Alien Abduction Victim Speaks
By Stan Hernandez

The phenomena of alien abduction is dismissed by many and it's not a surprise. The idea of extraterrestrials taking humans onto their crafts for experimentation purposes sounds like something out of a science fiction film, but through years of study, investigation, interviews, and more, I have concluded that this is a true occurrence that cannot just be swept under the rug.

I have interviewed countless abduction victims, but I try to only present those that I find the most compelling here in this forum. One of these is Ricardo Gomez, a social worker out of Nevada that has suffered the same fate that many others in his position have. He was suspended from work when he reported the abduction. Here is his story:

Fatal Distraction: Can UFOs Cause Air Accidents?
by Ray Villard

Pilots have been seeing unexplained things outside their cockpit windows since the dawn of aviation.

One of the most legendary examples happened near the end of World War II when both Allied and German pilots reported seeing fiery glowing objects that followed their planes and then disappeared in wild maneuvers.

The sky phantoms were nicknamed foo-fighters (long before the 1990s alternative rock band), and thought to be secret military weapons. The term "UFO" didn't appear until a few years later -- at the height of anticipation over the eventuality of human space travel.

In the Oct. 19th, an issue of U.S. News & World Report, editor Michael Morella warns that UFOs distract pilots and can cause air disasters.

This is not my usual kind of post. This is a bit of fiction that I wrote a few weeks back and I thought I might amuse the List readers.

All the best

Sean

Eleven Days in April

Day One

Wednesday April 8th: The Sun Newspaper=92s Headline =91UFO Crashes at Airbase=92

Reports late last night came in that a UFO made a crash landing at the Royal Navy=92s Fleet Air Arm airfield by visitors to the museum. Numerous eyewitnesses=92 said that a black triangle shaped UFO made a crash landing around the closing time of the museum. The crashed UFO was quickly covered then moved into an aircraft hanger. More on page four.

Day Two

Thursday April 9th: The Guardian=92s strap line =91Mysterious Object at Yeovilton, full report inside=92

On Page six: There are multiple eye witness reports of a triangular shaped object making a forced landing at the Royal Navy=92s air base at Yeovilton. No definitive identification has been forthcoming, but there is a suggestion of a delta wing stealth type aircraft. The reason that it has been suggested that it might be an unidentified flying object is that no sound was heard prior to the incident, or after. Other more qualified witness=92s (recognised plane spotters) informed this reporter that it couldn=92t possibly be a glider due to the things shape.

Day Three

Friday April 10th: The Daily Sport=92s Headline =91Aliens Got Me Pregnant=92

Alison Boyd, 23, claims that aliens abducted her and they made her pregnant during the event. Whilst this extraordinary claim would normally be scoffed at, she accurately drew a picture of a black craft, which the witnesses claim, is what crashed at Yeovilton on Wednesday. More on pages 3 and 4.

Day Four

Saturday April 11th: The Times Newspaper=92s Headline =91MOD Arrest Twelve at Yeovilton=92

The military police at the Royal Navy air base Yeovilton have so far arrested twelve individuals climbing fences and trying to enter hanger 18 to get photographs of the alleged crashed UFO.

1 Days In April

At present there is no evidence of an extra terrestrial craft at Yeovilton, but rumours persist and the Royal Navy are drafting in extra security for the growing problem at the base.

Day Five

Sunday April 12th: The Sunday Mirror=92s Headline =915000 camped at Yeovilton

With the ever growing army UFO watchers outside the Royal Navy base in Somerset there are concerns over the security and what measures are being taken to disperse the die-hard believers in all things UFO. To date, there have been no new sightings, and the Royal Navy are not issuing any statements denying or confirming that they have a crashed alien spacecraft.

Day Six

Monday April 13th: The Sun Newspapers Headline =91The UK=92s Roswell=92

As the crowd camped outside of Yeovilton exceeds ten thousand many experts are claiming that this crashed UFO is the UK=92s Roswell. In July 1947 Major Jessie Marcel of the USAF found the remains of a crashed UFO outside of Roswell, New Mexico. To this day the US military deny this fact. UFO buffs are now claiming this is the UK=92s Roswell incident. More information and new witness reports on pages, 2,3,4,5, and six.

Day Seven

Tuesday April 14th: The Mail Newspaper strap line =91Pressure Mounts for the Royal Navy to Come Clean=92

With the ever-growing numbers camped at Yeovilton there is a public demand for the Royal Navy to come clean and release information to identify the object, which crash-landed just one week ago. The museum has been forced to shut its doors five days ago and the military police have been extremely diligent in maintaining the bases=92 security. Too diligently according to some reports. With international media now camped outside the gates, the eyes of the world are quite literally watching and waiting.

Day Eight

Wednesday April 15th: The Times Newspapers Headline =91Questions asked in Parliament=92

Last night in the Prime Ministers question time the MP Nigel Havercroft asked the Prime Minister if he knew what the Royal Navy was hiding at Yeovilton. The PM denied any knowledge of wrong doing by the RN but assured the house that he would be speaking in the strongest possible terms to the Admiralty to issue a public statement within the next forty-eight hours.

Day Nine

Thursday April 16th: The Daily Express Newspaper Headline =91US President to visit Yeovilton=92

There have been many speculative reports today the US president and the Prime Minister are today visiting senior Navy officers at Yeovilton to obtain answers from the Royal Navy. With the worlds media focused on a small town in Somerset answers are being demanded about what they are allegedly concealing. No official statement from either office confirms or denies this rumour raging all over the internet.

Day Ten

Friday April 17th: The Daily Mirror=92s Headline =91X92 Finally Unveiled=92

Yesterday at twelve noon the Royal Navy opened hanger 18 and towed out a black delta wing air craft for the world to see. They claim that this hydrogen fueled sub orbital plane is the cause of the entire furor. They named this joint RAF/Royal Navy ram jet plane the X92, which made a forced landing due to a fueling issue.

With this news the vast crowd that had camped outside the Royal Navy airfield started to disperse later the same day. The local council are demanding funding from parliament for the clean up operation.

Day Eleven

Front Page of the The Sun newspaper:

Heiress of Sachs Empire Missing

Lady Sarah Whittingly-Jones goes missing after a boat trip to Monaco. Fears are =85.

Epilogue

Memo:

Date 17th May

From Air Chief Marshall Charles Halt, MBE to Rear Admiral James Smythe

Re Operation: Aringarosa

The operation was a complete success. No public or press observations and/or reports of the Skylon space plane taking off or landing at RAF Lossiemouth during all the public and press attention to X92 incident at Yeovilton.

As planned, two missions were undertaken. The first, to circle the globe and the second to dock at the International Space Station were a complete success. Thus proving that viability of Skylon.

All scheduled future missions to proceed as planned.

Regards

Charles

P.S. Will catch up in person at my daughters wedding in three weeks.

This is not worth a look. It's just more recycled garbage that has been trotted out for the last 50 years.

The usual cliches and tired old catch phrases such a 'true believers' and comments from the 'experts ' at Skeptical Enquirer' abound.

Note the careful avoidance of Valentich, Moncla and Jose Torres
- all of whom died during an unexplained UFO encounter. These are not easily explained away as common occurrences.

It amazes me that online newspapers pay for this un-researched crap. We are held to account for accurate detailing while the debunker just makes claims and the anointed fall into line.

I'm sure this one made its way around a few weeks ago.

UFO Enthusiasts Admit The Truth May Not Be Out There After All

Declining numbers of "flying saucer" sightings and failure to establish proof of alien existence has led UFO enthusiasts to admit they might not exist after all.

By Jasper Copping

For decades, they have been scanning the skies for signs of alien activity.

But having failed to establish any evidence for the existence of extraterrestrial life, Britain's UFO watchers are reaching the conclusion that the truth might not be out there after all.

Enthusiasts admit that a continued failure to provide proof and a decline in the number of "flying saucer" sightings suggests that aliens do not exist after all and could mean the end of "Ufology" - the study of UFOs - within the next decade.

