is meaningless in any case because we can only see >and record what they want to show us.

Your last phrase there, in my opinion, is very important.

I was "skywatching" for ages and ages, to no avail, and then, suddenly, I was given the opportunity to made visual documentation. I believe that all this is on 'their' time-table, not ours!!!

>I think we CAN see and photograph their craft.

That is for sure!!!!!!

>Of course, by the time everyone finishes arguing about who gets >to do what, it will never happen....

Have no fear!!! if this is all on "their" schedule, then all we need do is hang in there and enjoy the ride.

In a few years' time, this will all be "history!!!!!!!!!!"

Best wishes.

JJ

Well... the bright objects appeared at identical times, so, admittedly, they could be regular shipping. However, my video indicates clockwise rotation and a large reddish "field" below the "objects."

The rotation would possibly indicate that these were not regular "lakers."

ALSO, pixel count on the vid showed no linear movement as such.
Regular shipping would normally move across the lake's surface, and not rotate.

they are just more people who are, or might be, one day, friends

Aloha JJ....:)

Thank you for your nice comments. I agree with you. This thread started when someone decided that judgements concerning the morality and ethics of a race of ETs could be made from an unidentifiable still photograph. I disagreed with that, and still do, and suddenly I became a skeptic and started getting flame mail.

All I want people to do is think with their minds instead of their emotions. I don't think that is unreasonable, but you would be surprised at the number of people who do.

I think that ufology should be treated as a science and not a religion but sometimes it is hard to separate the two.

Albert Einstein had no proof of the General Theory of Relativity for several years and science refused to accept it until it was proven in the lensing experiment. Even so, it is still not perfect because it is becoming pretty clear that the speed of light can be exceeded...or at least bypassed. We have been taking the unproven parts on faith all these years. So...is it science, or religion?

Subject: Quinte Aerial Phenomenon Research Association

Hello there Everyone:

Well, I have been reading the UpDates for a little while now and find them quite interesting, even though the occasional bit of conjecture is a tad umm, shall we say, fringe..

I represent QAPRA, the Quinte Aerial Phenomenon Research Association [Ontario, Canada]. We have been defunct for a few years now due to some problems we had to deal with regarding some unsavoury members who did some BAD things using our name.. Well, they have been purged from the membership, and most peoples memory, so we are back..

We are again, trying to compile as much data on Quinte Area sightings and other phenomena. The Quinte Region ranging from Kingston to Port Hope, and including Prince Edward County, and as far north as Bancroft (this being Ontario Canada)..

If your have any sightings information, either current or historical, please feel free to send details to:

Gorthos@technologist.com

Our web site will be up shortly..

Yours Truly

MPD and Abduction

Subject: MPD and Abduction

This is an excellent book on MPD. (Everything I have read from this author has been.)

THE OSIRIS COMPLEX: Case studies in Multiple Personality Disorder by Colin A. Ross, MD. (1994).

The following is from Chapter 14: Flash the Destroyer.

Margaret is the patient. And according to Dr. Ross, the only one he has worked with who has achieved full integration and who has gone on to a complete relapse of the MPD. P 144.

p148: Margaret's system contained several alters who appeared to be psychotic...

There was always doubt about the reality of the stories Margaret told. For instance, one of her alters had a clear memory of aliens coming into her apartment, impregnating her, coming back months later to remove the foetus, the returning years later to show her the half-human, half-alien, child they were raising among the stars. This alter was morified when I raised the possibility that the aliens were possibly not literally real: she said I had ruined the therapy and her chances of recovery forever by doubting her.

Margaret made this claim before I had heard about the current epidemic of UFO abductions. I did not realize, when I heard Margaret's story that thousands of people in North America have similar memories. Many of these people probably have complex dissociative disorders, but many appear to be otherwise normal....

I dont remember which, but it was either Jacobs or Mack who said that they had never heard of, nor had a case of MPD associated with abduction. Well...here it is.

Local news New York City, Channel 7 at 17:50, aired 30 seconds of a 45 min. video from Kentucky of an 'Orb' type UFO.

The video was recorded several months ago and released today by person who shot it.

This report was objective for a major network.

>all three.

There is science in ufology... although it is not always obvious. However, to see what I mean, consider the "reverse situation."

The conventional/straight world accepts the idea that there are no UFOs. Therefore each sighting must be explainable. Therefore there is an explanation for each sighting. When a sighting comes along one or more skeptics comes up with an explanation for the sighting. "It was Venus.... it was Mars.... it was an airplane... it was a balloon..." ... whatever, depending upon the sighting.

However, rarely if ever does a skeptic "test" the explanation' against the available sighting data. Instead, what usually happens is that the skeptic finds an explanation for one part of the sighting and then "publishes" (I can cite specific examples in my own experience if anyone is interested.) The general public/press/scientific community then assumes the sighting has been explained and goes on its merry way.

So where does the science come in? In making the best comparison possible between the suggested explanation or explanations and the sighting data. This is because ANY EXPLANATION MUST BE BASED ON KNOWN PHENOMENA (no point in explaining one unknown with another unknown)..... and known phenomena have definite characteristics that can be compared with the characteristics of the unknown described in the sighting. If the characteristics of the known match the characteristics of the unknown then one may as well accept the explanation... or at the very least one can't use the sighting as evidence of the unknown (if it walks like a duck.... etc.)

Where skeptics often go wrong is in failing to make this check of the explanation against the data. VERY OFTEN THE SKEPTICS AREN'T SCIENTIFIC!!!

(I know... cry Heresy!.... and burn me at the stake!)

Of course, the best one can get out of this line of reasoning is a form of proof that the sighting is either explainable, indeterminate (not enough data one way or another) or actually unexplainable. There are plenty of cases I can cite where the skeptics' explanations don't work. This means plenty of cases which appear to be unexplainable... Kenneth Arnold, for example (which was a subject of a ling discussion last fall).

Where ufology goes awry is (a) in the tendency to be uncritical and claim a sighting to be unexplainable even when one or more valid explanations exists and (b) to take a supposedly unexplainable sighting and extrapolate beyond the available information to theories of who, where from, why, etc. Such theorizing is NECESSARY... but one shouldn't narrow down to a particular theory unless the data clearly warrant it.

Scott Catamas - Notes From The Prophets Conference
October 10-12, 1997

Scott Catamas moderated the "Contact" panel: an exceptional exploration made by some exceptional people. His panel summation remarks are as follows:

"I'd like to take a moment to build on what is being said here, and that is: We are all on a journey of discovery. I personally believe that this a dream world and that each of us is here to learn to love; we're here to learn to expand.

"Quite often when we have events take place in our lives - whether it's an individual event, a mutual experience, a personal contact, an interdimensional contact, an abduction, or even a greater group experience such as the Phoenix Lights - it's an archetypal event, and archetypal events are always designed in such a way as to expand our consciousness. You'll also notice that archetypal events take place in such a way that you never really know the truth.

"We really don't know, absolutely and positively, what happened 2,000 years ago, so that each of us can determine who Jesus was or wasn't, and if he lived, and if he resurrected. In fact, if you even look at some of the archetypal events of our lifetime, they are still played out in such a way so that you really don't know. We all have pretty strong opinions, but nobody in this room really knows whether or not O.J. did it. Nobody in this room really knows what the story is about the JFK assassination. There is a lot of difference, strong opinions, strong beliefs, and you can find tremendous evidence to support any number of those beliefs. It ultimately comes back to us. What do I believe? Why do I believe O.J. did or didn't do it? Why do I believe that the CIA killed Kennedy, or that Oswald acted alone, or whatever I might believe?

"It's an opportunity to explore belief systems; to explore why we think the way we do, and hopefully to continue to expand. Because, as we get older we realize that the world and the universe are much larger than we could possibly comprehend. There are many, many different realities, and perhaps it's all about opening our hearts and having compassion for each other and allowing all of us to live in different realities in a loving way."

I would certainly agree that one cannot infer moral and ethical propensities of ET's from the sighting and photo alone. (If one had a priori knowledge about ET morals and ethics then one might be able to use determinet whether or not the sighting and photo were in some way consistent or inconsistent with the ethics and morals. But since we have no such a priori knowledge the sighting can do no more than establish that some UNKNOWN PHENOMENON - possibly ET - was or was not present at th time of the sighting.)

>This is not an investigation since no one disputes Alex's >sighting report.

Well.....,

I suppose that if everyone accepted the report entirely "as written" then the only argument would be over the interpretation. But an "investigation" to determine details of the reports could be needed to make the correct interpretation.

>This is an exercise in futility.

On a larger scale perhaps.... since the rest of the world probably won't notice this any more than it notices numerous other more spectacular sightings. Futile because we already have THOUSANDS of sightings..... do we need another?

On the other hand, if the "investigation" establish that the UNKNOWN REALLY DID OCCUR (the sighting is inexplicable), then we can perhaps use the information in this sighting to help clarify whatever th nature of teh phenomenon is (OK, for you true believers, the information might provide some insight into what "they" are doing here. On the other hand it might provide no such information. But you can't tell which without the "investgation." or analysis.)

Yes.

Theories are needed to understand data... but theories which "excuse" data are not very useful. The data (sighting, photo) are real. They mean something. When one tries to compare the data to a preferred theory, one is usually or at least often, confronted with inconsistencies. Some of these may be excusable (bad data points, etc.)... but when excuses go off the deep end... it is time to stop theorizing and go back for another look at the data or.... admit defeat! (The data can't be understood.)

Not joking, eh? Something like this has been tried in th past.
In the 1970's the National Enquirer offered a megabuck, if I recall correctly, for indisputable proof. They also offered $50K per year... or some such sum... for the best sighting of the year as determined by an independent panel. There have been other offers (seems to me a British liquor company..also had an offer years ago). This is not the same as a foundation, but the incentive was there. And the Enquirer got lots of entries into the contest... but no big winner (did have annual winners, but none of these was considered conclusive).

Of course a well funded foundation could provide another shot in the arm. The conditions aren't the same as they were 20 years ago BCE4 (Before Close Encounters of the 4th Kind). I suspect there would now be more entries with potentially better data (multiple witness, video recorded, etc.).

And of course, it is my duty as former chairman of the Fund for UFO Research to say that if you are aware of major sources of funding... contact me directly..

Apparently recovered from the El Nino damage, back to work :)! Oh, two brief things...I've heard from a FATE subscriber who read (and appreciated) my article in the newest issue (it's the fiftieth anniversary issue)...you might keep your eye open for that; and Alexander Imich, a philanthropist of the paranormal, has asked me for contact information for television and radio producers of paranormal shows. If you are one, have such information, or may have gotten my PARANORMAL PROGRAMMING listing in the past (which is presently unavailable), I'd appreciate any information you can pass along.

On to the (slim) listings this week! I may expand them more later...

Alfred's Odd Ode #223

Subject: Alfred's Odd Ode #223

Apology to MW #223 (For February 14, 1998)

Your girl or your son or your wife or your mom -- or even dear trusted old dad. But someone you trusted for balance, you know; one whose foundations weren't bad. Someone whose flag really went to the top; you thought that their suitcase was full. No bats in their belfries, their bottles were corked; they were with-it and centered and cool.

And they don't watch the telly, and they've been to good schools, the X-files, and star treks are fun but thought silly. They are solid, substantial, and worthy of trust; they are honest, forthcoming, and quite often brilliant.

You have years with these people, and they stood to be counted; they were covered, and focused, and current. They'd been there when needed, never talk of impeachment -- goodness =85 efficacious, and recurrent. Cliched, I report they were salt of the earth, proud pillars of community -- they are kind and they're smart, and all have good hearts -- =85Then -- <disjunct =85> (slow despair (?)) =85 And, a new continuity.

Oh, they're still the same, not to blame (not insane) -- they're undamaged, they're together, they're OK. Embarrassed, ashamed, and taking the blame, they can still fill the bill, write the check -- save the day! They're the same, don't complain, but the fact still remains the reports that they make -- the results of their claims=85 !!!

They say =85that they're taken away in huge ships; they say that they're prodded and poked and then stripped. Then they're probed to emission, examined it seems, and it matters, or not, how they reason or scream.

They make this **vast** admission while they look down on the ground apologetic and consoling that indeed =85 it all went down. Then they look into your eyes, and you can see what they've been seeing, and you wonder what the future holds for wretched human beings.

Lehmborg@snowhill.com

Horatio really didn't have a clue, did he? There really was more to heaven and Earth than was contained in a pitifully incomplete philosophy, wasn't there? We truly miss a boat when we turn from these people, don't we?

They may be preceding us into some new real time paradigm, and we should be giving them some open minded attention.

I was raised on the chicken little story -- you know, the one where a baby chicken gets hit on the head with an acorn, and then panics the farm community to some kind of catastrophe and disaster with the false warning that the "sky is falling."

I thought that the moral was to keep your mouth shut regarding what's outside your experience, the consequences of inciting a panic, and that your fears are likely so much bullshit, anyway =85

but I've come to believe that it means more than that. It means one must take pains to be sure, somehow, that there is in fact some problem with the sky, and then discover the answer to a more difficult, underlying, and basic question =85 how does one make a _credible_ warning if the sky really _is_ falling?

NASA News: Voyager Most Distant Human-Made Object

RELEASE: 98-30

VOYAGER 1 NOW MOST DISTANT HUMAN-MADE OBJECT IN SPACE

In a dark, cold, vacant neighborhood near the very edge of our Solar System, the Voyager 1 spacecraft is set to break another record and become the explorer that has traveled farthest from home.

At approximately 5:10 p.m. EST on Feb. 17, 1998, Voyager 1, launched more than two decades ago, will cruise beyond the Pioneer 10 spacecraft and become the most distant human-created object in space, at 6.5 billion miles (10.4 billion kilometers) from Earth. The two are headed in almost opposite directions away from the Sun.

"For 25 years, the Pioneer 10 spacecraft led the way, pressing the frontiers of exploration, and now the baton is being passed from Pioneer 10 to Voyager 1 to continue exploring where no one has gone before," said Dr. Edward C. Stone, Voyager project scientist and Director of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory (JPL), Pasadena, CA.

"At almost 70 times farther from the Sun than the Earth, Voyager 1 is at the very edge of the Solar System. The Sun there is only 1/5,000th as bright as here on Earth, so it is extremely cold, and there is very little solar energy to keep the spacecraft warm or to provide electrical power. The reason we can continue to operate at such great distances from the Sun is because we have radioisotope thermal electric generators (RTGs) on the spacecraft that create electricity and keep the spacecraft operating," Stone said. "The fact that the spacecraft is still returning data is a remarkable technical achievement."

Voyager 1 was launched from Cape Canaveral on Sept. 5, 1977. The spacecraft encountered Jupiter on March 5, 1979, and Saturn on Nov. 12, 1980.

Then, because its trajectory was designed to fly close to Saturn's large moon Titan, Voyager 1's path was bent northward by Saturn's gravity, sending the spacecraft out of the ecliptic plane -- the plane in which all the planets except Pluto orbit the Sun.

Launched on March 2, 1972, the Pioneer 10 mission officially ended on March 31, 1997. However, NASA's Ames Research Center, Moffett Field, CA, intermittently receives science data from Pioneer as part of a training program for flight controllers of the Lunar Prospector spacecraft now orbiting the Moon.

"The Voyager mission today presents an unequalled technical challenge. The spacecraft are now so far from home that it takes nine hours and 36 minutes for a radio signal traveling at the speed of light to reach Earth," said Ed B. Massey, project manager for the Voyager Interstellar Mission at JPL. "That signal, produced by a 20 watt radio transmitter, is so faint that the amount of power reaching our antennas is 20 billion times smaller than the power of a digital watch battery."

Having completed their planetary explorations, Voyager 1 and its twin, Voyager 2, are studying the environment of space in the outer Solar System. Although beyond the orbits of all the planets, the spacecraft still are well within the boundary of the Sun's magnetic field, called the heliosphere. Science instruments on both spacecraft sense signals that scientists believe are coming from the outermost edge of the heliosphere, known as the heliopause.

The heliosphere results from the Sun's emitting a steady flow of electrically charged particles called the solar wind. As the solar wind expands supersonically into space in all directions, it creates a magnetized bubble -- the heliosphere -- around the Sun. Eventually, the solar wind encounters the electrically charged particles and magnetic field in the interstellar gas. In this zone the solar wind abruptly slows down from supersonic to subsonic speed, creating a termination shock. Before the spacecraft travel beyond the heliopause into interstellar space, they will pass through this termination shock.

"The data coming back from Voyager now suggest that we may pass through the termination shock in the next three to five years," Stone said. "If that's the case, then one would expect that within 10 years or so we would actually be very close to penetrating the heliopause itself and entering into interstellar space for the first time."

Reaching the termination shock and heliopause will be major milestones for the mission because no spacecraft have been there before and the Voyagers will gather the first direct evidence of their structure. Encountering the termination shock and heliopause has been a long-sought goal for many space physicists, and exactly where these two boundaries are located and what they are like still remains a mystery.

Science data are returned to Earth in real-time to the 34-meter Deep Space Network antennas located in California, Australia and Spain. Both spacecraft have enough electricity and attitude control propellant to continue operating until about 2020, when electrical power produced by the RTGs will no longer support science instrument operation. At that time, Voyager 1 will be almost 150 times farther from the Sun than the Earth -- almost 14 billion miles (more than 20 billion kilometers) away.

On Feb. 17, Voyager 1 will be departing the Solar System at a speed of 39,000 miles per hour (17.4 kilometers per second). At the same time, Voyager 2 will be 5.1 billion miles (8.1 billion kilometers) from Earth and is departing the Solar System at a speed of 35,000 miles per hour (15.9 kilometers per second).

JPL, a division of the California Institute of Technology, manages the Voyager Interstellar Mission for NASA's Office of Space Science, Washington, DC.

Ahem...HELLO? Just because a therapist, who is rigorously trained in a certain (very trendy) perspective/diagnosis, has declared this "aspect" to be integrated does NOT mean that a) the woman ever had MPD or b) that the alien experiences were ever "created" by her symptoms.

Needless to say, MPD is the hot diagnosis of the moment and the therapists/researchers into this phenomenon are hardly blind, in the scientific testing sense. Similarly the "patients" are subtly encouraged to act out certain "personalities" and to play into this diagnosis.

This is all just so much hot air.

One more thought on the MPD-abduction issue. In those cases of apparently real MPD (those which have been fully documented prior to interaction with the therapist and are clearly not "manufactured" by the therapeutic interaction), where the patient experiences "missing time" and "wakes up" in a strange location and so on, there IS an interesting similarity to the abduction phenomenon.

This raises the question: Where does the recessive personality "go" when it's unaware? What are the dynamics of the lack of awareness?

The answer to THIS question, which I'm not anticipating anytime soon <g>, might lead to understanding regarding the lack of memory and awareness that occurs during abduction experiences. Clearly there must be somewhere for this personality to "go to" while it's being recessive. And this implies that there are other hidden locations within the mind (if not the brain <g>).

The sad thing is that we are so obviously in need of a much more sophisticated model of human consciousness than we now have, and yet the medical and scientific community continues to go for the easy and trendy...continues to insist that there is one "proper" perception and one "proper" reality, declaring everything else pathological.

An episode of "The Unexplained" aired on A&E this week about the history of the military/research remote viewing projects. There were the usual opposing opinions presented...CSICOP...and a medical researcher, a neurologist. This researcher, although far less debunking than CSICOP's representative, did make an astonishing statement. He said that an experiment that didn't successfully EXPLAIN the phenomenon being explored was just poor research.

This is extraordinary, for obviously you can't explain a phenomenon using ideas that haven't been discovered or developed yet. You are limited to the status quo worldview. And more importantly, you are limiting yourself to experiments that will fit the current worldview. You will cease to even explore. Is this a common attitude among research scientists? If so, we're doomed to keep "repeating history" endlessly.

Always nice to have the database updated.

However...this has no significance for abduction research. Poor Margaret, with her multiple personality disorder, could have been fantasizing abductions. That tells us nothing about the reality of experiences anyone else might have.

Or, she could truly have been abducted...and dissasociated the experience by making it available to only one of her personalities.

Since MPD is not exactly widespread among abductees, it doesn't have much to do with the abduction experience, whatever that experience may turn out to be.

In case it might be inferred that that "someone" was me, let me set the record straight. I said that much could be deduced about the ethics/morality of ETs responsible for overseeing the sightings of the past 50 years from examining the deniability factor they so often fed into those sightings. This should not have been distorted into "from an unidentifiable still photograph"! Distortions like this don't belong within the true scientific method, and shouldn't be tolerated on this list.

As Bruce Maccabee said in a post today:

"The conventional/straight world accepts the idea that there are no UFOs. Therefore each sigting must be explainable. Therefore there is an explanation for each sighting. When a sighting comes along one or more skeptics comes up with an explanation for the sighting. "It was Venus.... it was Mars.... it was an airplane... it was a balloon..." ... whatever, depending upon the sighting."

So let's keep Alex's sighting & photos in context of previous ones of a similar nature.

Bruce went on:

"However, rarely if ever does a skeptic "test" the explanation' against the available sighting data. Instead, what usually happens is that the skeptic finds an explanation for one part of the sighting and then "publishes" (I can cite specific examples in my own experience if anyone is interested.) The general public/press/scientific community then asses the sighting has been explained and goes on its merry way."

Obviously, a capable ufologist doesn't operate that way, and continually ignore the bulk of the data that came before the particular sighting in question. Instead, he sees how it may tie in with the past data.

I went on to give examples of types of sightings where the UFO craft was disguised to appear, with a rough first glance, like some known object. Obviously the details of their appearance and/or behavior/maneuverability allowed the impressed witness to realize the object was quite remarkably different from the mundane object it may have cursorily resembled, and so it was a UFO sighting. But the negative skeptic ignores these differences and latches onto the similarities only. This saves him/her from believing what is unacceptable to his/her "belief system." This saves him/her from going beserk.

Quite often, such a belief system cannot imagine that what advanced technology and understanding thousands of years advanced to our own could do would indeed seem like magic to us, as even Sagan once realized. And quite often it can't admit that alien intelligence could be greatly advanced over our own.

I believe Alex's orb sighting is probably one more sighting of this nature. Agreed it may only be a coincidence that it resembled a lens flare, or as Bob Shell would emphasize, perhaps it is a lens flare and the real UFO eluded capture on film. (But Alex's other photos of it, though less distinct, suggest this isn't the case.)

We need to keep in mind the category of UFO sightings wherein the object passed itself off, under cursory examination (but not detailed or complete examination), as a mundane human or natural object, and not forget that this category of UFO exists when we come across others of the same nature. Don't treat Alex's evidence in isolation from the rest of the UFO phenomenon.

Recently I heard from Wendelle Stevens that by now the investigators have uncovered 26 eye witnesses to this event. And that a few of them were in one of the apartments pictured in the video that is much closer to the flying saucer, and so had real close-up views.

Can anyone corroborate this, or do we wait until the March 11th TV showing to learn more?

Report on the UFO VIDEO from New York Channel 7 News:

The ABC news station in New York, WABC (7 Lincoln Square, New York, NY 10023-6298) was contacted (212-456-3173) regarding the reported broadcast of a UFO videotape from Kentucky on their channel.

The Eyewitness News telephone receptionist said the video was played over the 'network,' and recommended that I call them. The network operator said that they do not have any newscast at the 5:50 p.m. time-frame, and advised that the playback of the tape and script used for the piece would be handled by the local station. The local station was again contacted, and the operator finally went to his computer and located the script, reading it to me while I listened and took notes.

This is not a sighting of a UFO in Kentucky. The two witnesses, however, are from Kentucky. They are James Bland, a psychiatrist, and his wife Sue Petterson, both of Greensburgh (sp?) Kentucky. Their videotape, which purportedly shows an orb-like object hovering in the sky, was recorded in New Mexico two years ago. The news script was fluffy, vague and nebulous, and determined to not be worth the effort to transcribe word for word.

Well, I think that every single person on this list sees things from a different angle, and, as Don Ledger pointed out, people tend to zero in on a specific point of a posting, without always taking in the whole picture!

> All I want people to do is think with their minds instead of Ideally, everyone would use every part of their being with which to think, and then, maybe, we would all be more balanced people. Going only in one direction obviously creates a rather skewed picture!!

> I think that ufology should be treated as a science and not a > religion but sometimes it is hard to separate the two.

Religion is quite a strong word to use, but there certainly are people, such as the poor, unfortunate souls who left planet Earth last March 26th, I believe, who turn it into such.

> Albert Einstein had no proof of the General Theory of Relativity

The Oxford Dictionary defines science as: "pursuit or principles of systematic and formulated knowledge; branch of knowledge; organised body of knowledge on a subject.."

It says of religion: "particular system of faith and worship."
Also, "human recognition of superhuman controlling power and especially of a personal God or gods entitled to obedience and worship."

If we consider the "possibility" of a superhuman having created everything that "is," then everything that exists is a creation of that superhuman, including science and religion. If everything is interrelated, then science and religion have to be parts of the greater whole.

Separating them??? Difficult indeed!!!

JJ...are we discussing video evidence of your encounter...or a new member of your family? :) I understand your attachment with the event, I'm sure I would have the same passion, but additional independent analysis of what you have captured on film can only benefit the validity of what was actually seen. Obviously we are not talking about lens flares, military flares, or solar flares!

I am one who firmly believes there are objects in our skies, possibly under our oceans, and perhaps within our mountains, which we as a public are totally unaware. When a member of this "public" records one of these "unknowns" it becomes important for the collaboration to begin and truths wiggle their way to the surface of general understanding by all. That's true progress...and perhaps in this case...a transformation of our known realities...greater than the exponential progression from Newtonian physics to Einstein's theory of relativity.

Creating a resevoir of photographic evidence is critical to the understanding of these objects. I understand science's need for "physical" samplings to evaluate a given phenomena, but in this case we may need to redefine the term "physical." Before the camera arrived on the scene, eye witness stories and drawings were the only means for gathering information about an encounter with the unusual. The testamonies were tainted with culture influences, individual perceptions, and subjective conjecture on "what" the unknown actually was. Photography changes all that. It strips us of subjectivity. As the saying goes...."a photo doesn't lie."

I know what the skeptics say...and personally I believe it's beyond being skeptical, that these images could be tampered with, computerized, or manipulated to suit someone's interpretation. Photography is a science, there are ways to discover if an image is not real. I think the bottom line is 'do we trust one another?' For us to embark on an adventure which could complete shift our understanding of the universe, I think basic moral issues must also be raised in tandem with this evolution. How much faith do we put in ourselves to see clearly the reality about us? We've been dependent on others to do it for us for a very long time.

Photography is a relatively new tool for human comprehension of what and who we are. Perhaps to solve one of the largest mysteries of our recorded history we need to utilize the tools created by humans a century ago. I don't think the photograph has been attributed to reverse engineering...it's a miracle we found ourselves :)

My only input is:

IF you search long and hard enough, you will find German-American bank robbers with a carrot fetish .. or you... or me... or some famous musical composer.

I think it is important that somebody finally found a psychotic "abductee", and I do not wish to minimize this work in any way!

My point (here only) is roughly the same as Dr. Mack.

Why should we have to work this hard to find a "nut" amongst the abductees? Does this suggest that there is an objective reality to the phenomenon?

RADIO HOST HOLDS ANOTHER MASS TELEPATHIC 'UFO CALL'

Hoping to repeat what followed a mass 'telepathic message' sent out to possible passing UFOs, in early March of '97, by his listening audience, late night radio talkshow host Art Bell again instructed his listeners to take part in what might be called an unusual social experiment.

In the wee hours of Saturday morning, the "Coast To Coast AM" host instructed his audience, estimated in the millions by Bell, to send out a simple 'telepathic message' to any passing extraterrestrial craft, with a request to "make yourselves known."

A previous attempt, around the 9th of last March, was coincidentally followed by a now well known UFO sighting (or sightings, depending on who you ask) over the skies of Phoenix, Arizona the evening of March 13th.

Another radio-fueled "telepathic message" was relayed by Bell and his listeners later in '97, which was followed about a week later by UFO sightings near Las Vegas, Nevada.

Still, on the air last night, Bell was willing to chalk both up to coincidence, but if a third major UFO sighting followed this attempt at communication, he added, "I'll seriously reconsider."

In answer to a caller's question, Bell said he would expect a sighting, "like in Phoenix", within the next week or two at the most, if this 'telepathic message' was to be considered successful.

You didn't say anything like that until just now. Furthermore, if you want to quote Bruce Maccabee, how about putting in all of it instead of just the parts you can take out of context. I am willing to retract any factually incorrect statements I make, but I stand by everything I have written in this thread. I have never suggested that anyone or any opinion 'should not be tolerated on this list'.

Hello Bryan again!!

Well ...good question! I have put in hundreds of hours on this project, and yes, they seem just like members of my family.

Hundreds of hours in extreme weather conditions, I might add!!

Not Flares. Not the numbers that come in at low altitude and horizontally across the water's surface, then go plop!

I have been posting since last March 22nd. _No-one_ seemed particularly interested in getting themselves out of their armchairs.

No-one particularly wanted to stand and freeze on the lake shore for 4 or more hours every night, with fingers going totally numb with manipulating video camera, audio equipment, binoculars and hot chocolate flasks!!!

_Lots_ of people had _lots_ of advice to give, though!!!!

I am progressing really well, and happy with the progress. My little group of associates is also very happy with our progress.

Ha! Not what I have been told. The first day someone saw said "those look pasted in." So, at the other end of the world, my programmer, on hearing that comment, told me to tell said

I trust you, Bryan, but the master copy is not leaving my

Jim..

I enjoyed and appreciated the insights you gave describing how one should look at evidence brought before us...it was quite inspirational.

But, Bruce and I have also asked Alex if he would post the additional images he has of the orb he captured on film and have received one scanned photo with an array of enhancements of the same photo. I believe this issue of a lens flare could be resolved simply and quickly if Alex would post additional images...if even it's just one more.

I have been promoting on this list the validity of photography as hard evidence to the existence of unknown phenomenon within the reality of the known. To ignore the photographic evidence is anti-productive to advancing our understanding of that which is around us. All pictures are not explainable, nor are they hoaxes.

With the exponential growth of cameras in the hands of everyday people around the world, the more abundant images become available. The more abundant the images..the more we can decipher which is authentic and which is not. If we disallow these images from becoming evidence of an event because we fear them to be hoaxes, without proving them to be so, and we can not believe the eyewitness testimony of our fellow human beings because we believe them to be looney, even though they have been leading normal productive lives before the encounter...then perhaps we have found the reasons why these "unknowns" remain unknown.

cheers,
Bryan!

Where do we go from here?

From rallies on Capitol Hill to FOIA lawsuits and petitions requesting UFO hearings, the voice for disclosure is at a all time high. And once that disclosure occurs, where do we go from there?

Please join the UFO Forum and special guest Elaine Douglass, Washington DC director for MUFON, on Tuesday, February 17th 6pm, PT to discuss preparations for the next necessary steps. This chat is available at <http://forums.msn.com/ufo>

The Netshow audio Interview is now available, just follow the links on the above site.

The Briefing Room chat can be accessed by any IRC client. The chat server name is publicchat.msn.com and the room or channel name is #briefing.

ORANGE SPHERE UFOs FLY OVER SOUTHERN SPAIN

A three-day UFO flap rocked the Andalucia region in southern Spain this week, with numerous sightings of glowing orange spheres.

On Monday, February 9, 1998, Juan Valiente was at work at Fabrica de Cementes Ltda., a cement plant in Torredonjimeno when he spotted a mysterious orange glow at 8 p.m. Looking directly at it, Valiente saw "a spherical orange object rising in circles above the plant."

The following day, Tuesday, February 10, 1998, at 1:42 p.m., Jose Antonio Martini Framit and his friend, Mark Sanders, were driving north on autovia Jaen/Granada near Pico de Magina. Both men are members of the Sociedad de Investigaciones Biofisicas (S.I.B.), a UFO study group.

"Halfway down the road we saw an incredible sparkle," Jose reported. "Like a flash of lightning that illuminated everything. My first reaction was to look out the side window, and there it was. In that moment, I saw a very vivid, orange-colored sphere. It was not the first time I had seen one, but this time the object was much more distinct."

He estimated the UFO's size at that distance to be 15 centimeters (7 inches) in diameter. "The altitude was approximately 500 meters (1,650 feet), and I saw it below the clouds," he reported. "The velocity was very high, comparable to a meteor. Its flight path was totally horizontal. Mark did not see the object, only the glow."

The UFO was heading southeast. Jose stopped the car, turned and followed, hoping to keep the object in view. "We followed in the same direction, but it disappeared before Mark could see it."

The next night, Wednesday, February 11, 1998, at the Fabrica de Cementes plant in Torredonjimeno, night watchman Manuel Lopez was in his guard shack at 7 p.m. when "something began rattling the windows." Reddish-orange light poured through the windowpanes.

Rushing outside, Lopez watched the orange-sphere UFO fly away at high speed. "I heard the loud clap of its departure and felt the vibrations," he told investigators.

At 1:40 a.m., Officer Baldomero of the Policia Local was on patrol in town with another policeman when "they saw 'an immense luminosity' of a white color that flew through the night sky. The light lasted between 15 and 20 seconds."

Nearly a minute later, "they heard a tremendous bang of four seconds' duration. They did not observe an object. The light appeared in the north." The officers reported the incident to the local cuartel of the Guardia Civil (Spain's police--J.T.)

Torredonjimeno is located 20 kilometers (12 miles) west of Jaen, approximately 240 kilometers (150 miles) south of Madrid. (Muchas gracias a Antonio Salinas Cervi y Miguel Angel Pereira de S.I.B. para esas noticias.)

MYSTERIOUS SKY BOOMS HEARD AROUND MOBILE, ALABAMA

On Thursday, February 5, 1998, residents of Mobile, Alabama (population 196,278) reported hearing "loud sonic booms" and "explosions."

Mobile County 911 was flooded with calls. Most of the complaints came from Navco, Cottage Hill, Jackson Heights and Tillman's Corner on the south side of the city.

According to the Mobile County Sheriff's Department, a deputy at the substation in Theodore, Alabama (population 6,509), on Highway 59 about 10 miles (16 kilometers) south of Mobile, "saw the walls shake when a boom sounded. No one was injured and no major damage was reported."

Meteorologists at the National Weather Service had no explanation for the noises. The U.S. Geological Survey's Earthquake Center in Boulder, Colorado said the sound was not caused by earthquakes.

A spokesman for the U.S. Air Force said the sonic booms might have been caused by USAF supersonic fighters "traveling from Texas to Florida." He added that, under "certain weather conditions," a sonic boom may be carried long distances over water.

Mobile is located on Interstate Highway 10 at the head of Mobile Bay, approximately 170 miles (272 kilometers) south of Montgomery, the state capital. (See the Miami Herald for February 6, 1998.) (Editor's Comment: Mobile Bay is thirty miles long. That's a long way for a sonic boom to travel from the Gulf of Mexico.)

RED UFO TRAILS A JETLINER
SOUTH OF LOS ANGELES

On Tuesday, February 10, 1998, at about 8 p.m., James D. was relaxing at his home in Dana Point, California (population 31,896), about 35 miles (56 kilometers) south of Los Angeles, when he spied a most unusual UFO.

"Every night I try to go out in my yard and smoke a cigar," James reported. "At about 8 p.m. I witnessed a red object keeping pace with a southbound commercial airliner. It seemed to be off the left wing somewhere between 300 and 500 yards. You could clearly see that it was not a plane, as it was much smaller" than the jetliner.

"The jetliner was going in a southeasterly direction, probably ten miles (16 kilometers) offshore," he added. "It flew at between 15,000 and 20,000 feet (4,545 to 6,060 meters) The object appeared off the left wing from where I was. It was at the same speed for approximately four to five miles before it disappeared. It was a red sphere. It almost looked as if it was chasing the plane, because the airliner was accelerating, but the object kept pace. As it passed to the south, you could definitely see that the object was separate from the plane. It (the UFO) just seemed to disappear into thin air. The only sound I heard was the engines of the airliner." (Email Interview)

OVER DENVER, COLORADO

On Tuesday, February 3, 1998, at 9:47 p.m., Jonathan A. "was heading south on I-25" Interstate Highway 25 in Denver, Colorado (population 467,610) when he spotted something strange in the sky.

"I saw a bright blue light in the sky that was hovering for about one minute," Jon reported. "There was no structure (on the UFO), and the sky was clear. It looked by me that it could have been just east of the Highlands Ranch. I could not see just how far away it was, but it was as big as my thumb, so it was close."

"I would say it was about 20 degrees above the horizon," he added. "I stopped to watch. Then it moved fast--straight up--and it was gone. I drove further east but had no luck seeing it again. Who knows what it was? All I know is that I saw it, and I could not identify 'it' or the flight pattern it took." (Email Interview)

UFOs AGAIN ACTIVE AROUND GRATIS, OHIO

The small town of Gratis, Ohio (population 998), at the junction of Highways 725 and 503 approximately 97 miles (155 kilometers) southwest of Columbus, is once more the scene of UFO activity.

On Thursday, February 5, 1998, at 8:30 p.m., Timothy J. reported that "his brother came in the house and stated that there was a UFO outside."

Heading outdoors, Tim spotted the object to the southeast of their house. He described it as "a triangular shape" that "had a glow that contrasted against the sky. It had a light at each corner and three more at the center. Two of the outside lights flashed alternately with one center light. It made no sound and flew extremely slow." (Many thanks to Tim Hagemeister of NACOMM for this report.)

On November 19, 1997, at around 5:30 p.m., Edward J. reported, "My wife and daughter have seen the strange objects in the southern sky near Camden and Gratis. Today I saw those lights. There were four lights in position. Two of the lights were almost on top of the others. One of the two was much larger. The four lights, when you looked at them, you could tell they were all together in a group, being set apart from all the others such as stars and aircraft. My daughter states that she sees these lights frequently and calls them 'the Gratis UFOs.'" (Many thanks to Kenneth Young, public relations director of Tri-State Advocates for Scientific Knowledge, T.A.S.K., for this report.)