Dozens of groups interested in the flying saucers and other unidentified craft have already closed because of lack of interest and next week one of the country's foremost organisations involved in UFO research is holding a conference to discuss whether the subject has any future.

Dave Wood, chairman of the Association for the Scientific Study of Anomalous Phenomena (ASSAP), said the meeting had been called to address the crisis in the subject and see if UFOs were a thing of the past.

UFOs Near Malmstrom AFB Sites September 2012

UFOs Reported Near Malmstrom AFB's Nuclear Missile Sites In September 2012:

Two V-Shaped Craft Sighted Southeast Of Oscar Flight Launch
Facility O-03

On September 19th, at 10:19 pm., the Fergus County, Montana Sheriff's Office received a call from an individual reporting a strange sight in the sky. The key passage in the official log entry reads:

Central Montana dispatch advised of a call from Jennifer Styer who reported seeing 2 V-shaped objects with orange lights flying very low northwest of Roy. Jennifer wanted to know if they might be Air Force aircraft...

Dispatch called Malmstrom who stated that they "have no aircraft out by Roy tonight..."

The small town of Roy is approximately one mile west-northwest of Malmstrom's Oscar-01 Missile Alert Facility (MAF), and underground Launch Control Center, where two officers electronically monitor ten Minuteman-III nuclear missiles - scattered around the surrounding countryside in subterranean silos - waiting to unleash them, if ever ordered to do so by the President of the United States.

I first learned of recent UFO sightings in north-central Montana when two of them, occurring on September 21st, were posted at the National UFO Reporting Center's website three days later.

Because I was scheduled to lecture at the University of Montana on October 9th, I decided to visit the region where the sightings occurred immediately thereafter, to see what might be uncovered. That scouting trip led to the Fergus County Sheriff's Office, where I found the record of Jennifer Styer's call in their blotter.

I then drove to Roy and met with her and some of her neighbors' townspeople and ranchers - who had seen UFOs over the years.
Significantly, a number of them told me that Air Force activity
- both security patrols and the presence of missile maintenance vans - has dramatically increased in recent weeks.

Ha! A quick search shows that Jasper Copping has also written a number of articles confirming the existence of UFOs and their sightings by well qualified witnesses.

Maybe see:

<http://tinyurl.com/c8nz979>

"The UFO sighting that convinced a Government minister", and follow the links to "related articles".

So it seems that Copping is merely a somewhat typical UK media-hack, willing to write whatever he's told - regardless of the facts.

That sort of hubris and denial is also responsible for the corrupt mess that is UK's media (inc. BBC), policing, judiciary, fiscal system, bureaucracy and, over-archingly, UK's parliament.

After a little observation a logical analyst learns to discount almost all 'information' from those sources and instead to look for concealed motives and activities.

Cheers

Max Burns - The Sheffield UFO Incident
by Anthony Beckett

Max Burns is a UK-based researcher whose has investigated topics as diverse as the Bilderberg Group and UFO phenomenon. His investigations into the Sheffield UFO Incident - sometimes known as the Howden Moor incident - led to appearances on BBC Radio Sheffield to discuss the allegations of an unacknowledged air crash in the Pennine Mountains near Sheffield.

In this lecture Max details UFO sightings over Sheffield and the Pennines on the evening on March 24th, 1997 and also provides supporting testimony of witnesses to an air crash. Highlighting the extent to which Dr David Clarke (head of journalism at Sheffield Hallam University) and ufologist Andrew Roberts went to shut down discussion and analysis of information pertaining to this event and the efforts made to discredit the case - Max lays out the case that these 'UFO researchers' and a number of others - are in fact agents of disinformation working to some other agenda.

Max Burns presented The Sheffield UFO Incident on Saturday August 6th, 2011 at the British Exopolitics Expo at the University of Leeds.

Subject: Transcribing UFO Podcasts And Documentaries

A while ago I mentioned I was interested in including PDF transcripts of podcasts in my growing library of digitised UFO material.

I thought I'd report back to this List about a bit of experimenting I conducted with a few options.

The results were rather disappointing.

After a bit of searching, it seemed that the two most promising pieces of software were Dragon Naturally Speaking and Adobe Soundbooth's Speech Search transcription function.

(1) Dragon Naturally Speaking

Dragon Naturally Speaking is discussed on various websites, including at:

<http://tinyurl.com/b8zoskx>

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=kqEB7ju9HrI>

In short, after doing some reading regarding Dragon Naturally Speaking, it seems that software needs to be trained to the voice of a particular individual, by that individual reading out various passages of text. This is, of course, a considerable problem when I was seeking a means to transcribe large archives of podcasts featuring various presenters and guests.

(2) Adobe Soundbooth:

I therefore turned to Adobe Soundbooth's "Speech Search" transcription function which is discussed online at, amongst other places, this link:

<http://tinyurl.com/y9an2tk>

I used that software to create a transcript of Episode 400 of EBK's Strange Days Indeed... podcast. That sample transcript is at:

<http://minus.com/mbqBwo3Ipc/>

As can be seen from that sample, the results are basically unusable and I'm not convinced that seeking to correct that transcript would be quicker than starting from scratch and simply transcribing a podcast manually.

(3) Using Youtube's automated "closed caption" system:

While looking into the above two pieces of software, I can access some material on Youtube's automatic "closed caption" system. Basically, it is possible to upload any video or podcast to Youtube and use Youtube's automated system to create a transcript of that material. The link above includes a sample of second transcript of Episode 400 of EBK's "Strange Days Indeed" podcast created using this method. (The relevant episode of Strange Days Indeed was uploaded to a private folder so it was not made publically available. Errol is happy for me to share the sample transcripts created by the various methods outlined above).

While this method has the advantage of being free and very easy to use, the results are - once again - very disappointing and almost unusable as can be seen the from Youtube sample transcript at the link above.

(4) Downloading Youtube's "Closed Captions":

One of the more interesting incidental discoveries I made during the above exercises regarding transcribing podcasts is that the closed captions that can be displayed on almost all Youtube videos (by clicking on the "CC" at the bottom right of each video and selecting "Transcribe Auto") can be downloaded quickly and easily using various methods. The simplest and most reliable that I've found so far being the one at this link:

<http://tinyurl.com/ahbb4wo>

i.e.
Open the video page in Chrome browser (or any other browser that provides HTTP debugging/Developer Tools) and pause the video

Right click anywhere on the page, and click on Inspect Element

OR hit the F12 function key.

Click on Network tab

Under the Network tab, look for an item called timedtext.

Right click on it and open that file in a new tab.

An xml file containing subtitles with their timestamps(the stuff inside of <>) opens up.

You can then convert the transcript into numerous formats using free software, e.g.: "Subtitle Edit" at:

<http://www.nikse.dk/>

Since many UFO documentaries are already on Youtube, I thought this could be a great way of quickly building up a library of transcripts of documentaries.

Unfortunately, the automated transcripts on Youtube videos are generally _very_ poor and hence not much use.

They can, however, be quite amusing.

For example, if you turn on the automated captions on Youtube's copy of de Caro's "Special Assignment" on CNN at the link below, you get treated to mis-transcriptions such as "that silly UFO" (4:47) and "crap landing" (5:16), plus my favourite - when Airman Greg Battram ("Airman Greg") states on the video that "I think I saw a UFO, some kind of spaceship from someplace not of this Earth" the automated captions for the final bit say "someplace closer" (4:41). Preparing my own transcript for ease of future reference and searches using that transcript as a starting point turned out to be rather time consuming due to the errors and missing sections in the automated transcript:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=sPkoqYXhyik>

Many of the comments on Youtube's automated closed captions include the word "FAIL". In fact, the weakness of Youtube's automated transcriptions is the source of some humour in the Youtube video at the link below:

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=hVNrkXM3TTI>

In a small number of cases, the transcripts on UFO documentaries on Youtube are very good because someone has uploaded a human transcription. But a bit of random sampling of UFO videos on Youtube suggests this applies to, oh, less than 1 percent of videos so this only applies to a very small number of UFO documentaries (as does - so far as I've seen - downloading transcripts of UFO documentaries from Livedash.com and torrent websites).

All-in-all, I found these results very disappointing.

I'll post something based on the above on the AboveTopSecret.com forums shortly, since there are many technically capable members on there that may be aware of some service or software that can improve on the poor results mentioned above.

All the best,

Isaac

Review: The Stardust Revolution
by Jeff Foust

The Stardust Revolution: The New Story of Our Origin In The Stars
by Jacob Berkowitz
Prometheus Books, 2012
hardcover, 376 pp., illus.
ISBN 978-1-61614-549-1

A couple of decades ago, astrobiology existed on the fringes of scientific discourse: there were some researchers interested in it, but it was clearly not part of the mainstream. It was also a low priority for NASA, which focused its missions on other scientific topics; when it did support the field through a SETI search, the High-Resolution Microwave Survey, Congress soon stepped in to cut funding for the program, deeming it below the agency's dignity to be involved in the Great Martian Chase, in the words of then Sen. Richard Bryan of Nevada.

Side Bar: Berkowitz argues that we're undergoing a scientific revolution as profound as the Copernican Revolution four centuries ago that shifted the Earth out of the center of the universe and the Darwinian Revolution of the nineteenth century.

Today, by contrast, astrobiology is well in the mainstream, with all the trappings of a modern-day scientific field: its own conferences, journals, and academic programs. It's also been fully embraced by NASA who, while not funding SETI research, has supported a wide range of other astrobiological studies, and whose series of Mars missions, including the latest rover, Curiosity, have been built on studying whether Mars might once have been hospitable to life. The recent report by the Mars Program Planning Group, chartered by NASA earlier this year to revamp the agency's long-term Mars exploration program, supported mission architectures that advance the theme of Search for Signs of Past Life, primarily through the return to Earth of Martian samples from sites of astrobiological significance.

That change in perceptions towards astrobiology is due in part to the advances chronicled by Jacob Berkowitz in his book The Stardust Revolution. In it, he argues that we're undergoing a scientific revolution as profound as the Copernican Revolution four centuries ago that shifted the Earth out of the center of the universe and the Darwinian Revolution of the nineteenth century that introduced revolution. This new revolution, he argues, is the merging of the first two, combining astronomy and biology: an argument expertly covered in the book, even if Berkowitz is guilty of a degree of overreach.

[fortean1] Mystery Robot-Bringing UFOs Sighted By Indian Troops

'Not necessarily from outer space', reports paper

Mysterious UFOs have returned to a remote region on the Tibetan border, according to sightings by Indian troops stationed in the area. The UFOs, which have been reported for years, are said to have included a strange "robot like" figure seen by Indian scientists in 2004 walking along a mountain valley - which then "rapidly became airborne" and flew away.

We learn of the latest military sightings through the trenchant journalism of India Today, which says that Indian army troops and gendarmerie units of the Indo-Tibetan Border Police Force (ITBP) have been submitting reports of strange luminous airborne objects since the summer above the Ladakh region. Ladakh is a remote, mostly uninhabited but heavily militarised zone along the border with Tibet and China.

It seems that the Indian army has checked carefully and the UFOs in question are not manned or unmanned aircraft: these are routinely sighted in the area but can be picked up on radar - unlike the UFOs. Indian army radars have been unable to track the strange shining objects. An unmanned aircraft despatched towards one UFO did sight it, but then "lost sight of the object".

According to India Today, the Indian government - stimulated to curiosity by the frequent reports from the military - despatched a scientific expedition to the region in September. The Indian boffins saw the UFOs but were unable to establish what they were.

The paper reports, magnificently:

Scientists say the mysterious objects are not necessarily from outer space.

(In fact the sense of the boffins interviewed by IT was that there is no reason to think they are from outer space, but this is much better.)

We also learn that UFOs have been reported in the Ladakh region for many years, with the best of these reports coming from a group of Indian government scientists who were in the area in 2004 studying glaciers:

A five-member group of geologists and glaciologists led by Dr Anil Kulkarni of the isro's Space Applications Centre in Ahmedabad were on a research trip through the barren Samudra Tapu Valley. They filmed a four-foot tall 'robot-like' figure, that 'walked' along the valley, 50 m away from them. The humanoid object then rapidly became airborne and disappeared. The encounter lasted 40 minutes. It was seen by 14 persons including the six scientists.

Though Dr Kulkarni's report was comprehensive, it appears to have been mysteriously ignored by the Indian government. A clue as to just why can be found in the IT report; we note that Kulkarni's description - in addition to its submission via scientific channels - was also supplied to unnamed "intelligence agencies ... the matter was buried soon after."

I think we all know what happened there. The excellent IT report can be read here [1] courtesy of Yahoo!

Isaac,

A few thoughts...

The technology needed to provide full interpretation doesn't yet exist, and all it can do is make educated guesses as to the actual text. In our testing (albeit, years ago) we found that the time spent proof-reading the transcripts was equal to the time needed to do it manually. Dragon software is probably the best known, and has been around for a couple of decades, and took a process that ran on a mainframe and boiled it down to the PC.

Does this genre actually have the organization to think in terms of trying to convert existing audio into text and maintaining it somewhere? I still see a number of separate efforts to compile and archive information in different ways that won't communicate with each other, and I don't want to get into the bureaucratic issues involved. There are thousands of hours of various audio clips and programs that would be of interest to some, and it would be nice to be able to search it by text. But how many people would actually end up using this data, or will it be primarily used by those who are already in the genre? To be honest, I see a lot of organizational and archiving effort going into this genre, but very little in the way of impact outside that small sphere of people.

I started this idea in the mid 90's, trying to generate PDFs of existing texts, but ran into a lot of pushback from copyright owners and the hope of simply making information available became lost. I would also mention that a lot of the old radio programs are still owned by the original radio station or broadcast group that aired it, so that's a lot of fun to track down. And sometimes the ownership is with a University archive and they can be really tough to deal with as they look on their archived material as a profit source for copies.

Isaac,

A possible parallel solution to the problem is software that indexes and makes searchable audio recordings by word and phrases. The engine is made by

<http://www.nexidia.com/media/> and it's being used in the media industries. I haven't used it but editor friends of mine swear by its speed and accuracy.

I know no other details about it, unfortunately, as it seems to be Mac based at the moment.

In this issue I have written a feature article Peter Khoury And The Hair Of The Alien - 20 years on 2012 marked a fascinating anniversary of a shocking, controversial and extraordinary experience, which drew me into a ground breaking investigation and a potential breakthrough research direction.

The Peter Khoury experience played out in suburban Sydney Australia is an extraordinary breakthrough alien abduction case that yielded a remarkable clue supporting the enduring idea that UFOs and alien abduction claims might represent credible evidence for alien intervention into human affairs, at an extraordinary and deep level. The clue led to fascinating evidence in the UFO haunted southern Chinese province of Yunnan.

The Lahu people, via the DNA clue from the Khoury hair sample, may be connected with the apparent "Nordic hybrid" being, both through their DNA and their locality, which we found to be rich in UFO and unusual light phenomena. These investigations dramatically consolidated valuable UFO data from China, particularly in the province of Yunnan.

In my 2005 book Hair Of The Alien I focused on a DNA forensic approach to alien abduction evidence. While prominence is given to the Peter Khoury "alien hair" case from Sydney Australia, other cases and experiences from around the world are also examined. My primary focus was to promote a forensic scientific approach to examining the alien abduction controversy, concentrating on the DNA approach where compelling biological evidence was available.