TUBULAR ORANGE UFO SEEN OVER DUNKIRK, NEW YORK

In early February, Jason R. was staying at his grandparents' home in Dunkirk, New York, located on the shores on Highway 5 approximately 45 miles (72 kilometers) southwest of Buffalo, when he heard a strange whirring noise.

"I was sitting on my grandmother's front porch one night and heard a type of whizzing sound coming from the sky," he reported. "At first I thought it was a plane crashing. As I looked around for several minutes, I saw a bright orange stick-figured object fly over the house. It looked like one of those roadside red flare things. It was as big as or bigger than the house across the street."

Jason immediately went indoors to tell his family. As the UFO flew around overhead, it was observed by the boy, his sister and both grandparents. (Many thanks to Kenneth Young of T.A.S.K. for passing on this report.)

UFO FLAP SWINGS INTO HIGH GEAR IN CHILE

January 1998 was a big month for UFO sightings in Chile.

On January 4, 1998, Pablo Marinan and his family spied a UFO over their hometown of Angol, located 400 kilometers (250 miles) south of Santiago de Chile, the national capital.

"The object was 55 degrees above the horizon and southeast of us," Pablo reported. "The UFO was oval in shape, a very bright light with a dark structure around it. The object was vibrating. At arm's length, it was about two centimeters (one inch) long."

On January 17, 1998, at 9:19 p.m., Rodrigo Bravo saw "a very bright white/gold light come from the south at high speed. It stopped in mid-air over Santiago (above the Corrillos section) for about ten seconds, then it shot back to the south from where it came."

On January 24, 1998, Sergio Rojas and four friends drove out to Tranque Alfalfal dam in El Cajon del Maipo about 40 kilometers (25 miles) southwest of Santiago. On their way up the mountain to the dam, "they saw two balls of light pass over them at a very high speed. After a few seconds, they saw a third one, but it was traveling much slower."

Arriving at the dam, Sergio and his friends left the car and walked to the cliff's edge. "From here they could see the Rio Maipo 100 meters (330 feet) below. Then they saw a cigar/egg-shaped UFO about 18 meters (60 feet) long coming up the river. It was a bright white color. They heard a very high-pitched tone that clogged their ears for a while."

As the UFO flew by, the group found themselves covered by "a strange mist, hot and cold at the same time." They hurried back to the car and drove down the mountain.

"On their way to San Jose de Maipo, they encountered a UFO that was hovering about 800 meters (2,640 feet) from them. They stopped the car and got out. The UFO looked like the moon but was slightly smaller and was white-colored. After five minutes of observation, the UFO faded away like a cloud or smoke." (Muchas gracias a Luis Sanchez Perry para esas informaciones.)

TWO BLACK HELICOPTERS SPOTTED IN CONNECTICUT

On Monday, February 9, 1998, at about 3 p.m., Vincent R. was near Railroad Avenue in Greenwich, Connecticut (population 58,400) when he heard the distinctive sound of helicopter engines.

Looking up, Vincent saw "two black helicopters with armor around the windows. They were flying very low, just over 1,000 feet (300 meters)." He described the helicopters as "medium size, no antennae" and "with skids." They were "flying towards Long Island" along a flight path that would have taken them across Long Island Sound to Lattingtown, New York.

Greenwich is located on U.S. Route 1 in the southwestern corner of Connecticut approximately 30 miles (48 kilometers) northeast of New York City. (Email Interview)

1942: THE BRENNAN DOGFIGHT

Five years before Roswell, during World War II, a Bristol Beaufighter of the Royal Australian Air Force (RAAF) clashed with a UFO over the Bass Strait, south of Melbourne, Australia. Here is the pilot's own account:

"We had orders not long after the Japanese attack on Darwin (on February 19, 1942--J.T.) to patrol the Bass Strait where fishermen had reported seeing mysterious lights on the sea at night."

(Editor's Note: The Allied high command thought the lights might be from long-range German U-boats or Japanese I-class submarines.)

"At 5:50 p.m. of a lovely sunny (February) evening, we were flying some miles east of the Tasman Peninsula when, of a sudden, there came out of a cloud bank, a singular airfoil of a glistening bronze color."

"I'd say it was around 150 feet long and about 50 feet in diameter. It had a sort of beak at its prow, and the surface seemed burled or rippled or fluted. On its upper surface was a dome or cupola, from which I seemed to see reflected flashes as the sun struck something, which might or might not have been a helmet, worn by something inside."

At this point, the pilot, Lt. William Brennan, took his Beaufighter in for a closer look.

"Every now and again there came from its keel greenish-blue flashes. It turned at a small angle towards us, and I was amazed to see, framed in a white circle on the front of the dome, an image of a large, grinning Cheshire cat."

(Editor's Comment: Cartoon "nose art" was common on warplanes of World War II. It seems that the UFO-nauts had gotten into the spirit of the times.)

"The damn thing flew parallel to us for some minutes, then it abruptly turned away and, as it did so, it showed four things like fins on its belly-side. It went off at a hell of a pace, turned and dived straight down into the Pacific, and went under, throwing up a regular whirlpool of waves! Just as if it had been a submarine. No, the Japs had nothing in the amphibian line like that mysterious bird." (See FLYING SAUCERS UNCENSORED by Harold T. Wilkins, Citadel Press, New York, NY 1955, pages 224-255.)

EBK and list,

Just wanted to let everyone know that the Oberg/Cooper Website has been upgraded to include the following page which allows one to access the information within the essays much more easily.

<http://www.li.net/~rjcohen/topicsaddr.html>

An image of the topics is included below.

Additionally, links are included to outside data, discussions, websites, etc., directly germane to each topic. It is my hope researchers, and anyone interested in finding accurate, concise information regarding various important issues and topics in ufology, will find them useful.

Adjustments to background color on my website pages have been made in an effort to make them more "readable."

These can all be accessed from the home page:

<http://www.li.net/~rjcohen/index.html>

The entire site contains minimal graphics and is designed to get the reader to the important information in an expeditious manner.

Respectfully,
Jerry Cohen

Important Topics from UFO History
Addressed via this Website

(Page last updated: February 15, 1998)

1. Reminds us that J. Allen Hynek was the main civilian scientist, hired by the Air Force, to debunk UFO cases to the public. Hynek found that a certain percentage of them refused his best efforts. He was the main civilian scientist closest to the Air Force data for approximately 20 years.

_Dr. J. Allen Hynek - His life and a few of his accomplishments
_Hynek page at UFOMind, California USA
_Quotes from Hynek that show his evolution over the years

2. Walter Webb is another astronomer who become interested in UFOs while working with Hynek on project "Moonwatch" back in the late 1950's. He says the Baker-Nunn network did pick up anomalous trails in their later photos. Hynek described them as "oddities."

Comments from Walter Webb, Charles Hayden Planetarium, Boston

3. Demonstrates that Hynek found cases in "Blue Book" that indicated that UFOs deserved to be studied in depth. Some cases described flight characteristics and behaviors that still mystify various military personnel familiar with our various aircraft.

Navy Case from "Blue Book" files - Hynek

4. Presents several cases presented by both Hynek and Dr. James McDonald who's data indicated that some UFOs may well be advanced "craft," perhaps not of this earth. Here are two of them. "Kirtland," was analyzed by Project Blue Book, the Condon Study and Dr. James McDonald (University of Arizona).

Analysis of "Kirtland" by Dr. James McDonald (see: Oberg/Cooper 7b & 7c)

McDonald's Critique of the Condon Committee Evaluation of "Kirtland"

5. Demonstrates that the Air Force's "Project Blue Book" was a "non-study," although as has already been demonstrated, it did accumulate important data. (After clicking and reading, please continue past the case you already read.)

Hynek takes us INSIDE "Blue Book"

What Hynek found when he reanalyzed the Blue Book cases

Where to obtain the Hynek UFO Report

6. Demonstrates that Edward Condon's conclusions from the Colorado Study (the one and only Air Force sponsored civilian university study of UFOs) were erroneous. Although Condon found "against" UFOs being worthy of further study, the case data from the study actually found a greater number of unknowns than the Air Force was claiming at the time.

University of Colorado UFO Project (11/66-11/68)

7. Here's an important reminder that Hynek and McDonald were not the only ones to disagree with the conclusions of the Colorado (Condon) Report.

Why Hynek disagreed

8. Demonstrates why NICAP (National Investigations Committee on Aerial Phenomena) was an organization to be taken seriously.

Where one can obtain a copy of the UFO Evidence

9. Demonstrates by the accumulated data from previously displayed cases ("Navy", "Redlands", "Kirtland") plus two other cases occurring at the same general time period as Kirtland, a high probability that astronaut Gordon Cooper is telling the truth about his UFO sightings.

Sebago (11/6/57) - Stokes (11/6 or 7/57) - Kirtland (11/4/57)

Gordon Cooper page at UFOMind, CA. USA

10. More than adequately demonstrates, via discussions with one of its creators, the "Earthlights" explanation for UFOs is incapable of explaining many CE II and III cases (CE = Close Encounter) as well as upper atmospheric ones.

Discussions with Paul Devereux archived at UFOMind, California

Other discussions with Mr. Devereux archived at my website

Cites two specific cases as examples:

_SKY THING (occurred 1960)
_Exeter, N.H. - "Blue Book" version (1/2)
_Exeter, N.H. - "Blue Book" version (2/2)

11. Proves that simplistic explanations such as "fire balloons released by hoaxers" are incapable of solving the 1965 Exeter, New Hampshire series of sightings which has defied researchers' best attempts to find a reasonable solution for same.

_A researcher claims he has solved Exeter
_My analysis says his "Fire Balloon" explanation is "full of hot air"

12. Presents specific data regarding the 1989/90 Belgium NATO sightings which unequivocally demonstrates that a "craft" of some type... was chased by jet aircraft, captured on radar and gun camera film, exhibited flight behavior well in excess of that which our present day aircraft are capable. The case impressed the Belgium NATO military enough for them to bring it to the public's attention. Note: This data is supportive of Hynek & McDonald's original discoveries.

_Why ultra-lite "giant flying wings" don't fit the scenario (M. Cashman)

13. As was previously demonstrated, the Belgium case was not the first military case to catch researchers' attention. Another case occurred in 1976 and was verified as being discussed within and between various governmental agencies via memos released under the "Freedom of Information" act.

_Why Hynek was not an "Intelligence mole"

15. Demonstrates that CUFOS (Center for UFO Studies ), the organization formed in 1973 and led by Dr. J. Allen Hynek until his death in 1986, is also an organization which certainly deserves to be taken quite seriously.

I imagine there are UFO sightings around the world on a daily/nightly basis w/out the benefit of telepathic energy. Most of them go unreported because people don't know what they're looking at in order to ascertain if it should or should not be there. Telepathic "phone-calls" is something I'm not that familiar with but certainly won't rule out as a method for making 'contact'.

Increasing Fireball Sightings - AP Article

Subject: Increasing Fireball Sightings - AP Article

More Fireballs Seen in the West
Sunday, February 15, 1998
The Associated Press

By MARTHA BELLISLE Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) -- The phone lines to Denver's Museum of Natural History have been buzzing since a fireball streaked across the Colorado sky last month.

That flash of light, caught on a homeowner's security camera, was not an isolated incident; it was followed by at least four more fireball sightings, said Jack Murphy of the museum's geology department. He hopes to find pieces of the celestial objects for the museum's collection.

As new reports of sightings keep coming in, scientists are debating the meteorites' origin and the meaning of the increased activity. There is more at stake, they say, than where a piece of rock fell to the ground.

"These little things are the little brothers and sisters of the bigger ones," said Doug Revelle, a scientist at Los Alamos National Laboratory. "The reason for the interest is eventually a big one is going to hit, a real big one. And the question is: Can we protect ourselves?"

If a large meteor hit Earth, "life as we know it would be very different," he said.

When a fireball fell into the Earth's atmosphere on Jan. 11, a Front Range resident's home security camera documented the bright light and shadows along with the sonic boom caused by the apparent meteorite, Revelle said.

Scientists will use the time between the flash and boom -- 132 seconds -- to help determine where the meteorite touched down, assuming it didn't burn out before landing.

Then, at about noon on Jan. 27, a commercial airline pilot flying over Wyoming spotted "a ball of flame trailing smoke."

"He reported he did get some turbulence from the object," Jim Patton, operations supervisor for the Federal Aviation Administration's flight service center in Casper told the Rawlins, Wyo., Daily Times. "He saw the debris and felt the shock wave from it."

Residents in Breckenridge, Colo., also reported seeing that daytime fireball. Murphy said they believe the space rock was heading south to north and landed just north of Hanna, Wyo.

That night, another fireball broke into the Earth's atmosphere.

Scientists believe that meteorite came down in southern Colorado or northern New Mexico, Murphy said. People in Breckenridge spotted that fireball, too.

"That one was seen traveling east to west," Murphy said. "It has been a long time since we've seen one moving like that."

Another meteorite was seen and heard at sunrise in eastern Colorado on Jan. 30. And Murphy is investigating a report that came in earlier this month.

So what's happening?

"I don't know," Murphy said. "We can't attribute it to anything. But it is unusual to have so much activity."

University of Denver astronomer Robert Stencel suggested that Earth may be getting pelted with pieces of the Hale-Bopp comet. Early in January the Earth passed through the part of space the comet had traveled.

"Comets are like kids with muddy boots," Stencel said. "They leave a trail of debris in their wakes."

Meteorites from asteroids breaking out of the orbital belts between Mars and Jupiter are made up of metals, mostly iron. A meteorite from a comet would have a lighter element composition, Stencel said.

Such space debris is rare and would be of great scientific value, he said. Scientists will test the composition of the meteorites -- if they can get their hands on them.

Revelle said he's excited about the meteorite activity, but he can't account for it.

The reports describe a smoke trail following the fireballs -- or bolides, which are exploding meteors.

"The smoke trail is an indication that the object was quite big and strong," Revelle said. "Over the globe we see objects that are about a meter across an average of only 12 times a year."

Last Oct. 10, a meteorite crashed near West Texas and New Mexico; then on Dec. 9, a large fireball crashed near Greenland, and on Dec. 13, a meteorite was seen across hundreds of miles, from Minnesota and Wisconsin south into Iowa and northern Missouri.

Revelle said history may give us some insight into the meaning of the increase in fireball activity.

About 60 million years ago, an asteroid crashed into the Earth and kicked up enough dust to blot out the sun. Some scientists believe this resulted in the death of more than 80 percent of all animals and led to the extinction of dinosaurs.

"These events seem to occur every 60 million years, give or take 10 million," he said. "We're about three million years short of 60 million."

"In order to defend the Earth from a large meteor, we would need to know about it while it was months away to deflect it," he said. "If we knew about it when it was weeks away, it would be too late."

The following is the latest response from the Army:

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
Freedom of Information and Privacy Acts Office
1725 Jefferson Davis Highway Suite 201
Arlington, Virginia 22202-4102

January 27, 1998

FOIA #98-0358

Peter A. Gersten, Esq.
7349 Via Paseo del Sur
Suite 515-194
Scottsdale, AZ 85258

Dear Mr. Gersten:

This letter is in response to your Freedom of Information Act appeal, addressed to the Office of the General Counsel, and your supplemental request, addressed to our office, both dated November 3, 1997. This letter also refers to your initial request dated September 10, 1997, and our response dated October 3, 1997.

In your initial request you were seeking records that LTC Corso refers to in his book entitled "Day After Roswell," and that were allegedly maintained in the Army Office of the Chief of Research and Development. That Office's responsibilities now fall under the Assistant Secretary of the Army for Research, Development and Acquisition. At the time your initial request was received, all requests for UFO information were routinely being forwarded to the Air Force for action by this office. This was due to the fact that the Department of the Air Force has been the lead agency in responding to inquiries about Roswell.

Upon receipt of your appeal, for non search of records by the Department of the Army, and your supplemental request for documentation to prove that the requested records were transferred to the Air Force, you were contacted by Darryll G. Smith, of my staff. Pursuant to that telephone conversation, our office has agreed to re-visit your original request for possible sources of information within Army. We have assigned your appeal, which we are now processing as your original request, and supplemental Freedom of Information Act request, Case Number 98-0358 for control purposes.

In reviewing your initial request, it has been determined that since the initial records may have been maintained by the Army Office of the Chief of Research and Development, the following agency may have records responsive to your request. Therefore as a matter under its purview, your request has been transferred to that agency for action and direct reply to you:

Information Management Office
ATTN: SFAE-IMO
Research Development & Acquisition 103 Army Pentagon
Washington, D.C. 20310-0103

If this office can be of further assistance to you, please contact Darryll G. Smith, of my staff, or myself, at the above address.

Sincerely,

Rose Marie Christensen
Chief, Freedom of information And privacy Acts Office

Subject: UFO Scotland Updated

Hi, list members,

We are pleased to announce that UFO Scotland has merged with Skysearch Scotland, from the Bonnybridge area in Scotland. The organisation is run by Craig Malcolm who, together with various other family members, has shot amazing footage from in and around the Bonnybridge area over the last 6 years. Some of this footage has been shown on various TV stations all around the world, and even analysed by some of the worlds top video analysts, and proclaimed to be authentic.

We will be working closely with Craig in the future and have even managed to get two new "real video" clips from the Bonnybridge area on our website, with more to follow shortly. Also we have added some new witness reports complete with pictures etc, never before seen on the internet.

Finally, I am attaching a still picture taken from a piece of video footage that we recorded in September last year. It is an interesting picture taken from a six minute piece of footage, recorded over the River Forth in Kirkcaldy. A small percentage of this particular footage can also be seen at the UFO Scotland website. All the Scotland footage has been encoded using the real video encoder at 28kbps.

I thank you all for your time and wish you all good health and happiness. Keep looking to the skies.....

Dave Ledger.

Dear UpDates Members,

Thank you for all the very positive comments that I have received regarding our website that was launched on February 14th.

I only received one complaint regarding sound files. I apologize for that. I am a musician, and like music. I did not conceive "Orbwatch" as purely a UFO research report site. I wanted an integrated media site.

Also, apologies to any Mackintosh user, and anyone with a screen that gives less than 800 x 600 resolution, and 24-bit colour.

Mike is currently making adjustments to accommodate the users of Microsoft Internet Explorer.

As I said, the site is only in its early stages, and we are learning on the job, so to speak. Neither of us has done anything like this before. Mike learned the coding as he went along, and I am very grateful to him for the hundreds of hours that he has put into this effort.

Very best wishes.

Jennifer Jarvis

It is my understanding from Brit Elders that there are at least 2 dozen witnesses from all walks of life.

Analysis of the video has continued (sub rosa) since my intial posts on various internet sites last fall. The analysis confirms the initial acceleration in no more than 1/30 sec and possibly in 1/60 sec.

The analysis also shows that the tilting that appears to be cause by rotation of the symmetry axis about vertical (like precession of a top) is at a 1 Hz rate and is continuous from the beginning to the end of the video of the object, and can be fitted from the beginning to th end with a single sine wave function.

Also it appears from analysis that the UFO made a nearly right angle turn and traveled away from the camera during the last seconds of its visibiliy (before going beind a tall building). The next issue of th MUFON J will contain an update.

I don't know if the March showing on sightings will even mention the analysis that has been carried out (no one has contacted me about it).

Some Questions about Korff's Book on Roswell

Subject: Some Questions about Your Book on Roswell

I am the Roswell UFO Crash Photographer that you quote in your book, 'The Roswell UFO Crash -- What They Don't Want You to Know'. Since we never have met or had any conversation I am curious and therefore am requesting the basis for several statements published in your book:

"General Ramey allows the press to enter his office and photograph the actual flying saucer wreckage, although they are not allowed to touch it. One of the photographers present is J. Bond Johnson, who takes several pictures..." p. 28-29.

FACT: I was the ONLY photographer present to photograph the wreckage in General Ramey's office. In fact, NO OTHER photographs ever have been produced of Ramey, DuBose and Marcel. I was left alone in the office for a short time while awaiting the arrival of General Ramey and during that period unwrapped a package of the wreckage and did my best to arrange it for a useful photo.

Incidentally, my hat -- I was the only civilian present so it must have been my hat! -- is shown on the chair in the background of several of the photos.

I did not take the Irving Newton photo and have no information as to who did. It must have been taken subsequent to my arranging the crash wreckage pieces since they obviously are still arranged the same way on the floor of the general's office. There have been speculations that Newton was photographed by a FWAAF base photographer after I left and that the photo then was released to the press along with the "cover-up" press release on the evening of 7/8/47, which quoted Newton.

"A short time later, the shredded remains of an ordinary weather balloon are brought into Ramey's office and quickly substituted for the real saucer wreckage," p. 29.

FACT: It has been well established by ufologist researchers that there NEVER was any 'substitution' of any wreckage whatsoever.

"At the official press briefing that follows the 'bait and switch' maneuver, General Ramey announces that the whole flying saucer affair has been a mistake, and that the debris recovered by Maj. Jesse Marcel is nothing more than the remains of a weather balloon." p. 29.

FACT: There is no known record of ANY "press briefing" by General Ramey other than the casual comments he made to me during my photographing of him, Colonel DuBose and Major Marcel. These comments made only to me were a denial that he knew the nature of the debris being photographed.

"THE BOND JOHNSON FACTOR ...At that time I was briefed on the idea that it was not a flying disc as reported but in fact was a weather balloon that had crashed.... Almost the first thing that Ramey said was, "Oh, we've found out what it is, and you know, it's a weather balloon." p. 125.

FACT: I have been quoted in the past as making statements similar to these. There is no basis in fact as to these remarks, I never have made any such statements since this does not in any way coincide with any recollections or records that I have of my visit to General Ramey's office on 7/8/47.

Your anticipated reply at the earliest possible time will be greatly appreciated.

Expect it Tom! -Anytime- you try to apply a little common sense or critical analysis in a public forum such as this you're going to step on some toes and get called a "skeptic".

Par for the course! (I) have been called a "skeptic" myself and I'm a self-professed abduction experiencer, so go figure! <G>

You bet! But have faith, I think they're outnumbered by mostly rational, thoughtful people!

Least I hope so. <G>

Re: flame mail,. . .one of the sweet "built ins" of I'll second that! Gotta go with what we have! "Science" for all the beating that it takes is a valuable enough tool that we shouldn't discard it out of hand. It's -far- from perfect or at times even adequate, but it beats the hell out of

Considering the low level of the pitiable "rebuttal" to my circa 1983 study of why Cooper's UFO stories (and stories _about_ Cooper and UFOs which do not originate from him) are not reliable evidence for "true UFOs", any change is likely to be an improvement.

Maybe I should feel 'honored' to have my name used for a "Website" but it certainly is now without any permission or agreement of mine.

However, it does make a good point: serious UFO 'debunking' studies aren't answered or refuted, only danced around and made half-witted fun of. That's something I won't argue with! ;-)

Apologies for no-mail these past 24 hours.

Seems my ATI Mach 64 video-card and Soundblaster AWE 64 having lived, grudgingly, together since October of last year are now duking it out. (Sorry, Peat!) Does anyone know why SB insists on loading the Emulation driver which then disables the audio-card in Win95?

The resulting chaos, not being able to do multi-track mixing/editing, having Computer Doctor here and trying to figure out the Gates-Factors precluded any mail-runs. Mail may be slightly delayed again today - another house-call.

If you were to assume a minimal distance away for the UFO, a little on the far side of the buildings, you would have a minimal value for its speed after it got moving. Then taking the 1/30 sec figure, you'd have a minimal value for its acceleration. What would that turn out to be -- around 30 g?

I guess that at least tells us that the UFO's operator was well aware of our 1-second time unit.

I'm sure that Brit et al. already had plenty of info on the event to pack into a 45-min (1-hour) program, what with the story of how Jaime received the video, his investigations, the many witnesses they could put on in Spanish plus translations, and with the video analyses of Dilettoso.

UFOSEARCH #10 -- UFO History; Part I

UFOSEARCH #10 -- UFO History; Part I

Val Germann
Columbia, Missouri

*** On The Uses Of History ***

Everyone who writes history does so for a good reason, at least as far as they are concerned, and this must not be forgotten. In the main I write history for two reasons:

- 1) To understand the present and,
- 2) In an attempt to estimate the future.

Cervantes said that prudent men should judge the future actions of others based on what those others had done in the past. This is good advice even today, providing only that you know what those other folks in question actually did in the past! That's the rub! And that's what history is all about, at least for me.

That is, history to me is far from a mere recital of facts, a piling up of reports from long ago. No, it's not history until those facts and reports are assembled into something useful, perhaps into a scenario that helps make sense of the present and aids in understanding what might happen in the future.

In this short series I will be looking at what happened in the UFO arena in 1968, thirty years ago. It is amazing how little has changed since then, how little 'progress' has been made in 'ufology'. A strong sense of 'deja vue' pervades a history of 1968, as so many were then looking to government agencies and to government scientists for an end to the secrecy surrounding UFOs. And so it is today, never mind that 'the government' has slapped 'ufology' down again and again.

Like Russian peasants in the late 1800s, who said, "If only the Czar knew how we are being oppressed, surely he would remove these corrupt local officials and set us free;" the ufologists of today appeal to the Czar, the government, in seeming ignorance of the plain fact that their estate is policy and not at all some local accident.

I've experienced this first hand. While living in the UK, I investigated a sighting made by a reliable witness (a coastguard), who saw, in al clear evening sky, a bright light over the sea. Its reflection in the water could be clearly seen, and occasionally a beam of some sort seemed to strike tha water's surface. The local college physics prof. dismissed it (rather predictably) as the planet Venus. The problem? Venus was not at elongation and therefore not visible. Add to that the fact that the witness was looking due east, and the explanation falls apart. When I politely tried to point this out to the prof, he told me to stop wasting his time with crackpot nonsense.

Agreed. Skepticism (in the most positive sense of the word) and rigor ('extraordinary claims require extraordinary proof') should be the watchwords of ufology. Skepticism has a bad name in this field -- and deservedly so. I would simply state that we should divorce the methodology (sound in itself) from the practitioners who have brought it into disrepute (closed-minded bigots, in many instances).

The photo and account are located at:

Rant of the Week: "Cranks, Nuts and Screwballs"

Every week we pick the wackiest, scariest, nastiest or funniest rant from the hundreds of letters received by us here at ParaScope headquarters, and present it to you as our Rant of the Week. This week, we're please to present a diverse collection of "mini-rants" excerpts from "Cranks, Nuts and Screwballs," a 1965 report by CIA operative David R. McLean detailing some of the more bizarre correspondence received by the agency. You can find an in-depth analysis and full details on the "Cranks, Nuts and Screwballs" report online in ParaScope's Dossier section. Enjoy.

"I have always had adequate sex that no one appreciated. I need a better grade of iron to eat, and so do the astronauts." (Excerpt from a July 1964 letter to the Director of Central Intelligence.)

"A defenseless woman having husband trouble sincerely requests your help." (June 1964 letter to the DCI, enclosing picture of a convertible and address of a suburban motel.)

"O.K.! Keep me off the payroll. I'll try and sell my abilities to the Soviet Union." (1965 postcard peevishly addressed to the U.S. Lower Intelligence Agency.)

"Please be informed, old pal, I have entered my name with the 87th Congress as a candidate for the Presidency of the United States in the next elections. If I make it, I am going to reinstate you in CIA." (1962 letter to Allen W. Dulles.)

"You can tell John A. McCone to go to hell if you think I'm s way after all I've done for you people." (Early morning telephone call from "Agent 44" on his release from the drunk cell of a Washington police precinct.)

Coming Up Next Week!

Catch a number of great stories next week on a daily basis on America or all at once next Friday on the web site, including daily updates to our Conspiracy Newsline and Daily Dose features. Among the articles you'll want to check out:

Dastardly Doings at Davos

Davos, Switzerland. Site of the annual World Economic Forum. Ground zero for the global elite's fulfillment of its long-sought dream of a global economic infrastructure that is completely under their domination. ParaScope presents an overview of Davos 1998's key events, including the "Multinational Agreement on Infrastructure," the "final solution" offered by Western power-brokers to solve global banking woes.

The Shaver Mystery

From Inner Earth to the Grassy Knoll, the Shaver Mystery -- born in the pulpy pages of Amazing Stories -- has for years ensnared believers in its cleverly-marketed web of mythology. Indeed, it was through the Shaver Mystery that the groundwork of alien abductions and extraterrestrial flying saucers was laid. Some of the very foundations of ufology, as well as the rumors of underground alien bases at Dulce, New Mexico, were all set in the firm cement of the Shaver Mystery. Richard Toronto, veteran researcher of Shaver lore, shares his first-hand knowledge on this controversial topic.

Cry 'Havoc!' and Let Loose the Pies of War

Which one of us hasn't at some point yearned to smack Microsoft Chairman "Dollar" Bill Gates square in the face with a giant cream pie? Sure, we've also probably wanted to eviscerate him with a rusty carving knife, but you don't get the electric chair for smacking someone with a pie. The recent pie attack by Noel Godin and his associates on Gates is the first exposure many Americans have had with the subversive world of pieing. But it turns out subversives here gh and mighty for years. Yet the mainstream media has scarcely covered these brilliantly inspired protests. Did you know, for instance, that every Watergate conspirator except for Tricky Dick himself fell victim to guerrilla pie attacks. D. Trull explores the world of pie flinging as politico-social protest and the apparent conspiracy of silence on the part of the media in failing to cover the pie agenda.

...All this, and much, much more!

Aloha John....

Yes, well I'm about ready to opt myself out of public forums. By now I know the people who have intelligent and constructive opinions and I can communicate with them privately. Having said that, please do not think that I value my own opinions as more valuable or constructive than anyone elses, but I flatter myself that they are as objective as I can make them.

Your personal experience does not matter. You are a skeptic if you do not accept as gospel every crackpot dream that anyone relates. I think there was something in Psych 301 about people who are compelled to be right about everything they say.

No, everyone has been kind enough to sign their mail, and I wouldn't want to filter anyone out in any case, because as much as I may disagree with them, they might be right and I will never know if I don't look at all sides of the issue. Almost no one can be right much more than 50% of the time when a question of choice is involved. I want to learn everything I can so that I can make good decisions.

Sue Kovach, author of last month's FEATURED TITLE, HIDDEN FILES ( <A HREF="<http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ISBN=0809231212/bufosweirdworldA/>"> Hidden Files : Law Enforcement's True Case Stories of the Unexplained an</A> ) was nice enough to drop me a note. She explained that she had not written the caption which I had questioned (regarding Bigfoot), but said that it had been provided to her by the Associated Press, from whom she had gotten the picture.

FEATURED TITLE:

THE MONTAUK PROJECT ( <A HREF="<http://www.amazon.com/exec/obidos/ISBN=0963188909/bufosweirdworldA/>"> The Montauk Project : Experiments in Time</A> )
Subtitle: EXPERIMENTS IN TIME

Have you ever heard a little kid tell a lie and just get really carried away? You know, it starts out simple, and suddenly Superman and Barney and a fire-breathing dragon get involved? Note that I am not saying that this book is a lie, but it seems like one of those stories. I'd heard about it for some time, and been intrigued. Some of you know that I have written articles examining time travel as a possible explanation for various paranormal phenomena. I knew this book had to do with time travel, and a link between the alleged events known as the Philadelphia Experiment (in which a ship supposedly vanished and reappeared in 1943 during wartime invisibility experiments) and another, much more recent project. I knew some about the story, and understood that it was convoluted. Well, I had no idea how convoluted it was! Let's see...for starters, one of the people involved was a crewperson on the U.S.S. Eldridge (the Philadelphia Experiment ship) in 1943, but then was a psychic in 1983 (his psychic abilities were used to make the time effect work), then aged really rapidly, then his soul (essentially...pardon the loose terminology) was transferred into a second child which his father was convinced to have in order to provide a body for the transfer, although the child was raised by unsuspecting foster parents, when that child was eleven in 1963. I think that's all correct, but don't hold me to it. This book also brings in Tesla, and Reich, and aliens (two different types...we don't see them, but their technologies are used by the project), and what appear to be the Nordic-type aliens (although they are actually American Nazi selected participants), and the Face on Mars, and Alternative Three, and magic, and the ether, and sort of the Monster from the ID from FORBIDDEN PLANET, etc. It's quite a hodge-podge, with a few photographs of equipment (and of the monster, which looks like a very out-of-focus ape suit), and some technical jargon thrown in as evidence. Now, I'm not going to tell you that this is not true material...I'm sure some people believe it (although I would guess primarily for intuitive reasons). It's simply primarily anecdotal. If it's fiction, it's a fairly-cleverly constructed world. If it's reality, it's absolutely extraordinary.

This is really a fight that I would like to avoid but there are some allegations made here that simply are not true. J. Bond Johnson was, in fact, one of the photographers. There was obviously more than one as his own statement makes clear, though not necessarily at the same time. However, the point is that I have, on audio tape, the original statements made by Johnson that are in direct conflict with what he says today. The point is, I do have the tapes, and more to the point, Johnson has heard them. In fact, he has copies of the pertinent statements.

>"General Ramey allows the press to enter his office and >photograph the actual flying saucer wreckage, although they are >not allowed to touch it. One of the photographers present is J.
>Bond Johnson, who takes several pictures..." p.
>28-29.

>FACT: I was the ONLY photographer present to photograph the >wreckage in General Ramey's office. In fact, NO OTHER >photographs ever have been produced of Ramey, DuBose and Marcel.

>Incidentally, my hat -- I was the only civilian present so it >photographer after I left and that the photo then was released to >the press along with the "cover-up" press release on the evening >of 7/8/47, which quoted Newton.

Johnson has always maintained that he was the only photographer present when he shot the pictures of General Ramey and Colonel DuBose. This is the first time that he has suggested that he unwrapped the debris and spread it out.

Interestingly, he claimed, originally, that he had shot one picture of Ramey and one picture of Ramey and DuBose. Then, he decided that he had shot two pictures of Ramey and two of Ramey and DuBose. This seems logical based on the photographs.

Now he claims he shot two of Ramey, two of Ramey and DuBose and two of Marcel. He said, originally that he had not taken the pictures of Marcel and didn't know who did. Now he claims responsibility for all six.

BTW the civilian hat only appears in a single photograph.

>"A short time later, the shredded remains of an ordinary weather balloon are brought into Ramey's office and quickly substituted for the real saucer wreckage," p. 29.

>FACT: It has been well established by ufologist researchers that there NEVER was any 'substitution' of any wreckage whatsoever.

There is no well established fact that there was NEVER any substitution of wreckage. Colonel DuBose, on video tape, and in interviews with disinterested third parties said there was a substitution. DuBose, in fact, signed a letter saying that the debris had been switched. Johnson is quite wrong here and is, quite frankly, offering the Moore and Shandera scenario again.

>"At the official press briefing that follows the 'bait and switch' maneuver, General Ramey announces that the whole flying saucer affair has been a mistake, and that the debris recovered by Maj. Jesse Marcel is nothing more than the remains of a weather balloon." p. 29.

>FACT: There is no known record of ANY "press briefing" by General Ramey other than the casual comments he made to me during my photographing of him, Colonel DuBose and Major Marcel. These comments made only to me were a denial that he knew the nature of the debris being photographed.

Except for Colonel DuBose's statements that there had been a number of reporters at the FWAAF who talked to Ramey. There are other stories printed in the other Dallas -Fort Worth newspapers that are not from Johnson. There is also a number of radio reports, including one from ABC News that suggests that other reporters were in Ramey's office. Therefore Ramey and members of his staff were talking to other reporters. His tale is interesting but not unique. He wants to be the only reporter who was there.

>"THE BOND JOHNSON FACTOR ...At that time I was briefed on the idea that it was not a flying disc as reported but in fact was a weather balloon that had crashed.... Almost the first thing that Ramey said was, "Oh, we've found out what it is, and you know, it's a weather balloon." p. 125.

>FACT: I have been quoted in the past as making statements similar to these. There is no basis in fact as to these remarks, I never have made any such statements since this does not in any way coincide with any recollections or records that I have of my visit to General Ramey's office on 7/8/47.

I wonder if he would like to hear the tape again. Not only did he make comments similar to these, there are exactly what he said. I have the tapes with the comments and I was careful in the transcription because this was at the time that Moore and Shandera were talking about their new star witness. At that point Johnson moved from having seen only a weather balloon to having photographed the real debris. But the point is, I have the comments on audio tape and know exactly what he said. When confronted with that information, he stuttered and evaded, but had no answer, accusing me of getting the quotes wrong.

What he said to me, once again on tape is, "I posed General Ramey with this debris. At that time I was briefed on the idea that it was not a flying disk as first reported but in fact was a weather balloon that had crashed."

I can bury this guy at any point because of the audio tapes. You can hear him changing his story after he talked to Moore and Shandera. And then you can hear him try to suggest I was wrong, even when I was quoting from his own words.

You know, his comments about having never made any such comments really annoy me since we went through this, meaning Johnson and me, about three years ago. I sent him a copy of the quotes, on tape, so that he could hear his own voice making the quotes. He said it, plainly.

Now he's back with a new and even better story. But the point is originally, he just hopped over to the air base, took two... no four...no six pictures and was told that it was a weather balloon. Now, he wasn't told that but his own words sink his new story.

Thought you might find these thoughts interesting.

Alfred's Odd Ode #224

Subject: Alfred's Odd Ode #224

Apology to MW #224 (For February 17, 1998)

The moon was full behind me, and I was looking east; the stars stuck fast in cool-ish air like the eyes of wary beasts. Just sipping on my coffee, and thinking on my son, who's up and joined the Air Force (?), putting college on the run. He'll crew the flying mantas that are terror in the skies; he takes the road I'd chosen, and he'll fiddle with what flies=85

All at once a flaming bolus split the night in quick descent! I could almost smell it burning like a solder gun that's spent. I listened in the quiet for the tell tale sound of passage, and heard the booms transonic like a prophet's voice of presage!