The DNA found in the strange hair sample implicated in the alien abduction experience of Peter Khoury had a striking array of DNA anomalies. Until the "Hair of the Alien" evidence came along the claims that alien abductions might involve hybrid beings was just unsubstantiated speculation. Now evidence had been revealed that may support such a bizarre scenario. Its not conclusive evidence, but it is enough of a potent breakthrough to argue that the research direction it inspired is a very worthwhile hypothesis to pursue. I have created a blog site that focuses on this fascinating area. I have put an introductory essay up on the site =96 "The Alien DNA Paradigm =96 an introduction" at:

<http://aliendnaparadigm.blogspot.com/>

You can assist this long term effort with information and material that may support the work. It may just help define our place in the universe.

The most profound legacy of Peter Khoury=92s 1992 experience for me is that a courageous person allowed a scientifically based DNA investigation to test the validity of his experience and the exotic biological evidence it yielded. That scrutiny did not invalidate Peter Khoury=92s experience, nor did it prove the existence of aliens. It did however provide extraordinary evidence that suggests that something extremely strange had occurred and that ultimately an alien DNA paradigm is a hypothesis worth pursuing. Thank you Peter, for providing the spark that ignited what has been for me an extraordinary investigation and an incredible journey.

[Don't miss this issue of Ufologist out now. Last issue for the year, revisiting the Peter Khoury case 20 years on, hollow earth theory, eastern UFO flap and also articles from Bill Chalker, Daniel Sims, George Simpson, Dave Reneke and much more. See:

Peter Khoury And The Hair Of The Alien - 20 Years On

The past week marked a fascinating anniversary of an extraordinary experience which drew me into a groundbreaking investigation and a potential breakthrough research direction.

Peter Khoury had a bizarre experience on July 23, 1992, in Sydney, Australia. He had a shattering experience on July 12, 1988, which he was ultimately able to understand as an alien abduction. It changed his life. He would go on to help others who had similar experiences by establishing the UFO Experience Support Association (UFOESA). But nothing prepared him for the July 1992 episode. It was so shocking that Peter would only share the experience with his wife and a few close associates.

The July 1992 incident had yielded a remarkable piece of evidence - a hair sample apparently from a blonde "nordic" entity. I was able to work with a biochemistry team which would provide the world's first DNA analysis of a biological sample implicated in an alien abduction experience. The team wanted to see if the sample provided forensic DNA evidence that might support the extraordinary story. It did far more than that.

The evidence secured by Peter Khoury with his July 1992 experience enabled breakthrough research which has led to a focus on research into the hypothesis of intelligent alien intervention in the evolution of human DNA - the Alien DNA paradigm.

An image based tour through this extraordinary case, its investigation, and its amazing implications is provided here to mark the 20 year anniversary of Peter Khoury's shocking, controversial and unprecedented experience.

(The following article appeared in the 2011 special issue of New Dawn Magazine)

An Alien DNA paradigm?

by Bill Chalker

A remarkable clue supporting the enduring idea that UFOs and alien abduction claims might represent credible evidence for alien intervention into human affairs, at an extraordinary and deep level, may have been found in the UFO haunted southern Chinese province of Yunnan. As part of a developing hypothesis I call the alien DNA paradigm, a form of intelligent alien intervention may have occurred in us as humans on planet Earth. We are very primitively tinkering with modifying life forms through transgenics and the like, therefore the idea that someone out there might already have been doing it elsewhere, maybe even here, may not seem so far out.

Evidence for this may also be found in human DNA signatures, particularly among those indigenous cultures that have potent claims of "sky being" lore and land rich in long historical focuses of UFO activity. An extraordinary breakthrough alien abduction case from the other side of the world =96 right here in the middle of Sydney =96 had me to pursuing some very strange clues through Asia to Yunnan, China, leading to the hypothesis of the alien DNA paradigm through a long and complex 4 phase investigation.

New Earth-Like Planet Spotted Just 44 Light Years Away
Boris Pavlishev

A team of British and German space scientists using ground-based telescopes in Chile have spotted an Earth-like planet revolving around a Sun-type star just about 44 light hours away from our solar system. The newly-discovered planet is believed to have atmospheric and other conditions that make it very similar to Earth. Of all the Earth-like planets found to date, it's the closest to us.

More than 800 planets have been discovered outside the solar system over the past two decades, the majority of them being gas giants like Jupiter or solid planets too close to their stars and therefore too hot to support water.

The new planet is in the so-called "habitable zone", which means that it may have water in a liquid state, and it also has an axis of rotation. The latter increases chances that it may support Earth-type life, says astrophysicist Sergei Smirnov of Russia's Pulkovo Observatory.

I am writing to the List with the hope that someone living in Ohio can do a check on an alleged UFO photograph that was taken on July 22, 1897 in Zanesville, Ohio.

It was snapped by James B. Sturges and Jacob Davidson when they were studying natural sciences and taking photos of birds. After development a strange thing, shaped like a lens with a luminous cupola, appeared in the film. The photograph can be seen at the Zanesville Museum of Natural Science.

I will appreciate if someone can volunteer to pay a visit to this museum and have the picture copied (as well as to collect any additional information). I guess it can just be a form of lens flare, but we should confirm by viewing the picture.

Thanks and best regards,

Men In Black: The UFO Buff's Bogeymen
Benjamin Radford

The Men in Black are said to be mysterious, dark-suited figures who contact UFO eyewitnesses and warn them not to tell anyone else about what they know. These figures typically appear in groups of three and are usually assumed to be either government agents or shape-shifting space aliens in disguise.

The origin of the Men in Black can be traced back to the early 1950s when a UFO buff named Albert Bender created a small organization, the International Flying Saucer Bureau, which published a magazine called "Space Review." In 1953, Bender claimed that he had been visited by "three men wearing dark suits" who ordered him not to continue publishing information about flying saucers. He offered no evidence of his encounter, and cynics noted that the magazine was losing money and likely would shut down soon anyway.

A decade later,

Two New Reports On The Chilean "UFO" Videos Produce Conflicting Results
Leslie Kean

Two new studies on the controversial video tapes from the El Bosque case in Chile have just been released. Richard Haines, chief scientist for the National Aviation Reporting Center on Anomalous Phenomena (NARCAP) and Bruce Maccabee, retired Navy physicist, performed independent, meticulous analyses of the tapes.

For necessary background on this case, please see my previous articles: March 2012 with Ralph Blumenthal, and April 2012. I will not be repeating information here from these two posts but will assume everyone has read them.

Last June, I went to Santiago partly to seek further resolution on this case. General Ricardo Bermudez, Director of the CEFAA, told me that the objects did not appear to be bugs, "but we can't be 100 percent sure; it's still under investigation." During my second visit to the CEFAA office in September, the general informed me that the case is now being put to rest, but it remains unsolved.

Haines and Maccabee worked with the two best videos for their studies. I learned during my first meeting with CEFAA staff that due to circumstances beyond their control, the other five videos are no longer in the CEFAA's possession. Therefore I was not able to view them nor can they be made available to others, as the CEFAA would have preferred. However, the two tapes which have been analyzed are by far the clearest tapes; the others were on cell phones and of poor quality.

It is both intriguing and puzzling that the two scientists disagreed about the most crucial question in this case: Did the same unidentified aerial phenomenon, or UAP, appear on two separate cameras? If the exact same UAP was filmed by the two cameras 20 to 30 feet apart simultaneously, then we would know the object was large, distant and not a bug. Haines concluded that the two cameras captured the same UAP in one sequence, while Maccabee concluded they did not.

Black, Rectangle UFO Reported Crossing Low Over Georgia Highway
By Roger Marsh

A Georgia witness driving southbound along Highway 17 in White Oak reported watching a "black, rectangular object cross over the road," according to November 15, 2012, testimony from the Mutual UFO Network (MUFON) witness reporting database.

The witness first thought he had seen a bird, but then continued to watch the sky.

"A few seconds later as I got closer to the point where it crossed, another one flew over the road, at which point it was closer," the witness stated. "I wasn't sure what I saw. After I thought about it there were no visible engines, no wings, no horizontal stabilizers, no cockpit canopy, no rotor blades. Just a black rectangular-shaped object of which I have never seen before. I cannot explain what I saw. It was flying as if it was following the creek or the marsh."

"UFOs and Nukes" Researcher Robert Hastings to Appear on Coast to Coast AM This Sunday<?xml:namespace prefix =3D o ns =3D "urn:schemas-microsoft-com:office:office" />

Noted UFO researcher Robert Hastings will be interviewed by award-winning journalist George Knapp on the Coast To Coast AM radio program this Sunday, November 18, 2012.

During the program's first hour, retired U.S. Air Force Colonel Charles Halt, former Deputy Base Commander of the RAF Bentwaters airbase in England, will discuss his involvement in the famous UFO-related incidents which occurred there in December 1980, including an appearance by one of the mysterious craft at the base's nuclear Weapons Storage Area (WSA).

Halt overheard radio chatter from Security Police guards at the depot, saying that laser-like beams of light were being directed by the UFO down into or near the weapons bunker complex. This is the colonel's first appearance on Coast to Coast.

During the program's remaining three hours, Hastings will provide an overview of the UFO-Nukes Connection, which has been convincingly established by declassified U.S. government documents and the testimony of 130 military veterans interviewed by the researcher over the past 39 years.

Hastings is best known for his September 27, 2010 "UFOs and Nukes=E2=80=9D press conference in Washington D.C., at which six former or retired U.S. Air Force officers and one former enlisted man discussed UFO activity at nuclear weapons sites during the Cold War era.

I am very sad to report that Jim Moseley, UFO researcher/writer/court-jester, editor of "Saucer Smear," died Friday at a Key West, FL hospital, where he was undergoing treatment for cancer of the esophagus.

Jim was perhaps my closest friend, and the world today is a much colder place for his absence.

I do not have any information on funeral arrangements.

Steve,

Moseley, whom I knew well and with whom I corresponded up till the end, was not a skeptic by any definition. He thought UFOs to be some kind of extradimensional phenomenon, and he did not like skeptics, whom he regarded as bores and worse, all that much. He was something of an iconoclast (in equal parts astutely and obliviously, in my observation), but that is not the same thing as a skeptic.

He was less interested in UFOs as such, however, than in the social world of persons concerned, intelligently or otherwise, with UFOs. His role in the UFO subculture cannot be captured in a single word. And if one has to use two, It was sui generis.

I am still trying to process the news, however sadly expected, of Jim's death. I will have more to say on his life and career at some point. For now, I mourn the loss of a friend.

SMERF Search For Alien Visitors
Andrew Potts

The people of Springbrook, in the Gold Coast Hinterland, are so convinced they have been visited by aliens they have now formed a society to prove the existence of extraterrestrials.

The area is also said to be the home of the Yowie - a mythical ape/man creature that roams the forests.

The Springbrook Mountain Extraterrestrial Response Force, known as SMERF, has formed in a bid to prove the existence of ET and other-world life.

The group of 30 meets once a month at the end of Springbrook Rd and has declared itself a pro-active service designed to respond to and determine the veracity of close encounters of the first kind.

Its mission is to "survey the night sky, explore the Earth's peculiar magnetic field fluctuations and ponder the Earth's energetic links to space and beyond".

No Light In The Tunnel
by Billy Cox

So, in the end, we're back where we started with the El Bosque UFO footage, dog-paddling in ambiguity. Not that anyone expected a smoking gun - the DNA's a little hard to acquire. But with so many Chilean government analysts ready to categorize the multiple-angle UFO videos as a legitimate consensus-unknown earlier this year, the latest update from investigative journalist Leslie Kean sorta drains the water from the tub.

Kean, whose UFOs: Generals, Pilots and Government Officials Go On the Record cracked the New York Times bestseller list in 2010, brought this potentially game-changing incident into the U.S. spotlight earlier this year in Huffington Post. Without getting too sidetracked on the rehash, the incident occurred at an air base outside Santiago in November 2010 during a scheduled military flyby. A handful of cell-phone vids collected footage that, when slowed down, showed unknown objects inserting themselves into the maneuvers, looping around conventional planes at speeds so fast they couldn't be seen with the naked eye. Seven videos were reviewed by multidisciplinary scientists for CEFAA, Chile's official UFO investigation agency, and the panellists agreed the object(s) weren't man-made.

Unlike the rest of the American media, which didn't bother to cover the story when CEFAA's Gen. Ricardo Bermudez previewed the footage at a UFO conference in Arizona nine months ago, Kean stuck with this mystery and published a followup this week; those hoping to classify the El Bosque incident as an ironclad mystery were no doubt disappointed. Two of the most open-minded and circumspect researchers in the States - erstwhile NASA scientist Richard Haines and Bruce Maccabee, a former Navy physicist - were deadlocked over the likelihood of the UFO(s) being flying bugs.

Can Anybody Date This Sighting?

From: Rich Heiden <rwheidenu.nul>

Subject: Can Anybody Date This Sighting?

Can anybody refer me to a database that would have this case, to help me date it?

Last June a Wisconsin woman mentioned in her newspaper column a sighting by her and three others that had been investigated by the Air Force. "It went into the record as an unknown, unidentified flying object," she wrote.

It was an EM case between Janesville and Oregon, Wis.. I found a few Blue Book unidentifieds in the area, as follows:

http://www.cufos.org/BB_Unknowns.pdf

and

<http://www.nicap.org/bluebook/bluelist.htm>

10 miles S of Madison, Dec. 9, 1952.
Madison, April 13, 1959.
1 mile W of Monticello, April 3, 1964.
Stoughton, Feb. 16, 1967.

(Both here and below, I include sightings that were way too early, according to what the witness told me later.)

This is what the witness reported in the MUFON Case Management System (which she did at my suggestion=E2=80=94it's #42014):

"Four of us attended a firemans dance in Janesville, Wisc. Our trip originated in Oregon, Wisc. There was no alcohol consumed by any of us. We left the dance, and our car had a flat tire. By the time the tire was changed, we were the only people left in the school parking lot, where the dance was held. We started for Oregon and the driver noticed the car had no power, would only go 20 miles per hour and the lights would not work. Because of that, we took back roads home so as not to run into any law enforcement. When we reached Oregon, a trip that took us twice as long as it should have, one of us, cant remember who, said "Oh my God," and was looking toward the sky. We all looked up and hovering above us was an object we could not identify. It was circular with a domed top and pulsating lights of red, blue, green and white could be seen all around the object. We watched it for a while as it hovered above us. It made no sound except a low hum.

Without warning, the object quietly zipped away and disappeared. Once it began moving, it went out of our sight very quickly. We made a pact to never talk of the incident for fear people would think we were nuts or imagining things. After the object left, we four went into the house and sat in the kitchen consuming copious amounts of alcohol. The next day, the car worked just fine. The lights worked and it could be driven pretty much at top speed. Several years after the incident, one of us must have said something to somebody because the Air Force contacted me, asking me for information about the sighting, which I gave them. It was quite an experience and actually did not frighten us until after the object left. We assumed it was that object that "sucked" the juice from our car and we surmised it had followed us from Janesville while it took power from the car."

Can Anybody Date This Sighting?

She used the date of Feb. 16, 1967, though later she wrote me, "I may have been wrong about the year - it has been so long ago and so much has happened in my life. It may even have been 1969 or 68 - just really not sure." Actually, NONE of the Blue Book cases would fit, because of the number of witnesses. Stoughton might conceivably have been a one-witness independent corroboration of the woman=E2=80=99s sighting, except that she said that the Air Force interviewed THEM specifically.