I saw it then a small white light that grew in it's intensity; it didn't move, got bright as hell -- it had a strange propensity. It winked out when the brilliance made me raise my hands alarmed, though I reveled in its strangeness. I was gladdened, frightened, charmed. I see the damndest things in skies I know are without end. Where anything can happen, it's an open mind's your only friend.

The light winked out, but then resolved to the structure of a craft! It drifted quickly downward on a silent swooping track. Reflecting silver moonbeams, it grew in girth and size. The color and the detail -- it stopped my breath, it filled my eyes.

With nary a bump it stopped with a thump, afloat in the air, overhead! Rubbed eyes are no cure, I am slackjawed, demure, (no terror, no horror, some dread). Another few inches my house is destroyed! I'm concerned beyond measure, and a little annoyed that I think of the house, a possession, a toy, when enigma comes calling, and I'm not overjoyed.

And I'm not overjoyed at this prospect of contact I've studied and dreamed of 'till now! It's here in my face, no warm up or warning; it'll upset my life, friend, and how! It'll freak out the wife, and derail my son; I'll never get work as a teacher begun=85

I look again -- it's hanging like my house's second story, though the normal sounds of night go undisturbed. The dog's are still not barking, doves still coo their late contentment; the night goes on, unbothered -- unperturbed. I'm the only one that sees it (?), and the only one upset (?), and fill my lungs with air to shout for help! Then a thought comes in my mind, and it is mannered, cruel (?), but kind, and I don't produce a whimper or a yelp=85

Lehmborg@snowhill.com

If it happened to me =85I haven't a clue what I'd do. The personal responsibility of the occurrence is weighty. Additionally, you become another whacked out saucer nut with a disturbing story not interesting enough to get on Art Bell's show. Meanwhile -- anomaly festers while I speculate on what can be cruel and kind at the same time. Maybe someone with disturbing news that tries to break it to you in the best possible way=85some ethical doctors must be cruel to be kind -- but, it'll be like anything else in that you'll be taking the good with the bad. And the good could be magical.

Children may be children and adults may be adults only because of the difference in technologies between them. Young children are at a very primitive technological level compared to their parents and teachers -- Brainiacs capable of feats reserved for super beings, able to weave scary magics the children can see in moving pictures before their eyes, protectors that never know defeat (for the lucky ones).

I rankle at being treated like a child, but if I'm acting like a child perhaps it is justified. Wow -- that was the first time I used myself as a metaphor for humanity =85 delicious feeling! Come what may, we are the children in this sector of space!

UFOSEARCH #11 -- UFO History; Part II

UFOSEARCH #11 -- UFO History; Part II

Val Germann
Columbia, Missouri

*** Buildup To 1968; The Age Of Zamora ***

Thirty years ago this month I was a freshman in college and what I call The Age Of Zamora was nearly four years old. Public interest in (and even fear of) UFOs was still very high, though not as high as it had been earlier, say in the summer of 1966, in the wake of Allen Hynek's "swamp gas" blunder.

The year 1968 would see full-blown Congressional hearings concerning UFOs, and full-blown PhDs would testify, at length, as to the reality and significance of UFOs. But it did not matter as the Condon Commission report (which everyone was already waiting for as 1968 began) would put the kabosh on UFOs in a big way at the end of 1969. The Congress was shown to have no real power where UFOs were concerned. No, that power, if any, resided in the executive and with the military, and that was the end of that.

Dr. James McDonald had already found that out, having been shown the report of the Robertson Committee, which had met back in 1953. That group, made up of several scientists with strong connections to the CIA and NSA, recommended that the UFO be debunked in public, and it had been made so. By the time of the Zamora incident in 1964, the UFO had been nearly dead for a decade, only a brief flap in 1957 having broken the relative silence, at least here in the USA.

I well remember 1964, but not for Zamora. What I still remember from that year are the build-up in Vietnam, the first of the big 1960s race riots and, finally, the Presidential election: Goldwater vs. Johnson. As for UFOs, the big run-up would begin in February of 1965, in New England, and spread in a huge wave to most of the country by the summer. By July of '65 UFOs were front page news yet again.

Yes, about 26 g's at 1/30 sec; twice that at 1/60.

Not necessarily. The exact oscillation rate, assuming the frame rate is exactly 1/30 sec (depends upon crystal oscillator in the camera), is..... 1.065 Hz.

I can be damned certain of lens flare when I see it. And I was saying to toss the photo in the circular file, which I still believe. The story is another matter.

>Why didn't you write something like this: "Alex, my Simple lack of time. I often don't have time to write detailed responses. In fact, it is a real stretch for me to come here at all. If I did not know that UFOs are real, but most "evidence" either fake or misinterpretations I would not be here.

Yep, truth is what I am after, not religion. Important

Hi there Brian !

I am fascinated to read what you have said here regarding the bright light over the sea. You mention that a beam of some sort was striking the water's surface.

I have seen exactly the same phenomenon numerous times, with many colleagues. One of these people is a member of this list, and he could possibly corroborate this statement. Also, I have succeeded in documenting some of these events on video tape.

Our lights, with attendant beams, are certainly not Venus, as that planet is rarely seen quite so close to the water's surface!

Very best wishes,

Jennifer Jarvis

These statements are a compilation of various conspiracy theories reported to have taken place in association with the Roswell crash. Mr. Korff's book sets out to show that a weather balloon was the culprit in this series of events. It doesn't appear as if you have even taken a cursory look at the rest of the material in his book. I don't particularly believe either theory about Roswell is substantial enough to call the case solved, but you should at least take a look at what the book's thesis is.

On page 16 of Korff's book: "In constructing the Roswell 'timeline' of events presented in this chapter, I have combined all the divergent claims that exist among the seven major books that have been written about the topic." Korff doesn't support the UFO theory, so you're actually being critical of someone who holds your view of the case at hand.

Hope I helped,
Scott K. Hale

After looking at that picture, all I can say is that it represents an inconclusive bit of material which can only truly be decided with some intensive photograph analysis. Perhaps someone knows a place thats NOT subject-related, where this photo can be gone over with a fine tooth comb.

Announcing the Canadian UFO Conference

July 10-12, 1998
St. Paul, Alberta

Confirmed speakers to date:

Stanton Friedman
John Timmerman (CUFOS)
Chris Rutkowski (UFOROM)
Fern Belzil

Sponsored by the St. Paul Chamber of Commerce

Site of the World's Oldest, Maintained UFO Landing Platform and UFO Museum

For information and registration call 403-645-6800

Visit the Conference website hosted by the Alberta UFO Study Group:

Americans please note! Your dollar is worth more in Canada! Why not plan your UFO vacation this year in exotic northern Alberta? St. Paul is only a hop, skip and a jump from the city of Edmonton, where you can find the West Edmonton Mall - still the largest in the world! (Yes!
Larger than the Mall of America in Minneapolis!)

*****

See you there!

Ah, yes. Don't look through the telescope because you might see something you don't like.

I investigated sightings that occurred in late December, 1978 in New Zealand. These sightings were big news 19 years ago because a TV film crew saw the unexplained lights and filmed them. I don't have space to go into all the details of this sighting which involved an airplane crew of 2, two reporters, a cameraman and a sound recordist, a radar operator and a radar technician.
The sightings occurred between 1 AM and 3 AM on Dec. 31.
Because a reporter was involved and he got his story out immediately, the sighting was reported on that same day in morning papers in NZ. Theories proliferated like the funny mushrooms after a spring rain. I think some of the explainers had been eating those mushrooms!

An astronomer in Christchurch N.Z., was 99% certain that what they saw and filmed was Venus.

Problem: Venus didn't rise until after 3 AM

OK, go back to astronomer who is now confident that what they saw was Jupiter (nowhere near as bright as Venus, of course).

Jupiter was up, but at such a high angular elevation that the cameraman couldn't film it and besides the lights were reported as at the altitude of the aircraft or lower. Another explanation was that one of the lights was a squid boat. This was no good because bright lights on squid boats create reflections in the water which appear immediately beneath (from the point of view of the observer at some altitude) the bright lights. Yet the film clearly shows no reflection (squid boat had to be at least 3000 ft high to have its reflection out of the field of view of the camera). Sir Bernard Lovell of Jodrell Bank Radio Observatory identified the lights as "unburned meteorites," ..... a dumb comment if there ever was one in that one light, in particular, was seen for over 10 minutes.

Anyway, SCIENCE IN DEFAULT:

In May 1980 a Canadian scientist, Wm. Lehn, published a paper in the Journal of Atmospheric and Terrestrial Physics in which he argued that the lights were mirages of other distant lights.

He stated: "notably absent from all the reported theories was any consideration of atmospheric refraction phenomena." He based his opinion and analysis solely on newspaper reports of the sighting.

In July 1980 I responded with a 6 page paper that criticized Lehn for using only a few Canadian newspaper accounts and also pointed out a number of reasons for rejecting atmospheric refraction (mirages). I also pointed out that New Zealand newspaper HAD carried discussions of refraction phenomena.

The journal editor sent my paper to a referee who wrote:

".....This article unlike that of Lehn, contains no real science and as such cannot be accepted for the journal. Sightings of unidentified objects are unfortunately often vague and imprecise and sometimes contradictory. I do not consider that this article contributes in any way towards a true scientific explanation of the phenomena described. It may be suitable for a newspaper but not for a scientific journal."

His second sentence (Sightings of UFOs are often vague....) is, of course, correct. But so what? The only "vagueness" in this case was in the explanation. The "hard data" consisted of eyewitness accounts by good observers backed up by color movie film, ground radar, airplane radar and something that was quite unique in ufo history until the Gulf Breezesightings, tape recordings made during the sightings.

Anyway, I responded in October 1980 by rewriting and resubmitting my paper along with a letter to the editor as follows:

"I wonder what the referee considers to be 'real science.' Is it real science to allow an incorrect explanation to stand unchallenged in a respected, refereed journal? I dare say that if a published paper contains errors in logic or mathematics, experts in the particular field addressed by the paper do not hesitate to write articles pointing out the errors, and the journals do not hesitate to publish the articles."

I also pointed out that Lehn's paper seemed to be largely speculation based on a small amount of information from newspapers whereas my paper was based on much, much more information and contained the results of a calculation of brightness based on photographic data. It therefore seemed unfair for the referee to "bestow upon Lehn's paper the accolade 'real science' " and to reject my paper as unscientific.

In December, 1980, the journal editor informed me that a second referee had rejected my paper. The second referee had written that it was unlikely there would be "an agreement on an explanation of the N.Z. 'sightings' and until the experimental facts are sorted out more clearly, arguments and counter-arguments should be dealt with by correspondence between the contestants themselves and not in the open literature...I support without hesitation the rejection of this paper."

In other words, so what if an incorrect explanation had been published. The incorrect explanation was "scientific" and it would be unscientific to publish a counter-argument.

My paper was never published.

SIC TRANSIT GLORIA SCIENTIA.....

or something like that!

(There is a lot more to the New Zealand sightings story. Papers were published in the journal APPLIED OPTICS... but only "by accident.")

C. Bond Johnson wrote that he was misquoted in the Randle/Schmitt book:

>>"THE BOND JOHNSON FACTOR ...At that time I was briefed on the >>idea that it was not a flying disc as reported but in fact was a >>weather balloon that had crashed... Almost the first thing that >>Ramey said was, "Oh, we've found out what it is, and you know, >>have made any such statements since this does not in any way >>coincide with any recollections or records that I have of my >>visit to General Ramey's office on 7/8/47.

Kevin Randle replied:

>I wonder if he would like to hear the tape again. Not only did he >make comments similar to these, there are exactly what he said. I >have the tapes with the comments and I was careful in the >transcription because this was at the time that Moore and >comments on audio tape and know exactly what he said. When >confronted with that information, he stuttered and evaded, but >had no answer, accusing me of getting the quotes wrong.

>What he said to me, once again on tape is, "I posed General Ramey >with this debris. At that time I was briefed on the idea that it >was not a flying disk as first reported but in fact was a weather >balloon that had crashed."

I side with Kevin Randle on this one. Johnson's original quote that Ramey was telling him it was a weather balloon is, in fact, completely backed up by contemporaneous news accounts. On the other hand, his more recent statements that Ramey didn't put out a weather balloon story until after he (Johnson) had returned to his newspaper office doesn't seem to be supported by documentary evidence.

That this debate has become somewhat acrimonious is unfortunate, because overall Johnson seems quite open to finding out what happened that day and even accepts the possibility that there could have been a UFO crash that was covered up. He isn't a knee-jerk debunker.

First of all, it's important to establish a basic timeline of what happened. Surviving wire messages indicate that the original AP wire story on the press release went out at 12:26 pm, Roswell time, or 1:26 in Fort Worth and 2:26 in Washington. Johnson remembers being called out to the base at around 4:00 pm and being admitted to Ramey's office at around 4:30 pm (Fort Worth time). That leaves roughly three hours between the press release and when Johnson took his photos. A lot happened in those three hours.

The N.Y. Times reported:

Celestial crockery had the Army up in the air for several hours yesterday before an Army officer explained that what a colleague thought was "a flying disk" was nothing more than a battered Army weather balloon. (The "Army officer obviously refers to weather officer Irving Newton)

...WITHIN AN HOUR after Lt. Haught (sic) had given new impetus to the "flying saucer" derby, his boss, Brig. Gen. Roger Ramey, had a somewhat different different version of the flying disk.

He said that while it was true it had been seen on a ranch, no one had seen it in the air; it was "of flimsy construction." apparently made "of some sort of tin foil." ...In Washington, Lieut. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, Deputy Chief of the Army Air Forces, hurried to his headquarters' press section....

Similarly, Dick Pearce of the San Francisco Examiner wrote:

The Army Air Force sent a shiver of excitement across a saucer-conscious Nation yesterday with the announcement that an actual flying disc had been found... Not until three hours later did the saucer shatter on the rock of hard fact...

Lt. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, deputy chief of the AAF, hurried to the AAF press section in Washington and personally took charge as newspapers and wire services clamored for details....

WITHIN AN HOUR telephone lines into sparse New Mexico were jammed... (The Examiner did not call Sheriff Wilcox. Surmising that the find had been flown to Brig. Gen. Roger M. Ramey ... The Examiner telephoned him. FIRST TO REACH HIM, The Examiner got a complete description of the "disc" from him, together with HIS EXPRESSED SUSPICION THAT IT WAS JUST PART OF A WEATHER BALLOON. His description tallied with that of radar reflectors sent up every day at Oakland.

(As a result, The Examiner was able to give a prosaic name to the Army's saucer LONG BEFORE the Army itself corrected the boner of its public relations officer at Roswell.)

A weather officer attached to the base weather station at Fort Worth inally was called in, took one look at the tangled mess of aluminum foil, strings, and wood and made definite identification.

Plans to fly it to the AAF laboratories at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, were abandoned promptly.

DISAVOWAL -- General Ramey went on the radio to quiet the furor.... etc.

And the Washington Post wrote:

For three hectic hours last night, the Army Air Forces ... thought it actually had possession of one of those fabulous "flying saucers." ...The mysterious will-o'the-wisp really exists -- so said an announcement from Roswell Army Airfield's public relations officer. Then a few hours later and nearly two days after the "disc" had been in official hands, it was rudely exposed as an imposter.

Rushed from Roswell to Eighth Air Force Headquarters at Fort Worth, Tex., by B-29, it puzzled AAF officers there. They were about to fly it on to the Army's experimental center at Wright Field when an Army warrant officer [Irving Newton ] identified the object. It was part of a box - kite type of weather balloon used by United States Weather Bureau and Army meteorological stations all over the country.

But then the story went on later...

...Under the personal direction of Lieut. Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, acting AAF chief, who dropped into the Washington, AAF public information headquarters in the midst of the excitement, they burned up the wires to Texas and New Mexico.

They got from Brig. Gen. Roger Ramey ... a description of the object. It was "of very flimsy construction -- almost like a box-kite", made of wood and with a cover "like tinfoil."...

RAMEY SAID HE HADN'T ACTUALLY SEEN IT HIMSELF AS YET. HE WENT TO TAKE A LOOK, AND CALLED BACK THAT IT WAS ABOUT 25 FEET IN DIAMETER. He said he was shipping it on to Wright Field, Ohio, but would have one of his meteorological officers look at it first...

Let's put these stories together. The N.Y. Times says Ramey was putting out a different version "within an hour" calling the device flimsy and made of fin foil. The S.F. Examiner also suggests that they contacted Ramey "within an hour," and they were the first to reach him, even before Vandenberg and his people in Washington. The Examiner, however, clearly has Ramey saying that it was part of a weather balloon, and further suggests that Ramey was also using the radar target explanation at this time. This was also obviously well BEFORE Irving Newton, the meteorological officer, was ordered to Ramey's office to put his official stamp of approval on Ramey's story.

In all three stories, Gen. Vandenberg is also mentioned as putting in a brief appearance at the Pentagon public relations office. When could Vandenberg have done this? His secretary's diary details a crowded afternoon schedule of appointment and phone calls. However, a preplanned meeting with Air Marshall Goddard at 3:00 on "4 subjects," however, does not appear to have been kept, since there is no summary of the meeting, as there are for other appointments and phone calls of the day. Thus, there is possibly a short gap in Vandenberg's schedule, from 3:10 to 3:25 PM, enough time for Vandenberg to have ducked into the Pentagon press room and put in his reported appearance. This is "within an hour" of the press release, in line with the news stories.

At that point, calls were made to Ramey from the Pentagon press room. Ramey first describes the flimsy boxkite made of wood and tinfoil, but then says "he hadn't actually seen it yet." Then the Washington Post reports that "he went to take a look, and called back that it was about 25 feet in diameter."

There are two remarkable things in that statement. First of all, Marcel had yet to arrive from Roswell with the real debris. He was still airborne. So how could Ramey go take a look at something that wasn't there? And second, Ramey claims the boxkite was "25 feet in diameter." In fact, this strange description was still being put out by Army public relations people into the night. Yet there was nothing in the Fort Worth photos, balloon or radar reflector, that was anything like "25 feet in diameter." Again, this indicates that the object Ramey was claiming to have just looked at was nothing but a creation of his own imagination. The real debris simply wasn't there to be looked at.

Finally, here is an interesting description of events I found in the little known newspaper, New York PM:

Higher headquarters proved to be Brig. Gen. Roger Ramey... who had the Roswell "saucer" last night and was preparing to ship it to the laboratory at Dayton, Ohio, because still higher authorities had so ordered.

RAMEY SAID HE COULDN'T LET ANYBODY LOOK AT THE THING OR PHOTOGRAPH IT BECAUSE WASHINGTON HAD CLAMPED A "SECURITY LID" ON ALL BUT THE SKETCHIEST DETAILS.

"The object," he said, "is in my office right now, and as far as I can see there is nothing to get excited about. It looks to me LIKE THE REMANT OF A WEATHER BALLOON AND A RADAR REFLECTOR."

Here Ramey is very EXPLICITLY calling it a singular weather balloon and a radar reflector. And also note that he says he hadn't let anybody see or photograph it yet. So this statement also had to have been made BEFORE Johnson took his photos or weather officer Newton made his identification.

In summary, Ramey likely started putting out the weather balloon/radar reflector story within an hour of the infamous press release, well before (like 2 hours before) reporter Johnson ever stepped into Ramey's office, and even before Marcel arrived in Fort Worth with the real debris. Under the circumstances, it is hard to believe that Ramey also would not have told Johnson of the weather balloon/radar target explanation. He was certainly telling other members of the press this story before Johnson got there.

One wonders what happened to make Johnson change his mind about all this and start accusing Kevin Randle of misrepresenting his original testimony.

Dave

The "object" is clearly due to the fact that the shot was taken through a canopy or porthole, and there is an object inside with the cameraman that is reflecting sunlight, causing an image on the reflective surface.

Why: glider is at some distance, so most cameras would register the shot as infinity, but object appears radically out of focus; also the reflected image clearly interferes with the demarcated edge of the gliders' wings, which means the image is closer to the camera than the glider; the time of sighting (200 PM PST) would indicate that the sun would be highly elevated, and ideal for giving anomylous reflections of such diverse things as the dashboard or canopy frame/surround.

Why has this only surfaced now, after nearly 10 years?

Can anybody verify John Kings' story: anybody from any of the other aircraft?

Just some comments.

UFOSEARCH #12 -- UFO History; Part III

From: "Val Germann" <vhg@socket.net>
Date: Tue, 17 Feb 1998 23:16:55 -0600
Fwd Date: Wed, 18 Feb 1998 11:05:27 -0500
Subject: UFOSEARCH #12 -- UFO History; Part III

UFOSEARCH #12 - UFO History; Part III

Val Germann
Columbia, Missouri

The Build-Up To 1968; The Age Of Zamora

The late summer of 1965 saw one of the best known of all U.S. UFO cases, the Texas incident in which a police officer noticed that an injury had been instantly healed after a close encounter with a UFO. Four years later, in Vietnam, I would speak with another soldier whose father was a close friend of this officer. Two days after the incident, the officer in question came to dinner at my informant's house and spoke a little about his run-in with a UFO. He could not hold a cup of coffee without spilling it, so upset was he during the retelling of the event.

Also in the late summer began the Exeter series of sightings which would lead to John Fuller's great book 'Incident At Exeter'. The fall of 1965 would also see the Kecksburg incident and the huge power failures in the northeast, which some said were UFO related. But the biggest flap of all was waiting for 1966, in the spring, in Gerald Ford's Congressional District in Michigan. This flap would hit the mass media so hard, and the "swamp gas" foul-up would hold the government up to such ridicule, that in the end the Secretary of Defense, Robert McNamara, would have to make a public statement. In the background, inside the Beltway, the Air Force's Science Advisory Committee, Sagan a member, made a recommendation, one that led to the O'Brien Committee, which then led to Condon.

Strong medicine was needed because, as Keyhoe said, "Public fear of UFOs is at an all-time high." By the fall, Dr. McDonald was using the 'CIA-word' and causing great consternation in secret places, and at Lake Wanaque, N.J., just 50 miles from Manhattan, a spectacular series of UFO sightings took place. Then, early in 1967, McDonald was shown the Robertson Report, an event which helped launch him on a personal crusade to end UFO secrecy once and for all. His campaign picked up great resonance when, in the summer, 'Ramparts' magazine blew the CIA's cover on dozens of domestic spying operations.

Then, in the very late summer, in September, came the Snippy case, the first-ever animal mutilation, which was hugely played in 'Life Magazine'. How well I remember this, and how it made me sick to my stomach. What could this be about, I thought! But no one had any idea. And today, more than three decades later, do we know any more about any of this than we did then? And if not, why not?

David,

I have an email signed by you. It is difficult to tell whether it came directly from you or from UFO Updates in Toronto, and which parts were written by you and which parts were written by others. To respond to the final statement:

>One wonders what happened to make Johnson change his mind about >all this and start accusing Kevin Randle of misrepresenting his >original testimony.

You might try asking me.

UFOSEARCH #13 - UFO History; Part IV

UFOSEARCH #13 - UFO History; Part IV

Val Germann
Columbia, Missouri

The Build-up to 1968; The Age of Zamora;
Situation Report, December, 1967 -

Thus it was that by the end of 1967 the "triad" of today's ufology (flying saucers, mutilations and abductions) were all three in existence, the latter thanks to John Fuller's 'Interrupted Journey.' And right there with them was the fourth horseman, 'government cover-up,' perhaps the most important one of all, if subsequent events have much meaning. That is, the energy expended trying to gain access to assumed government secrets has been all out of proportion to the results of those efforts. And should we be surprised at this, since it has been government policy since at least January of 1953 to debunk UFOs in public?

I don't think so. I think it's been a dead end from the beginning, a vastly overrated effort, as a lot of people were trying to tell Keyhoe in the middle 1950s. But he preferred to tilt at windmills rather than do the hard work of nailing down the phenomenon once and for all. The temptation toward the 'big kill', the government secret, was too much for him to resist. And doing real research takes money, a lot of it, which Keyhoe did not have. So, he took the easy way.

Which was too bad because, when you think about it, nearly all of the really juicy 'secret stuff' has simply been leaked, for heaven's sake, and not been the result of pestering the government and its minions! There's a lesson there for somebody, though I don't think they're interested in learning it. Allen Dulles' great coups as a 'spy' came from the 'walk-ins', from sources upset with policy and actively looking to betray. But I would have to be pretty desperate before I'd put my life in the hands of an Allen Dulles, or nearly anyone else, these days. Who can you trust? I don't pretend to know.

So, as 1968 rolled onto the world's calendars the UFO arena was remarkably similar to what we see today. Public interest was high, Hollywood was helping out (the then-recent '2001, A Space Odyssey' a prime example) and nearly everyone was putting pressure on 'the government' for 'answers.' The primary difference between then and now was James McDonald, a world class scientist who was giving 'the government' and people like Allen Hynek, all they could handle. It was going to be a very interesting year!

First question that comes to mind.

"Ray, why have you continually broken your word (lied??) by NOT giving KODAK a couple of frames from the films?"

Next question

When are you going to get around to the above??

Cheers,
Robert

It seems like some of the Roswell witness storys has evolved with time.

In the beginning Kevin, thank goodness, interviewed all these people either with audio or video tape, i.e. the ORIGINAL story.

I would suspect that these (the original) are the most accurate accounts because they hadn't had a chance to be polluted so to speak.

From a human nature point of view it is interesting to see how the storys have/are changing.

Cheers,
Robert

Jakes

The object cannot be dismissed as a reflection inside the canopy of one plane.

As the account below the photo explains, the photo was taken from a chase plane and was observed by BOTH pilots. Several pictures were taken with the Minolta camera.

The only explanation I can offer, without knowing John English's reasons, are that, similar to many pilots, offering such evidence and making such claims can damage a flying career. Perhaps John has other reasons, but I can assure you that his account and picture were offered for free, and as he says, he still has the negative. I gather his motives are sincere, since no money is involved, and his name and e-mail were proffered openly. Mr. English also questions what it was that he and the other pilot saw, but undoubtedly they saw something.

I don't suppose to know what was seen, but the credibility of the observers appears to be good, and therefore what was seen was something tangible and not a camera goof.

As Mr. King states, only with scrutiny and analysis will we learn more. That is what I expected when I posted the report and the photo, and why I did so.

Best,

Dave

Subject: Pacific NW Mysteries Chat

The Pacific Northwest has more than it's share of strange mysteries, from Kenneth Arnold's famous sighting in 1947 to Bigfoot, it seems to be quite the happening place. Greg Long has been documenting all this weirdness for 17 years and has an impressive collection of stories on his webpage Northwest Mysteries <http://www.pacificharbor.com/nwmyst/>

Please join Greg and Bill " The Saint " Stockstill, as they discuss some of these mysteries this upcoming Sunday, Feb 22, 8pm ET. This chat is available at <http://forums.msn.com/ufo>

The Briefing Room chat can be accessed by any IRC client. The chat server name is publicchat.msn.com and the room or channel name is #briefing.

Area 51 Sightings?

Subject: Area 51 Sightings?

I am looking to make contacts with others who have photographed, videotaped, or otherwise documented UFO sightings near Area 51. On January 11, 1998, I videotaped approximately 8 minutes of footage from Highway 375 just past Hancock Summit. Respond to the list or via email (sarcosm@bigfoot.com).

Thanks,
Matt

Good question!

Actually I think Philip is being too generous in calling this a "question and answer session". It's more of a question and evasion session.

I'm getting fed up with Ray Santilli and his promises which go nowhere and his evasions of all the tough questions.

Space Debris?

Subject: Space Debris?

The following is from the Internet's leading gossip column, the Drudge Report:

(And no, it's not about Monica Lewinsky!)

REPORT: US MISSILE COLLIDED WITH SPACE JUNK

Thursday's BOSTON GLOBE is fresh with the details of a Minuteman missile on a test flight over the Pacific Ocean last month being destroyed in a collision with a piece of space junk.

Reporter Dave Chandler outlines what may be the first known case of space collision that "analysts fear could befall the space shuttle or other spacecraft with crew amid thousands of untracked pieces of rocket debris orbiting the Earth."

The missile was soaring 240 miles above the Marshall Islands in a test of "Star Wars" tracking systems when it suddenly disappeared from radar screens.

Lieutenant Colonel Rick Lehner, spokesman for the Ballistic Missile Defense Organization: "There seems to be really no proof, but the consensus is that it looks like it may have been struck by some space debris."

Over 7,000 pieces of space junk has been cataloged and is being tracked by the US Space Command.

Debris in orbit moves at high speeds, more than 17,000 miles per hour.

According to the National Research Council, almost all of the debris that could inflict 'critical damage' on the space shuttle is likely too small to be tracked. Any impact would come without warning, as in the Jan. 15 Minuteman collision.

More Roswel

Subject: More Roswel

Making this brief, I just had a business meeting with a young attorney whose husband was born in Roswell. My guess is they are in their early thirties.

His father was in the 509th. He's dead now, but mother, uncles, and aunts still live in Roswell and were there in 1947.

The uncles and aunts don't really remember much about it, she told me, other than they say the whole town was told by the military they were not to discuss it. Back then people trusted the authorities and no one questioned it, so they all complied.

Assuming this is accurate, I wasn't aware they had gone to the extreme of telling civilians not directly involved not to talk about it.

Any verification or comments ?

Dave, Jakes and List,

Considering the equipment, we need more than:

Camera .....: Minolta Maxum, Rokor 28/80 mm 100 asa (should be Maxxum)

We need:

The EXACT model - I gather we have AT LEAST the following variants from the Maxxum series: Maxxum 5000, 7000, 3000i, 500si

Lens setting of the zoom lens: 28 mm, 50 mm, 80 mm ?

Autofocus on/off if any Automatic settings on/off if any.

etc.

I agree with Bob, but you can't blame me for trying. Is there anyone out there that can call Ray's bluff and make him an offer for the film? If anyone is curious to know what we are talking about simply look to our web site at: www.beyondroswell.com

Lunar Ice Reported

From: Brian Cuthbertson <brianc@fc.net>
Date: Fri, 20 Feb 1998 12:55:00 -0600 (CST)
Fwd Date: Fri, 20 Feb 1998 15:53:40 -0500
Subject: Lunar Ice Reported

The following was found by one of our local astronomical society members ...

Reuters

HOUSTON (Feb. 20) - A NASA satellite sent into space last month may have found water frozen on the surface of the moon, the Houston Chronicle reported on Thursday.

If the findings were confirmed, the water could provide a vital resource for human space explorers, the newspaper said.

It said the possible findings had come back from the Lunar Prospector satellite circling 60 miles above the moon after launch from Cape Canaveral in Florida on Jan. 6.

Alan Binder, chief scientist for the mission, would not confirm or deny the reports for the Chronicle, but said, "We are getting fairly certain of our findings."

He said there were rumors among planetary scientists that "tons of water" had been found, but also that none was discovered.

"The only advice I can give you is don't believe the rumors either way," Binder said.

The $63 million satellite was sent to the moon in part to search the lunar poles for ice deposits thought to be the remnants of comets. The presence of ice was suggested by astronomers in the 1960s and rekindled in 1994 when a Pentagon satellite found unconfirmed evidence of ice in a crater at the moon's south pole.

Apollo astronauts who went to the moon on flights from 1969 to 1972 did not see ice, but those missions were in equatorial regions where the deposits were unlikely to be.

NASA scientists envision using moon ice to make rocket fuel for spacecraft shuttling to Earth or more distant destinations, and for human consumption.

The 4-foot-tall, 650-pound Lunar Prospector is equipped with instruments designed to detect as little as a cup of water in a cubic yard of lunar soil.

Binder said NASA was being "very cautious" about its findings and would not announce them until they were certain.

The space agency has been enveloped in controversy since August 1996 when its scientists said they had found fossil evidence of ancient bacterial life in a Martian meteorite. The claim remains in dispute.

UFOSEARCH #14: UFO History Part V

UFOSEARCH #14 - UFO History; Part V

Val Germann
Columbia, Missouri

** The Year of McDonald - 1968 **

In January of 1968, just over three decades ago, Donald Keyhoe showed James McDonald the Low Memorandum, a document that had been leaked to Keyhoe by a disgruntled staffer of the so-called Condon Committee, which had been set up in the middle of 1966, following the "swamp gas" debacle in Michigan.

The memorandum from Low, who was the project director, clearly stated that the purpose of the committee was to maintain the appearance of objectivity while whitewashing UFOs. McDonald was incensed by the memorandum, in part because he had been carrying water for Condon in some circles, advising restraint until the committee report was issued, an event scheduled for early in 1969.

McDonald immediately launched a personal and professional attack on the Condon group, writing and making public a letter excoriating them all. It seemed that the recommendations of the Robertson Committee, dating from way back in 1953, were still in force. The UFO was to be debunked, using the coarsest of methodologies. As a result of McDonald's efforts Condon fired two staffers, one of whom had actually given the offending document to Keyhoe, and another staff member resigned. The credibility of the Condon group should have been destroyed but it is never a sin to carry out the policy of higher-ups. The debunking, government-funded committee sailed on, unperturbed after the firings and resignations took place.

In the end, the report was issued and given the imprimatur of the National Academy of Sciences, an ultra-conservative group dominated by men from "the (Atomic) bomb group," Condon being one of that bunch. Once again, "the government" had bashed the UFO good, along with anyone, anywhere, attempting to get at the truth.

But, back to early 1968. Hard on the heels of the blow-up over McDonald and the leaked memorandum was an article that appeared in April in 'Look' magazine. The author was John Fuller and in great detail he laid bare the inner workings of the Condon Committee, predicting exactly what their report would say. But this didn't stay in the news long, not after the killing of Dr. Martin Luther King in Memphis. Indeed, the American political scene was soon to explode into banana republic-type violence, even as McDonald and others prepared to testify before Congress, in hopes of a once-and-for-all breaking of the secrecy surrounding the UFO.

THE RAELLY LATE LATE SHOW

On Friday 13th, 1998, Rael of The Rael Foundation (<http://www.rael.org>) popped up on Irish RTE1 TV's 'The Late Late Show' as a guest of Gay Byrne's (trivia fans take note: The Late Late show is reputedly the longest running TV chat show ever). Rael, who used to be French motor-racing journalist Claude Vorlihon, formed the Foundation in 1973 and claims it to be the largest UFO organisation in the world, with 35,000 members in 85 countries (information culled from Mark Pilkington's 'Off the Tracks With British Rael' <http://www.magonia.demon.co.uk/news/rael.html> from Magonia 60, Summer 1997).

Rael has been on The Late Late Show twice before, four and eight years ago. This is rather interesting, as Byrne tended to treat Rael, resplendent in his immaculate white poloneck and white furs (the Liberace of ufology?), with undisguised and reasonably well formed scepticism. Why does he keep coming back? I suspect that he gains enough followers each time, despite his host's derogatory attitude. And perhaps this is also a good time for recruiting in Ireland, with the the current surge in UFO interest.

Rael wasn't the only guest -- on the panel was a very nervous looking Alan Sewell, of the Irish Centre for UFO Studies (<http://freespace.virgin.net/ic.ufos/>), an organisation who have been mentioned in this column several times. Seated in the audience was Eamon Ansbro, also associated with ICUFOS.

My tape of the programme begins with Gay speaking to a well spoken middle aged lady (with a slight British accent) by the name of Betty, who resides on a hill above Boyle, Co. Roscommon. At 6am on an October 1997 morning, Betty was looking out of her bedroom window, when she saw three 'cigar shaped' objects travelling, at intervals of a few seconds, from west to east. After a longer interval, a fourth flew past. She contacted Sligo regional airport, who told her that there were no aircraft in the area. She concluded that the objects 'must have been UFOs, because no aircraft can travel at this speed'. More recently, Betty witnessed a red 'star' appearing and disappearing some 7 times in different parts of the sky, at around 7pm.

It was at this stage Rael and Sewell were introduced, Rael plunging into a lengthy explanation of his plans to build an embassy at the request of the Elohim, i.e., the aliens, in a demilitarised airspace. This is so that they won't be jumped upon by the military, and turned into 'guinea pigs', instead of receiving the world leaders at their leisure.

Rael had plans to build this embassy in Jerusalem, but has now seems to have changed his mind (to Ireland?). I would have thought that Israeli airspace is perhaps one of the least demilitarised in the world, raising questions about why he ever picked Jerusalem in the first place, other than for religious reasons. Money is not an issue, according to Rael, as he has some $5 million to spend.

The Elohim, according to Rael, are 25,000 years ahead of us -- and they are *our creators* -- when they created us they were at the same stage as we are now, in a quandary over the cloning of humans. Some radical scientists broke away from their home planet, and created us, the humans on earth (For more on Rael's cloning shenanigans, see an earlier Blather, <http://www.nua.ie/blather/archives/issue1no5.html>).

At this point Byrne, interjected with the obvious question - if this crowd are 25,000 years ahead of us, why can't they just land on the grounds of RTE, and stroll ahead into the studio? Rael became animated, explaining how they would be immediately seized by the police and army, and how instead they wanted respect, and to arrive in a more sociable manner.

The image conjured for me by these statements -- Gardai towing away the Elohim's craft for illegal parking -- is now firmly etched upon my mind.

Sewell was not in agreement with these ideas. He said that that whatever's haunting our skies is, yes, intelligent, but carrying out some 'surveillance program'. He then more or less admitted that he just doesn't really know what's going on with these UFOs.

Gay Byrne then interviewed a member of the audience, a lady by the name of Moya Hennessy, a civil servant, and 'leading member of the Raelians' in Ireland. Ms. Hennessy would appear to be on quite the religious experience buzz, telling Gay how Rael's writings and teachings had answered all of her questions'. She didn't say what these questions were. For the record, she has never seen a UFO.