Of course, it's possible that the AF changed its conclusion later, though I think the pattern was more often to come up with a phony "explanation" that they had to change later to "unknown." Nevertheless, I proceeded to look among the Blue Book IDENTIFIEDS. Here are the best candidates (just on the basis of location), but (again) none of them really fits either:

12/9/1952, driving from Madison past Janesville to Racine
<http://www.fold3.com/image/#9170298>

8/15/1953, Mr & Mrs Eldridge Bertke of Madison
<http://www.fold3.com/image/#6979511>

9/23/1953, Oregon; couple and their children
<http://www.fold3.com/image/#7198212>

9/27/1960, witnesses: police officer; Carol Glass, Constance Glass of Janesville
<http://www.fold3.com/image/#8231665>

9/27/60, Janesville, Wis., aircraft, observer name blacked out
<http://www.bluebookarchive.org/page.aspx?PageCode=3DNARA-PBB1-236>

2/5/1965, mother of Mrs. Floyd C. Parks of Janesville
<http://www.fold3.com/image/#8723624>

2/5/65, Janesville, Wis., meteor, observer name blacked out
<http://www.bluebookarchive.org/page.aspx?PageCode=3DNARA-PBB1-329>

8/28/1966, housewife of Oregon, Wis., and a man
<http://www.fold3.com/image/#8288968>

Actually the witness didn't specifically name Project Blue Book, instead saying it was the Air Force that interviewed them. (I didn't question her on this point, figuring she wouldn't accurately remember anyway.) I know that some better cases were "not part of the Blue Book system." But did that apply to civilian cases like this? Or maybe it wasn't the AF at all, but a civilian UFO group.

I tried searching for Carol Pollock McGowan UFO Janesville Oregon on these= Web sites, also without success:

<http://www.openminds.tv/apro-bulletins/>

<http://www.cufos.org/NICAP.html>

<http://www.nicap.org/newsearch.htm>

<http://www.theblackvault.com/encyclopedia/documents/MUFON/Journals/>

Also Goodsearch, Google, Yahoo, and Bing (I reviewed the first six pages of results for each).

(Two witness surnames are among the search criteria above, but of course some accounts might not include the names. On the four UFO sites, I also searched for UFO Janesville Oregon Wis*.)

I had hoped to be able to identify this case, but have run into a dead end. Can anybody offer any help or suggestions? Thanks!

Canadian FOIA Documents - PDF Archive

Subject: Canadian FOIA Documents - PDF Archive

I have created a collection of searchable PDF files containing 8,759 pages of Canadian UFO documents.

With the permission of the Canadian government, this collection can now be downloaded from:

www.box.com/s/xgc5ye9dwyf93tulzi0j

Of course, as with all uses of Optical Character Recognition software to convert images into searchable PDF files, the results are only as good as the source material. Many of the images released by the Canadian government are imperfect (and, in some cases, completely illegible). Search results with these PDF documents are therefore imperfect -- but I find these results considerably better than not having any search results at all! I would say that the search results are worse than with searches of the UFO documents released by the British Ministry of Defence or the redacted copies of Project Blue Book files released in the USA, but better than the results of searching the unredacted copies of Project Blue Book files.

Mars Rover Makes Discovery For "The History Books", But NASA Is Keeping It A Secret For Now
By Josh Voorhees

Curiosity is living up to its name. The NASA rover currently wheeling itself around Mars has apparently sent back some very interesting data from the Red Planet in the form of a soil sample that shows ... well, something. From the sounds of it, something big. But for now at least, that's all anyone is willing to say.

Scientists at NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena are keeping their lips sealed for the time being while they run additional tests to make sure the discovery holds up. That, however, hasn't stopped one of the mission's leaders from speculating loudly that it'll be one that rewrites at least some of what we know about the universe.

"This data is gonna be one for the history books," John Grotzinger, the rover mission's principal investigator, told NPR last week for a the buzz-inciting segment that aired today. "It's looking really good."

What we do know is that the data comes from a soil sample analyzed by the rover's Sample Analysis at Mars instrument, an on-board lab known as SAM, so if the data holds up to further testing it appears possible, and perhaps likely, that it is a discovery of an element on Mars previously thought not to exist on the Red Planet.

Of course, the reason that NASA is keeping the potential find (mostly) under wraps is because it may turn out to be nothing but a false alarm, something that's happened before to the mission. NPR explains:

Shockingly Close To The End
Jim Moseley 1931 - 2012
by John Rimmer

A day or two after I heard the sad news of the death from cancer of Jim Moseley - the 'Supreme Commander' of Saucer Smear magazine - I saw an item on the TV news about the last ever typewriter to be manufactured in Britain, by the Brother company of North Wales. The machine is to be donated to the Science Museum. What could be the connection between these two events? They represent to me the passing of an era.

Saucer Smear was probably the last UFO 'zine in the world to be hammered out on a typewriter. Every month or so, less frequently in later years, Jim's eight-page newsletter would turn up in the post. It was an almost stream-of-consciousness thread of satirical comment, insider gossip, ufological grudge-bearing, gentle character assassination, and the well-aimed demolition of some of ufology's sacred idols. Sometimes there were even the odd bit of UFO news. Interspersed with the text you would find odd newspaper cuttings and illustrations (often involving well-endowed young ladies), cartoons, amusing headlines and anything else that captured the editor's fancy. You couldn't subscribe to it, the readers were defiantly described as 'non-subscribers', but it was always open for you to send the editor a 'love-offering' or contribute a letter to 'Missives from the Masses'.

Moseley was involved in ufology from the beginning, his interest piqued by the Mantell incident. He starting publishing Saucer News in 1954, and eventually selling it off to his friend Gray Barker. In 1976 he started a new Saucer News, which would occasionally morph into Saucer Booze, Saucer Jews, Saucer Glues, and any other title which came to mind before settling down as Saucer Smear. The copy I have before me, which looks like it will be the last one ever, is numbered volume 59, number 8, whole number 454. Has any other UFO 'zine got anywhere near that record?

Although almost a founder member of the so-called 'UFO community', the relationship became strained early on, with his expose of George Adamski in 1957, which was not universally welcomed. Although at one time a MUFON 'Regional Director' or whatever the title was at the time, he moved away from the party line on the ETH, towards a more 'alternate reality' - or as he described it "3 1/2 dimensional" - explanation, and was gradually downgraded in the MUFON hierarchy, finishing off proudly displaying his position in the organisation with the letters 'J.S.' after his name - 'Journal Subscriber'.

He was a prankster and loved other peoples' pranks, giving him a relaxed attitude to hoaxers which sometimes grated with the 'Serious Ufologists' - always with capital letters - whom he enjoyed taunting. His 2002 book, Shockingly Close to the Truth; Confessions of a Grave-Robbing Ufologist, told of his life in ufology and as a sometimes rather over-enthusiastic amateur archaeologist in Peru. It got off to a bad start with many ufologists through being issued by Prometheus Books, publishing arm of the arch-skeptical CSICOP, and received a six-page drubbing in the pages of International UFO Reporter.

A Serious Ufologist pronounced "Moseley has spent the last five decades engaged in thinking as little about UFOs as his brain can be lulled into =85 Over the years he has entertained about every view it is possible to hold about UFOs, without ever managing to say anything especially interesting or memorable about any of them". Later the Serious Ufologist proclaims, "Moseley insists he is no debunker though anyone who has followed his career will have no trouble discerning why he is every debunkers favourite UFO personality... Moseley's obsessions... have the effect of rendering ufology trivial to outsiders' eyes and making even its most intellectually restrained participants look like dolts."

Surprising then, that commenting on Moseley's death, this same Serious Ufologist announced "Moseley, whom I knew well and with whom I corresponded up till the end, was not a skeptic by any definition. He thought UFOs to be some kind of extradimensional phenomenon, and he did not like skeptics, whom he regarded as bores and worse, all that much." I think it's truer to say he had a sort of love-hate relationship with some prominent US 'skeptics', certainly he seemed one of the few people in American ufology to have a civil word to say for Phil Klass (or 'lovable old Uncle Phil' as he sometimes called him), and his dubbing of James 'the Amusing' Randi suggest that not all were seen as bores. He certainly seemed comfortable with the European brand of sceptical ufology.