Then Gaybo questioned Ansbro, who explained the ICUFOS's 'success' in divining the location and dates of future UFO sightings - he mentioned Bantry in April 1997 and Boyle on December 14th 1997 as examples. Readers of Blather may recall my December 14th trek across north Dublin sand dunes, documented in 'War of the Wetlands' (<http://www.nua.ie/blather/archives/issue1no32.html>), for a predicted Dublin sighting -- which didn't happen. Ansbro predicted another -- Tuesday, February 18th, 1998, time, 22:30. Where? Over Dublin. 'We'll look out for that' sez Gaybo.

I was in Dublin, as per usual, on this date. Nothing to report. Dublin City (excluding the extreme suburbs and hinterland) has a population of around half a million people, so I suppose there's a chance that perhaps someone, somewhere might have seen 'something', but I won't be losing any sleep waiting to hear about it.

Next up was some footage shot in Boyle in December, of a cylindrical light, allegedly hovering in the sky. Byrne was sceptical - he pointed out that it could be a street light, or that in fact, it could be *anything*. Sewell defended the footage, explaining that it was taken in Lough Key Forest Park - away from any electric lighting. Gay Byrne was a man unconvinced (and I have to say, it's not often that my opinions obviously coincide with his, but in this case, I am less than impressed the evidence). Sewell went on to point out the 15-20 lights appearing around the object, but Gaybo began steering away from the murky waters of Rorschach testing on live TV.

At this point, several members of the audience -- normal people began giving their own sceptical opinions, and asking some interesting questions. In answer to a question concerning Christianity versus What Rael Had to Say, Rael had to explain how the Elohim were actually 'God', that Mary was abducted and impregnated by the Elohim (like Rael's mum, or so we're told) and that Jesus was, like Rael, half Elohim, half human. And that J.C. would be back with a cure of cancer and AIDS, as soon as we build this embassy.

I'll keep an eye on the newspapers for Planning Permission notices.

NO WE HAVE NO CRASHES TODAY

Isn't it interesting how people started seeing UFOs in Boyle once the crash story hit the tabloids? -- mind you, the ICUFOS maintain the sightings have been happening for years. Continuing the 'Boyle Crash' thread , Blather dropped a cautious email to Saab's PR department, requesting comments regarding rumours of an alleged Gripen crash in Ireland. We received a very cheery answer:

From: coms@saab.se
Subject: Svar: Message from the Gripen Website

Hello Dave!
There has been no Gripen crash in Ireland.
During the development of Gripen two test aircraft crashed but they both crashed in Sweden.
Kind regards
Elin Almer

What can you say to such candidness?

I replied to this message, explaining how a kind of rumour and/or myth was springing up about an alleged Gripen crash. Ms. Almer responded explaining how this was perhaps not such a surprise - after all, the gripen is an 'old mythological animal'. I would gather that gripen is Swedish for Griffin -- any comments, anyone?

ANY FORTEANS IN WEST VIRGINIA?

On behalf of Loren Coleman, Blather is blatantly utilising your readership to gather information regarding sightings and thus possible activities of large hairy bipeds in West Virginia early in February 1998. All reports to fortean@maine.rr.com

While in Roswell for the 50th last July, I ended up waiting in a long line at a book signing (Corso's) and met several local residents and got into a discussion of the incident in 1947. One woman indicated that her father had been with the Fire Department in 1947 and had been instructed by the military to not discuss the incident. She said neither she, nor anyone else in her family had been able to get him to talk about what had happened. This was also because the military had ordered them not to talk about it.

Of course, this was only a conversation held in passing, and I now have no way of confirming the tale or asking questions. Of course Roswell is now making money from this "event", and one has to determine whether the comments made by residents are designed to promote the truth or tourism.

The woman I spoke with sounded sincere, but who knows.

People will remember what they want to remember. Last-but-one time I was in Roswell (January '96) I spoke to a couple of elderly residents and, out of my hearing (I was in a bar, she was in a shop) my companion spoke to at least one other about the Great Event of 1947 and *their* consensus was that if anything really unusual had happened, they would have heard about it - and they didn't.

The official history of the 509th, reproduced in part in the USAF's "Fact & Fiction in the New Mexico Desert", makes it plain how closely the base was involved with the town. If so to speak the Earth had moved in June or July 47 there would surely now be many more people than the relative handful so far dug up who would have much to say about it now.

If the pro-"Roswell" researchers had done their job properly, they would have canvassed opinion outside the self-generating circle of first-, second-, and third-hand "witnesses". This is not to say that constraints of time & finance would have permitted such an exercise.

Hi Matt.

I would be interested in seeing your footage. I have some footage that a friend of mine took, while we were sitting in his van at the Black Mail Box. We didn't see the object, but when we reviewed the video it was there. Pretty interesting little piece of video.

We haven't released it to anyone as of yet.

'Bright Light' spotted near Navy Helicopter Crash

From: Kenny Young <task@fuse.net>
Date: Fri, 20 Feb 1998 20:34:23 -0800
Fwd Date: Fri, 20 Feb 1998 21:12:09 -0500
Subject: 'Bright Light' spotted near Navy Helicopter Crash

"Bright Light" spotted near KERN RIVER CANYON Helicopter Crash Area Feb. 20, 1998

This report was enacted due to a brief, vague reference of a 'flare' being spotted near the scene of a tragic helicopter accident happening near the Kern River Canyon on Wednesday, February 18, 1998. The crash claimed the lives of five crewmen from the China Lake Naval Air Weapons Station.

The article, (dated February 19, 1998) authored by Hanh Kim Quach of The Fresno Bee, and circulated by The Associated Press, gives the brief and vague mention of a 'flare' that was spotted by several residents in the area. The article states that: "attempts to locate the origin of the flare were futile."

Of concern, at the time, was the possibility that the fifth member of the crew, whose remains had not yet been located, may have sent up a distress flare. He was later located in the wreckage of the helicopter.

Tulare County, sheriff's office (209-733-6211) was contacted, and the dispatcher was advised about the nature of my inquiry, to determine if the Sheriff's Department had any information regarding reports of a flare near or around the crash area.

The dispatcher didn't know about any 'flares', and any further inquiries were to be made with Lietenant Gutsch, who would not be available until Monday.

The Fresno Bee (1-800-877-7300) was contacted and a reporter said that the 'flare story' was considered incidental to the story in light of the accident and its casualties. He said the 'flare' story originated from a reporter who is with the South Valley Bureau of the Fresno Bee.

The journalist with the Fresno Bee also said that a separate helicopter accident happened in the exact same location in 1995. This accident involved a helicopter also clipping the same power cable. There were two casualties in the 1995 accident.

The South Valley Bureau of the Fresno Bee (209-625-5711) in Visalia, California was contacted. Lou Griswald, the reporter who covered the crash, conveyed that there were 'many' people who reported a 'bright object' in the Kern Canyon vicinity at 11:00 p.m. that evening.

Griswald said that Deputy Ernest Cowan acknowledged that the bright light caused some concern. Cowan said the object wasn't a flare, but was most likely a shooting star or possibly 'space trash' from a satellite launch at Vandenburg Air Force Base. The object exhibited a strange, 'arcing' motion that, Griswald said, ruled out a shooting star.

Cowan was not a witness to the event, but had knowledge of many inquiries regarding the light. Griswald heard about the bright light from the Deputy and one other person.

"There was some interest and speculation by people who thought that this bright light was perhaps a flare from the fifth person in the accident", Griswald said. The fifth member of the crew, whose remains were not initially located with the other four, was assumed to be unaccounted for at the time of the sighting.

There were many phone calls which came in over a wide area of Tulare County regarding the bright light. When told that the Tulare County Sheriff's Department didn't acknowledge reports of an alleged flare, Griswald speculated that the term 'flare' may not have been used, and that "half of the precinct probably wouldn't have known about it."

Comment:

I think this could possibly be a rocket launch or space debris. The reported 'arcing' motion seems compelling, and the reporter did not have additional details with which to elaborate on this alleged characteristic.

Inquiries should be made with Vandenburg Air Force Base to determine if there were any rocket launches near/around the 11:00 p.m. time frame on February 18, 1998. A separate inquiry with NORAD should also be made concerning satellite or space debris entry during this time frame, visible over this Tulare County, California.

Additional contact with witnesses could also reveal better clarifications regarding physical descriptions, ballistic conduct, duration of event, etc.

I hope to hear and coordinate with any persons willing to undertake these inquiries so I can install any comments/findings to the final report.

>First question that comes to mind.

>"Ray, why have you continually broken your word (lied??) by NOT >giving KODAK a couple of frames from the films?"

Robert,

There are perhaps some misunderstandings involved in this issue.

Ray might ask, when did he ever say that any 'archive 16mm' frames from the 'autopsy', should they astonishingly exist of course, would definitely be given to Kodak?

As past mentioned, he did in fact categorically state the opposite:

"Yes there are further plans with regard to the verification of the film and this will hopefully be done at the time of the cameramans interview However we will NOT be going to KODAK".

Verbatim written response from Ray Santilli to a question during a CompuServe conference, 24 March 1996.

As this was confirmed almost two years ago now, there was not a continually broken promise, at least publicly.

We can go back even further, to this categorical statement:

"Plenty of film has been released with a variety of images including images of the autopsy room. Giving away film with the creature would be a last resort as the frames are far too valuable. I think it is also unnecessary as it is part of the same material already released".

From "Ray Santilli: Questions and Answers, by Susan and Philip Mantle", late 1995.

So there never really was much prospect of any 'archive 16mm frames' with images from the 'Roswell' footage ever being produced as evidence, although those who have been instrumental in the promotion of this evidently ludicrous 'alien autopsy' story, may have suggested otherwise.

To clarify Ray's comment that, "there are further plans with regard to the verification of the film and this will hopefully be done at the time of the cameraman's interview", this almost certainly refers to the examination of already existing frames which Philip Mantle had been given and which do not contain images from the 'autopsy'.

Around the time of the infamous 'cameraman interview', a colleague of Mantle's, Corrado Malanga, apparently a Chemistry professor at the University of Pisa, attempted to offer an opinion on the dating of this copy film. As it wasn't camera original film and the images therein had no relation to the footage anyway, even Bob Shell acknowledged it to be rather a meaningless exercise and personally, he wouldn't have bothered.

All of which shouldn't be taken as a defence of Mr Santilli. As noted last February, in issue No. 5 of UK magazine, the "X FACTOR", it was reported:

The X Factor asked music and film producer Santilli if the autopsy film had been authenticated.

"Yes, pieces of film were sent to Kodak for analysis. They've confirmed that it dates from 1947".
[End]

If that was his exact response, it simply isn't true, although he did subsequently clarify the 'pieces of film' had no images of the 'creature'.

In answer to the follow-up question, "Could the alien be seen in the pieces of film sent for analysis?" he reiterated:

"No... I'm not prepared to give away any frames showing the creature. The film's too valuable to cut up and send away".

Which seems to have been the relatively consistent public stance for at least the past couple of years (not that there's likely to be any such evidence to produce in the first place).

Dave,

I don't know about the "whole town" of Roswell being told by the military to keep it all quiet, but in The Truth about the UFO Crash at Roswell (1994 hardback) KRandle reported several instances of civilians being hushed up: on pp. 54,72-76, plus instances where those in the military were of course hushed up.

HEY This Sucks More than the Chupacabaras!

Up to date facts with the chupacabaras timeline?

I went to see what "timeline" there was to be found, and the only one I found was at:

> <http://www.princeton.edu/~accion/chupa21.html>

It is waaaay out of date and carries relatively little information. It is from the Art Bell Home page. In fact it is mine: I wrote it.

Waaaaay back I compiled a brief chronology while trying to make sense of the chupas reports. Art Bell saw it and I was asked if it could be posted there. I said Sure, and so it was. They posted the file "As Is" including my name as the author. I felt flattered. All done according to the book.

They even x-linked my email address to it. I got several messages from people with opinions and a few more from people clearly who had gone onto the net to find out something. I responded to the latter with the data they sought, usually some clipped files and contacts. No big deal. Its worth it, I'm glad to help and some day someone might send me some useful information. They needn't even have asked. But altering the file, that is another matter.

But at <http://www.princeton.edu/~accion/chupa21.html>
I feel something unethical has taken place, the file has been mutilated and it is unattributed. Not nice. I've tried to email them to ask what gives but the message bounced. Not that I'm exactly losing any sleep over it.

But this does seem to illustrate how little actual scholarship takes place on the internet. If a little job like that is the best chronology of the chupas around.....gee whizz.

I sure hope that database idea goes ahead. All it needs is lots of dedicated space, with a mirror. Keep it simple and in htm and ascii. Organize it in three levels from highest to lowest:

CASE           A recognized Incident with sufficient verified details.
INCIDENT      A quorum has ranked a Report as "valid" but details lacking
REPORT         Anyone can post a report but it is unverified.

The idea being to keep the database management to a minimum.

So all reports whatever their value are on record, and the better stuff has a means of floating towards the top.

So for instance if someone wants to make a decent chupacabras timeline all they have to do is do a textfile search and assemble the files that pop up in chronological order. I hope I am wrong but I have seen nowhere on the net (yet) where that is possible with things paranormal.

And as another example, the incidents I observed/recorded in May/June 1995 would become a Record. Specific details could be checked, for instance I see "Wycliffe Well, UFO Capital of Australia" is now a web site. Newspaper articles could be appended, and finally a quorum of good ufologists and true could decide to rank it as an Incident. With the accumulation of evidence linking US ATF's and familiar spirit phenomena and telepathy with UFO encounters, it might one day become a Case.

Also if someone filches it and places a chopped and unattributed copy on some site or publishes it, the original dated record is always there.

That would reduce the tendency for people to take material like my paltry chupas chronology, mutilate it and place it elsewhere without any attributions. Not quite bloodsucking, but enough to rank as a hickey!

Steve,

Since Beyond Roswell came out I've gotten several letters from people who were Roswell residents and say the same. I think the military clamped a very tight lid on this, but with military and civilians.

All this for a balloon???? Come on!

I just got a letter this week from a person in Hawaii who wishes to remain anonymous for now. She says that her grandfather was in the 509th at the time, and has always told them that it really happened. She has promised me to try and get a public statement from him, but thinks he might still be too scared of the govt to go public.

I think a LOT of people know what happened. I just hope we can get past their fear before they all die.

JC: Mr. Oberg, thanks for your acknowledgement. There are those who would say the rebuttal not as "pitiabile" as you seem to think. Is there something specific in the essays you wish to comment upon? :-)

Considering the low level of the pitiabile "rebuttal" to my circa 1983 study of why Cooper's UFO stories (and stories _about_ Cooper and UFOs which do not originate from him) are not reliable evidence for "true UFOs", any change is likely to be an improvement.

Alfred's Odd Ode #225

From: Alfred Lehmborg <Lehmborg@snowhill.com>

Fwd Date: Sat, 21 Feb 1998 11:28:19 -0500
Subject: Alfred's Odd Ode #225

Apology to MW #225 (For February 21, 1998)

I'm borne away, and floating to the house sized flying saucer! Then through it's hull, I'm drawn inside like so much smoke or vapor!

I'm on a promenade (?), somehow, a vast surreal structure, weird *beings* are walking past me unconcerned. I'm about to shout excuse me, what the HELL is going on, and one comes up directly, unobserved. It's *hand* is on my forearm, it *says*, "please to come with me", and I wonder that I've had a stroke, or dream out right, indeed.

I've read of this, a cerebral accident, when part of your brain just implodes. With brain cells requiring free-basing oxygen, strange visions leap forth and explode. Remaining moments linger in this weird hallucination, then comes the dissolution and the final obfuscation. Unconsciousness then slips right in and no one can detect you, and as far as is determined you're then buried -- beyond use, Stu. <g>

Still, did I linger -- and explain what I saw, led, by an alien, along like a dog? I stopped, for a moment, afraid and pissed off, "When was I asked "?, I sputtered, and coughed. "Where was my in-vite, why'd you pick me? What is that smell? What do I see"? What is your program, what is this place, why are you suddenly up in my face"?

"We like your poems (?)", appeared in my mind. "Every *thing* was alright, every *thing* was just fine. This can still work", was then sent as a post script, "we've so much to show you, you asked for your up slip! Could it be we don't know you -- a mistake has been made"? We've watched your beginnings -- you asked for this, mate."

"There's little respect in result of a snatch", I replied in blooming awe at what my eyes could touch and scratch! I shook off the little alien and walked off to the edge. This was really happening then, I began to self allege. I felt my arms, and smoothed my hair, and rubbed my face too hard. Well, I'll be blessed, and filled my lungs, such smells then came like shards. Unpleasant AND enticing completely strange, unknown, pickles in old cinnamon, old pyramidal stone.

Surreal and otherworldly like an international mall, the smells of different shops, other markets, different halls. And then completely pleasant, that I filled my lungs like friends, and asked the little alien, what was that smell again?

"That is simply ships air -- and different through the day -- the ship itself's a living thing, the smells from faraway. This ship has spanned the galaxy, and has lived apart from us, they've spanned perhaps a billion years, alongside us, two million plus."

I was standing at the rim up high, before me spread a basin. It was perhaps ten miles across, but hard to judge, I hasten. A city miles below me, and was grown it seemed from crystal, but blued with reddish highlights like a flashlight or a pistol.

I felt the alien's hand, again, so lightly on my arm, "We must go now," it said tersely, did I detect it was alarmed? "How long have you been watching us"? I asked, but stood my ground. "We watched your dim beginnings. What you'll learn you'll find profound."

Lehmborg@snowhill.com

History has always been written by the winners. Just the winners -- not _necessarily_ the ethical, or the just, or the educated, or the wise -- or even the brave =85 just the winners. We have no idea what actually occurred before a time when actual sounds and images could be committed to some kind of durable record of tape, disk, or stone; and much of that has been hidden or otherwise destroyed by, yet again, the ubiquitous winner. Hitler won in the short term; Stalin won in the short term for as long as he was alive. Saddam has been winning for decades his pestilent, short term, and parochial little gains. All write their histories as they would have them written in the same manner as winners in the United States will write theirs. Not as it occurred, naturally, but as they would have had it occur --incomplete and complimentary. It's why our kids hate us. We feed them a thin gruel of impossibly noble and largely fictional role models to measure themselves by, and the kids know (on a level they cannot yet articulate) that it MUST be complete bull shit. For my part, having bought in for so long -- reading some primary references has ignited in me a healthy resentment! And I can articulate mine.

What if there was an off planet repository of what actually went down=85 I'd like to see it, wouldn't you?

Fwd Date: Sat, 21 Feb 1998 13:23:55 -0500
Subject: CURRENT-ENCOUNTERS: Re: UFOR: Green Blood from: flexaret2@aol.com (Sam Sherman) 2-21-98

To: Francis Ridge

I think you are doing an excellent job in the hard evidence area of UFO research.

I have been researching the UFO field for over 30 years- am still in production on a long time documentary film project about the UFO phenomenon BEYOND THIS EARTH.

In my research I have gone to numerous government archives and searched out much important UFO information. One of my best discoveries was the UFO alert of 7 Oct 65 at Edwards AFB. I made this into an audio documentary, which has been very well received by serious researchers and given me great credibility in the UFO field. I now have a website for information and marketing of this documentary and you can find out about my work at:

<http://www.binarymedia.com/edwards.html>

When I spoke about Green Blood and the Philippine movie - it was not as a joke. The script was written in the Philippines, a similar place to Puerto Rico, where there have been many strange UFO encounters over years but not well documented. As for research from Puerto Rico. Jorge Martin is an excellent serious researcher and I interviewed him for my film. I would say their could be a grain of truth at least in anything he claims.

Cordially,
Sam Sherman

Important Aspects of the UFO / Alien Situation in Puerto Rico

In this report we inform on some of the important UFO/Alien incidents that have occurred in Puerto Rico in the last ten years. The number of cases reported here are represent mainly the situation in the southwest of Puerto Rico, and is only but a very small example of the many such important situations going on in the island.

Anomalous explosion and quake - How it all began

On May 31, 1987, at 1:55 P.M., the inhabitants of the southwest of Puerto Rico were shaken by both a strong tremor and the sound of a loud explosion which seemed to come from underground. Thousands experienced with fear the unexpected phenomenon.

The press media reported heavily on the earthquake, and published several accounts of neighbors from the towns of Cabo Rojo, Lajas and Mayaguez, stating how the ground shook up and down for some moments as they all heard the explosion. Also, homes and buildings in the region cracked due to the quake.

Originally, the tremor=92s epicenter was pinpointed by the Puerto Rico Seismologic Service at 81,000 ft. deep under the Laguna Cartagena, a lagoon located between the towns of Lajas and Cabo Rojo, but the next day the report was strangely changed, stating that the explosion and tremor=92s epicenter was located out at sea to the west of Puerto Rico, in the Mona Channel. This sudden change of the data was very suspicious, as it seemed that 'someone' wanted to veer the public's attention from the Laguna Cartagena site. Why do we think this? The following situations will explain it, as, ogether with the =93earthquake=94, other events unfolded in that and the following days, wich were not informed to the public, and after being disclosed by us during our investigation in the area, gave a broader aura of mystery to the situation.

The next day after the tremor and explosion, on sunday June 1, 1987, at about 10:00 P.M., a huge unidentified flying object was seen hovering over the Laguna Cartagena. Many witnesses, residents in communities all around the site, saw the incredible object as it remained hanging there in the night sky, from their homes in the Betances Community, Maguayo comm-unity and others. Mr. Carlos Mercado, explained what he and others saw: =93I was looking towards the Sierra Bermeja and the laguna and all of a sudden I saw two very big and bright stars or lights that were coming down very slowly side by side. I called my wife and got my binoculars. The lights were at the end of something very big that looked like a huge metallic looking silvery pipe. It was cylindrical with two big balls of greenish-white light at each end. On the object=92s underside there was something like a revolving reddish light.=94

Mrs. Hayde=E9 Alvarez, Mercado's wife, who we also interviewed on the incident, said: =93...they were like two very big stars, the size of a half dollar coin, joined by a long, metallic big pipe with lights underneath it.

=94Mercado and his family and neighbors have been witnesses to many of the UFO incidents in that sector because they live right in front of the main hot ufo spots there, the already mentioned Laguna Cartagena and the Sierra Bermeja, a small mountain ridge that for years have been a site of many UFO related incidents.

rs. Rosa Acosta, also a resident of the same community, said that: =93It was really big! I was seeing it from about three kilometers away and I could still see it about six inches long from the distance... It was incredible! That thing came down and hovered there, motionless over the Laguna Cartagena, in the air. Then, about 15 minutes later, it flew up and dissapeared to the south behind the Sierra Bermeja. This isn=92t new here. These mysterious lights and artifacts have been seen here for years, specially in that place. There have been ocassions in wich I=92ve been in my hammock, here in the terrace, and all of a sudden a bright light is shining on me from above. When I look up, one of this things, something saucer shaped, is over me and shining a bright white light on me. This has happened a couple of times...Why they do it, I don=92t know...and why me...I wonder about it.=94

Carlitos Mu=Floz, a young lad present during the interviews, explained his whole family has been seeing this type of objects for some time: =93About a year ago [1986], one night, all of us at home saw a very big platform, something that came down from the sky and remained motionless there, over the Laguna Cartagena. It had very bright yellow and green lights, and many smaller luminous objects were coming out from the underside of that platform and flying away in different directions. They kept going in and out from that thing. After some minutes the smaller objects entered the big one and it flew away and dissapeared up in the sky. It happens regularly... and always over the Sierra Bermeja and the Laguna.=94

Many people called the regional radio stations to report the sighting of the huge UFO over the lagoon, but astoundingly, these object returned for two more consecutive nights to the place, always at 10:00 - 10:30 P.M. , remaining motionless over the Laguna at about 500 ft. of altitude, for some minutes, before leaving.

Enigmatic circles and beamed =93X rays=94

Some days later, moved by the reports from witnesses indicating that the objects always flew away over and behind the Sierra Bermeja, next to the Laguna Cartagena, we went to the sector behind the ridge, the Olivares sector and the garbage dump area there, already in the municipality of the town of Lajas, and next to =93La Parguera=94 resort area, also in Lajas. While investigating there we made an unexpected finding, several perfect circular marks clearly defined as if cut over the terrain could be clearly seen in a field next to the Sierra Bermeja, in a land sector that belonged to Mr. Fidel Avil=E9s, a land owner and businessman. When measured, most of the circles were 35 to 40 ft. in diameter and perfectly defined by a rim 3 ft. wide, a rim almost totally devoid of grass, in wich the soil seemed to have been baked by a great heat effect and become harder than the soil outside the rim or inside of it. Only the soil inside the rim seemed to be affected, different. The small quantity of grass still in the rim=92s area was totally dried up and dead.

When asked, all neighbors were surprised to see the circles, they had not noticed them before. The circles seemed to have formed there overnight.

The neighbors stated they knew nothing about them, that they usually go to sleep early, so they couldn=92t tell whatever happend or what formed them, but they all stated that for several nights, beginning with the night after the so called =93earthquake=94 and =93explosion=94 they had seen =93... strange lights and a very big object with many colored lights hovering in the sky and flying over the Sierra Bermeja in the direction of Cabo Rojo and the Laguna, to the other side of the Sierra.=94 The descriptions of the objects seen by them were similar to the ones given by the witnesses from the other side of the Sierra., towards Betances and Maguayo communities.

Mr. Roosevelt Acosta, his brother Heriberto and other relatives who live in Olivares sector all attested to this, also indicating that on some occasions neighbors there, as well as themselves, had seen strange small beings which seemed to have a faint glow to their bodies and which disappeared very fast whenever they were approached by the witnesses.

On one occasion Mrs. Dol=EDn Acosta, another resident of Olivares sector, was in her home's balcony and a bright beam of light suddenly came from above and engulfed her. =93It was a very bright white light- she said -, and it was coming from above the balcony=92s ceiling. There was a hole in the ceiling and as I looked up... There was a thing up there... Something like a big ball of light, and a bright beam of light was coming out of it and shining on me. When I looked at myself... I couldn=92t believe it! I could see my bones! It was as if I looking at an X ray plaque! I could see the bones in my fingers, in my arms, my body...even my toes! That object was up there and I could hear a soft sound coming out from it, something like air being ejected out from it at intervals, like pssss...pssss...pssss=94.

It then left, but for some minutes I could still see myself like that. My sister Eunice came out from her room to see what was causing the bright light and we both could see the inside of our bodies, our bones. When I looked at her she had no eyes, I could clearly see her empty eye sockets, and she saw the same thing on me. After about five minutes we were back to normal.=94 No after effects were ever felt by Dol=EDn and her sister.

But let=92s get back to the circles. Mr. Fidel Avil=E9s, owner of the land where they appeared, stated: =93I=92ve lived here for 50 years and I never saw anything like this. Those circles appeared there overnight after the explosion and the tremor.=94

Avil=E9s has a small food store there in Olivares, and other three circles had appeared behind the store the morning we interviewed him. His son, Fillo Avil=E9s, who attends the store, explained that that same morning a young man, very nervous, had come to the store and explained him and others there that he was camping with a group of friends farther down the road and went out for a ride in his motorcycle at about 3:00 A.M. As he passed in front of the store he saw that there were three strange luminous objects hovering next to the ground behind the store. According to what the young man told Fillo, the luminous things he saw were =93... round, soundless, and looked like upside down dishes, with bright yellowish light emanating from them=94. He got scared and left the place at once.

About the circles we found, at first there were 8 circles, two days later there were 12 of them. Intrigued, we talked about it with our friends Captain Luis Irizarry, a certified airplane and airline pilot with many years of experience, and Julio C=E9sar Rivera, a flying student. They agreed on taking us in Irizarry=92s plane to overfly the area and take some photos.

As we did it we were surprised by what we saw: There were 38 of those circles there in the terrain! They looked totally symmetrical and tended to be in pairs. Some days later we took some samples from the soil in the circles and sent them to the Agricultural Extension Division Program in Mayaguez, a major city next to Cabo Rojo, in order to check if a type of mushroom that we found at the place could have formed the circles, but it was certified by the program=92s citologist that the type of fungus involved couldn=92t have formed them. Also, the soil samples showed that the pH in the soil had changed, but only in the rim's area. The other samples taken from inside and outside the circles were totally normal. But there were many other strange things pertaining to the so called =93earthquake=94. Let's see them.

Cobalt blue smoke and mysterious men in Laguna Cartagena

We found more weird angles to what happened before, during and after the tremor of May 31, 1987. Several neighbors of Maguayo sector, next to the Laguna, stated that the night prior to the explosion and tremor they had seen a strange big =93red ball of fire=94 which flew and made several turns over the Laguna and then descended in a controlled and slow fashion while making a buzzing sound, and disappeared slowly into the waters of the Laguna Cartagena.

At 2:00 A.M., many residents of Maguayo were awakened by a very strong and brilliant white light that was coming in thru all the windows and openings in their houses. Curious about it, the neighbors looked out and were amazed by the sight of a huge flying saucer type craft that was hovering low over the laguna, as if searching for something there.

According to them all, the craft was covered by bright white light and it was circling the area very slowly. After about 2 minutes the craft left, disappearing in the sky very fast. The next day, at 1:55 p.m. the tremor and explosion occurred. We must remember that the epicenter of the tremor and explosion was originally officially pinpointed by the authorities at 81,000 ft. deep under the Laguna Cartagena... An unidentified object is seen entering the laguna, another unidentified object is seen late at night hovering and circling over the laguna as if looking for something there ...and the next day an explosion that rocks the whole region is felt ...having originated in the Laguna Cartagena. What really happened in that place?

After this incident, many jet fighters, helicopters and big AWACS type radar planes were being seen constantly flying low and circling over the laguna as if searching for something there, and the fishermen and neighbors continued to report seeing UFOs going in and out from the sea, at the coastline, as well as hovering over the Sierra Bermeja and the Laguna Cartagena.

Several cracks in the land appeared after the explosion, in different places of Lajas and Cabo Rojo, and many witnesses stated that a bright cobalt blue colored smoke issued out with force from these crevices. Mr. Pedro Asencio Vargas, resident in sector =93La 22=94, of Llanos Tuna, Cabo Rojo, and who is a teacher, stated this happened at his home: =93I saw it clearly, some cracks appeared in the ground in my yard and this blue smoke came out from them with force. This frightened me and my family. I feared that maybe a volcano was forming in my land. Some people from the Mayaguez Agricultural and Mechanical Arts College [part of the University of Puerto Rico complex specialized in engineering and agricultural techniques] came to check on what happened, but strangely, they refused to take samples of the residues from the blue smoke and powder that remained on some of the plants and the ground. That was strange, because they said that they were investigating what happened... Then, why would they refuse to take the samples and analyze them? I still don't understand their behavior.=94 But this bright cobalt blue smoke also issued out from the Laguna Cartagena, according to several witnesses. Mr. Carlos [Carlencho] Medina, together with other residents of the Maguayo community, stated that after the explosion there was a bright blue smoke issuing out from the lagoon [cobalt blue smoke has nothing to do with vulcanism or seismic-geological activity], and the place was cordoned off by a strange unidentified personnel. This personnel was composed by some men dressed in camouflaged fatigue military uniforms with their I.D. tags covered with tape labels, others were dressed as civilians in plain clothes or elegant suits, but with rubber boots up to their knees, and still others were dressed in white head to toes overall anticontamination type suits. The men dressed in the anticontamination suits had thick dark grey gloves and boots on and were taking samples in huge translucent canisters of the lagoon=92s water, mud and soil, as well as of the plants there. According to the witnesses, they had some type of =93radios=94 they were using to check something in the water, their descriptions of the =93radios=94 reminded us of radiation counters.

The military and the men in suits prevented anyone from getting to the place, stating that special personnel was there =93... to investigate whatever happened here=94, and that no one was to be allowed into the area. Medina and others explained that the second day a dark green military helicopter with no markings was brought to the area and a big metallic ball with something that looked like electronic equipment on it was lowered into the water attached to a very long metallic line that was attached to the helicopter. The personnel there seemed to be looking for something. The witnesses also noted there were a number of beige colored vans and Bronco type vehicles with small revolving parabolic type antennae on top of them.

Mrs. Zulma Ram=EDrez de Perez, who was, at that time, one of the owners, together with her family, of part of the land where the Laguna Cartagena is located, went to the site with her sister to see what had happened because they had seen bright blue smoke issuing out from the lagoon in an area where there is water [the same area Carlos Medina and others went to]. Several american men dressed in dark suits with a rectangular red tag on the right side of their suits, some type of american agents, according to the ladies, approached them and ordered them to leave the place at once. They explained that the land was theirs and the agents replied that they didn't care, that they would have to leave anyway, and said they were trying to find out what really happened there. This was strange, as in the previous occasion with Carlos Medina, the women were told that they were trying to determine what happened there... But wasn't it officially informed by the authorities that it was a tremor what had happened there... or wasn't it? These men were tall, caucasian, blond and dressed in fine looking suits, but wearing, as already stated, what seemed to be black rubber boots. They also had metallic silvery briefcases with them, according to the two sisters.

At this point Mrs. Ramirez said something very important, she stated her entire family had been seeing flying saucer type crafts coming out from or entering the waters of the Laguna Cartagena since the year 1956. At first they were very bright and luminous - she said -, and as they came out you could define more clearly their shape. They were disc shaped, silvery, metallic, with translucent domes on top and they had many beautiful colored lights all around them. They made a whooshing sound. You could see people, figures inside the domes, because on some occasions, when they came out we yelled at them and they would stop in the air in front of us. We tried to report these things we were seeing to the media, but no one would pay attention to us by then, so we just let it be.

In fact, my brother Quintanilla, now dead, one night back in 1964, yelled at them that he wanted to know how they were, to see if they were really from outer space, as people said, and that same night he had an encounter with them. He went to bed and suddenly felt an urge to go to the laguna. He got dressed, got on his jeep and drove toward Las Guanabanas dirt lane, to the back of the laguna. Getting off the jeep he saw two figures approaching him from the laguna. They were tall white men, about 6 to 7 ft. tall. Men with long fair blond hair and dressed in one piece tightfitting silvery suits. They were very beautiful and delicate, almost women looking, he said. He was too nervous, and he asked them not to come any closer, that he couldn't stand it. They smiled sweetly to him and walked back into the lagoon. He fled the place and in the morning explained everything to us. He was very upset because we wouldn't believe him. After that he never said anything else to us. We know he had other encounters with this beings, because some nights he disappeared into the laguna, and he wouldn't talk about what he was doing there all night. But we knew he was with his friends, as he used to call them. I'm sorry he's dead now, because I know he'd be happy hearing all the things people are saying about the laguna and aliens there, because it would back up everything he said.

The day after the explosion and tremor, a green military unmarked helicopter landed on top of one of the hills of Sierra Bermeja, just behind the residence of Mr. Milton Velez. Velez, his wife and children all saw several men dressed in green military fatigues and boots and wearing black berets get off the helicopter and start scanning the soil all over the hill with instruments which looked to Milton as metal detectors. They looked as special forces people to me - stated Velez-, they were looking for something up there. After an hour so, they left in the helicopter without any explanations. In more recent days Velez, his family and neighbors have all seen luminous flying saucers that come down from the sky in the night and remain motionless next to a radar blimp installed there by the government. After some minutes the UFOs leave very fast. This has become a common event there. More on this radar blimp involvement with the situation will be discussed further ahead in this report.

Earthlights?

Due to the many sightings of luminous objects and repeated explosions in the area, the authorities, this by means of official 'explanations' given by seismologists, stated that all the sightings were due to earth energies released to the atmosphere over these areas from geological faults deep underground. According to them, the friction in these faults produced the 'lights', dismissing the UFO sightings as misidentifications by the unknowing witnesses.

The real situation was that many of the sightings had to do with well defined solid, metallic objects that flew over the areas in an intelligently controlled fashion. Most of the UFOs were saucerlike and cigar shaped objects. Others were described as balls of light or balls that also flew in a controlled manner.

Mr. Luis Bonet, from the town of Hormigueros, about 20 miles away from Cabo Rojo, intrigued by the incidents in the Laguna Cartagena, visited the place late at night to see if he could see anything strange there. Instead he experienced this: "After the explosion, some days later, I went there to see what was happening. I was walking in the darkness and suddenly someone touched me in the back. That scared me and I let a foul word out.

Whoever it was responded in English and asked me who I was and what I was doing there, that I had to leave at once or I'd get into a problem. I told him, an american blonde man dressed in a fine black suit with a tie, that I was investigating on what had happened there, and he ordered me to get out from the place, stating that they [whoever they were] were investigating if whatever happened there was something natural or something else. I didn't want any problems, so I left."

Two policemen, a black helicopter and =91federal agents=92

Also, and this is the first time we are disclosing this, we interviewed a policeman who was at the laguna with another fellow policeman friend of his a couple of days before the explosion. Something happened there that day they=92ll never forget.

According to the policeman, they had gone to the lagoon to do some fishing, and suddenly his friend and fellow policeman saw strange movements in a slope in one of the hills of the Sierra Bermeja and smoke issuing from the ground. He went up the hill to have a look and saw several men dressed in coverall silvery looking suits together with gloves and boots who were checking something in the area with what looked like geiger counters. His friend calls him and as he climbs up the hill they notice some other men, dressed likewise, hauling three big rolls of thick black electrical or communications rubber covered cables several inches wide in big black trucks. The men then entered one of the cables in the lagoon=92s water, specifically in the area free from the grass that grows on most of it=92s surface [the area where most of the sightings have occurred and from where the Ram=EDrez=92s used to see the ufos come out from]. The other trucks entered a lane in one of the cattle ranches there to the right and was lost from their sight.

At that moment a helicopter appeared as from nowhere and someone ordered them thru a speaker to stop where they were and get down the hill at once.

The policeman, whose name we can=92t give for obvious security reasons, explained that: =93It was a big black helicopter with no markings. Someone inside of it ordered us to stop and said they knew we were armed. How did they know that we had our guns with us? I still can=92t understand that.

Maybe they had some type of equipment in the helicopter that enabled them to know about it. We came down from the hill and they landed next to us, very fast. Two men dressed in black jumpsuits and armed jumped down from the helicopter and asked my friend to come closer. They were white, with dark hair and moustaches, hispanic looking. He joined them and came back very upset, with a worried look.

=93Now we are in trouble - he said - they are federal people [agents].=94I told him not to worry and we both went to the helicopter. They asked what we were doing and we explained that we were policemen off duty fishing at the place=94. They answered in perfect spanish with puertorican accent: =93You can=92t go up there. This is a restricted place under the U.S. federal goverment and we are doing an experiment here.=94 What type of experiment, they never said [this stament from the helicopter men was a lie, because the area was not leased to the U.S. Federal Government by an agreement between the puerto rican local government and the U.S. Fishing and Wildlife Service until August 8, 1989].

The policeman continued explaining: They took us away to an area there between two hills in the sierra, and there was a camping tent. A tall white man dressed in a military suit came out from the tent, he seemed to be an american officer. This man talked to them, and we perceived he was asking them why they had taken us there. He seemed very concerned and annoyed by our presence.

After talking with the military man one of the men approached them and the next thing they are aware of is that they are lying face down on the ground in the dirt road that goes out from the Laguna Cartagena to road 101. Our policeman is the first one to react, and when he is coming to, he heard a man say in perfect spanish: Hey, they are waking up. Let's go. Then some men got into a car and left very fast. Both policemen woke up, but remained dazed for some time, sitting there in the dirt road. They left the place and never returned to it. Our policeman's friend remained somewhat disturbed after the experience, moving later to New York, and he's not coming back to Puerto Rico.

I don't know what happened. Those men did something to us, because we can't remember what happened after the man with the military officer came to us at the tent camp, only that we woke up in the dirt road and in a dazed state. It was as if we had been drugged and taken there. Now I can say that. I'm sure they drugged us somehow. But why? We didn't see anything important... I think... Only these men in the silvery suites with the cables going into the water... Who knows... maybe that is what they didn't want us to see... and the military officer... And then, some days later the explosion and the earthquake there... All this is weird, very weird, commented the policeman.

On March 4, 1988, at 2:00 P.M., another strong underground explosion was felt and heard in the Lajas-Cabo Rojo area. Radio broadcaster Raymond Stewart, from Super B radio station in Lajas, described the explosion as "Incredible!", stating it seemed more like an underground blasting than an earthquake. Many people called the radio station to inquire on the situation, and also to report on the sighting of two huge balls of orange light that came down from the sky and hovered over the Laguna Cartagena. The sightings were explained away by the local authorities as observations of the planets Jupiter and Venus, but the fact is that both objects had a bright orange color and were observed moving in the sky by hundreds of witnesses, many of them from different observation points all over the region. Analyzing the many reports given by the witnesses, we came to the conclusion that both objects were right over Laguna Cartagena when sighted. Also, we verified Jupiter's and Venus's position in the sky that day and they were in an astral position to the northwest. Also, they had a whitish glow, not an orange one.

At the same time, squadrons of military U.S. jets began flying low over the area and specially over the Laguna Cartagena, together with a big green military airplane with a round radar dish on top of it [Hawkeye, AWAC?]. These type of radar is used for special missions. All this worried the residents in the zone. What was this special radar reconnoissance aircraft looking for in the Laguna? Were the jets escorting it for protection? If so, why? No one knows yet the answers to these questions.

After these tremors the number of sightings and incidents continued growing. In one of the many sightings in the sector, on wednesday March 8, 1988, at about 5:40 P.M., Mr. Jesus Padilla and several other neighbors from Parcelas Betances community observed a strange black triangle-piramid shaped object with colored lights fly over the sector and to the west.

In April 1, 1988, there was another explosion and another big ball of light was observed coming from the south and hovering over the Sierra Bermeja. Several residents of Betances community saw a huge cigar shaped object with colored lights and two smaller ones that came out from the first one which hovered over the Laguna and then flew away to the west, positioning themselves for some minutes over the Sierra Bermeja, right over the premises, then under construction, of a so called Voice of America Radio Station. The sector involved with this "Voice of America station" has been a place of many UFO sightings too. For some strange reason these objects seem to keep a surveillance on the area. The U.S. Government built something there, but the announced radio station has never operated. The area is off limits to everyone, but no one knows what really was built there. After hovering over the mountain the smaller light entered the bigger one and then the main object flew away to the west, disappearing from sight. Among the witnesses of this sighting were Mrs. Dora Rodr=EDguez Acosta, Mr. Edgardo Plaza, Miss Karen Mercado and Miss Marylin Acosta, and some others.

In November, 1988, almost 300 people participating in a political rally saw a cigar shaped luminous UFO hovering above Betances community, and then over the Sierra Bermeja and the laguna, while releasing many smaller luminous objects from its interior. The sighting lasted for half an hour.

Huge Triangle shaped UFO captured and disappeared two U.S. Jet fighters in Cabo Rojo

The situation continued going on and " in crescendo" until the night in which two U. S. Navy jetfighters were apparently abducted in mid air by a huge triangular shaped UFO and disappeared in front of more than 115 witnesses that have surfaced up to this moment. This event happened in the night of Dec. 28, 1988, at 7:45 P.M.

According to most witnesses, there seemed to be three jetfighters involved with the incident, two of them disappeared in mid air as they intercepted and closed in on the huge triangular UFO, and the third one fled the area flying to the north, being chased by several big red balls of light that came out from the UFO. After this, the UFO split into two separate triangular objects in a silent flash of light, after which one of the objects or sections flew off very fast to the north and the other one flew to the east, disappearing. As readers must realize, this incident has profound implications to all of us, and is one of the most important UFO incidents reported in the recent years in Puerto Rico and abroad.

The United States Government =93leases=94 the area

On August 8, 1989, after the jets/UFO incident, after rumors in that sense, the Laguna Cartagena was =93leased=94 by an =93agreement=94 to the U.S. Wildlife and Fishing Service, in order to =93preserve=94 animal species there in danger of extinction. The area is now under U.S. control by this agreement for 50 years, and possibly for other 50 years after this. Later on, the federal authorities took control of another UFO hot spot in the Sierra Bermeja, a field next to the Pitahaya-Olivares sector, in the coast-line, next to the mangroves channels between La Parguera and the Cabo Rojo lighthouse or beacon, another area in which many UFOs are seen regularly going into the water or flying out from it, an area that has been closely watched upon by U.S. Navy vessels and planes, and by those days was restricted and placed under the control of numerous U.S. military troops for 2 months, with no explanations to anyone [the lighthouse area].

The =91official=92 reason for controlling the field in the Pitahaya-Olivares area? The authorities wanted to locate an aerostat, a potent radar blimp, in that area in order to detect and prevent drug smuggling by air and by sea. Eventually, the radar was deployed and anchored there and the place was declared off limits to everyone. Coincidentally, the same type of aerostat or radar blimp has been located at other UFO hot spots in the U.S.A. and other places. One of these hot places is the Gulf Breeze Pensacola region, where for some years now there has been a lot of UFO incidence. Another site is Marfa, Texas. But, is this only by =91coincidence=92? A strange pattern seems to emerge from all this =91coincidences=92.

Since then, on many occasions many witnesses, policemen, soldiers and neighbors to the area, have seen UFOs, both clearly defined metallic looking discs and luminous objects, fly next to the blimp and hover next to it emitting strange light flashes in a pattern similar to one the blimp emits. To some, this seems as if both airborne objects are communicating thru the light flashes.

Sometimes the UFOs are chased away by U.S. military aircraft, but as a matter of fact, whenever this happens [the ufos coming down and hovering next to the radar blimp] the blimp malfunctions and has to be repaired. According to inside sources all the computer systems in the installation go blank, they erase, and have to be re-programmed. To many, the real reason for this installation there is a different one: the UFO situation in the area. Example of this is the following sighting by Mr. Luis Collado and some other residents of Olivares sector.

A strange craft next to the aerostat compound

As we were talking to Mr. Miguel Figueroa, a resident of Lajas, about an encounter he had had with several 'Gray' type aliens in road 101, next to the Laguna Cartagena, another man, Mr. Luis Collado, approached us to tell us about something he had seen in the night of August 17, 1991, when he saw a strange craft next to the aerostat facilities.

After being introduced to us by Mr. Benito Collado, he guided us to the exact spot where he saw the craft, just in front of the dumping site and next to the aerostat installation, explaining that: =93I was driving on this road in Olivares sector at about 2:00 A.M. after leaving the home of some friends in Las Palmas sector to go home...when suddenly I got here and saw a very weird thing there in front in the mountain, and stopped my car and got off it to have a better look. What I saw was something very strange that was suspended in mid air over that mountain that divides this sector from La Parguera sector, just in the farm Freddie Guind=EDn administers.

Look, it was something like one of those so called flying saucers, but it had something on top... You know the conical upper part of the witches hats? It was something like that, conical on top and a circular base around it. It was big and it had many lights around it. It was metallic, like silvery. But the strangest thing was there was something coming out from underneath it, like a swirling mist that went directly down to the mountain, to the ground, in a column, but swirling, in a spiraling column.

That column was semiluminous. It was a column of light and clouds or mist coming down from that object...I believe that thing was an OVNI [UFO].=94

Luis continued: =93I said to myself...What a strange thing! I had never seen something like that. And you could hear a humming sound coming from that thing. It just stood there, and after looking at it for a while I left. But that thing was really there and I=92m sure I saw it. And the policemen who watch over that place [the aerostat facilities] surely saw it too, because that thing was on top of the mountain at the entrance of the place, so they also had to see it, there=92s no doubt in my mind about it. If I felt the humming sound coming from it here, in the road, they must have heard it louder there, because they were closer to it. I don=92t know, but we have a feeling here that the aerostat has nothing to do with the drugs problem, as the government wants us to believe. We think that it has something to do with the UFOs that are being observed here, maybe to keep an eye on them.=94

He made it clear that at first he was reluctant to talk on what he saw, fearing no one would believe him, but after hearing us talking to Mr.Figueroa, he realized the importance of what he saw pertaining to the UFO situation in the area and changed his mind, for wich we thanked him deeply.

Collado=92s information was very interesting, but there was nothing to back it up, fortunately, while visiting that same day Mr. Roosevelt Acosta=92s residence, his sister Dol=EDn [already mentioned as=91the woman who was X rayed by a UFO] and her daughters and a son in law all stated that on the early hours of august 17, 1990, they all saw while going to Roosevelt=92s home a strange craft suspended in the air over a mountain next to the aerostat facilities. According to them it was about 2:00 - 2:30 A.M. when they saw it, and it was something =93...like a flying saucer with a pointed thing on top and with many lights. It came flying from the west and then it suspended itself over that mountain [the same one Collado identified to us] and something like smoke came down from it in a swirling motion to the ground.=94

The sighting was confirmed! Four totally independent witnesses saw the same object reported by Luis Collado at the same hour and in the same place. Dol=EDn Acosta and her family stated they observed the UFO for about an hour, after which they went to sleep, not knowing what happened to it after that.

Also, among others, Mrs. Jocelyn Irizarry and her family, residents in road 116 of Lajas, saw a huge flying saucer shaped craft in the air next to the blimp back in November 1991. Because of all these situations most residents in the southwest believe the radar blimp=92s facilities were placed there to keep an eye on the UFO activity and try to detect the UFO's trajectories and pinpoint the exact areas they enter or exit constantly from both at sea and on land.

Has there been reported direct alien presence in the area? Yes, there has been a lot, and the following are just some examples.

As already mentioned, Mr. Manuel Figueroa, a resident of Palmarejo sector, in Lajas, had a close encounter with several "Gray" type alien beings in the early hours of August 31, 1990, as he was driving down road 101, close to Laguna Cartagena. The creatures had been observed by several other people in the area, who told him about them and the direction they had taken walking down road 101. Surprising to him, he found the five aliens walking in the road in front of him. They were grey, thin, frail looking, with large heads, pointed ears, with a slit-like mouth with no lips, small nostrils for a nose, and large almond shaped luminous eyes, which issued out a bright white light. They had long arms with hands with only three fingers, and feet with only three toes.

As Figueroa drove closer to them they turned around and looked at him with their bright eyes, which he understood as a warning for him to stay away from them. He stopped and then kept following them from a short distance, afraid, but also fascinated by the beings. At a moment, they all turned to the left and jumped over a small bridge in the road into a small creek that connected to Laguna Cartagena, disappearing there. Still nervous and shocked by the encounter, Figueroa left and went home. But in the morning something strange happened. Figueroa received a phone call at his home and a man, speaking in Spanish with an American-English accent, told him not to talk or say anything to anyone about what he had seen and where the little men had gone into [the Laguna Cartagena, site of most of the UFO incidents in the area], that if he did say "something bad could happen to him". That was it! He was already scared by what he had seen, and then that... What worried him the most was how the mysterious man had obtained so quickly his telephone number, because it was a private line, and even more, it was listed under another person=92s name, not his. Even so, the man who called wanted to talk directly to him, Mr. Miguel Figueroa. How could he know...? Figueroa still can=92t explain it.

At this moment Miguel Figueroa is convinced that what he saw at the early hours of August 31, 1990 was related to the many UFO incidents reported in the sector. At first I wouldn=92t talk about it, but I have seen UFOs, flying saucers in this area before. And I tell you, what is happening here is real, and these beings must have a base or something underground in this area. I don=92t think they are aggressive. I was alone, and that light they emitted indicated that they are powerful, even so, they didn=92t harm me. They could have, but they didn=92t. It was as if they were telling me =93don=92t get any closer=92, but they didn=92t want to hurt me. I only wish this hadn=92t occurred...because I can=92t deal with this. I would like to forget it all.=94

Coincidentally, both Timothy Good and I, together with other investigators, were in that very same area in the afternoon of August 31, 1990, but the report on the case did not come to our knowledge until days later.

=93Two weird creatures checking a plant...=94

On the night of August 13, 1991, Mrs. Marisol Camacho, a young woman who lives at the rear of the Maguayo community, just next to the Laguna Cartagena, received an unexpected visit at her home by two strange and =91weird=92 creatures, as she described them.

=93I was sleeping - she said-, it was about 2:00 a.m. in the morning, and I heard strange noises outside, next to my balcony. I got up and came to the balcony=92s window [with metallic venetian blinds]. There was someone there mumbling something, a strange jargon. I opened the window very slowly and...Oh, God! There were two of the weirdest creatures you can imagine standing there in the balcony! They were checking one of the plants I have, the one we call Queso Suizo [=91Swiss cheese=92 - the scientific name of this plant is =91Monstera deliciosa=92, an ornamental tropical plant with leaves with many holes, therefore such a name]. They were taking leaves from the plant and mumbling. They looked really interested in it. I was surprised, and...I don't know why, but I couldn't move, I was frozen there...looking at them. They were almost four ft. tall, and had big heads. The heads were egg shaped, big at the top and with a narrow chin. They were skinny and seemed to be gray in color, all gray, and they were naked. They had big black elongated eyes that tapered to the sides of their heads. No pupils and no white in them. Their faces were flat, with a narrow slit for a mouth, no lips, and two small holes for a nose. I never felt any fear, I was fascinated by what I was seeing. They seemed like children to me! =93

Asked about their hands, she explained that: =93...they had arms longer than ours, and long skinny hands with four long fingers. They didn't seem to notice me at the window. They took leaves from the plant and left talking between them in that fast mumbling jargon. They left walking slowly toward the Laguna Cartagena, entered the brush there at the end of the street and disappeared. I just couldn't believe it! What the people around here was saying was true! There are aliens here! I saw them, and I'm sure of what I saw. After they left I could move again. I went to bed and later explained what I had seen to my husband. =94

But the aliens came back two weeks later: =93It was again late at night -she said-, I heard the same sounds, got up and went to the same window, it was partially closed... and there they were again! The same ones or others identical to the first ones...but

I felt they were the same ones. They were checking the same plant again and talking in that mumbled jargon... But this time I was able to move and I tried to tell them something, I began to open the blinds, but when they heard the window opening they looked at me very fast and then ran very fast down the street toward the Laguna Cartagena again, disappearing there.

=93I don't know what they want, but they don't seem to be dangerous. They didn't harm me. And they didn't harm my dogs, who slept all the time while they were here in the balcony... One thing is sure, they are already here, living with us. We should prepare to face that fact... and I'm convinced that they are there in the Laguna Cartagena. That's their territory there. =94

A week after this second visit, many of her neighbors were witness to a brilliantly colored disc that hovered for about 3 minutes some 50 ft. above her home one night at 9:30 p.m.

An alien in the irrigation canal

The witness to this other encounter is Mr. Ulises Perez, a young man who lives in Lajas. One afternoon, at 11:30 a.m., he was riding his motorcycle on an accidented dirt road in a desolate cattle ranch in Cuesta Blanca sector, located between La Parguera and the Laguna Cartagena, when: =93... the byke fell in a waterfilled hole and it sputtered and turned off. I began checking it, because it wouldn't start, and after fixing what I believed to be the cause of the problem, when I was trying to start it again, I looked there, to that irrigation canal...and I saw that thing there!

=93What I saw was like... something that was seated or crouched over a tree's log there at the edge of the canal. That thing's skin looked as if raw. You know, as when you cut off a slice of your skin, that the cut looks whitish with pink-reddish dots in it? That's the way it's skin looked. It was a pale whitish skin, colorless, like those pale salamander lizards?, just like that. We looked at each other for a moment, without moving. I was scared with that thing there. I'm not ashamed to admit it, and I tried to start the byke to get away. As I moved, that thing jumped and disappeared under the water in the canal. I saw it's feet as they disappeared under the water lilies there. The byke started and I fled. I got home, and nervously explained what I had seen. My friends and relatives wouldn't believe me, but they went to the place with me to see. Seeing the trail of crushed water lilies there they believed me, and they were scared. =94

According to Ulises the creature was identical to the ones already described in the previous encounters. =93What impressed me the most was its big head and those huge black eyes it had=94, he stated. As in the other cases, there=92s a connection to the Laguna Cartagena, because the irrigation canal in which Ulises saw the creature connects eventually to the laguna.

All these cases seem to imply that these type of beings have possibly established their habitat deep under the Laguna Cartagena and other bodies of water in the region. It has been stated before by other investigators that this type of creature species may be amphibian in nature, due to the webbing described regularly between their fingers by many witnesses.

An old man=92s encounter with several =93Grays=94

Another such encounter case in the Sierra Bermeja or next to the laguna is that of Mr. Eleuterio Acosta, a very serious 80 years old man who lives in the Olivares sector, just in front of the radar blimp facilities, who confronted five of these small gray creatures at his home. Eleuterio, grabbing a heavy stick threatened to strike at them with it while yelling at them to get out from his house. At that moment he became aware of another taller but similar type of being that said something in a fast jargon to the others. Then the small ones ran towards the venetian blinds window outside of which was standing the taller one, and incredibly changed their shape, going out through the window thru the blinds! Then all six of the creatures fled, running very fast up into the Sierra Bermeja mountains, at the back of his home.

An abduction prevented?

There is also Mrs. Albita Acosta=92s encounter case. Albita, also a resident in the Olivares sector, and who is also a witness to many of the UFOs seen next to the radar blimp, fought off and prevented an apparent intended abduction on her by this type of creatures in May, 1991.

Aliens in the aerostat's anchoring platform

Also, there is the encounter some policemen who guard the place had with several of these creatures in the radar blimp [aerostat] facilities, in the blimp=92s anchoring section, after it was built. It happened one night of April, 1990. One of the policemen noticed from a distance that there seemed to be some children playing in the concrete platform for the anchoring of the blimp. He approached the site in his patrol car and turned on his car's spotlight, only to see that instead of children the ones there were really several strange creatures described by him as 3 to 4 ft. tall, big headed and grayish in color. The small beings fled running in different directions and the policeman called by radio asking for back up, repeating the 1050 code. When help arrived the creatures had disappeared. An extensive search was made, but to no avail. We were able to interview confidentially one of the policemen involved with the incident, who verified the details reported here.

Some days later, another group of policemen there saw a top-like flying saucer with a golden aura around it that almost landed in the aerostat's premises. The next day another of the mysterious circles appeared in the ground right where the UFO was sighted. The circle was "erased" from the ground when orders were given to use a bulldozer and remove the ground.

But there are more important accounts that seem to give us an answer on the reason for what=92s going on in this area. One of such is the following one.

=93They took me to their base...=94

Mr. Carlos Manuel Mercado, also already mentioned, and one of the many witnesses who saw the two U.S. jetfighters abduction in mid air over the Laguna Cartagena by a huge triangular UFO in Dec., 1988, and whom we have come to know very well and to respect as a serious and honest man, revealed during our interview to him that something shocking had happened to him one night six months before the jets incident he witnessed. This other experience happened in June 1988:

=93I was trying to get some sleep that night, but it was so hot that I just couldn't do it. My family was asleep. I got up and lied down on the sofa in the family room, trying to get some fresh there, but to no avail. I just couldn't sleep. As I was there, I suddenly saw a flash of light outside and heard a buzzing sound. Some moments later someone knocked three times on the venetian blinds windows in front of me. The upper half of the windows were open, but the lower half were closed. I got up and opened the window... and there they were! Three small men looking at me...but they weren't human. I was surprised, but a voice told me in my mind 'Do not to be scared, everything is fine. Nothing is going to happen to you. Do not be scared. We want to show you something.' At first I was surprised, but when I heard the voice I felt calm, very calm. They asked me to come out, but not with their mouths, they never opened their mouths, it was in my mind. I opened the door... I felt I had to do it, somehow I knew that they wouldn't harm me.=94

According to Manuel, the little men were almost four ft. tall in size, with big pear shaped heads, pale gray skin and big black slanted eyes with no pupils. The beings had no ears and a small slit for a mouth [see drawings by Mercado]. They only had two small nostrils for a nose. Another thing; these beings had like small bumps in the skin of their faces... =93Like acne? Something like that,=94 he said.

According to him the beings were humanoid in shape, but their arms were a little longer than in humans. All three of them were dressed in tightfitting sandy colored one piece outfits, =93 like mechanics=94, he said, =93and only their hands and heads were outside the suits. Two of them took me by my hands and down the road to the front of my home [in front of the Sierra Bermeja] I... I couldn't believe it... There was a flying saucer there! It was standing on three metallic legs that came down from it=92s underside. It was round, with a dome on top of it with windows, and many colored lights all around it by the rim. You know the shape of the water hydrants? That=92s the shape that thing had [see drawing by Mercado]! There was an opening on it=92s underside, a hatch, from which a long stair came down to the ground. They asked me to climb up the stair and we boarded the craft...because that was a craft... There were more of those little men there, and the place was full of machines with many colored lights and panels. That was in the many windows area, like a cockpit in the dome. The little men introduced me to a taller being that was about my size [5=929"].

I felt more comfortable with this one because, even being like the others, because he was taller and looked a little more humanlike, less ordinary. This one was dressed with a white robe and they said that he was their captain-medic.

=93This taller being explained they meant not harm to me, that they only wanted to show and tell me something so I could later relate it to other people. He said something to the others in the panels and I felt the legs coming up and a clamping sound, the hatch closed and the craft began moving. I was impressed, but not afraid. They kept me calm somehow. The craft shot up, and I believed we would go far away, but instead of that the craft veered to the left and fell toward the Sierra Bermeja. I was afraid we=92d crash, but a hole appeared in a depression to the side of =91El Cay=FA1=92 mountain and the craft went all the way down it thru a tunnel and came out down a big place that seemed to be underground, like a very big and long cavern! There were many barracks-like structures, buildings inside that place, and hundreds, many of the little aliens there working as in production lines assembling electronics or mechanical parts, machinery...

=93There were many crafts down there, but not like airplanes or helicopters, no, no ... All the crafts there were saucer shaped or like triangles or hexagonals...

=93The tall being explained: =93As you can see, we have a base here for the maintenance of our craft=92s systems, we have been here for a long time and we don't intend to leave. We want the earth people to know that we mean no harm, that we don't mean to conquer you either. We want to reach out to you and establish a direct relationship with you that will be beneficial to both parties. Earth people can rest assured that we don't mean any harm in any way.=94

=93I said: 'why me, I'm a simple man, nobody would believe me', and he said =93It doesn't matter. People will hear you, as well as many others we are contacting and bringing here to see the same. When people with knowledge hear what you simple people, as you call yourself, are saying, they'll know you are telling the truth.=94 =93After that they brought me back home, and before leaving they told me that they'd come back someday. At first I was afraid to talk about this. I was afraid no one would believe me, even you... I only talked to my family about it. But when this thing of the jets happened, I worried. Maybe this has to do with the beings down there, and I know, I felt, that they are good, harmless. I feel they mean us no harm, and knowing all this might be important I decided to talk and let you know what had happened.=94 Mercado finally said.

We know another man, a high ranking military officer in the west area of Puerto Rico, who was supposedly abducted and taken to this same underground ufo base by this same type of aliens. Therefore, we can't reveal his name here, to prevent any harassment to him, but everything he says complies with the details given to Mr. Carlos Manuel Mercado, specially the place where the mountain slope opens down to the purported alien base, El Cay=FAI mountain.

There's also a woman who resides in Lajas and works with the Lajas municipal government who was abducted by these same type of =93gray=94 aliens.

According to her she was examined by them and taken to an underground base under the Sierra Bermeja, pinpointing the same location for the =91entrance=92 in =91El Cay=FAI=92 mountain. All these are independent witnesses who do not know each other, but have given the same type of details pertaining to the base and to the =91entrance=92.

Laguna Cartagena... Is there really an alien base there?

As we can see, there's enough circumstantial evidence to suggest that something strange and very important pertaining to the UFOs is going on in the southwest of Puerto Rico, specially in the Lajas-Cabo Rojo area. As more incidents happen, more the people there believe there's a ufo base in the area. Recently, a source gave us and other puertorican investigators a sketch on what he purports is a joint U.S. / Alien ufo base under the Sierra Bermeja - Laguna Cartagena area he had access to.

Another source, a man we consider very serious and responsible, told us how he accidentally gained access, together with a fisherman friend from La Parguera whose last name was Vega, to this supposed facility through an apparently concealed ventilation shaft located near the premises. Our witness, whose name we can't reveal for security reasons that will be logical to the readers after reading a little further in this article, explained that there really are aliens down there and that they had also seen U.S. military soldiers down there. Scared, they fled the place worried about having seen something maybe they shouldn't have.

Our source returned to the site some days later and found the alleged opening sealed with a heavy concrete slab. Some days later his friend, the fisherman, was found dead hanging from a small nail imbedded in the wall of his home in La Parguera. According to the authorities he hung himself from the nail with one of his shoe laces. The strange thing was that his hands were free and the nail from which he supposedly hung himself was very low over his head. Also, no one could explain how such a small nail could hold his weight. We investigated this and the dead man's brother, fisherman Victor =93Lindo=94 Vega, who works in La Parguera and who we knew already as a witness to other ufo incidents there, explained that no one in the family could understand his brother's death: =93 My brother didn't drink any alcohol until after having seen whatever he saw down there in the mangroves and the aerostat, nor used any drugs, he wasn't depressed and didn't have any emotional or sentimental problems, and he was in good health. So, why do this? I don't know, but something isn't clear in all this=94, =91Lindo=92 said.

In the last months of the year 1992 a strong disinformation program was set forth by Mr. An=EDbal Roman, the director of the Mayaguez area Civil Defense Agency office and police Lieutenant Rodr=EDguez, from the Lajas police headquarters, using all the puertorican TV, radio and press media in order to show as lies and fabrications the reports by the witnesses and in-vestigators about the UFOs and aliens seen in the area and ridicule the situation, this together with officers from the U.S. Wildlife and Fishing Service, such as Mr. Fred Schaffner.

As this was being done by Rom=Eln, his supervisor, Colonel Jos=E9 A. M. Nolla, Director of the Puerto Rico Civil Defense State Agency, sent an internal directive order to all the regional offices in P.R. stating the guidelines for a secret investigation on the ufo situation in the island by the Civil Defense Agency and stating in the memo that the situation pertaining to the UFOs and USOs sightings in Puerto Rico was real and important. Copy of that directive was given to us by a source within the Civil Defense Agency. The source explained the findings, even after stating they were the responsibility of the agency, were really for analysis by the U.S. Defense Department. and the U.S. Air Force. In that way, this military agencies would not be seen as officially involved with the UFO investigation.

Also, recently, Colonel Nolla, who used to be the liaison officer of the puerto rican U.S. Army Reserve and National Guard with the Defense Intelligence Agency [DIA], similar to the CIA in U.S. military, stated under oath in a hearing at the Sena-te of P.R. that the military and the Civil Defense Agency had been investigating the many UFO sightings and cattle mutilations that had been happening in Puerto Rico since year 1975.

The disinformation program is exposed

By those same days, Mr. Freddie Cruz, Director of the Civil Defense Agency of Lajas, exposed this disinformation program by RomAn and RodrIgueZ in an interview we made to him on an important UFO incident he and several other people witnessed on the afternoon of tuesday, April 28, 1992, when they all saw a jetfighter chasing a flying saucer in the area.

=93It happened at 5:00 P.M., - he said-, ...I was repairing my truck here and we heard a jet flying low. One of the kids said =93Hey!, look at that thing! We all looked up and saw a thing like a flying saucer being chased by a military jet (we showed all the witnesses several military jet aircraft photographs, and according to all of them it was an f-14 Tomcat.) The saucer was metallic, silvery, very polished, and it was as if playing with the jet.

=93It was a little bigger than the jet, not much [it must have been about 70 ft. in diameter]. It would stop in the air suddenly and as the jet was about to catch on with it, it would move ahead very fast, stopping farther away. The saucer was just that, a flying saucer, like two flattened dishes joined by the rims, and it had a dome on top. At the last moment, as the jet was again about to reach it, the saucer split in half! The upper part became apart from the lower part and then each part or section flew away, one to the southwest and the other to the east. The jet remained there circling the area as if not knowing what to do, and then flew away to the east.=94

Cruz stated: =93This convinced me I should say what I knew on the situation. It=92s unfair to continue the disinformation by Roman and the others. Currently, there=92s a secret investigation being made by the Civil Defense Agency of Puerto Rico. And I know everything is true, because I=92ve seen the ufos myself.=94

At this point Cruz revealed to us other important events he had witnessed, together with several other peolple. =93Last November [1991], the police received a tip about an expected arrival of illegal aliens in boats coming from the Dominican Republic in =91El Papayo=92 beach sector, located between La Parguera, Lajas, and Gu=Elnica, a little more to the east. While there, at 9:00 p.m., we saw a big bright star in the sky. Suddenly the star began coming down very fast, and it was a huge thing! ...A UFO, a flying saucer the size of a stadium! It was very bright, with colored lights all around it.

=93It remained there motionless at about 25 ft. from the sea surface. It was big, real big, and remained there for about half an hour. Then, it flew upwards very fast and dissappeared in the sky. That really shook us up. I=92ll be honest, when that thing came down I crawled down under my truck and remained there until it left.

=93Also, Martin, we have surveilled the Laguna Cartagena and have seen brightly colored ovoid and round objects as they overfly the place doing closed angle turns... and sometimes they enter it and dissappear underwater! The UFOs are there, they really are! So, that=92s why I can=92t remain silent while Roman and the others ridicule and make fun of the people who have seen this things here! It=92s not fair. Our people say what they=92ve seen because they know that whatever is going on here is important. I know most of these people and they are serious, honest and decent people, and they deserve some respect.=94

Finally, Mr. Cruz stated that: =93There are UFOs in the Laguna Cartagena, and something weird is going on in the aerostat radar facilities! If not, why does NASA white trucks have to enter the aerostat premises at about 2:00 a.m. in the morning, escorted by military omni [hummers] jeep vehicles, at a time when no one sees them? Why do this in such a concealed way? What does NASA has to do with the anti-drug war? Nothing that we know of. To me there=92s an alien base around here and the authorities know about it or something, and they don=92t want anyone else to get into the matter.=94

As a matter of fact, a high ranking police officer from the zone, explained confidentially to us that when the policemen who were selected the security at the entrance of the road to the aerostat installation were debriefed, this was done by american federal agents [supposedly from the FBI], and he, as well as the policemen, were all surprised by the many UFO and alien related questions they made to them. They would ask some things pertaining to the policemen=92s experience and personal questions, but all of a sudden they=92d change their line of questioning to such as the following: Have you seen UFOs or flying saucers? Have you been contacted by aliens? Do you believe in UFOs? Has anyone in your family had a UFO experience? From time to time this type of questioning would come out in their interviews and debriefings, while also using a polygraph or lie detector on the policemen during the questioning sessions.

As we said before, all this is circumstantial evidence, but circumstantial evidence that when analyzed together and logically, strongly suggests the possibility of there really being an alien base in the zone. The mentioned facts are but a small percentage of the many UFO / alien related incidents there. For us to report on all the information on the situation would require an entire book, but for the interested reader this report will give a general idea of the importance of what is currently happening in the southwest region of Puerto Rico.

But let's see some other cases from other regions of Puerto Rico.

UFO chase in =93El Yunque=94

This incident happened on July 4, 1989, and several witnesses who live in the Sabana / Yuquiy=FA sector of the town of Luquillo, an area next to the National Caribbean Rain Forest, in the east of the island, were able to see when a UFO described as =93...a bright starlike oval object=94 was chased by two jetfighters that were scrambled from the Roosevelt Roads Naval Station, in Ceiba, next to the area.

According to Mrs. Rosa D=Elvila de Qui=Flones, resident in the Sabana sector [the only witness willing to be identified for the report], that night there was an electrical power blackout in the area and she was talking about it with her neighbors when they all saw at about 8:30 P.M. the ufo flying over the National Caribbean Rain Forest and the El Yunque mountain [famous for the many UFO sightings and incidents that have occurred there]. According to them the UFO was very bright and had an oval shape. =93At first it looked like a very big and brilliant white-blue star, but then it began moving fast and doing several high speed angle turns and that=92s when we all realized it was something strange, something not normal=94, said Mrs. D=Elvila.

She continued explaining that after several passes and turns over the mountains there in the rain forest, the UFO began descending, heading directly in a 45 degree angle toward El Yunque mountain, and then, they all saw two jetfighters approaching the area from the east, heading towards the UFO. All witnesses were sure that the jetfighters had been sent from the Roosevelt Roads Naval Station, and saw them closing in on the luminous object. At that moment the UFO changed course at high speed and lit up more brightly with a white light, disappearing in the sky over the Pitahaya Mountains, to the southeast of the Luquillo Mountain range, still being chased by the jetfighters. All the neighbors were astonished as to what they had seen.

Coincidentally, I was in the El Yunque sector that same day checking on other things reported to me pertaining to UFOs there, and because of that I=92m a witness to the electrical power failure in Rio Grande and Luquillo, but unfortunately, I left the place at 7:30 P.M. and missed the UFO / jet fighters incident, otherwise I would have been able to videotape it with my video camera.

=93Ball of light=94 in Guavate

On Friday, June 22, 1990, Mr. Jos=E9 Antonio Vald=E9s, his wife Matilde and a military officer friend of theirs who was visiting them at their home, were all witnesses to another startling ufo encounter.

That evening, at 6:30 P.M., the two men were making some repairs at Vald=E9s=92s wooden house in the =93Los Pi=Fleros=94 sector, in Guavate,= Cayey, this in the eastern-central part of the island of Puerto Rico [see map], when all of a sudden they saw a big strange strange =93ball of light=94 fly over Vald=E9s=92s house at great speed. The =93ball=94 was described by them as =93a round ball of bright yellow light with a very bright red light in its center.=94 No more details could be observed on the UFO by them. According to the witnesses the =93ball of light=94 was flying horizontally =93on a northeast to southwest trajectory=94, and as soon as it had passed over them, =93four military jets appeared as if trailing or chasing it at great speed.=94

The jets were described as of =93... a strange blueish-gray metallic color, with two booster engines and all of them had their wings positioned backwards and flew very fast=94. This description fits with that of U. S. Navy F-14 Tomcat jetfighters. =93The jets were flying very low over the area and circling in the sky- according to the witnesses - as if searching for something, then they left in the same direction the ball of light took, to the southwest, and disappeared.=94 The apparent size of the ufo was estimated as three times the size of the jets they all saw. So, if the F-14=92s are about some 62 ft. long, then the UFO=92s size must have been at about 180 ft. aproximately.

=93Only five or six minutes had elapsed after the jets flew over the area when we all saw a big jet with a round flattened thing on top fly over the sector and in the same direction the ufo and the jetfighters had previously taken,=94 said Vald=E9s. According to the military officer there, wich we interviewed on the incident, that last big jet was an AWAC radar jet, and he, as well as the other witnesses were sure that the UFO was being chased by both the jetfighters and the AWAC jet, all of them coming surely from the east, from the Roosevelt Roads Naval Station. The officer stated being sure that what he saw was a pursuit and search operation by the jetfighters and the AWAC jet.

=93I come frequently to this area, and this is not the first time I see UFOs here. On many ocassions you can see this objects flying around and suddenly they descend into certain mountain areas and dissappear there. To me these military aircraft, spe-cially the AWAC, was trying to locate the place this objects possibly go into in this area. Maybe they go underground here someplace, and that=92s what they are checking out,=94 said the officer.

The UFO they all observed was totally soundless and very bright. Similar UFOs have been observed in the Guavate region frequently, and I=92ve investigated a number of the sightings reported. We have the officer=92s name and address, but he asked us not to disclose his name or rank because of fear of possible harassment due to his position. For those interested, we have several witnesses of our interview with him on this incident willing to come forward and verify what he said to us, should there be any need to do so.