Perhaps the key to Moseley's approach to ufology is also revealed elsewhere in that IUN review, and also why he was regarded with suspicion by the ufological 'establishment: "Well-edited and lively, Saucer News is still eminently readable and informative, evoking a lost 1950s world of fringe characters and pursuits. More focussed UFO researchers - meaning those who sought to document sightings, not the saucer craze they generated - were making a point of keeping this sort of stuff off the record"

You bet they were! But Moseley saw very early on that the so-called "saucer craze" and its fringe characters were as much a part of the UFO phenomenon as any neatly documented list of sanitised and cleaned-up sighting reports, because these were the people who gave the phenomena its meaning.

The Magonia team met Jim at the Fortean Times UnConvention in London in 1997, where he spoke on his own 'fortean' experiences and was part of a UFO Brain's Trust Panel along with Phil Klass, Jenny Randles, Dennis Stacy, Patrick Huyghe and a rubber alien head, standing in for Budd Hopkins, who was mysteriously indisposed. He was, as we had expected, an excellent raconteur and great company in the bar after the show.

The arrival of the latest Saucer Smear was always the highlight of Magonia editorial meetings which usually descended into helpless laughter whilst reading it, and it's hard to imagine never seeing one again. I suppose it's possible that one of the people who have been helping Jim with Saucer Smear over the last few years, largely as his link with the "dreaded Internet", may carry on with publishing it. But even if they do, this really is the end of an era. The last link with the early years of the UFO phenomena has been cut, and I doubt that any revived Smear will still be produced on that old typewriter, which really should now be donated to the Smithsonian.

Looking at my copy of Shockingly Close to the Truth, Jim has written a short inscription on the title page: "To John Rimmer, a truly intellectual gentleman. (I hope this assures a favourable review)".

It did, but he didn't really need to ask!

UFOs To The Ratings Rescue?
by Billy Cox

The newsroom at Fox31 in Denver was so stunned by the response its UFO coverage provoked on Nov. 8 that it actually did a followup:

<http://tinyurl.com/cuy4rpg>

last week. "We've heard from hundreds of people from all over the world", Ron Zappolo, the buoyed anchor, told viewers.

But really? Seriously? Surprised at worldwide interest in UFOs when the acronym search dings 234 million hits on Google? Granted, that's only a fraction of the 3 billion-plus returns tallied by punching "sex" into the search engine, but hey, "UFOs" beat "Jesus" by a whopping 83 million.

De Void's guessing the response was due to the fact that Fox31, aka KDVR-TV, actually made an effort to apply a little journalism to the mystery. And KDVR was so stoked it shared the emails and voice messages and photos that came rolling in after Heidi Hemmat's initial report. Clearly, the volume and intensity of the feedback threw her for a loop.

"People have questioned my journalistic integrity," she remarked during the followup. "People either believe it or they don't or they think I'm just a jerk who's out there, y'know, shooting flies and making it up and telling people it's UFOs, but I'm not."

Florida Witnesses Describe Object Hovering 'Just Above The House'
Roger Marsh

Six Florida witnesses at Casselberry reported watching a silent object hovering "just above the house," according to November 26, 2012, testimony from the Mutual UFO Network (MUFON) witness reporting database.

The reporting witness was outside talking to a neighbor about 7 p.m. on November 24, 2012, when the neighbor pointed out the object in the sky.

"What I saw was the most bizarre sight I have ever seen in my life," the witness stated. "Just a little past and above the house (about 50-100 feet in the air), was a UFO. It had two red/orange wing lights, and a matching nose light. I could faintly make out the shape, and it appeared to be a dark triangular shape that was slightly darker than the horizon. Making it easier to connect the dots of the lights to make out a shape. It was so close I thought I could throw a baseball at it!"

The witness described the object's movements.

Jim Moseley lived in Key West in an old, two floors, wooden house, renting the upstairs to tourists. He lived alone surrounded by cats. He had a daughter who lived in Fort Lauderdale and visited her occasionally.

Several times we exchanged mails and on two occasions we visited him. Many feared for his satires, however, personally he was cordial and simple. Good thing he never included me in his satires!

May he rest in peace!

'Dark Skies' Trailer Answers the All-Important Question: "What Would Happen If E.T. Were Evil?"
Movie News By Nathan Adams

Over the years we've seen so many alien home invasions in movies that we've grown to believe that visits from extraterrestrial beings aren't necessarily a big deal. Maybe the alien who comes for a visit could even be a cute little friend who lives in your closet and develops an addiction to Reese's Pieces! And heck, worst case scenario you get pulled out of your bed, anally probed up on the mothership, and then they drop you right back off like nothing happened, right? Maybe not.

Scott Charles Stewart's (Priest) new thriller Dark Skies asks what it would be like if the aliens stuck around for a while and tortured your family.

Photo Album Of Human History Launched Into Space
by Leonard David

A new communications spacecraft being hurled into the heavens might seem like ho-hum news, but one particular satellite is carrying what may be one of the longest-lasting material artifacts of contemporary civilization.

Artist Trevor Paglen's "The Last Pictures" is an archival disc containing 100 photographs representing modern human history =97 a disc affixed to the exterior of the newly lofted EchoStar XVI satellite.

The full artifact attached to the spacecraft is composed of two interlocking gold-plated aluminum jackets housing the silicon disc on which the photographs are nano-etched. The gold-plated shell was designed at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) and Carleton College.

And just in case visitors from afar happen upon EchoStar XVI, there's a cover etching, a temporal map consisting of a star chart, pulsar timings and other information describing the epoch from which the spacecraft came. [Art Time Capsule to Live Forever in Space (Video)]

Two Ex-U.S. Air Force Security Policemen Discuss UFO Activity at Nuclear Weapons Sites

On November 18, 2012, I was invited to appear on the Coast to Coast AM radio show, to discuss my research relating to UFO incursions at nuclear weapons facilities, as confirmed in declassified documents and the testimony of U.S. military veterans. Since 1973, I have interviewed more than 130 of those individuals, ranging from retired USAF colonels, who were ICBM launch and targeting officers, to former airmen who had guarded those missiles, or nuclear bombers.

During the program, I asked for other veterans to contact me with their experiences and, to date, two of them have done so. I have secured these persons' DD214 military files and thereby confirmed that they were indeed stationed at the bases indicated, during the years indicated, and had been assigned to guard nuclear weapons.

Former U.S. Air Force Security Policeman Sgt. Richard E. Walker told me:

Citizen Hearing on Disclosure
National Press Club - April 29 - May 3
www.citizenhearing.org

Between now and the end of the year the components of the Citizen Hearing will be assembled. During that time promotional efforts will focus on raising awareness of the project within the ET research/activist community and the most interested public. International promotion of the Citizen Hearing on Disclosure will begin in early January at which time the full website will be launched.

The Citizen Hearing will be conducted over five days. It will consist of 30 hours of testimony from approximately forty witnesses testifying in groups of three and four regarding events and evidence relevant to extraterrestrial related phenomena. Each witness will deliver prepared remarks to be followed by questions from the hearing committee made up of five former members of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate.

The setting for and conduct of the Citizen Hearing will match that of a formal Senate hearing to the extent possible. The Hart Senate Hearing Room will be the model. In addition to a press section, there will be room for a public audience of approximately 300.

The entire Citizen Hearing, 40 hours, will be live streamed over the Internet.

Simultaneous translations for the live and Internet audience will be available in Spanish, Portuguese, French and Russian as needed.

The last Congressional hearing addressing the ET subject occurred in 1968. The motto for the Citizen Hearing on Disclosure is,
"If Congress will not do its job, the people will."