=93Playful=94 UFO

On June 28, 1990, Mr. Jose Rodr=EDguez, resident in the sector of Barrio Playita, in Yabucoa, east of the island, also near to the Roosevelt Roads Naval Station, saw another surprising chasing of a UFO by U.S. jetfighters. =93The UFO played with the jets, outdodging them at great speed for a couple of minutes, and then flew off very fast and dissapeared to the southwest, still being followed by the jets from a distance=94, he said during an interview.

Encounter next to a Navy Communications Base in Juana Diaz

The following account was given to us by a confidential source, a military officer stationed at the U.S. Army Reserve and Communications Base of Fort Allen, in Juana D=EDaz, Puerto Rico, in the south. It had to do with yet another UFO/jetfighters encounter. After agreeing not to disclose his name or rank he explained what happened in that base in the night of July 18, 1990, at 12:10 A.M.

According to the officer, that night the soldiers and officers at the base were all in their barracks, except for those involved with their duties, when suddenly the base perimeter became lit with a powerful white light. Our source explained that at that very moment a high ranking officer gave the order through the base intercome system for =93...everyone to stay indoors and not to come out of the barracks or any other base facilities under any circumstances.=94

The light was very bright, but when the order was given he was already looking out trough a window. What he saw gave him a shock.

=93In an area to the coast, just over the base and a little to the south there was a brightly lit disclike object. It was circular and metallic looking...as if it was made of aluminum -he stated- and it had what seemed like many windows on its center edge with yellowish-white lights revolving in them. At the underside of the object there was a round turbine like protrusion with many colored lights revolving around it (see drawing by officer), and from underneath the object a very bright beam of white-pinkish light was issuing, going downwards as if searching for something. That same light was the one illuminating the base perimeter.=94

He stood there for a moment, not believing his own eyes, he explained, when all of a sudden =93...I heard the loud sound of jet engines and two jets flew at great speed over the base. To me [a man with military aircraft knowledge] the jets were of the F-18 type, and were scrambled from somewhere to check on the ufo next to the base. As soon as the jets appeared and went into the UFO=92s direction, the object departed at great speed to the west with the sound of rushing wind, being followed by the jets. Those jets must have been scrambled from the Roosevelt Roads Naval Station, because for all I know, there are no F-18s in the Muniz National Guard Air base in Isla Verde. By the way, those F-18s must be from a carrier participating in the UNITAS military exercises being done in Roosevelt Roads and Vieques island, because regularly, there are no F-18s in Puerto Rico.=93

What he said next surprised me: =93Something big is happening here with all this ufo activity. Recently, all the military personnel in Fort Allen was shown several videos in wich we were informed on the reality of UFOs. They showed an old black and white movie about a UFO crash that supposedly happened in New Mexico many years ago, and we all saw the craft, that was semi-buried in the ground in a 45 degrees angle, and there were several bodies of the UFO=92s crew. According to what they showed to us these beings were about 5 ft. tall, thin, very pale and had big bald heads. They had big round eyes and a small nose, but I don=92t recall any mouths nor ears.

"They also showed us another video of UFOs allegedly filmed by them around the island. They wanted us to know that UFOs are real, but they wouldn=92t elaborate when asked about more details.

You know; to me what they wanted [the officers briefing them on the ufos] was for us to know this was real and that this beings are not perfect, that they are fallible, that their crafts do crash and they also die, that they are not invulnerable. Apparently they wanted to condition us to the idea that they exist and to accept the possibility of someday having to intervene with them. The officers wouldn't say that these were alien crafts or anything like that, just that they were real and that the government is keeping a close eye on them. Finally; they told us that they are expecting something big, they wouldn't explain what, but it had to do with this, and that if that happened we would have to deal with the situation and with the people, the public", said the officer.

This confidential report was later confirmed by two other independent military sources that approached us in the UFO Photo Exhibit we shared with Mr. John Timmerman, from CUFOS, in Plaza Las Americas Shopping Mall, in San Juan, Puerto Rico, in the week of August 13 -18,1990. They stated that special military groups in the island have been receiving official briefings on the UFO situation since 1988, the year in which the jetfighters were abducted by the huge triangular shaped ufo in Cabo Rojo and San German.

UFO chased by helicopters in Caguas

At 5:30 P.M. of December 19, 1990, Mr. Mario Orlando Rodriguez, resident in the Bairoa Park urban development, in Caguas, to the center-east of Puerto Rico, saw something that he never forget. According to his report, on that afternoon he was working at home in his studio [he is a free lance graphic commercial artist] when he heard the sound of helicopter engines flying very low over the his house. Curious, he went outside to see what was going on, and to his surprise and amazement he witnessed something he never expected to see:

When I came out I saw military dark green helicopters with no markings, numbers or I.D.s flying very low over the houses. They seemed like the ordinary choppers used by the P.R. National Air Guard. One of them had an opening on its side and there was a man clinging out tied up or strapped with some type of belt. The man was shouting something that I couldn't hear because of the helicopters engines, and he was pointing in a specific direction. When I looked in that direction there was a weird thing there... It was something like a big ball, like a big pearl with a yellowish aura surrounding it, and in the center, in the interior, there was like a reddish light [see drawing by Rodriguez]. It was a UFO, there's no doubt in my mind about it. The UFO was flying in a southeast to northwest trajectory and the helicopters were chasing it.

We asked Rodriguez if he could say anything on the UFO's dimensions and he replied that: That thing was as big as a jumbo 747 airliner compared to the helicopters. And the strangest thing was that it was flying totally noiselessly. No noise at all.

Zahdra Milagros Larregoity, a 13 year old girl, another witness to the incident, explained that I was coming to Mario's house to ask for some ice, and suddenly I saw this big ball of yellow light flying overhead noiselessly and it flew over the mountain and disappeared, then I saw that there were some helicopters chasing it in the same direction. It was a very beautiful light. Something nice to see.

The mountain over which this happened is north to the Bairoa Park and Mirador Bairoa urban developments area, and in previous occasions other ufos have been sighted over that same mountain. On one occasion I myself was witness to one such sighting in November, 1981.

The helicopters involved must have been either from the P.R. National Air Guard or from Roosevelt Roads, but neither of them would acknowledge such an incident or their participation in the chase. An interesting detail is that the object seen by Rodriguez is similar to the one seen by Jose Antonio Valdes, his wife Matilde and the military officer in Guavate, Cayey, some months before.

=93Electrical UFO=94 in Carra=EDzo

For readers to have a further idea on the importance of the type of incidents happening in Puerto Rico, we'll elaborate here on a shocking incident that happened in March,1991, in the town of Trujillo Alto.

It was the night of sunday March 17, 1991. Everything was quiet and normal in the Carra=EDzo sector of the town of Trujillo Alto. But just after midnight there was a sudden explosion of lights, colors and a strange strong sound.

For many miles around, the night darkness became lit and very bright with a light of incredible proportions. At the distance, it could be seen how the night sky had acquired an intense turquoise-blueish color, and at the same time the electrical power failed in several sectors miles away from the place. At once everything was iluminated in a very bright greenish light that at once changed to orange light. Adding a spectacular touch to this all, a bright white ray of light could be seen projecting itself up into he sky, moving from left to right and vice versa, in a fanlike motion and with uniformity. This was seen by thousands of witnesses for miles around Trujillo Alto. However, those nearer to the area, and those in high places in the sectors of Rio Piedras, Carolina and Trujillo Alto, saw something even more spectacular.

Directly over an electrical power substation located just behind the El Conquistador urban development, in Carra=EDzo sector, was an immense circular UFO, motionless in mid air and radiating an intense amount of light. Many residents of El Conquistador could see how the sub station electrical energy was being attracted by the strange craft above it. Something like an energy curtain was seen around the sub station, and in that =93curtain=94 you could see the electrical energy flowing into the underside of the huge object. It just took some moments for people to congregate in the surroundings of the electrical substation, while many others called to the police or radio stations to report what was happening or asking for information on the phenomenon they were seeing.

One of those present there, Mr. Josue Marrero, described everything as something out from a Steven Spielberg film: =93That was huge. And the light was as intense as sunlight. It was as if night had suddenly become day. And the electrical energy was going up in a wall of sparks and electrical discharges going upwards. I=92ve never before seen anything like that! I even had to take my eyes away from it, the light was too bright and hurt them.=94

Mr. Jos=E9 Miranda, another witness that lives in Diego Vel=Elzquez Avenue, in El Conquistador, stated that: =93What I saw when I looked through the back window after the bright light engulfed it all, was something of wich I could only see about a fourth of its size and shape. It was motionless there in the sky and to me it was something round, some strange type of craft with a shiny nickel like metallic round edge and at the underside, that is the side I could see most of, following that edge was a thin line of fosforescent green light and next to that one more to the center there was another one of blue-violet fosforescent light and at its center that very powerful bright white light, like soldering light [see drawing by witness]. I saw that and electrical rays, discharges going up, in colors, something like that. All this area was as if in daylight, and the light changed from green to blue to orange...like that. I saw it up there for about 30 seconds...and when the electrical power failed completely that thing shot away to the north at great speed. I ran to the front window to see and it was already gone.

=93My wife, who had seen part of what happened, was screaming in her bed due to the impression it made on her, because we had never seen a craft as big as that one so close and hanging there over our houses. That thing easily would cover most of these area because it was so big...It was enormous, huge. It was nothing like an airplane or anything like that. To me what I saw was an alien craft, something not normal...something not from this planet.=94

His neighbor, Mr. Rafael Ben=EDtez, a professional psychologist we know personally, added on what he saw: =93When I looked out the rear window, because everything was as if in daylight and the electrical power was gone, I saw something with three very big bright light sources in it=92s center under it. I also saw like a wall of electrical rays going upwards, like thousands of minute electrical capillaries, thin electrical discharges going up, and you could hear a chhh, chhh, chhh sound, something like when you hear the static electricity, something like that. The wall of electricity was wider on it=92s base and as it went up to that thing in the air it became thinner. Around that thing there was something like a cloud surrounding it.

=93That thing I saw was not anything I know from earthly technology. The lights were so intense...like spotlights shining downwards, but really intense, blinding. To me what I saw was an alien craft that visited us, absorbed the station=92s electrical energy, they charged whatever they wanted to recharge in their ship, maybe they had energy problems, and they left.=94

Danny Rodr=EDguez, a young man who lives next to the substation, also saw the incredible light effects there when the systems blew up, but unfortunately he did not look up above his house, not seeing the objects many others saw there. But he remembers clearly that after the incident ended, he could see for several minutes a strange green fosforescent beam of light that was coming down from the sky in a 45 degrees angle towards the substation. The light beam was coming from the northwest. =93It was like a powerful flashlight beam of light coming from the sky, and it stood there for some minutes. Something unnatural happened here.=94 he said.

Mr. Genaro Bigas, also a neighbor who resides in the Diego Vel=Elzquez Avenue, explained that when he went to his balcony to see what was happening, he saw, over his ceiling something extending over it =93...something like a huge semicircle of about 180 degrees. It was standing there in the air over our houses. At the moment I saw it it was rather dark at the underside and it was flashing bright orange lights from it=92s sides all around it. That was the source of the light that was illuminating everything here. That was something solid upthere, because you could see on it=92s rim some orange lights, and then above it you could see the clouds and the sky, but from the rim inwards you could see a solid dark surface. Then, after that some very bright white lights appeared there at it=92s underside in the center of it [see drawing by witness].

=93What I saw is compatible with what is called traditionally a flying saucer. It was huge, real big, as big as most of this urban residential area, but it was up there, motionless. How could that be, that thing up there just standing there in the air? It must have been very heavy... It was just incredible, but we all saw it. Another thing is that whilr that thing was up there, you could feel like a heat sensation, when it left the area we all felt a refreshing gust of wind at the same moment.

=93I=92m sorry I didn=92t come out completely, to have a better look at it, but maybe it was our protection instinct that prevented me from doing so. This I can tell, if it was something alien it wasn=92t hostile, because it didn=92t harm us, except for the damages to the substation.=94

Mrs. Evelyn Su=Elrez, resident in Colinas de Fairview, also in Trujillo Alto, but some 3 miles away from where the incident occurred, was able to see the object suspended over El Conquistador sector: =93What I saw was huge, enormous. It was round and its outer metal looked like copper, with an orange luminosity all around it. If you saw the movie Starman, the UFO in it was something like a huge globe of red-orange light with many lights, it was something just like that. It also had green, and other colored lights around it. And I=92m sure there were other smaller luminous objects all around it, close to it. Oh!, that was a hell of a craft, that is the best way to describe it to you. I never expected to see something like that, never.=94

Jos=E9 and Sonia Adorno, who live on floor 15 of Los Cedros Condominium, also in Trujillo Alto, about 5 miles away, revealed they saw it all from their apartment. She commented: =93 It was about 12:20 A.M., and suddenly everything became very bright. When we looked out we saw that something very big and round in the air surrounded by some kind of cloud. There was a bright yellowish - bluish light going up from the ground to something like a huge platform that was up in the air over El Conquistador. It was something round and a little flattened at the top with yellow- orange light all around it. I was frightened by what I saw, and my husband said that it was nothing, maybe only a malfunctioning electrical transformer, but it was not that, it was something weird. Then that thing flew away to the north and disappeared at great speed.

=93It was something huge. I would compare it=92s size with that of the Trujillo Alto Plaza Shopping Center=92s parking lot, but of course, that at the distance I was seeing it. That=92s how huge it was. I had never seen anything like that. Many more people must have seen it also.=94 Sonia was right, because her neighbor, Mrs. Rosa Flores, saw it too.

Ramses D=EDaz, a youngster who lives in the Ciudad Universitaria urbanization, in the outskirts of Trujillo Alto, also saw it together with his brother: =93It was luminous - he said - , something huge in a cloud, real big. A big ball of orange light with many smaller lights on it. I called the National Weather Service in Isla Verde, and their forecaster told me there was no electric storm that night and that they couldn=92t explain what the people were describing and was happening. After it happened, I contacted CUFOSS , in Illinois, U.S.A., and talked with Mr. John Timmerman, who sent me some report forms for me to fill and specify the details of what I saw. He said that if what I was describing was accurate, what we saw was a UFO.=94

Mr. Sergio Serrano saw it all from the gas service station he works at in De Diego street, in Sabana Llana, Rio Piedras. =93I saw that thing as it flew over us going to Trujillo Alto. It was coming from the El Yunque sector.=94 The witness described the object similar to the other witnesses.

Many residents of the Covadonga Residential area, in Trujillo Alto, among them Miss Elizabeth Torres, also saw the incredible sight. =93It was beautiful! - she said - It was a big flying saucer. When everything became illuminated we came out to see and we saw that big thing there in the air standing motionless over the mountains, over Carra=EDzo. It was a saucer, very big, with orange light and smaller lights changing colors all around it. Beautiful! All this place was full of people seeing that thing there.=94

Mr. Luis Rodr=EDguez, a security guard that patrols the premises of a company in Carolina, next to the Travenol company, stated he saw the object as it was flying over very fast to the west, towards Trujillo Alto.

He stated that it was huge, like an orange ball of light with many smaller colored lights on it, and that it seemed to come from the west. =93That thing came from El Yunque. It was immense. I still get nervous when I think on what I saw=92=94, he explained.

Mr. Enzo Rizzo, who lives in the Los Olmos Condominium, in Rio Piedras, some 6 miles away from Carra=EDzo, reported having seen the incident too, observing =93...the object and it=92s great luminosity, as well as a series of very potent and bright beams of white light coming out from the top of it and projecting themselves up into space while moving in a fanlike motion.=94 Rizzo, an Italian who had come to Puerto Rico by those same days, said he had never before in his life seen anything like what he saw in the night of Sunday 17, March, 1991. =93It was an incredible sight, something out of this world.=94, he said.

Electrical power system repair brigades

The next day, several brigades from the Puerto Rico Authority of Electrical Energy were repairing the damages at the substation, which amounted to $355,000.00 in losses. Burned out electrical posts, several high voltage power lines and a number of burned out transformers were among the equipments damaged. We interviewed two supervisors and engineers of the Puerto Rico Energy Authority there on what occurred, Mr. Jos=ED Luis Garc=EDa and Mr. Orlando Lozada.

According to Lozada: =93We still can=92t explain what caused all this damages. There was no reason for this to happen as it did. First, there was a very powerful short circuit due to an apparent contact between two high voltage lines that were far enough from each other to prevent that from happening... but it happened somehow.=94

Technically, his answer already implied that there was a mysterious factor involved with whatever happened. But there was another question; if what happened was a short circuit, as it was explained officially, why weren't the systems turned off by the security systems that prevent that from happening, instead of allowing the electrical energy to continue to flow as it did for several minutes, increasing the amperage to an astounding level?

To this, engineer Garcia answered that: "This station has an automatic system to prevent that. As soon as there is an overcharge it is supposed to cut off the energy flow. If it fails to do this, there is an alternate one that cuts off the energy. However, what happened here was of such a magnitude that neither emergency system responded. This caused an extreme energy overcharge, and the energy level went to infinite. That explains the damages here..."

Another supervisor there said that: "What happened just wasn't natural. There is no explanation for how things happened here last night..."

After making contact with a high positioned supervisor of the Electrical Power Authority agency he confided to us that "The controllers or raisers failed to function there, and the type of failure that happened there is not a common one, even more there, where the equipment has a good maintenance. We call that type of discharges 'shootouts', and in this case because of the raisers failing to operate we called it just that, a shootout. But in Puerto Rico there are many 'shootouts' due to unknown and mysterious causes. Something that could explain this is what an employee told me pertaining to similar occurrences in Arecibo [about 40 miles from San Juan]. He explained to that he saw when a flying saucer came down and began absorbing energy from another substation there in Cruce D'Elvila, in Barceloneta, next to the Abbot Pharmaceutical Labs. compound, with effects similar to those seen in Trujillo Alto..."

Everything indicates that a huge UFO was really observed by numerous witnesses in Trujillo Alto and neighboring communities, a ufo that apparently controlled somehow the substation emergency systems to prevent them from cutting off the energy flow. The subsequent great energy overcharge was apparently what this object or craft was looking for, maybe to recharge some internal systems or for something else we can't even imagine at this moment. The important thing here is that up to this moment more than a hundred witnesses of this important sighting have surfaced already, all of them giving accurate similar descriptions of the object seen there, witnesses as far as 10 miles apart from each other who don't even know each other, and the National Weather Service confirmed that there was no electrical storm in the vicinity of Puerto Rico, as explained officially by government and the Electrical Energy Authority officers, trying to cover up the incident. But to the residents of El Conquistador and of the Carraizo community one thing is clear: they are sure that they were visited by an alien craft, possibly from extraterrestrial origin.

Peripheral phenomena

In addition to the sighting several other phenomenons were reported:

- 1- A number of residents in El Conquistador with ceiling fans in their homes reported that the fan's arms were bending upwards while the ufo was above their homes, as if a strong magnetic force attracted them.
- 2- Other witnesses say that their table fans began circling backwards, returning to normal after the ufo departed.
- 3- Some witnesses's telephone answering machines began working on their own and releasing their recorded messages.
- 4- A lady resident in El Conquistador and a relative of witness José Miranda, who has a metal plate in her head due to a brain surgery, states that for as long as the ufo was there she felt a very sharp pain in her head, feeling better when it left the place.

5- On the next day, after having seen the phenomenon and the ufo there, a 17 years old girl levitated, floating in her room, this being seen by her mother.

Another interesting detail was the behavior shown by the animals in the sector. Many roosters and dogs owned by neighbors there which were known for their noisy behavior remained totally silent all that night until the next day late. They were silent and seemed frightened. At least two special radio talk shows were broadcasted for the people to talk on what they had seen and experienced. Most of the accounts were similar to those already presented here.

There are many questions still unanswered about all this important incidents presented in this report, incidents that are only a fraction of the plethora on such cases in the island of Puerto Rico. But without a doubt, this events indicate that the UFO/alien phenomenon is very close to Puerto Rico's everyday reality.

On the other part, every day we receive more ufo/jetfighters chasings reports and abductions/encounters with aliens reports by credible and reliable witnesses from all around the island, just before finishing this report I received a couple more, but due to lack of space here I can't present them with their details. Sometimes, due to the amount of ufo activity here, I wonder if Puerto Rico has been selected as a place where open contact with an alien species is tested to check on the psychological and sociological reactions and effects of such a contact. We must remember here that Puerto Rico is a U.S. colonial territorial possession and it is very possible that someone could have selected the island for such a test because it is under U.S. jurisdiction, and that would provide for a close scrutiny by the government on the developing situation. Many believe in the U.S. and abroad that there is a secret agreement between the U.S. government and a certain species of aliens, and even though there's no specific solid proof on that, there's a lot of circumstantial evidence that tends to imply just that.

In most of the incidents described in this report the relationship between the UFO situation and the U.S. Roosevelt Roads Naval Station, a principal U.S. military installation in the east of Puerto Rico is evident. Because of that, and pertaining to the increasing number of UFO incidents of all types and the many ufo / jetfighters chasings reports, this together with what some witnesses have seen pertaining to UFOs coming out of that naval station, I can't help but wonder and ask myself: Are the U.S. jetfighters seen with these UFOs chasing them... or are they really escorting them?

Evidence of life on Mars would help confirm UFO reports on Earth.

FLORIDA

Last week we ran the account of the three days or sightings over the Gulf Breeze and Pensacola, Florida area. Anne Morrison's, Elise and Ray Pollock, reported on their sightings on January 31st. Now Vicki, Pat & Buddy write: =

Dear fellow UFO friends, We wanted to share with you some very exciting sightings which took place in the last few days, as they are so very significant when you look at the circumstances surrounding them. Life= Magazine was here with their outstanding photographers, along with Whitley Strieber, who is writing the piece, and the UFO showed up for the photo shoot, and= then the next night as well. Then I also had a spectacular daytime UFO sighting that resembles what is being seen in Mexico. It certainly seems that UFO activity is picking up around the country, and it certainly has come back to us in Gulf Breeze! We are now out at night again checking out the skies= with a vengeance. We are including accounts of several people describing the incredible events of the last few days. Hope you enjoy, and let us know= if any interesting events are happening in your area, as well.

Thought I would document my records and impressions for the UFO sightings on Pensacola Beach from 6:29 to 6:37 p.m. on January 30-31, 1998. We saw a bright, cherry-red light very similar in appearance to those frequently sighted around Gulf Breeze in 1991-92 that were known as Bubba. The UFO was near the water's edge in front of the Dunes Hotel. The UFO traveled in straight line toward us and appeared to turn eastward while directly overhead. The final position of UFO was directly overhead of witnesses, when it faded out.. The wind was from the southeast almost opposite the flight= path of the UFO. There was no sound. The UFO was at an estimated altitude of= 5,000 to 8,000 feet. I took 12 photographs and got something on 7 of the shots.= All were time exposures using my 2000mm focal length lens, Ektar 100 film, and tripod-mounted, 35mm Minolta SRT102 camera with pneumatic shutter release. Each photo shows a pulsing red line that moved up and out of the camera's field of view. I actually had a hard time getting the UFO into view and keeping it there, while locking in my camera's tripod; with hindsight, I= wish I had aimed in front of the expected line of travel and just let it pass by. The pulsing intensity of the UFO was probably in the 10 to 20 pulses per second range, something which the human eye can not detect, but the film record clearly shows. Witnesses noticed some changes in intensity during= the 8 minute sighting, but none observed the rapid pulsing recorded on film. = The light was estimated at 1 to 2 feet in diameter and 1 to 2 miles distance= from camera. Five of the witnesses were being photographed by Life Magazine photographers, who had the witnesses pose looking to the sky to the north exactly where the UFO appeared. The witnesses strongly felt: 1. That this UFO appearance was more than just coincidence, 2. That the intelligence behind this UFO knew where we were and what we were doing, and 3. That it wanted the UFO to be noticed and reported in an important medium such as Life Magazine. Thanks to John Thompson, Vicki, Pat & Buddy.

OHIO

In our #4 Files we reported on the Zaneville, Ohio sighting of a large V shaped UFO on January 29, 1998. Kenny Young of the UFO Research Group provides some additional information in answer to questions by Dr. Bruce Cornet, Keith M. King and Tim Edwards. Could the military be intentionally dropping flares and flying in a triangular formation in the area when chasing a reported UFO? It seems too much of a coincidence that following the 13 March 1997, Phoenix event, the AF in Ohio should drop flares on the same night that a large triangular-shaped craft was spotted by witnesses: "Although witnesses described a massive triangular object in Arizona (accompanied by reports of military jets in action in the vicinity), a duplicate incident in Ohio on March 26, 1997 of an identical 'triangular ship' was explained as a flare formation traveling in a triangular arrangement (after being discharged from over-flying military jets also traveling in a triangular grouping).

Ken Young responds: I'm not sure how confident I am to deal with this question, aside from just pointing out the similarities apparent in the description of the object. We have no information to indicate that the recent sighting in Zanesville, Ohio (January 29, 1998) has any relevance or relationship to the Phoenix sightings aside from the descriptive reference given by the witnesses, eluding to a 'triangular definition' of an unknown aerial object. In the case of the Zanesville sighting, this locality is not within a MOA (Military Operating Area) and the time of the event was not within the time frame for flare activities permissible within MOAs. We have no reason to think that flares were involved with the Zanesville, Ohio sighting in any way. I would not affiliate anything with the Arizona sightings simply because the 'flare explanation' seriously complicates the Arizona account and has 'stressed down' the case with all of 'noise.' Although witnesses described a massive triangular object in Arizona (accompanied by reports of military jets in action in the vicinity), a duplicate incident in Ohio on March 26, 1997 of an identical 'triangular ship' was explained as a flare formation traveling in a triangular arrangement (after being discharged from over-flying military jets also traveling in a triangular grouping). Videotapes of the Ohio events (one also happening on October 16, 1996) were made and analyzed, witnesses interviewed, and the Springfield Air National Guard did openly confess and admit responsibility (right down to a televised admission on the Cincinnati cable-TV program 'UFO UPDATE: LIVE!.

The appearance of similarity between the Ohio and Arizona videos are striking, both in appearance (as depicted on the videos) and through witness description in their testimonies (even down to the massive triangular ship at treetop level). The presence of military jets in the area complicate the matter, and could be said that they are either 'discharging the flares' or 'pursuing the unknowns.' In the Ohio case, several witnesses, to their credit, observed and acknowledged that the objects were 'coming from the planes.' For details about the Ohio research, a section of the web-site listed below contains information on this. There are a number of reports that complicate a broad 'flare explanation' for all of this, but I think that SOME of the activity is explainable as such. I have speculated that this could be a military disinformation project which takes place during a UFO-related event. The recent event in Zanesville doesn't correspond with the time and localities of permissible flare exercises, which makes this report all the more interesting. Sincerely, Kenny Young, UFO Research <http://home.fuse.net/task/>

TEXAS

On Saturday, January 24, 1998, at 3:20 p.m., D.B. Michael was at his home in Leander, Texas (population 3,398) when he received a phone call from his brother, Dave, asking him to hurry outside, "You've got to see this!" =

Leander is on Highway 183 about 23 miles north of Austin, the state capital. "He= and (D.B.'s son) Daniel were in their backyard, which joins mine." Hurrying outside, D.B. "observed the object moving in a northerly direction," describing the UFO as "a cylinder object that was positioned upright, not oblong." The men shot several photos of the UFO with their two 35mm cameras while "the object stayed vertical without any rotation." "We followed it on U.S. Highway 183 heading off at (county highway) 2243 East. We then= traveled on 2243 East and pulled off the road. It passed over us...We then commenced east again intending to go to Interstate Highway 35 and intercept it again." Just then, "a dark helicopter was observed flying for the south at an= altitude of about 500 feet," he added, "Reaching I-35, we looked about but found nothing. We traveled west on Highway 29. We observed three jet aircraft= that appeared to be in V formation...in a flight that that would have intercepted the object if it had continued in the direction of travel last seen by us."

MICHIGAN

On Thursday evening, February 5, 1998, around 7:45 p.m. EST, a black= triangle aircraft was spotted west of Howell, Michigan heading west and paralleling Mason Road at an elevation of 55 to 60 degrees. The observer, a high school senior driving in his car at the time, noted that the craft had three= round, white, non-blinking lights at the three points of the triangle. He pulled= his car to the side of the road to get a better view, shut off the engine and told me that the object was the size of a quarter held at arm's length. No detectable noise was heard coming from the craft. Had it been a= conventional aircraft at that distance, it would have been easily identified due to the noise of its engines. He further stated that, although he made a point of looking for them, no navigational strobes--red, green or white--were= visible at any time. He estimated the speed of the craft to be 60 miles per hour,=
the same speed as his car. It was in sight for over a minute. He also told me that at no time did his car malfunction. He was unable to estimate its altitude, however, since nothing presented itself for comparison. Weather conditions at the time were partially overcast, but the moon was visible. No missing time was reported. The credibility of the witness is high. Thanks to

CHILE

On January 24th, around 3:30 AM, Sergio Rojas, with other four friends= went to the "Tranque Alfafal" located in "El Cajon del Maipo" a UFO Hot spot, 40 minutes from Santiago. On the way up to the El Alfafal Dam they saw two= balls of light pass over them at very high speed. A few minutes later they saw a third UFO traveling at a much slower speed. From a cliff near the dam they could see a cigar or egg shaped UFO coming up the river 100 meters below.=
It was bright white color and 18 metes long. The light did not reflect on the nearby rocks. The UFO was flying very fast and near the water. They heard a very high pitch tone that clogged their ears. They also felt what they described as a "strange wind" that was cold and hot at the same time. The sighting lasted only 5 to 6 seconds. After this they decided to return= home.
On their way down to "San Jose de Maipo" they encountered another UFO that= was floating about 800 meters above them. They stopped their car and got out.=
The UFO looked like the moon, but slightly smaller and it was white colored.=
After
5 minutes the UFO faded away like a cloud, but it never moved from it's position.

In early February in the fishing town of "Iloca" (3 hours north of Santiago) most of the people in the town including the local police witnessed a very large cylinder shaped UFO. It was hovering over the ocean. It was so big= that the police had to calm down the population, who were also scared. Thanks=

Luis Sanchez Chilean Director Skywatch International.

LIFE ON MARS:

Mars has fascinated mankind for centuries, and it is my belief that NASA is attempting to obtain startling evidence for life on Mars. Our sister planet created headlines in 1877, when Schiaparelli announced his discovery that a network of straight lines covered the surface of Mars. Percival Lowell felt these lines were canals that represented the work of intelligent beings. NASA's Global Surveyor satellite now in orbit around Mars on February 2, 1998, proved for first time that there was once a flowing river meandering across the planet. It's not known when the river went dry, but the dry bed is an unmistakable river. A second photo also revealed evidence of horizontal layers on the surface of Mars, that indicates Mars has something similar to the Grand Canyon in Arizona. The Surveyor also proved the existence of a magnetic field on Mars that is essential for the development and continued existence of life on Mars. The field shields a planet from fast-moving, electrically charged particles and cosmic rays from the Sun.

Although, our two most recent probes appear successful, we should remember the previous three probes of Mars ended in failure. Previously our own Mars Observer and two Russian Phobos missions mysteriously stopped transmitting when nearing the planet. The Russian Phobos II mission actually took up orbit around the planet in September of 1989, and allegedly took startling infra-red photography just prior to its ceasing transmissions. Soviet Cosmonaut insiders claim that the infra-red photos showed an aerial view of an ancient city the size of Los Angeles with a geometry of streets and cross roads. The cultural features were 4 kilometers wide and 60 kilometers long. Infra-red film indicates the city was still emitting some heat. These alleged photographs have never been released to the public. The Soviet Spacecraft then transmitted photos of a strange immense oval shadow just prior to its suddenly going off the air. Its last transmission showed a large unidentified cigar like object approaching the satellite. All transmissions ceased implying the satellite had been destroyed.

The apparent programmed release of information points to a carefully thought out plan to prepare the public for spectacular announcements of a past civilization on Mars. In the summer of 1996, NASA announced that microbes that once lived on Mars had traveled to Earth inside a Martian meteorite. They apparently had been blasted off the red planet more than 15 million years ago possibly during the impact from another large planet. Some Martian microbes may have survived the trip and continued to live on Earth. Recent studies by scientists at the University of Wisconsin show that temperatures of the microbes never exceeded 212 degrees Fahrenheit. Although, scalding hot it is within the living range for many life forms. Theoretically, Martian life forms could have reached our planet millions of years ago and be part of our heritage.

The Hubble telescope findings indicate there are clouds, dust storms, water and a climate similar to Antarctica on Mars. The scientists believe they could have been both an atmosphere and a magnetic field on Mars in the distant past. Analysis of Viking, Mariner and Soviet Phobos photography suggest that a civilization once existed on Mars. Dr. John E. Brandenburg who has made a study of the photographic evidence believes that three large carved faces all with similar details indicate that a humanoid civilization once existed on Mars. Large pyramid like structures have also been identified. Nearby are what appears to be archeological ruins similar to those in ancient Egypt. Study of the geology and Mars surface indicate that water, mild temperatures and an oxygen rich atmosphere once existed on Mars. Scientists have also confirmed the existence of a planet-wide magnetic field that would protect life on Mars from using an instrument on-board NASA's Mars Global Surveyor orbiter, as the spacecraft began to circle and study the planet from a highly elliptical orbit. " Interestingly, the faces on Mars resemble the human like Sphinx in Egypt. Ancient Egyptian, Sumarian and Israeli writings tell of visits by aliens= from other planets. New evidence suggests that the Sphinx may be much older than anyone suspected. Both faces are similar and suggest we humans and Martians are from the same or related genetic material. They even resemble the= Nordic type of alien often reported in the literature of Ufology. The three kilometers long face has numerous anatomical details which include a mouth, lips, teeth, nose, eyes, cheekbones, chin and hair.

Tom Van Flandern a respected scientist has conducted additional tests and writes: "Either the unusual landforms at Cydonia on Mars are natural= features, or they are artificial constructs of intelligent beings. A number of tests= of artificiality have been proposed. For example, it has been noted that the "Face" is a three-dimensional face, not merely a profile or an outline. As such, it still looks like a face from every angle. Moreover, the U.S.= military has perfected the use of fractal techniques to search for man-made objects camouflaged by terrain in aerial photographs. It has been well demonstrated that natural objects show a high degree of fractal content, whereas= artificial objects have more symmetry and regularity. This software was applied to various features on Mars, with the finding that the "Face" gave by far the highest degree of artificiality of any image tested, usually high enough to assure artificiality of the object if it had appeared on Earth.

In the immediate vicinity of the Cydonian landforms, but in general not elsewhere on the Martian surface, can be found more than a dozen small, raised mounds of similar size. The Stanley McDaniel Report points to a Martian civilization shows that the random geology hypothesis fails to account for the regularity and redundancy of geometric patterns in these formations. At the least, enigmatic geology= is involved, the alternative being intelligent design. Each of these features, taken in conjunction with the presence of several other anomalous objects in close proximity, have induced a number of serious scientists to seek to develop further tests of artificiality. Several factors such as the= Bilateral symmetry of the Face indicate this was made by some sort of intelligence. If natural, the chances are negligible that the shadowed side of the object would resemble a symmetric half of a human face, and ought to be a random= pile of rocks or sand. If artificial, the mirror image of the visible half face= is to be expected. New findings suggest Cydonia is a culturally significant location that once was located on the equator and was situated in a polar-aligned north-south orientation. Functionality: The faces on Mount Rushmore= in South Dakota are visible to people on the ground. The "Face" on Mars stares= up into space, although ten times the height of the Pyramid at Giza, it cannot= be seen from any other planet. A lack of obvious purpose suggests a natural object, although we cannot hope to guess all possible purposes of its hypothetical builders. An obvious purposefulness would suggest = artificiality.

The Mars surface shows indication of a tremendous explosion in space. We= can speculate that the asteroid belt was once a planet. Its explosion caused damage burying parts of the planet in 21 kilometers of rubble. Assuming the landforms at Cydonia on Mars had been built by advanced beings, the exploded planet might have been the cause of the demise of their civilization. If that were the case, then the structures at Cydonia would have necessarily= been built before the most recent explosion event. There was evidence that a= shift of the martian pole was probably caused by the explosion. the "Face" on= Mars was relative to the prior location of the Martian pole.

Tom Van Flandern suggests that Mars is a former moon of the destroyed Planet V. And as we have seen, Mars would have kept the same side permanently= toward Planet V. So our line of reasoning has suggested a previously unimagined cultural purpose for a "Face" to be built looking up into space: It would= have been visible to the presumed occupants of parent Planet V. We can readily imagine that the hypothetical builders would have outfitted the "Face" and landforms with appropriate illumination to make them visible even when in total darkness. Hence, a cultural purpose for a "Face" looking up into= space has arisen completing the test. It is intriguing to note that this hypothesized civilization apparently had the ability to save some of its members from the deadly effects of= explosions by space transporting them to the far side of nearby moons. But following= the destruction of their primary world, Body C, at 3.2 Million years ago (Mya), this species would have been forced to choose between attempting to survive= on explosion-torn, atmosphere-stripped Mars, or long-distance relocation to the most habitable of the remaining planets, Earth. This is intriguing because the first appearance of hominids on Earth also dates to just about the time= of this last explosion, 3.2 Mya. And it has been noted that the Face is apparently more hominid-like than alien.

In conclusion, the "Face" on Mars has now passed each test of artificiality yet proposed. These tests include a three dimensional structure, a lack of fractal patterns in the image, non-random distribution of the nearby small mounds, proximity of other anomalous landforms, an apparent bilateral symmetry, being located on the Martian equator, having a culturally significant orientation, and serving an apparent culturally significant purpose. It would be an exaggeration to say that the case for artificiality is now compelling, and many thoughtful people will still find that= conclusion less likely than all these "coincidences" put together. Yet the balance of the evidence, considered objectively, now weighs clearly in favor of artificiality over a natural origin of the Cydonian landforms. THE GARDEN OF EDEN

Robert, Bob, Philip and List

One might think that Mr Santilli is some annoying weed. Quite to the contrary, I believe Mr Santilli is a plain garden broccoli that has achieved its development through proper watering, not forgetting the bull shit and the pesticides (the later being applied to avoid bugs that would long have eaten it away).

Why not boycott Mr Santilli? This means: a moratory on any AA stuff until the guy brings forward the proof. This means: no conferences, no CDs, nothing that could bring him money, directly or indirectly.

The AA stuff is as best suspicious material.

Ever thought that spraying the stuff around might provide Mr Santilli his welfare?

Ever thought that establishing a dichotomy between Mr Santilli and his production can only encourage others of his kind ? Where is the profit?

Ufology is at loss here: it is the only place where a used car salesman could sell the Holy Grail.

Jakes and Serge,

I have received the following camera information from John English, along with additional information that the sighting was made by more than two people.

The Minolta was a Maxxum 7000
Auto Focus was on Camera was in auto program mode
Lens setting of the zoom lens: Unknown

This seems to account for the streak and the distortion of the object as it passed in front of the photographed sailplane.

I would also like to add, that Jakes' first comment about the wing appears to me to be inaccurate. The object definitely appears to be in front of the sailplane wing. The distinction between the two is discernible, denoting the object is completely in front of the plane. (The object image and the distortion caused by the camera is distinct and does not "mingle" with the plane wing.)

The movement of the object and the camera setting appears to account for the streak and distortion. John states the object resembled a very bright sphere.

John provides further information about the object he (and they) saw. (He was in the plane photographed.)

I have posted these details on Deb's UFO Research Information Clearinghouse at:

<http://www.debshome.com/PilotsIncredibleSighting.html>

Rocket Stirs Ruckus in Puerto Rico

.c The Associated Press

By JAMES ANDERSON

TORTUGUERO, Puerto Rico (AP) - A small NASA project to study the ionosphere above Puerto Rico has become a big public relations mission for scientists trying to convince skeptical islanders that there is no danger.

Hundreds of people have protested the mission to launch 11 rockets, most filled with chemicals. Two U.S. lawmakers asked NASA to postpone the project, and a local senator even introduced a bill to outlaw toying with the atmosphere above the Caribbean island.

Protesters shouting ``NASA, go home!'' tried to block access to the Tortuguero launch pad Monday night before police stepped in. Demonstrators pounded on a car leaving the launch pad, spitting on its windows. Others vowed to paddle kayaks into a coastal safety zone near the launch site.

Scientists from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, private universities and the Goddard Space Flight Center say they've spent as much time trying to ease fears as they have on science.

``If you get one or two science (questions) here you're doing well,'' said Miguel Larsen, a Clemson University physicist who is supervising the first launches from the small pad 30 miles west of San Juan.

Set to run into April, the Coqui II project will study turbulence in the ionosphere that can interfere with satellite communications and even produce wrong Global Positioning System readings.

Rockets launched from Tortuguero will release the chemical trimethylaluminum inside a thin, electrified layer of the ionosphere about 60 miles above the Earth's surface.

The chemicals will slowly burn, creating a luminous cloud in the night sky. The nearby Arecibo Observatory will train its radar on the cloud to pick up its chemical properties and track its movements, Larsen said.

The 40-foot rockets are supposed to splash down in the Atlantic Ocean at least 60 miles off the coast. That hasn't appeased activists who say NASA flouted local law by failing to prepare an environmental impact statement.

The launch pad, they note, is surrounded by Tortuguero Lagoon, a nature sanctuary itself surrounded by the town of Vega Baja, population 60,000.

They fear contamination from lead packed into each rocket - or worse, a misfire that could ignite the trimethylaluminum.

NASA scientists say hundreds of similar launches have gone off without a hitch - including a 1992 Puerto Rico mission dubbed Coqui, after an indigenous tree frog. Since Coqui II differs little from Coqui I, a new environmental impact study isn't necessary, they say.

The rockets, they add, have a 97 percent success rate.

``The 3 percent (failure rate) is too much, too risky in such a crowded area,'' said Jose Escoda, a member of the Committee Against Environmental Experiments, a coalition of environmental and activist groups.

On Thursday, U.S. District Judge Jose Fuste denied their request for a temporary injunction.

Two members of the House of Representatives with strong Puerto Rico ties, Democrats Luis Gutierrez of Illinois and Nydia Velazquez of New York, urged NASA administrator Daniel Goldin to postpone the launches.

In Puerto Rico, Senator Ruben Barrios proposed legislation to ``prohibit experiments that alter the electrical and magnetic properties of the ionosphere.'' The island's bar association, meanwhile, suggested the agency take its launches elsewhere.

Scientists say Puerto Rico, with its Arecibo Observatory, is ideal for studying the atmospheric phenomenon and have appeared on talk shows and visited schools to plead their case.

``This is very unusual,'' Larsen said of the protests.

More Fireballs Seen in the West

By MARTHA BELLISLE
.c The Associated Press

DENVER (AP) - The phone lines to Denver's Museum of Natural History have been buzzing since a fireball streaked across the Colorado sky last month.

That flash of light, caught on a homeowner's security camera, was not an isolated incident; it was followed by at least four more fireball sightings, said Jack Murphy of the museum's geology department. He hopes to find pieces of the celestial objects for the museum's collection.

As new reports of sightings keep coming in, scientists are debating the meteorites' origin and the meaning of the increased activity. There is more at stake, they say, than where a piece of rock fell to the ground.

``These little things are the little brothers and sisters of the bigger ones,'' said Doug Revelle, a scientist at Los Alamos National Laboratory.

``The reason for the interest is eventually a big one is going to hit, a real big one. And the question is: Can we protect ourselves?''

If a large meteor hit Earth, ``life as we know it would be very different,'' he said.

When a fireball fell into the Earth's atmosphere on Jan. 11, a Front Range resident's home security camera documented the bright light and shadows along with the sonic boom caused by the apparent meteorite, Revelle said.

Scientists will use the time between the flash and boom - 132 seconds - to help determine where the meteorite touched down, assuming it didn't burn out before landing.

Then, at about noon on Jan. 27, a commercial airline pilot flying over Wyoming spotted ``a ball of flame trailing smoke.''

``He reported he did get some turbulence from the object,'' Jim Patton, operations supervisor for the Federal Aviation Administration's flight service center in Casper told the Rawlins, Wyo., Daily Times. ``He saw the debris and felt the shock wave from it.''

Residents in Breckenridge, Colo., also reported seeing that daytime fireball. Murphy said they believe the space rock was heading south to north and landed just north of Hanna, Wyo.

That night, another fireball broke into the Earth's atmosphere.

Scientists believe that meteorite came down in southern Colorado or northern New Mexico, Murphy said. People in Breckenridge spotted that fireball, too.

Another meteorite was seen and heard at sunrise in eastern Colorado on Jan. 30. And Murphy is investigating a report that came in earlier this month.

So what's happening?

``I don't know,'' Murphy said. ``We can't attribute it to anything. But it is unusual to have so much activity.''

University of Denver astronomer Robert Stencel suggested that Earth may be getting pelted with pieces of the Hale-Bopp comet. Early in January the Earth passed through the part of space the comet had traveled.

``Comets are like kids with muddy boots,'' Stencel said. ``They leave a trail of debris in their wakes.''

Meteorites from asteroids breaking out of the orbital belts between Mars and Jupiter are made up of metals, mostly iron. A meteorite from a comet would have a lighter element composition, Stencel said.

Such space debris is rare and would be of great scientific value, he said.

Scientists will test the composition of the meteorites - if they can get their hands on them.

Revelle said he's excited about the meteorite activity, but he can't account for it.

The reports describe a smoke trail following the fireballs - or bolides, which are exploding meteors.

``The smoke trail is an indication that the object was quite big and strong,'' Revelle said. ``Over the globe we see objects that are about a meter across an average of only 12 times a year.''

Last Oct. 10, a meteorite crashed near West Texas and New Mexico; then on Dec. 9, a large fireball crashed near Greenland, and on Dec. 13, a meteorite was seen across hundreds of miles, from Minnesota and Wisconsin south into Iowa and northern Missouri.

Revelle said history may give us some insight into the meaning of the increase in fireball activity.

About 60 million years ago, an asteroid crashed into the Earth and kicked up enough dust to blot out the sun. Some scientists believe this resulted in the death of more than 80 percent of all animals and led to the extinction of dinosaurs.

``These events seem to occur every 60 million years, give or take 10 million,'' he said. ``We're about three million years short of 60 million.''

``In order to defend the Earth from a large meteor, we would need to know about it while it was months away to deflect it,'' he said. ``If we knew about it when it was weeks away, it would be too late.''

James,

The bottom line seems to be that Santilli tells one story after another.

Ten years from now Santilli will still be telling stories and the question of the film will still be endlessly debated, much like our own American version of the film, the MJ-12 documents. They can't quite be proven totally true, nor can they quite be totally proven false. Its been 11 years since they exploded on the scene and we are still back to where we were in the summer of 87.

Cheers,
Robert

Philip,

As you know, the Oct-Nov '96 issue of 'Nexus Magazine', contained the following article:

The 'Alien Autopsy Film' by Michael Hesemann (C) 1996

As suggested seemed likely, despite the many fundamental flaws in that article, it nevertheless still formed the basis of the 'alien autopsy' material later published in 'Beyond Roswell'.

This was of course the subject of some discussions and I note you confirmed:

From: Philip Mantle <el51@dial.pipex.com> Subject: Re: UFO
UpDate: Re: 'Beyond Roswell' - A Book

Dear James,

I was as disapointed as anyone to disciver that many, if not most of the corrections that were sent to our publisher Marlowe & Co were not made. Some of these are minor errors while others are more significant. Both Michael Hesemann, myself and Bob Shell have made our feelings known to our publisher and our literary agent regarding this matter and we are doing all we can to rectify the mater before the next print run.
[Cut]

The 'Nexus' article was written in Hesemann's inimitable 'style', or so we might have thought. However, it now seems to have been subjected to cosmetic surgery and reappears in the December 1997 edition of the MUFON UFO Journal as:

'The Santilli Alien Autopsy Film'
by Philip Mantle

In editing Hesemann's original article, one can only assume you do not, for some incomprehensible reason, appreciate that the Journal's recent publication is contrary to any public concerns about the quality of the research evident in 'Beyond Roswell'.

In plagiarising, presumably with approval, Hesemann's article, you have carried forward his basic errors.

In one example, Hesemann wrote:

According to the cameraman, four living aliens were found at the crash site. One did not survive the recovery operation, the second and third died about four weeks later, and the fourth survived until May 1949.

We do not know anything about the autopsy of the first creature, and it might very well have been that it was subjected to a 'big' scientific autopsy.

The cameraman filmed the second and third autopsies on 1st and 3rd July 1947, when the main concern might have been to find out the cause of their sudden deaths in order to find a way to keep alien no. 4 alive-unless they could establish communication and find out why these visitors had come to Earth. This was surely of a higher interest for the national defence forces than a scientific study of an alien life-form. Nevertheless, we assume that organs were taken for further study during the dissection.

Furthermore, according to the cameraman, the fourth alien was autopsied scientifically in a medical theatre in Washington, DC, in the presence of leading scientists from the US, England and France.

You amend this to read:

According to the cameraman, there were originally four living creatures discovered at the crash site. One did not survive the recovery operation, the second and third died about four weeks later, and the fourth survived until May 1949.

We do not know anything about the autopsy of the first creature, and it might very well be that this was a large scientific autopsy.

The cameraman filmed the second and third autopsies (only one of which has been released to the public) on July 1st and July 3rd, 1947, when the main concern might have been to discover the cause of their death in order to keep the fourth creature alive.

According to the cameraman the fourth creature was autopsied scientifically in a medical theatre in Washington, DC, in the presence of leading scientists from the USA, England and France.
[End]

After Hesemann's article was published, I wrote of these claims:

Hesemann noted that one creature supposedly died at the scene, two died shortly afterwards and one lived until 1949. He therefore concluded, "The cameraman filmed the second and third autopsies on 1st and 3rd July 1947".

This seemed to be in error as the photocopies of the claimed reel labels relating to the 'second autopsy' refer to 'Body No. 2' and Ray Santilli had confirmed that the other 'autopsy' footage is recorded as the first autopsy.

I pointed this out and Hesemann replied, "Indeed, the cameraman calls the autopsies of July 1st and 3rd "the first and second" autopsy, but it referred to autopsies he had filmed. Since FOUR aliens had been recovered, as he said, and one was killed on the crash site, only ONE survived until 1949, it's a logical conclusion as every historian who has to reconstruct historical events would do, that IN FACT HIS first autopsy was the one of the second being".

In the meantime, Shell had also told Hesemann, "This is not the information given to me by Ray, nor does it fit the info on the film labels. The autopsy we have all seen is clearly labelled as the second, and, according to Ray the other one is equally clearly labelled as the first. The cameraman gives the dates of July 1, 1947 for the first one, and July 3, 1947, for the second one. The third, according to Ray, took place in Washington, DC, in 1949 in a large operating theatre with many spectators. Ray said nothing to me about the nationality of the spectators, and my assumption was that they were all American. This clearly leaves one body not accounted for. Since the cameraman implied that at least one was not injured in his original statement, this uninjured one could have lived for some time. Perhaps it was the one autopsied in 1949, perhaps not".

Enlightened that his reconstruction of historical events was missing one alien, Hesemann queried, "maybe you are right... but since FOUR beings were found and three autopsies were filmed by our cameraman and only ONE survived until 1949 when the third filmed autopsy took place... what happened to the fourth one?"

In the story, one of the four 'aliens' had always been unaccounted for, although it seems to have taken Hesemann some two years to notice this.
[End]

Have you only just now realised this also?

Hesemann also claimed:

THE PATHOLOGISTS

According to the cameraman the autopsy was performed by "Dr Bronk" and "Dr Williams".

Prof. Dr Detlev Bronk (1897-1975) was no surprise, since his name already appeared in the controversial "Majestic 12" documents. He was Chairman of the National Research Council, America's leading biophysicist and a member of the Advisory Committee of the Army, Air Force and of the Atomic Energy Commission-certainly a person to whom the supervision of an autopsy of this relevance could have been entrusted. After his death, all his papers and documents were preserved at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, of which he was President from 1953.

Dr Bronk was a very methodical person, kept detailed diaries and all his correspondence, notes and dates. But when Bob Shell wanted to look through his papers and diaries for 1947, he learnt that, mysteriously enough, this is the only year for which all the records are missing. None of the friendly librarians could tell him what had happened to them or why they are still missing.

Dr Williams might have been Dr Robert Parvin Williams (1891-1967), who was Special Assistant to the Surgeon General of the Army at Fort Monroe, Virginia. He was a Lt. Col. in 1947 and was promoted to Brig. General in 1949. Alone, the naming of Dr Williams-who was the right man in the right place for the task-indicates the cameraman had some inside knowledge.
[Cut]

I addressed these issues:

It's alleged that, according to the cameraman, the autopsy was performed by 'Dr Bronk' and 'Dr Williams'.

Hesemann claims that after Bronk's death, "all his papers and documents were preserved at the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research". It's further claimed that Bronk was a "very methodical person" who "kept detailed diaries and all his correspondence, notes and dates". However, when Shell made some enquiries about Bronk's "papers and diaries for 1947", he discovered that "mysteriously enough, this is the only year for which all the records are missing" and allegedly none of the librarians could explain why.

This all sounds convincingly conspiratorial, but when I asked Shell about the basis of these claims, he confirmed, "I have said repeatedly that I have done nothing but PRELIMINARY research on any of this so far, but people always forget to quote that part".

Shell had apparently simply telephoned the Rockefeller Archives and one other location and as Stanton Friedman explained to me, "I had been to the Rockefeller Archives many years ago and found their holdings on Bronk not very exciting...there was much classified work that really isn't reflected at the Rockefeller holdings...there are other holdings at many other places where he served".

It seems to be an established fact that Bronk was involved in a number of sensitive, classified projects, however, there is no serious evidence to remotely suggest that he was involved with an 'alien autopsy' in the first place.

As for Dr Williams, it's suggested this might have been "Dr Robert Parvin Williams (1891-1967), who was Special Assistant to the Surgeon General of the Army at Fort Monroe, Virginia".

Despite the obvious absence of any evidence which connects this Dr Williams, or any other, with an 'alien autopsy', Hesemann astonishingly concludes, "Alone, the naming of Dr Williams-who was the right man in the right place for the task-indicates the cameraman had some inside knowledge".
[End]

Yet, over a year later, you publish what are effectively Hesemann's exact same comments, including his ridiculous logic, in your own words here, that:

Dr Williams might have been Dr Robert Parvin Williams (1891-1967), who was Special Assistant to the Surgeon General of the Army at Fort Monroe, Virginia. He was Lt. Col. in 1947 and was promoted to Brig. General in 1949. Alone, the naming of Williams, who was the right man in the right place for the task, indicates the cameraman had some inside knowledge.
[End]

Some further errors and misrepresentations which, for some reason, have simply been ignored:

"Careful study of stills made from the original film and high-quality Betacam copies confirmed that the film was indeed shot on 16-mm material", claimed Hesemann.

Although it's common knowledge this has not been confirmed at all, you repeat, "Careful study of stills made from the original film and high-quality BETACAM copies confirmed the film indeed was shot on 16-mm material".

Hesemann continued, "Two segments with three frames each, one clearly showing the autopsy room, were given to Bob Shell, editor of Shutterbug magazine."

It's now well established that these frames do not clearly show the autopsy room, but come from unrelated frames, later added to the beginning of the film.

Noticeably, you have dropped this claim, merely stating, "Two segments of film, each with three frames, were given to Bob Shell, editor of Shutterbug magazine...".

However, you still maintain, "In April 1996 Bob Shell was contacted by Captain James McAndrew of the United States Air Force".

Never happened.

And so on.

Commenting on Hesemann's article, I see that I also mentioned:

It was originally offered to Walt Andrus at MUFON and Hesemann believes it wasn't published, "because its content was against the MUFON partyline and the article itself maybe too scientific for the MUFON UFO Journal".

As I suggested to Hesemann at the time, perhaps there were too many words and not enough pictures.
[End]

There's a certain irony in that Hesemann, albeit under another guise, did get his long since discredited 'research' published after all!

The question is, why?

Serge,

Just a point of fact. Ray Santilli does not make any money from our CD ROM. He gave us permission to use the still images on it at no charge. Same with the Beyond Roswell book. He makes nothing on it.

Robert,

Those who have paid attention will note that I said it would take a minimum of five years to prove/disprove the AA film.

I've said many times that this may turn out to be Ufology's Zapruder film, which is still debated hotly more than 30 years after the fact.

Hi Rebecca, hi All,

Larsen says,

> ``This is very unusual,' ' Larsen said of the protests.

Well, no it's not! Beginning with the forced eviction of the residents of Isla Cabra (Goat Island) by the US military back in the 50's so that they could use the island for a gunnery range, the people of Puerto Rico have opposed further US military incursions onto the island. Even before!

The history of Puerto Rican protest against the US military and government is old and bloody. How many are old enough to recall when three Puerto Rican (Independistas) waltzed into the US senate and opened fire back in the late 50's?

How many recall the bloody student riots in San Juan in the 60's? I could go on for hours! Someone ought to tell Mr Larsen to crack a history book or two before making comments such as the one he makes above.

It's not "unusual" in fact it's almost typical of the response that many of my people have made (and will make again in the future) every time the US tries to take another piece of our island. They have already tried to rob us of our culture, and they will not be allowed to poison and pollute our island if anyone can help it!

Que viva la protesta!

Mysterious Valley Report Dec-Jan

From: "Christopher O'Brien" <tmv@pop.amigo.net>
Date: Sun, 22 Feb 1998 11:51:24 -7
Fwd Date: Sun, 22 Feb 1998 17:40:34 -0500
Subject: Mysterious Valley Report Dec-Jan

More anomalous events have surfaced from December and January in The San Luis Valley CO/NM. I have elected to forward you this report-- even though some of the information was contained in my last "Winter Update"

Volume Five, The Mysterious Valley Report Number One December 1997----January 1998
Compiled by Christopher O'Brien c 1998

Here We Go Again!

1997 in The San Luis Valley ended with a unusual animal death bang, and 1998 began with numerous reports of anomalous object sightings. Several reports from Huerfano County are still under investigation as reports of fantastic aerial activity were fielded by Huerfano investigator David Perkins. Coincidental reports of massive military activity followed these unbelievable reports of huge "disco-ball" craft, which reportedly shot out smaller red lights that criss-crossed the Huerfano Valley for hours, over the course of three nights. What are the military flyboys with toys up to anyway? Levengood To Publish Findings In the next issue of The Mysterious Valley Report, I will present Dr. W.C. Levengood's soil and plant analysis results from Redox Testing of Crop-circle and "Bovine Excision Sites" from 1993-1997. Nancy Talbot, coordinator for Levengood will be presenting these results at the National MUFON Conference in Denver this coming June. Preliminary analysis has been highly intriguing. Abnormal levels of magnetite and depressed redox-levels in plant mitochondria will be mentioned extensively. Levengood's work in the bio-physical field brings an air of legitimacy to our proto-science of UFOlogy. Hopefully, more scientists will climb aboard and verify Levengood's findings.

A Flurry of Sightings Reported

Saturday December 13, 1997 7:30 p.m., Thomas Paye and a friend were driving north on State Highway 285, two miles north of La Jara, CO. They witnessed two unusual lights/objects, the first at 7:05 p.m., while traveling north, and the second sighting at 10 p.m., while headed south on 285. Both objects were seen while looking toward the east. 1st object was an orange globe, the second, a blue one. Sighting locations are two and twelve miles from gelding death location. Sun December 14, 1997, from 1:15 to 1:40 a.m at 12S road near Mesita, SLV CO [50 miles north of 3:00 am sighting] A large object was seen by two witnesses slowly crossing the SLV, east to west, from the Questa, NM, area north of Toas, NM, toward Chama, NM. They estimated that it took 25 minutes to traverse approximately 50 miles.

The Musical Big Triangle

A little over an hour after the large slow-moving craft was observed, that same Sun December 14, 1997, at 3:00 am., a witness about 2 miles north of Center, CO. reported the following event in a letter I received a couple of weeks later. I had not published the other December 14 reports and the timing between the two events is uncanny. Could the following be the large "light" that was seen crossing the Valley at the CO/NM border? The witness wrote: "I saw out my back door one of those triangular UFO's hovering over the south field [of the witnesses' ranch]. When I went outside to see it, it moved slowly and hovered by the roof of the house and over by the silos. Then it came back over the house and a beam of white-blue light came out of the middle and something was taken up in the beam. I couldn't see what, but its shape was smallish. I was so scared I couldn't talk. It played some kind of musical rhythm when the lights around the edge flashed off and on. Let me know if anyone else saw anything." I called her and told her of Paye's sighting and thanked her for her letter.

Another Alamosa River "Mute"

On Wednesday December 17, 1997, at 10:30 a.m., rancher Ron Gardiner discovered a dead gelding 5 miles SW of Alamosa, CO, in the SLV. The animal was and was found lying on it's right side at the bottom of a dry, 7 foot deep irrigation canal-channel. There was evidence of a struggle i.e., broken chimisa bushes and thrashing marks, but besides the unfortunate gelding's tracks, there were no other tracks present. The carcass was still warm and the rancher estimated the animal was killed and mutilated sometime around dawn. This investigator made an on-site visit Thursday the 18th after being contacted by the rancher. Three sets of incisional samples were obtained for forensic testing and videotape and photos of the site were taken. The horse was missing it's penis and an 8 inch circular patch of hide behind the sheath-- which was intact. The rear-end was neatly cored out in a slightly elongated circle to a depth of 8 to 9 inches. Eyes and tongue were intact. No apparent scavenger interest noted and two horses in the small herd seemed curious and unafraid of the carcass. The carcass did not bloat. No downside incisions or additional evidence noted by the rancher, this investigator, or the Sheriff's investigator, but a 5 inch shallow gash in the hide was present on the neck. Several drops, which appeared to be blood, were found in snow about 60 feet away over the fence and across the road.

Weather was very cold and windless and the temperature was just below zero at approximate time of death. Again, as with the November 30, 1997 Hooper case, dense fog was reported in the area the evening the horse was evidently killed.

Big Bad Wolf Visits San Luis

Monday January 5, 1998, Three pigs were discovered, in a mutilated condition, by two San Luis, CO ranchers. A local San Luis, CO., man named Arnie contacted me with the following report: "I wanted to follow up on our conversation regarding the pig mutilations. Upon speaking the the man who discovered the carcass' it turns out there were three mutilated pigs each about 100 to 150 pounds, white in color and each with a cored out rectum and other round holes in the abdomen. Apparently they had been discovered three days before I saw them. There were only two when I saw the on Thursday. Bob Green from La Sierra Newspaper went out to take some photos with a digital camera. You might check with him for prints. I think he will run a story in his paper . . ."

A Couple of Points To Ponder

Like five other cases from the southern Alamosa County area since 1994, the horse was found on, or very near, the Alamosa River. (NOTE: The only measurable pollution near the SLV is located 23 miles up the Alamosa River at the Summittville Mine Superfund Site.) This latest "mutilation" report and the recent November 30, '97 calf death case seem unusual. The vast majority of San Luis Valley unusual animal deaths (UADs) occur from last-frost to first-frost, during the warmer months and rarely are these deaths reported during cold sub-zero nights. This may be a new wrinkle. . . Results of forensic testing will be posted as soon as it's made available. Wednesday January 7, 1998, 5:45 pm to 3:00 am Farasita, CO La Veta MOA Massive aerial activity reported by fiver witnesses. "Disco balls" shooting off multi-colored light and smaller red lights. Craft appeared to criss-cross the Huerfano in a "grid-like pattern." This activity reportedly went on for several hours. One witness told Dave Perkins later, that he thought ". . .it was the end of the world!" These Huerfano sightings are being investigated by David Perkins.

SAME DAY

Thursday January 8, 1998 between 10 and 11am Huerfano County, La Veta MOA Witness reported "20 to 30" jets criss-crossing the Huerfano in a grid pattern, 25-year resident witness claimed this aerial maneuvering was "highly unusual," even in over the MOA. Six and a half hours later, Thursday January 8, 1998, 5:20 pm, over the Baca Ranch, 2 miles east of mile marker 93 on State Highway 17, two witnesses driving north on 17 noticed a brightly blinking small light two miles to the east of their location. They then observed a "150 foot diameter disc" with a small, low cupola, light was on underside. Object was plainly visible in dusk lighting. Appeared to be at "between 1500 to 2000 feet" in altitude and traveling down the center of the SLV south by southwest. One of the witnesses estimated the speed at between "500 and 600 mph." Two other cars on 17 may have also witnessed object. Duration of sighting about "30 seconds."

The next day, Friday January 9, 1998, 5:20 pm, in Costilla County, SLV CO., a witness e-mailed the following report Jan 10: "Just last night my daughter and her friend and parent were coming home from basketball practice and mentioned that on. . .". . .Thursday [Jan 8 '98] night [in Costilla County SLV CO] they noticed two lights emanating from the sky in the approximate location where the carcasses [of three pigs] were discovered. She mentioned this before I told here about the discovery of the pigs." Sunday January 10, 1998, Huerfano County La Veta MOA. More reports of unusual light activity which are under investigation.

Here Come Those Sky Katchinas

Those pesky fireballs that have been reported here in the SLV for decades inexplicably made a couple of dramatic appearances in January. I have a hunch these objects are somehow connected to subsequent military activity reported in our area.

January 11, 1998, 12:15 am Front Range of Colorado

By Jim Hughes [Denver Post staff writer] Jan.-12 - 1998. "A mysterious object lit up the night sky up and down the Front Range early Sunday then startled witnesses with a deafening explosion. There was no official explanation about the object Sunday. Military spokesmen denied the object was a military aircraft. Local scientists speculated it could have been a meteor or an illegal firework . . ." How interesting the January 11th Colorado object's glow, as it passed over, was again a captured by the same security camera that caught last year's "meteor" at the same location. And how interesting last October's huge New Mexico/West Texas "meteor" occurred on the same flight path--almost a year to-the-day-- from a similar object seen on the same flight path last year. Later in January, more fireballs were reported.

Saturday January 11, 1998, at dusk Huerfano County, La

Veta MOA. Again, reports of unusual light/craft activity. Tuesday January 20, 1998, 6:00 pm -south of the Great Sand Dunes, a Hooper, CO, resident reports to a friend watching a "big star doing some big twists" over his friend's house. The friend then called me at 7:30 and I contacted the witness and learned that the object/light was flashing "red-green and blue." The nonchalant witness described the multi-colored light as hovering for five or so minutes just south of the Sand Dunes Oasis, where his friend lived. Both witnesses claimed the object was not Sirius rising in the east. One claimed the "object" was two times larger than the brightest planets, and was 5 degrees north of Sirius the heaven's brightest star, which he was able to identify. At around 6:15 pm, I happened to witness two low flying jets headed from the east, over the Sangre de Cristos, south toward the location where the light was observed. Jets were flying under 3000 feet above the Valley floor. They were in close formation.

There Go Those Sky Katchinas

Odd parallels between recent Australian and Colorado Fireball events seems to be developing. Consider the following article written by Harry Mason (who wrote a multi-part article called Bright Skies, for Nexus Magazine). This excerpt is re-printed w/ permission from "THE STRANGE" February 16, 1998, a weekly Newsletter distributed by; Louise A. Lowry Taak46b@prodigy.com Weird Australian Fireball Events

"There have been many other post-May 1993 Australian reports (in excess of 1000 often multiple events) concerning aerial fireballs and associated light energy emission. These involve exotic diesel freight train noise making spherical fireballs, and some noiseless variants, flying long trajectories over different parts of Australia. These fireballs have been observed in all our states (as recently as the 4th. of February 1997), and in many cases have exhibited variations on and combinations of the following actions: very low altitude "nap of earth" trajectories, small to non-existent tails, no fragment drop off, apparent velocity less than that of sound, no associated sonic booms, considerable sudden change in course, speed up, stop dead, reverse course, fly vertically upwards into space, create intense vibration of ground and housing as they pass over, or explode in massive blue-white arcing light displays with major explosive sound events - or silent intense light flashes, create power generation over-voltage outages and other electrical effects. The Banjawarn case demonstrates a cause-effect relationship with a 3.9 Richter scale earthquake and other fireballs have possibly been related on at least two occasions to 3.0-4.0 richter scale earthquakes in eastern Australia. If meteors are the source of these observations then lately we appear to be continually encountering a very odd species of meteor that exhibits a previously undocumented very exotic behaviour and a very high statistical rate of arrival in Australia."

Why would there be such an upsurge in fireball-type sightings in two such divergent locations? I have heard speculation that the Earth is travelling through remnants of the Hale-Bopp comet tail, but I have not seen conclusive proof of this theory mentioned anywhere analyzed

Colorado Fireball Questions

Tim Edwards, from Salida, sent me the following reports and article re-print from the Denver Post. Why are these fireballs continually appearing in Australia and Colorado? "The following are the Salida Colo. reports, and an article from the Denver post on the Jan. 27 events. As you can see objects were reported at numerous different times at multiple location ranging about 250 miles away and from noon Tues. and then at various times that night. How can meteors or debris keep hitting the same general area over a 10-hour time-frame? A question I'm going to ask The Museum of Natural History in Denver when I make a report. These are a frequent event in Colorado Getting a little escalation lately of reports and increased military activity. My 17 year old daughter Laray was sitting in the computer room January 27, 1998 at 9:00, when she viewed a moon sized ball of green light out of the south window [lights were on in the room] for a couple of seconds moving at high speed and disappearing to the southwest. At the same time my wife's sister [Kathy Rauter] and her 4 kids were driving to our house and viewed it down the road a half mile to the south of our home. They also reported the same description and said other people had to see it. No tail was observed by any of the witnesses. They were extremely excited and some were scared. I could tell by the reactions it was a major sighting. They said it did not appear to be that far away. I just had got off the computer and was upstairs reading a book so I missed the action again. Laray also had viewed a green globe hovering and then shooting down behind a ridge south of town this summer as well as multiple reports by locals of orbs hovering and moving at high speed in the area."

Several Report Seeing Its Blazing Path

By Stephanie Sylvester The Denver Post-1-28-98 BRECKENRIDGE- Several people saw a large fiery object trailed by a plume of smoke crash to the ground near here about noon Tuesday. "It was a fairly large object that was on fire with smoke that was spiraling off the back of it," said Blue River Marshal Steve Ford, who saw it from his car near Blue River Road and Highway 9. "My first thought was that it was a meteor." Ford watched the object plummet more than a thousand feet. He lost sight of it at tree level. "It was a vertical shot toward the ground, and I'm sure it impacted the ground," Ford said. Leigh Pezzicara, a spokeswoman for the Breckenridge Ski Resort, said several guests reported seeing a flare in the area of Peaks 5 and 6. "However, we really can't confirm what it was," she said. The Summit County sheriff's office received two calls about the possible meteor. James Rickman, a spokesman at the Los Alamos National Laboratory, said the scientific term for an object like the one described by Breckenridge eyewitnesses is "daytime fireball." Alma resident John Fisher was in Breckenridge when he spotted the object. According to Fisher, it created a visible trail that covered a quarter of the sky from his vantage point as he drove north on Highway 9 near the Breckenridge Building Center. Although no one saw where the object landed, Ford believes it hit near Good Pasture Tarn, just south of Breckenridge. So far, no agencies have launched a search for the object. Bill Steigerwald, spokesman for NASA's Goddard Space Flight Center in Maryland, said the center has received a unusually high number of reported meteor sightings this year. Steigerwald said if the Breckenridge sighting wasn't a meteor, it could have been "an airplane, a piece of space junk or some kind of rocket test that went astray." But most space junk burns up in the atmosphere, he said.

UFOs SWEEP ACROSS MAINE

UFOs visited several towns in Maine, the largest state in the USA's northeastern region, on Tuesday, January 27, 1998, in an astounding one-night flap.

A UFO visited Deer Island in Penobscot Bay, on Maine's Atlantic Ocean coast, illuminating several homes.

Janet Stanley of Stonington, Me. (population 700), a port town on the southern tip of the island, had just turned on her TV set to watch President Clinton's State of the Union speech. As she entered the bathroom, she "was startled by an immensely bright blue light that came through the miniblinds on her west-facing window." Opening the blinds, "she saw the western sky filled with a deep bright blue (glow) with yellow vertical streaks resembling lightning strikes."

Nine miles to the north, in Little Deer Isle, Me., "Seth Harkness was watching the speech...at ten minutes after nine (9:10 p.m.) when a blinding white light came through the east-facing windows of his living room."

In St. Agatha, Me., Pam Pelletier was taking her dog for a walk when she "began hearing a series of huge sky explosions, maybe 7 or 8 of them." The incident took place at 7:30 p.m.

At 9:10 p.m., Grace Ouellette was at her home near Long Lake in Madawaska, Me. (population 3,653), a town on the Canadian border approximately 215 miles (344 kilometers) north of Bangor when she spotted "a large orange ball with white flashing lights." At first she thought it was a small plane about to crash at the airport in nearby Frenchville (population 475).

Across the St. Johns River, in St. Francois de Madawaska, New Brunswick, Canada, Roger Bard "reported that he had seen a ball of fire go down on the American side of the river. 'It did not look like a falling star,' he said."

St. Francois de Madawaska is 213 miles (341 kilometers) northwest of Fredericton, capital of New Brunswick province.

In Millinocket, Me. (population 6,922), a small city 69 miles (110 kilometers) north of Bangor, Ellen Cousins "said she saw a bright orange streak as she looked north at 7:30 p.m."

Evelyn Robinson was driving on Interstate Highway 95 from Houlton (population 5,627) to Island Falls (population 650) at 9:30 p.m. when she "spotted a huge blue-green light streaking from east to west and leaving sparks behind."

"Robinson said, 'It was very fast, falling to the ground at a 45 degree angle. It was very startling and unnerved me a bit.'"

In Oakland, Me. (population 3,510), located on Maine Highway 11 about 60 miles (100 kilometers) north of Bangor, local police Officer Rick Stubbart "received a report of something falling from the sky into McGrath Pond...and planned to send divers out on Friday."

Elsewhere in Oakland, Kelly Sirois and her father, Ron Sirois, "heard loud explosions at 8:30 and at 10:30 p.m. that caused both to think that something had impacted with their house."

UFO phenomena were also reported in Deer Isle, six miles (10 kilometers) north of Stonington, and in Lincoln, Me. (population 3,399), a town on Highway 6 approximately 49 miles (78 kilometers) north of Bangor. (See the Bangor Daily News for January 30, 1998, "Witnesses see fireball in sky near Madawaska" and "More witnesses report seeing bright-colored county fireball." Many thanks to Gordon J. Gianninoto for these news stories.)

(Editor's Comment: Well, I guess we know what Stephen King's next novel is going to be about.)

MORE UFO SIGHTINGS NEAR PENSACOLA, FLORIDA

A spherical silver UFO appeared repeatedly over the Florida panhandle and southern Alabama and was seen by dozens of eyewitnesses.

In Gulf Breeze, Fla. (population 5,530), a resort town seven miles (11 kilometers) south of Pensacola, columnist Carole Baker of the Pensacola Beach Islander was driving on Shoreline Road at 6:35 p.m. on January 31, 1998 when she saw "not one but two bright red objects low on the horizon to the east."

Ms. Baker kept the objects in view for 90 seconds, adding, "The two red objects had a distinctive shape. Each central, large, ruby red light had adjacent to it on either side one smaller red light...This was suggestive to me of a ring-shaped configuration which we have witnessed in this area many times before."