Citizen Hearing Hotel - The Washington Plaza
www.washingtonplazahotel.com/

The base hotel for the Citizen Hearing will be the Washington Plaza. Hotel rates in Washington, DC have increased dramatically, especially for May, and are scarce. The group code "Citizen Hearing" should be active this week for the Washington Plaza phone and Internet reservations. Anyone wishing to stay at the event hotel should consider booking very early. PRG will attempt to identify other nearby hotels with the lowest rates and post them on the CH website. It is also possible to achieve lower rates by looking for hotels further out from Washington center but near the Metro lines.

Citizen Hearing Conference - X-Conference 2013

Each evening between 7 pm and 11 pm speakers will present three 55 minute lectures on relevant subjects. These lectures will be presented in the hearing room with an audience capacity of approximately 350. This is a separate event that will also be live streamed to the Internet. More conference details will be posted on the CH website in January.

Paradigm Research Group Status

The 2010 X-Conference was held in May six months after the collapse of Lehman Brothers and the beginning of the worst recession in the United States since the 1930's. The conference lost a great deal of money which threw PRG into severe financial straits. PRG is pleased to announce that all outstanding balances due X-Conference speakers and the venue have been paid. All that remains is a modest loan from a European supporter that should be covered by the end of January at which time PRG's balance sheet will be cleared.

Also, in 2010 two loans were made upon PRG's recommendations to colleagues who were subsequently unable to repay those loans. PRG has paid off one of those loans and should have the other, larger loan paid by May of 2013.

PRG greatly appreciates the patience and understanding of its colleagues and supporters during the past eighteen months.

It is quite unlikely PRG will experience any future problematic financial issues going forward.

Author To Discuss Book About UFOs At Hamilton Library

Helena author Joan Bird will make two appearances in Hamilton this weekend to present her book, Montana UFOs And Extraterrestrials. She'll speak at the Bitterroot Public Library on Friday, Nov. 30, at 7 p.m., and then sign books on Saturday, Dec. 1, at Chapter One Book Store, from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Bird is a Ph.D. zoologist who has worked for the Montana Environmental Information Center, the Montana Department of Fish, Wildlife and Parks, and The Nature Conservancy.

She writes in the introduction to her book that, although she's a scientist, she is comfortable with the notion that there are some things that science just can't explain, and that she's had a lifelong fascination with bits of information that don't seem to belong. Unidentified Flying Objects, or UFOs, certainly fall into that category.

That attitude led her to a field known among its practitioners as "ufology", and ultimately to the writing of Montana UFOs.

Montana, it turns out, has been the scene of some of the most significant unexplained occurrences involving UFOs, dating back more than 70 years. Two in particular, a 15-second, color film shot by Nick Mariana in Great Falls on Aug. 15, 1950, showing two silvery spheres in flight; and an incident in 1967 in which 10 Minuteman missiles were deactivated in their silos while a UFO hovered overhead, are considered of primary significance.

A lot of twaddle has been written and said about Jim Moseley since he died - by which I don't mean the above, which is well expressed and touching - and so his true significance is being lost. Jim may not have been a great thinker or a great researcher, but he was a great Jim Moseley, and that's why we'll remember him.

I sure do miss him. My mail feels empty without his regular letters.

I missed seeing the program, so I can't comment at any length about it. But I do know a thing or two about ancient Egypt.
I'll list a few items, if you're interested.

No, I don't think that aliens built the pyramids in Egypt - at Giza or anywhere else. However, the ancient Egyptians wrote that the design of the Step pyramid "fell from the heavens at Saggarah". It includes an underground complex of 3.5 miles of tunnels and rooms, dug through solid rock. Massive!
Thus, we do have an alien connection to Egyptian pyramids.

Of the 138, or so, pyramids in Egypt, not one has contained an original, royal mummy. "Original" is the key word.

The design of the Giza pyramid complex is astounding in its complexity, with dozens of amazing items. For example, a Phi spiral (the Golden Spiral) of the Great Pyramid ends exactly at the "sarcophagus" in the King's Chamber.

And the dimensions of the King's Chamber itself is in the Golden Ratio.

The Great Pyramid was known as "Akhet Khufu", in ancient times, which can be translated as "Protector from the Floods". Today, the pyramid is known as "Khufu's Pyramid" or "The Great Pyramid", but the Egyptologists might have it backwards, with King Khufu named for "protection", and having nothing to do with the pyramid.

His full name was "Khnum Khufu", which means "the god Khnum protects me".

Calling it "Khufu's Pyramid" is like saying that Julius Caesar invented the Caesar salad because they both contain the word "Caesar", or that George Washington invented the washing machine because "washing" is in both phrases.

I don't think so...

It's apparently just a coincidence that part of Khufu's name is included in the ancient name for the Great Pyramid.

The so-called "Solar Boats" buried next to the Great Pyramid are apparently real boats - river-ready.

One was excavated in the 1950s and put on display, and it contains all the things a real boat would need, including waterproofing, boat fenders, different types of wood, etc. As such, it gives some credence to the pyramid as some kind of "protector from the floods", just as they said.

The so-called "sarcophagus" in the Great Pyramid is actually a seed bed - called an "Osiris Bed", very popular in ancient Egypt. A sarcophagus must have the name of the deceased on its outside so the soul can find its body. Some even have eyes painted on the outside so the body or soul can see out. The one in the Great Pyramid is completely barren of any markings, and would have terminated the after-life of the King, with the King's soul searching in vain for its coffin and body so it could rest. A coffin for a king without his name on it would have been treason and murder.

This was no tomb. None of them were built as tombs. Mummies found in them were later "intrusive burials".

An "Osiris Bed" (seed bed) could also be termed an "Orion Bed" since they referred to Orion as Osiris (at least, the Greeks did).

The Giza pyramids are laid out in the shape of "Orion's Belt" in the constellation of Orion. Thus, we have an "Orion Bed" in the Great Pyramid, although the Egyptians didn't call it that. Thus, the seed bed (Orion Bed) fits with the layout of the Giza pyramids (Orion's Belt). It wasn't intended for death, but to represent life. The mainstream Egyptologists have it backwards because they didn't do their homework, and looked only for mundane explanations for things. The so-called "Giza necropolis" is nothing of the sort. It represents life, regeneration, and a new beginning.

Royalty was probably buried underground, or possibly also in caves - not in pyramids. King Tut was buried underground.

"Egypt" is a Greek word. The ancient Egyptian name for Egypt is "Kemet" (the land of black dirt) and also "Ta-meri" (the beloved land). The ancient Egyptians might have come from Ireland, and some ancient Egyptians are buried in Ireland with graves which can still be seen today. Hair analysis and other evidence points to the Egyptians as being unique, compared with their neighbors. Khufu's mother was a redhead.

For more clues to the purpose of the pyramids, look underground. Zahi Hawass has been doing it in the Giza area since at least 2008, but he's not talking.

The Limits Of Fantasy
by Billy Cox

Cambridge University's recent decision to sponsor a 'Terminator center' to study the possibility of human extinction by intelligent robotics naturally caught De Void's eye.

Formally known as the Centre for the Study of Existential Risk (CSER), it's the brainchild of celebrated British cosmologist Lord Martin Rees. Among other things, the Cambridge team will explore variations of the homicidal HAL 9000 Space Odyssey scenario to determine the likelihood of artificial intelligence making the leap from the big screen to nonfiction.

"We fret unduly about carcinogens in food, train crashes and low-level radiation," Rees told the media. "But we are in denial about 'low-probability high-consequence' events that should concern us more and which, in our ever more interconnected world, could have global consequences."

Malicious artificial intelligence isn't the only entree on the CSER trouble-shooting menu. Included among CSER's "four greatest threats" to humanity are nuclear war, climate change, and "rogue biotechnology," and CSER plans to assess those threats as well. But killer AI is the show-stopper, and it brings to mind a theory on technological evolution posited by former NASA historian Steven Dick in the International Journal of Astrobiology in 2003.