On Thursday, February 5, 1998, Vicki Lyons of Pensacola, Fla. (population 58,165) experienced a strange compulsion at 2:30 p.m. "I suddenly without any real reason began to think that I should leave earlier."

Getting in her car, Ms. Lyons drove west on Interstate Highway 10 into Alabama. As she neared Elsanore, Ala. 16 miles (26 kilometers) west of Pensacola, "All of a sudden, I watched streaking across my windshield to the southwest a perfectly round silver ball, so silver it looked like a sterling silver perfect 'marble' in the sky."

Ms. Lyons told CNI News that the UFO "looked like an aspirin held at arm's length" and was about one mile away "It contrasted sharply against the cloudless blue sky. As I was looking at it and pondering pulling off the interstate (highway), it suddenly took off at tremendously fast speed and crossed in front of me, over the interstate and off to the north. The speed of the object was indescribable! It was so spectacular that I screamed in excitement when it flashed across in front of me."

On Saturday, February 7, 1998, Christie Edwards of Robertsdale, Ala., a town on Highway 90 about 27 miles (43 kilometers) southeast of Mobile, videotaped the silver sphere as it hovered above her house.

Two days later, on Monday, February 9, 1998, the UFO returned to Robertsdale. Ms. Edwards said, "It looks just like a bright light, but it's real big. And it looks like nothing I've ever seen before...a small, circular-looking silver object against a blue sky."

Fox Channel 10 TV aired the Edwards video during their evening broadcast on February 9.

On Wednesday, February 11, 1998, Pat Crumbley and her husband Buddy were driving on Interstate Highway 10 in Milton, Fla. (population 7,216) about 16 miles (26 kilometers) northeast of Pensacola when she spotted the silvery UFO.

"About 15 degrees off the horizon I saw a silver ball-shaped object," Mrs. Crumbley reported. "About one-half inch (one centimeter) in diameter at arm's length." She was so startled that "it took a couple of seconds to say, 'Buddy, look!' As he turned to look, it just disappeared." (See CNI News, Volume 3, Number 24, Part 1. Many thanks to Mike Lindemann of CNI News for letting UFO ROUNDUP quote from his news story. See also Filer's Files #6 for 1998. Many thanks to George A. Filer of MUFON for the information.)

BLACK HELICOPTER STALKS UFO OVER AN IOWA FARM

On Monday, February 2, 1998, at 10 p.m., Susan Landers, 50, her daughter Melissa Edgewick, 27, and son Michael Landers, 20 were at the family farm near Sioux City, Iowa (population 80,505) about 200 miles (320 kilometers) east of Des Moines when Melissa "heard the sound of jets but did not see them." She "then heard a high-pitched hum but did not locate the source of the noise."

"Next a dark-colored helicopter came over their house at less than 50 feet altitude. No markings were observed. Very large motor," reported Beverly Trout of Iowa MUFON, who interviewed the family.

"About 15 minutes later, the mother heard the copter and stepped out onto her bedroom's second-floor deck (balcony). The copter was overhead, and she could see its bottom and could feel vibration in the house."

Michael Landers, standing outdoors on the south side of the house, "could feel the disturbance 'wind' from the rotors. At first, the copter was right over their house."

Susan Landers "described two white lights--one at each end and a red light in the middle. Since she was aware of the green light requirement on aircraft, she specifically looked for a green light. There was none on the copter."

"After the copter left, all three watched through binoculars a bright orange ball move from the east to the southwest and then to the northwest of their residence. At one point, the ball stopped, then moved back to the southwest."

A week later, on Monday, February 9, 1998, at 11:45 a.m., Mrs. Landers and another son, Todd, 33, were driving to Sioux City when they saw a strange object hovering about a half-mile away.

The UFO was "200 feet above a nearby hill" and "perhaps at 500 feet altitude." Both witnesses described it as "a rectangular 'refrigerator' shaped object, perhaps a little smaller than a mid-sized car."

At first they thought they were "looking at the back end of a helicopter, but they saw that it had no wings. It was moving very fast and was a dull metallic gray in color."

Todd Landers described the UFO "as a refrigerator laying horizontal," while his mother described "some sort of energy bands coming from the top and bottom of the object, each had extended outward for about one-third the size of the object."

The glow created a shimmering effect, which Todd Landers described as "like looking through a fire."

Five days later, on Saturday, February 14, 1998, Michael Landers and Melissa Edgewick were returning home at 9:30 p.m. when they spied a UFO they described as "a 40-foot triangle" hovering above the road.

The UFO "was at about a one-and-one-half telephone pole in height" (33 feet or 10 meters--J.T.) above the road with "three bright white flashing lights at each corner of the triangle and a red light in the middle. The object moved from the east side of the road to the west side, and at one point the bright light from the object reflected on the nearby trees." (Many thanks to Beverly Trout of Iowa MUFON for these reports.)

TRUCKER VIDEOTAPES UFO IN SOUTHERN NEW MEXICO

On Saturday, February 14, 1998, truck driver Bill Sauter of San Diego, California was driving his rig on Interstate Highway 10 near Deming, New Mexico (population 10,970) about 100 miles (160 kilometers) west of El Paso, Texas.

As he was listening to his CB radio, "he heard talk about a strange object in the sky."

Since he always carries a video camcorder with him, Sauter pulled off the highway and stepped down from the cab. Spying the UFO over the desert, he lifted his camcorder and began shooting footage.

"It just picked up speed and--woosh--it was gone," Sauter told Channel 10 TV news in San Diego." He reportedly described it as "something out there that was not a missile and wasn't a blimp. It looked like a (Boeing) 747 but without wings."

Pictures of the UFO may be found at the San Diego UFO Information homepage at this URL: <http://www.arroweb.com/n6rpf/sauter.html> (Many thanks to Paul Cook for this news story.)

BLACK TRIANGULAR UFO SPOTTED IN MICHIGAN

On Thursday, February 5, 1998, at 7:45 p.m., high school senior Greg Parkins, 18, was driving through Howell, Michigan (population 8,184), located 57 miles (91 kilometers) west of Detroit, when he spotted a strange object in the sky.

He described the UFO as "a black triangular object...heading west and paralleling Mason Road and at an elevation of 55 to 60 degrees. Noted that the object had three real white blinking lights at the three points (corners) of the triangle."

Greg "pulled over to the side of the road to get a better look" and estimated that "the object was the size of a quarter held at arm's length...Although he made a point of looking for them, no navigational strobes--red, green or white--were seen at any time. He estimated the speed of the object to be 60 miles per hour." (See Filer's Files #6 for 1998. Many thanks to George A. Filer of MUFON and Dave Parrish, Michigan director of Skywatch International, for this report.)

NEW UFO FLAP RATTLES FOUR STATES IN AUSTRALIA

February was an active month for UFOs in the southern hemisphere, as well, with a new flap in Australia.

On Monday, February 9, 1998, at 9:50 p.m., "a dark triangular-shaped object with three orange illuminations" appeared in the sky over Geelong, Victoria (Vic.), a city 40 miles (64 kilometers) west of Melbourne. Witnesses reported that "it traveled very slowly, slower than an aircraft would fly" toward the Yan Yang Mountains northwest of Geelong.

Also, at 9:50 p.m. that night, in Blackwood, South Australia (S.A.), witnesses reported seeing "a very bright ball of white light. It appeared to pass across the sky at about 20 to 25 degrees above the northern horizon, heading west or northwest of Adelaide. Illumination flew straight and level."

On Wednesday, February 11, 1998, at 10:05 p.m., people in Toodyay, Western Australia (W.A.) near Perth saw "an object or illumination" come from the east and move to a stationary position near the moon. "It came to a holding (hovering) position just under the moon and changed colours. It then moved southward and changed direction. It crossed right overhead to the southwest of Perth in only seconds."

Minutes later, the UFO returned from the southwest, again flew over Toodyay and headed east. "It also traveled extremely fast. As the object traveled overhead the first time, it appeared to stop at one point--rise sharply up, then drop."

Smaller lights appeared to revolve around the UFO. A rumbling sound was heard following it. One witness reported, "Animals in the area--cockatoos, gallah sheep and dogs--were going crazy."

On Friday, February 13, 1998, at 9:22 p.m., witnesses at Stones Corner in Brisbane, Queensland (Qnld.) "spotted a bright point of light in the northern sky." As they watched, the UFO "exploded" into a bright circle of light that remained for several seconds. "The exploded illumination appeared to be the size of an orange at arm's length. It also did appear to have an orange-red glow" that "was very bright in the center."

The same Friday night, at 9:35 p.m., witnesses in Elstenwick, Vic., a suburb of Melbourne "sighted a navy blue or black disc-shaped object hovering to the northwest...The object looked like a Second World War British battle helmet and it moved from side to side" as it flew. Witnesses had the UFO in view for five or six minutes.

On Saturday, February 14, 1998, the black disc appeared again, this time over Queensland's Gold Coast. The UFO, which "appeared to be a solid functioning object, flew over at about 1,000 to 1,500 feet (altitude.) This disc-shaped object heading due north and flew on a straight and level course, its speed was slower than a commercial airliner and was only sighted for one to two minutes before disappearing."

On Sunday, February 15, 1998, at 9:45 p.m., witnesses in the St. Mary's section of Sydney, New South Wales (N.S.W.), Australia's largest city, "saw two very bright orange fireball illuminations crossing the sky underneath cloud" at about 3,600 feet altitude. The UFOs came from the direction of the RAAF Richmond air base "and they were heading towards Liverpool or the (Australian) Army's Hollworthy base." (Many thanks to Ross Dowe of the Australia-New Zealand National UFO Hotline for these reports.)

SAUCERS CONVERGE ON NORTHERN BRAZIL

Disc-shaped UFOs overflowed Fortaleza, the largest city in Brazil's Ceara state, and its suburbs three times on Monday, February 16, 1998.

Fortaleza is 1,760 kilometers (1,100 miles) north of Rio de Janeiro.

At 7:30 a.m., Neil Oliveiras Chagas spotted "a white object in the form of two inverted trapezoids with rounded edges and two blue lights." Oliveiras Chagas, an electrician by trade, grabbed his video camcorder and shot footage of the UFO.

At 5:20 p.m., Reginaldo Athayde, director-general of Centro de Pesquisas Ufologicas do Ceara (CPU-CE), a Brazilian UFO study group, while investigating the morning's sighting, witnessed another UFO overflight in Centro, Fortaleza's downtown district.

According to Sr. Athayde, he "saw another object in the sky of Centro, crossing the Rua Barrio de Rio Branco and the Rua Pedro Pereira. The object was very big, with a spherical form," moving first to the south and then heading east. It was last seen flying east over the South Atlantic.

A disc-shaped OVNI (Portuguese acronym for UFO) also appeared over the suburb of Cambeba, where it was videotaped by a TV crew from Verdes Mares.

At 6:30 p.m., "a luminous white point" was seen overhead in Varjota, another suburb of Fortaleza.

Saucers were also reported in Papicu, Messejana, Parangaba and Barru de Ceara, all districts of Fortaleza.

Later in the evening, "an object of discoidal form" was seen flying towards the South Atlantic from the beach at Praia do Futuro.

Sr. Athayde said, "We are going to analyze all of the material collected." (See the Brazilian newspaper Jornal do Povo for February 17, 1998, "Objeto Nao Identificado Sao Vistos Sobrevando Fortaleza." Muito obrigado a Pedro Cunha por eso caso.)

CHILE TV NETWORK AIRS VILLARICA UFO VIDEO

On Saturday, February 14, 1998, Television Nacional de Chile (TVN) aired an amateur video of a UFO encounter that took place last November.

On November 24, 1997, Vicente Constant, 26, and his family were driving to the Andes on vacation. They planned to visit Villarica volcano, a tourist attraction 688 kilometers (430 miles) south of Santiago de Chile, the national capital.

As they neared the volcano, Vicente took out his camcorder and began shooting footage of the Chilean countryside. Although they were in the Andes at a relatively high altitude--1,600 meters (5,280 feet, same as Denver, Colorado--J.T.), he reported, "Suddenly we began feeling a heavy pressure in the air."

"While moving the camera around (from the windshield to the right front window), just above the volcano appeared a cigar-shaped object that went from the upper right of the (view) screen to the left part. Then the object suddenly made a turn and took off, heading toward the upper left part of the screen. The scene seemed like a UFO entering Earth's atmosphere and then flying off. This object left no trail."

The videotape is being examined by Dr. Rafael Vera Mege of the University of Concepcion. A request to view and examine the tape has been made by Agrupacion de Investigaciones Ovniologicas (AION), Chile's famous UFO study group. (Muchas gracias a Luis Sanchez Perry para esas noticias.)

1942: ARMY GUNNERS FIRE AT UFOs OVER LOS ANGELES

On Wednesday, February 25, 1942, at precisely 2 a.m., diners at the trendy Trocadero club in Hollywood were startled when the lights winked out and air raid sirens began to sound throughout greater Los Angeles.

"Searchlights scanned the skies and anti-aircraft guns protecting the vital aircraft and ship-building factories went into action. In the next few hours they would fire over 1,400 shells at an unidentified, slow-moving object in the sky over Los Angeles that looked like a blimp, or a balloon."

Author Ralph Blum, who was a nine-year-old boy at the time, wrote that he thought "the Japanese were bombing Beverly Hills."

"There were sirens, searchlights, even anti-aircraft guns blamming away into the skies over Los Angeles. My father had been a balloon observation man (in the AEF) in World War One, and he knew big guns when he heard them. He ordered my mother to take my baby sisters to the underground projection room--our house was heavily supplied with Hollywood paraphernalia--while he and I went out onto the upstairs balcony."

"What a scene! It was after three in the morning. Searchlights probed the western sky. Tracers streamed upward. The racket was terrific."

Shooting at the aerial intruders were gunners of the 65th Coast Artillery (Anti-Aircraft) Regiment in Inglewood and the 205th Anti-Aircraft Regiment based in Santa Monica. The "white cigar-shaped object" took several direct hits but continued on its eastward flight.

Up to 25 silvery UFOs were also seen by observers on the ground.

Editor Peter Jenkins of the Los Angeles Herald Examiner reported, "I could clearly see the V formation of about 25 silvery planes overhead moving slowly across the sky toward Long Beach."

Long Beach Police Chief J.H. McClelland said, "I watched what was described as the second wave of planes from atop the seven-story Long Beach City Hall. I did not see any planes but the younger men with me said they could. An experienced Navy observer with powerful Carl Zeiss binoculars said he counted nine planes in the cone of the searchlight. He said they were silver in color. The (UFO) group passed along from one battery of searchlights to another, and under fire from the anti-aircraft guns, flew from the direction of Redondo Beach and Inglewood on the land side of Fort MacArthur, and continued toward Santa Ana and Huntington Beach. Anti-aircraft fire was so heavy we could not hear the motors of the planes."

Reporter Bill Henry of the Los Angeles Times wrote, "I was far enough away to see an object without being able to identify it...I would be willing to bet what shekels I have that there were a number of direct hits scored on the object."

At 2:21 a.m., Lt. Gen. John L. DeWitt issued the cease-fire order, and the twenty-minute "battle of Los Angeles" was over.

(See BEYOND EARTH: MAN'S CONTACT WITH UFOs by Ralph Blum, Bantam Books, New York, April 1974, page 68. All newspaper quotes taken from "The Battle of Los Angeles, 1942" by Terrenz Sword, which appeared in Unsolved UFO Sightings, Spring 1996 issue, pages 57 through 62.)

(Editor's Comment: Maybe the gang at the Black Vault could use the Freedom of Information Act to get the Army's Situation Reports for February 25, 1942 for the 65th and 205th A.A. Regiments. Wouldn't that be interesting reading!)

Hi Jorge

Thank you for a very interesting report.

I am glad to see that some very unusual and exciting things are happening somewhere other than North America. :-)

Seriously, with the way some people rant and rave you would be forgiven to think that only the wierdest and oddest things happened in the U.S. of A.

I don't mean to slander our American cousins but other things do happen elsewhere than their homeland and your report shows clearly that there are other places in the world where stories too strange to be fiction are being told of things that have happened to the people that live there.

Sean, don't even start. Someone very innocently made the same statement a few weeks ago (where were you?) and it resulted in the submission of hundreds of non-U.S. sightings reports to this list.

[Hundreds? (where was _I_? Non-U.S.? This _Canadian_ List goes world-wide -- ebk]

No one believes these things happen only in the U.S., and if you read any of the UFO newsletters on the Net, it's abundantly clear.

Bob,

Speaking of that have you heard some of the 1990's latest theorys on the Z film. People that follow the Kennedy assassination are now claiming --based upon their interpretation of the evidence, artifacts and what not. That the Z film was tampered (frames missing, film altered etc) with at the National Photographic Interpretation Center on the night of the assassination.

Wouldn't that be a hoot if somebody came up with a like minded theory about the Santilli film.

Cheers,
Robert

UFO*BC Information

From: UFO*BC <pengilly@axionet.com>
Date: Mon, 23 Feb 1998 04:18:04 GMT
Fwd Date: Mon, 23 Feb 1998 06:42:37 -0500
Subject: UFO*BC Information

*****
From time to time, UFO*BC sends out a group e-mail to let people know about upcoming lectures, changes to the website and interesting UFO tidbits. If you do not wish to be on this group list, please let us know and we will gladly remove your name.
*****

1) "Sightings On The Radio" - <http://www.sightings.com>

UFO*BC will be doing their monthly radio broadcast this Tuesday - February 24th, from 7 pm to 10 pm (PST). Although you might not find it on your radio dial, you can always listen live by going to the Sightings website. If you are busy that night you can listen to it another time by going to their archived files. This month UFO*BC will be taking a look at some of the Historical cases from British Columbia, including the amazing 1952 flap.

2) UFO*BC Website - <http://www.ufobc.org>

Please check out the latest addition to our website - a Guestbook!! Roger did an excellent job with this. Not only can people read all the old messages and submit new messages, but all the directors immediately get the message forwarded to them. Please leave us a message!! We know that you all have been holding back with your lavish praise for far too long (we do accept suggestions and minor criticisms).

We recently received a report from a former Commander in the Canadian military. He writes about an amazing sighting he had while on aboard the "HMCS Iroquois", travelling from Pearl Harbour to Guam, in 1952. This report, along with an excellent drawing, is our new "Feature Article". Check it out.

We finally have some new entries on our "Coming Events" page. Chad Deetken, of Pacific Research, will be giving a slideshow/lecture entitled : "Crop Circles, Ley Lines & Sacred Sites of England". The location will be at the H.R. MacMillan Planetarium, in Vancouver, on Saturday, March 21, 1998. UFO*BC highly recommends this lecture, as Chad is an excellent speaker and Crop Circle expert. UFO*BC and Dorothy Izatt will be giving a joint slideshow/lecture at the Planetarium on Saturday, April 4, 1998. UFO*BC will be talking about their latest cases, accompanied by some very interesting slides. Dorothy will show a collection of her unusual "lightform" photographs. Her work has baffled photographic professionals and the most respected psychic researchers from around the world. For more information please visit our "Events" page at:
<http://www.ufobc.org/events.htm>

*****
UFO*BC is always eager to hear about unusual B.C. sightings, both past and present. Please contact us if you have a story to tell, or come across one in an old magazine or newspaper. Our e-mail address is contactus@ufobc.org and our Hotline number is 604-878-6511.

Bob and List,

This example of Mr Santilli's crusade for truth just knocked me off my chair, although I doubt he would have reacted in the same way towards a piece of work titled:

"The ins and outs of the AA fraud"

The "Beyond Roswell" book and the CD are, for Mr Santilli, free, direct promotion. You should have had it the other way around: charge him for the two works.

One thing gets cleared up though: a couple of months ago, there was a thread here on who has the rights on the AA stuff. It now seems that you have answered the question: Mr Santilli is the main owner of the film(s). Guess the one who sold it to him must be biting his nails.

McDonald vs. Condon

In looking at how the Condon Commission was set up and handled it is obvious that the same technique was used vis--E0-vis UFOs as was done in relation to the effects of fallout here in the United States. That is, after the Castle/Bravo test in the Pacific, the one that irradiated the Japanese fishing boat and killed a crewman, the AEC was in constant damage control.

When the going got really rough, before the 1956 elections, a prestigious panel was set up by the National Academy of Sciences to "study" the issue. Lewis Strauss, the former investment banker and chairman of the Rockefeller Foundation, who just happened to be chairman of the AEC at this time, stated that he would let the "unbiased" NAS make the call on fallout in the United States. However, we know now that the NAS was in fact dominated by the "bomb group" and allowing them to rule on fallout was giving the foxes the key to the chicken house with an engraved invitation. But no one in our "free press" caught on to what was happening.

The Robertson Committee was the same kind of thing, its members all veterans of Secret Science, hip deep in deception. They, too, were called an "unbiased" group and then later, when the report became public, were said to have been "misled" by the CIA. What a laugh. Robertson, Alvarez and Berkner, in particular, were totally immersed in secret weapons projects for the CIA and the military, and had been for many, many years. You know, the funding agency could have come out here to Missouri and found someone truly unbiased, couldn't they have? Yes. But they didn't, did they? No, they picked people who knew how to keep a secret and had been dealing with the agency for years. Case closed.

Several years ago Jacques Vallee published an account of what he called the Pentacle memo, which he said proved that there had been a large-scale secret investigation of UFOs before 1953. This became an item in ufology, for a little while. Some people said they were surprised. As for me, wasn't at all surprised, having already closely read Ruppelt and found out that there had been several secret investigations, starting in 1947! What was the big deal? Had everyone been asleep for the last 45 years? Apparently so.

In any event, the man put in charge of the late 1960s UFO whitewash was Edward Condon, a first-class scientist who had worked on the bomb and was a former head of the Bureau of Standards. He was also about to retire, in much the same way as the issuer of a recent Air Force report on Roswell was said to "retire." But no matter, Condon was at the end of his career and he spared no expense to ridicule and deny UFOs and all associated phenomena, activities that had no effect on his ultimate judges, the NAS and the press. They all fell into line like magnetic filings in the field of Klystron and the whole report went down like butter.

Was this UFO assignment a 'punishment' for Condon? I wonder about this because back in the 1950s Condon was one of the few 'real scientists' who spoke out at all concerning the atomic tests and their resultant fallout. For his trouble he was again called a 'pink,' as he had been called during the height of the McCarthy years, when he was actually investigated for leftish leanings. What do you want to bet that Condon was actually a member of some of those 'secret investigations,' perhaps even dating back into World War II and the 'foo fighters?' It's certainly possible.

And look at McDonald, a top atmospheric scientist who came into his own just as those nuclear tests were hitting their stride. And McDonald had some top-secret Navy programs on his resume when he died. I rather imagine he knew something about that fallout problem but I don't have any information on whether or not he (McDonald) spoke out against the tests, as Condon did. But McDonald ripped into Condon after the UFO report came out, shredding both him and Hynek, accusing them both of scientific incompetence on a grand scale. Hovering over the whole affair, to me, as I was reading more and more about it in the late 1980s, was a miasma of bad consciences, of acrimony, of a personal nature. What axes did Condon and McDonald have to grind with each other, I wonder? Could UFOs have been only one of them?

(more later)

While it can be said that Ray benefits indirectly from the the book and CD, he hasn't attempted to market his "film" recently, and I'm not convinced that he is making much of anything from it at this point. In his interview with Philip Mantle, it is apparent that he believes that he really failed to profit as much as he should have from the release of the "Second Autopsy". Of course, that's a matter of debate.

I'm not sure you can ignore the financial backer, Volker Spielberg, who allegedly financed Ray's entry into this genre. But certainly Ray has a large voice in how the "film" is distributed.

One of the drawbacks about my 'task' is that it takes up a huge amount of time and resources with little or no financial reward. Therefore, when 'the call' comes to replenish the fund, I respond, especially when the job is somewhere warm and sunny. Despite El Nino's effects, it's still winter in Canada, which is usually akin to winter in Siberia!

So, with a heavy heart, knowing how some readers will be utterly lost without their UpDates, [;^}] I have to announce that this List will be off-line as of 20:00hrs (-0500) today, Tuesday, February 24 until the afternoon of Thursday, March 4.

- Echelon collects electronic data, also for economic purposes

Japanese trade delegations, Amsterdam bank offices and airport terminals in Palermo have one thing in common: they are electronically monitored by the American spy network Echelon. By routinely tapping into Intelsat satellite traffic the Echelon system, owned and operated by the US National Security Agency (NSA), is capable of intercepting millions of telephone, fax and Internet messages.

These are the conclusions of a report published by an investigative committee of the European Union.

With advanced search software and speech recognition technology, the NSA scans telephone conversations and written messages for key words. The data collected in Europe are transmitted via British NSA bases, such as Menwith Hill, to NSA headquarters in Fort Mead, Maryland.

The report 'An appraisal of technologies of political control', assembled by the British research bureau Omega, was written for the European Directorate General Research. The report estimates the current annual NSA budget at eight billion dollar, more than the CIA budget.

The NSA prides itself of employing the best cryptographers in the world to decipher all kinds of encrypted electronic messages. They use techniques like statistical methods, neural networks and genetic algorithms. The data collected are not exclusively used in the interest of national security, but also for economic purposes. British, Canadian, Australian and New Zealand intelligence agencies cooperate with the NSA on a regular basis. NSA bases are located near Alice Springs (Australia), Bad Aibling (Germany), Misawa (Japan) and Menwith Hill (UK). Last autumn the USA launched the spy satellite Trumpet that had a size larger than a football field. The capabilities of this satellite are classified, but its builder Hughes also produces a commercial satellite one tenth the size of the Trumpet that can relay 16,000 telephone conversations simultaneously.

An open letter to the president of the United States

American Computer Company
6 Commerce Drive, 2nd Floor, Cranford, N.J. 07016

February 23rd, 1998
DELIVERED BY PUBLIC ANNOUNCEMENT
HON. PRESIDENT WILLIAM JEFFERSON CLINTON
THE WHITE HOUSE
1600 PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE NORTHWEST
WASHINGTON, DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA 20500-0001

Dear Mr. President:

In a recent appearance, you told a citizen of the Russian Republic, a youngperson, that there was no "UFO" that landed near Roswell, N.M. in 1947. Then, speaking more frankly, you admitted that you tried to find out, andthat the Defense Department either didn't or wouldn't tell you. I think my point to you that this issue is one of those issues that couldpotentially unite our fragmented world together, is well taken by the younglady's question in that far off land.

For the Record: all of us, at ACC (and I think a very large number of Americans) who believe this entire issue is still an open question, STRONGLY RECOMMEND YOU CHANGE YOUR OFFICIAL PUBLIC POSITION ON THE QUESTION OF WHETHERTHE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT, THE PENTAGON AND THE AIR FORCE, HAVE A SPACE CRAFTOF EXTRA-TERRESTRIAL ORIGIN. SEVERAL NOTED PERSONS FORMERLY EMPLOYED BY THE US GOVERNMENT WOULD DISAGREE WITH WHAT YOU SAID TO THAT LITTLE RUSSI ANGIRL!

In support of this end, the American Computer Company is offering a reward to the Public as set forth here.

The American Computer Company hereby offers a $1,000,000

REWARD to the first person who provides us confidential information which leads to the exposure of the whereabouts and leads to the public viewing of an Extra-Terrestrial Space Craft, that is: a Space Craft or other Flying Object designed and built by other than Humans or Human employed robotic devices, such as may be in the possession of the United States Department of Defense, the United States Army, United States Air Force, The Pentagon, or any other Agency or Organization of the United States Government.

Said reward is to be paid upon formal verification by Public Auditors employed by the American Computer Company, and General Public viewing of the Craft. Excluded from the right to collect this reward are all employees of the American Computer Company and their families, and any person for whom such a reward would be prohibited by law.

Mr. Clinton, we politely remind you of your OATH OF OFFICE, in which you agreed to uphold the Laws of the United States of America, one of which laws PROHIBITS YOU FROM LYING TO THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

Sincerely,
Jack A. Shulman
President
American Computer Company

ACC's Grand Strategy
*****

- Jack Shulman: 'One bomb shell per month'

Journalist Pat McCartney of the Lake Tahoe Tribune interviewed Jack Shulman of American Computer Co. last January.

'Personally, I find their story, and Philip Corso's, pointing to an unexpected direction of UFO research, namely the private sector. I think you will find Shulman's goals as interesting as I did. Unfortunately, there doesn't seem to be much of a way to speed the process up, unless you can help with their research.

I will be writing about ACC and Corso spoiling Bell Labs' 50th anniversary of the transistor for my paper, so if anyone has an informed and opinionated comment they'd like to share, you can e-mail me or call me at the Trib (530-542-8012). As others have described, interviewing Shulman is quite an experience. He's extremely voluble, and you really have to work to break in and ask a question or redirect his monologue.

Having said that, he's also quite friendly, very open to a point, and fluent about computers in a way I can only envy. We spoke for more than 90 minutes, when he returned a call I left in the morning asking to talk to someone about the company's Roswell page.

My main interest was to see what kind of care and research they are exercising with regards to the "lab shopkeeper's notebook" they acquired that kicked off their current "investigation."

If their claim -- that the notebook is evidence that Bell Lab's 1947 "discovery" of the transistor was based on their receiving debris from a crashed saucer -- proves to be true, than this document may come as close to being the smoking gun as anything we could wish.

When you think about it, it only makes sense that such documents would surface in the private sector, which by definition is not under the direct control of the federal government. And, as much evidence suggests, unacknowledged programs have been privatized to a large degree over the years.

Following are points he made about the documents, in answer to my questions.

- 1) The notebook bears the "eyes only" security stamp of the then-War Department, along with the printed names of Bell Labs and General Electric.
- 2) Shulman said the notebook wasn't a hardbound diary, but rather a ring binder with individual pages and reports. Some of the reports are typed, others are mimeographed or handwritten.
- 3) If I followed him correctly, the consultant's initial acquisition of a journal came from the "estate of the deceased shopkeeper."

- 4) The unnamed consultant then somehow acquired 28 boxes of supporting material, perhaps from inside Bell Labs was the implication, but he did not specify how. Shulman first said each box contained 300 pages -- which would be under 10,000 in all -- but described the complete collection as 20,000 pages!

- 5) The old cardboard boxes are rotting and some of the papers in terrible condition. They smell to high heaven, Shulman said. His staff wear masks and gloves while working with the documents, and are using sealants and plastics to restore and protect the pages.

- 6) Because of the instability of the decaying pages, the investigators have photographed, rather than photocopied them.

- 7) Age analysis (unspecified) has confirmed the age of the paper as being from early 1940s to 1947, indicating it was written on different stores of paper.

- 8) A university forensics expert (unnamed) is analyzing the style of the reports for inconsistencies and other information.

Shulman told me the company is planning some kind of public event within 90 days, publicizing what it has learned about the shopkeeper's notebook, and the revolutionary ideas that it may contain. He was very vague about what he planned to disclose, and I simply advised him to go with a hired gun public relations firm that could get the attention of the mainstream media.

During our dialogue, Shulman said his Grand Strategy is to force the government to make its own disclosure by releasing top secret information from the notebook and supporting documents at a rate of one bombshell a month.

"Let's say there are 600 such details in all," Shulman said. "We can release one a month for 50 years, devastating military secrecy, until they realize the public losses are so great that they will have to throw in the towel."

He identified the transcapacitor, announced Dec. 5, and the photonitron, announced Jan. 4, as the first two exposes. I did not ask about future announcements.

He said he has given representatives of the major players, including the Air Force, National Security Agency, Army Intelligence and Office of Special Investigations a certain (unspecified) deadline to come forth, or he will upload the entire collection of 20,000 pages of documents onto the Internet.

"If they don't prove the case of Roswell, we'll go public," Shulman said. Shulman describes himself as a patriot who is outraged by the action of his government (and its contractors). Today's political leaders, and other keepers-of-the-secret, "have inherited a responsibility that is outside Constitutional authority," he said.

In other words, no matter what the original need was to hide information about the Roswell crash, the government now has an obligation to reveal it.

"I think the answer to Roswell is apparent," Shulman said. "I think the answer needs to be disclosed, and the government needs to own up to it." Shulman said he has made certain his plan to release the material will not be affected if he is harmed or thwarted in some other way. "We set up a mechanism, a process that will outlast me," he said.

He was not so helpful in steering me to people knowledgeable about the notebook or the transcapacitor who are independent of the American Computer Co., or who have not signed non-disclosure agreements. I will have to scrape to get comments from other insiders.

That's the gist of Shulman's remarks. He is a meteoric speaker, much given to sprinting away on a tangent until reined in. Someone who knows more about computers, or the companies and agencies he talked about, might have gleaned more than I from the conversation, but, as I say, interviewing Jack Shulman is a challenge. You'd need at least a weekend to debrief him. At the end, he was even trying to give me computer advice when I mentioned my love/hate relationship with computers.

I plan to do more interviews before writing a piece for my paper within the next two weeks.

I can hardly wait for the ACC story to unfold. The proof, of course, will be in the successful operation of the devices the notebook, but at least we won't have to wait until the transcapacitor to go into production to learn more.'

Subject: UFOs In The Former Soviet Union?

Dear Colleagues,

I would once again like to ask for your assistance in obtaining information on UFO's in the former Soviet Union. This is in connection with a long term research project I have been involved with and any assistance would be greatly appreciated.

I am looking for information from the former Soviet Union on the following topics:

1. General UFO sightings.
2. UFO crashes.
3. Abduction accounts.
4. UFO photographs.
5. Contactees.
6. Military sightings.
7. UFO sightings by Cosmonauts.
9. In short, just about anything and everything there is on UFOs in the former Soviet Union.

If you can help me please contact me at:

Philip Mantle,
1 Woodhall Drive,
Batley, West Yorkshire,
England, WF17 7SW.
E-mail: el51@dial.pipex.com

If you are unable to help me with this request I would appreciate it if you could pass it onto your colleagues in the hope that they might be able to assist me in my search for information.

Yours Sincerely,

Philip Mantle.

Oh, yeah, and did whoever it was that sold the stolen or fake

And, in that regard, anyone contemplating that megabuck who

Of course, the US Government couldn't claim ownership without also admitting its veracity. I'm not sure if it would eventually fall into the public domain or not, but it would seem that even if it is real there is little chance that the Government is going to comment one way or the other.

>Oh, yeah, and did whoever it was that sold the stolen or fake goods to Mr. Santilli pay income taxes on his/her/its ill-gotten gains? I hope the IRS is looking into this. It would be nice to see the revenooers go after a real crook (hoaxer or thief, as the case may be) for a change.

If the "Cameraman" is ever identified, that could be a problem for him. Of course, the tax issue was one of the first things mentioned as to why he wouldn't come forward. OTOH, I'm not sure what the IRS has to look into at this point. All they have are the comments of a music promoter regarding an alleged payment to an unidentified American of an undisclosed amount of money for a "film" that most people believe to be non-existent.

In the event that the cameraman gets caught by the feds and needs money to pay his legal bills he can apply to the American Computer Company (www.accp.com..... look for Roswell related stuff) for their $ 1M reward for providing absolute proof (because the government couldn't prosecute the cameraman for stealing/leaking classified material if it isn't property of the government... and if it IS property of the government, then it is (probably) really ET)

The 'Rendlesham Forest' Case

From: James Easton <pulsar@compuserve.com>
Date: Tue, 24 Feb 1998 20:46:02 -0500
Fwd Date: Tue, 24 Feb 1998 23:31:12 -0500
Subject: The 'Rendlesham Forest' Case

Subscribers may care to note that during the period of Errol's departure to a more profitable and we trust warmer climate, a report entitled, 'Rendlesham Unravalled', will be published on the events which took place at RAF Bentwaters/Woodbridge and Rendlesham Forest in late December 1980.

The report is a result of several months research and will confirm the likely explanation for the incidents which led to the submission of Lieutenant-Colonel (subsequently Colonel) Charles Halt's memo to the Ministry of Defence.

Published for the first time, are details of critical new documentary evidence which casts grave doubts on the claims that a 'UFO' may have been witnessed by base personnel on separate occasions.

Now proven beyond any dispute, despite Colonel Halt's protestations that neither the security police or himself would have been deceived by the lights from the nearby Orford Ness lighthouse or Shipwash lightship, the lighthouse played a much more significant role than was ever before realised.

Although this fact was documented at the time and was known to Colonel Halt and other key witnesses, it has never previously been publicly disclosed by them.

As a distinct aside, also encompassed is revealing new evidence which illustrates how Larry Warren's claims have changed dramatically from the statements he originally made whilst under the pseudonym of Art Wallace.

Further details will be available during the next couple of days from my web site, at URL:

<http://ourworld.compuserve.com/homepages/pulsar/>

Some of the case's foremost researchers and others who provided invaluable feedback and assistance, have been made aware of the findings and resulting conclusions, reactions including:

"The witness statements are a valuable addition to our knowledge about the case. As you rightly point out, they undermine much of what the witnesses themselves later said, by which time their own memories had presumably begun to fade and they had started to elaborate on the story.

I look forward to hearing other people's reactions to your highly persuasive findings".

Ian Ridpath, editor and publisher of several leading books on astronomy and major critic of the 'UFO' claims.

"Good for you sir, I think I've just read my first journalistic article about the non-incident at RAF Woodbridge".

Chris Arnold, who served with the 81st Security Police Squadron and reported the initial 'UFO' incident to local police.

"Congratulation on your achievements.

Rendlesham is at best half the case it was and may turn out to have been little of any substance after all".

Jenny Randles, one of Britain's leading writers on the 'unexplained', she has written three books on the case.

Jenny knows I share her disappointment that a case we thought still had a number of unexplained aspects - particularly the 'triangular' shaped craft reportedly encountered - evidently now calls into question the reliability of even the most ostensibly credible witness testimony.
